EXTEND DEADLINE

WINDSOR (CP) — City council Monday night amended its Lord's Day bylaw to allow sports activities to continue after 6 p.m. on Sundays, but it left the 1:30 p.m. starting time unchanged. Sports allowed include baseball, football, hockey, skating, tennis, bowling, boxing, lacrosse, cricket, basketball, badminton, swimming track and field events, wrestling and curling.

$200,000 Drag Strip Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Nearby Markham Township council announced Tuesday approval had been given for construction of a $200,000 drag strip, expected to be in operation by next summer.

Plans call for stands for 3,000 spectators with racing under lights. Cars are expected to reach 200 miles an hour over the proposed 2,600-foot course.

Drag racing is a time competition between the cars from a standing start. Each car goes one-quarter mile and speeds are electrically timed.

STOPPING POWER

Under full break, a modern jet airliner absorbs enough energy to stop almost 975 automobiles travelling at 50 m.p.h.

GUARD SIDELINED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers said Tuesday that guard Mike Sandusky probably will be on the sidelines the rest of the National Football League season. Sandusky injured a knee in Sunday's 30-10 loss to Minnesota Vikings.

Canadian Football Awards
Stewart Double Nominee

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Kisby is one Canadian-born football player who can hold his own in any competition, according to Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

Kisby, the 226-pound Moose Jaw tackle from Galt has been nominated by the Alouettes for three Canadian Football League awards — outstanding player, outstanding Canadian and outstanding lineman

He is the only CFL player to win all three nominations this season.

Kisby is a 10-year veteran with the Alouettes and has played in all 12 of the Alouettes scheduled games this season.

Tom Brown of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, who won the outstanding lineman award last year, has been nominated for lineman and outstanding player awards this season.

DOUBLE NOMINATION

Ron Stewart of Ottawa Rough Riders has also been nominated for two awards — outstanding player and top Canadian. Team-mate Russ Jackson, who became the first player in the 11-year competition to win a double award last season, didn't get into the first round this year.

Tommy Grant of Hamilton Tiger-Cats is the only other double nomination. He is a nominee for outstanding player and top Canadian awards.

Following are the nominations (for outstanding player, outstanding Canadian and outstanding lineman, in order):

Toronto — Dick Shatto, Ron Brewer, Billy Kisby.

Montreal—Ted Kisby, Kisby, Kisby.

Ottawa—Ron Stewart, Stewart, John Kenarson.

Hamilton — Tommy Grant, Grant, John Barrow.

Calgary — Lovell Coleman, Larry Robinson, Don Lend.

Winnipeg — Ken Ploen, Billy Cooper, Bill Whistler.

Regina—Ed Buchanan, Wayne Shaw, Al Benecick.

Vancouver—Tom Brown, Pat Claridge, Brown.

Hornets Sting Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Larry Pfaff supplied the scoring punch and Dave Dryden played superb goal as Galt Hornets dealt Woodstock Athletics a 5-2 defeat here Tuesday night. Only 400 fans watched last year's Ontario Hockey Association Senior League finalists renew their battle.

Pfaff scored the Hornets' second goal and assisted on three others. Linemate Jim Dahmer scored twice while single goals went to Ron English and veteran Joe Hogan.

Referee Marlo Glassford handed out 67 minutes in penalties, including a misconduct to Galt player-coach Pegs Tennant and a major to Woodstock's Gerry Stytsgie.

The win moved Galt into a first-place tie with Guelph Regals. Woodstock is tied for third with Oakville.

Test Fallout Passes Out Into Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States says the major portion of the cloud of out-to-sea without measurable radioactivity hurled aloft by any reported significant fallout, China's nuclear test has crossed the U.S. weather bureau said Tuesday night.

This was the result predicted by weather bureau scientists earlier in the day when the cloud was speeding across the continent at 30,000 ft. propelled by 100 m.p.h. winds.

Other government scientists said Monday that even without path of the cloud, with the possible exception of northern New England, helped produce the expected to cause any undue favorable results. Rain might have brought some of the radioactivity to earth.

It was reported earlier in Ottawa that it would be about two weeks from the time of the Chinese test before it is known whether or not the level increased levels of radioactivity in Canada.

Police Officer Wounded by Shotgun Blast

COLDWATER, Ont. (CP)—A shotgun blast wounded a provincial police constable in the hand and chest early today as he chased two youths suspected of stealing firearms through dense swamp near this village 15 miles northeast of Orillia.

Police said the blast struck Const. R. G. Connors, ripping open his right hand. A heavy parka and regulation tunic absorbed the blast in the region of his chest.

Const. Connors was in satisfactory condition in a Toronto hospital after doctors operated on his hand. The chest injuries were described as "minor."

Police arrested two youths and took them to Toronto. They said charges were pending.

Const. Connors and Const. M. T. Attlee of the Victoria Harbour detachment chased the youths after they were called to investigate theft of a number of shotguns, rifles and ammunition from a marina here.

They found the youths' car abandoned on Highway 12 about eight miles north of here and pursued the youths into the swamp.

SHIP RUSS CARS

Young Ottawa Columnist Is Diplomat's Daughter

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — "Mother said newspaper reporters always get trampled on, but I made up my mind that I wanted to be one anyway."

So says 18-year-old Cecilia Domeyko, the beautiful and determined diplomat's daughter who is Ottawa's newest newspaper columnist.

Her lively comments on the dating and courtship customs of Latin American teen - agers have been appearing on the Saturday youth page of the Ottawa Journal since July. She hopes to continue writing until she leaves Ottawa with her family later this year for her native Chile.

The daughter of Juan Domeyko, a minister counsellor at the Chilean Embassy, Cecilia collects material by interviewing her friends among the families of Ottawa's diplomatic corps.

She says she found that in most South American countries "the family name with family tradition and the customs imposed by a society made up of these families all tend to maintain extremely high moral standards."

"Customs are much harder there on teens because they are not allowed as much freedom as in Canada. But they are easier too, in a way, because teens know exactly what is expected of them."

CUSTOMS RIGID

Cecilia, a slender blonde girl with huge dark eyes, says "the idea of courtship is still alive" in Latin American countries because teen-agers there are more strictly chaperoned and dating customs more rigid.

"Getting to like a boy and getting a boy to like you is something like a game of chess. It must be played with subtle strategy and is therefore much more exciting than the direct "what about a date tonight?"

Meeting a boy "by chance" at a party or sports event is about the only way a South American girl can take matters into her own hands. Usually the initiative for starting a friendship lies solely with the boy.

"The idea of picking up a boy friend at his house in her own car would completely astound a Latin American girl. She would feel completely out of her role. As for the boy—he would never allow it for he would feel ridiculous. It would be an insult to his manliness and gallantry."

In contrast to their rather strict dating customs, teen-agers in Latin American countries are usually allowed to drink at an early age, says Cecilia. "But they rarely get drunk, having learned how to drink by the time they are old enough to go to a party."

BRAZILIANS ROMANTIC

Some capsule comments from Cecilia's columns:

On Brazilian boys — "These boys are never tired of being romantic or thinking of their girl friends. Girls, what would you do if you awoke one night and heard a serenade beneath your window?"

On Argentina—"That's where the girls all play canasta and the boys all play guitars."

On Peruvian dating customs—"A Peruvian girl's worries are never over. It's almost an impossibility for her to be alone with her boy friend, even for a few minutes. As in most Latin American countries, what a girl does is everybody's business — especially that of her brothers or cousins, always present at parties she attends".

Cecilia's parents no longer object to her becoming a journalist, but they want her to complete a business course before she starts the three-year university course in journalism at Santiago.

The Chilean girl will return to her native country with not only her Ottawa newspaper work behind her but also an unusual amount of travel experience.

She was born in Chile but spent her early years in the United States, learning Spanish and English at the same time. Later the Domeykos went to Australia and the Dominican Republic before returning to the U.S. They have been in Canada three years.

Annual Salmon Derby Brings Many Tall Tales

By WALTER HAYES

VANCOUVER (CP) — On derby day, says Al McLellan, give an angler enough rope—and he'll steal your boat.

The theft actually happened during one of the annual salmon derbies sponsored by the Vancouver Sun and is one of the many anecdotes Al has collected in 11 years organizing the event.

The stolen boat was a small rented craft a fisherman had tied to his stake with a long rope while he slept on the beach waiting for the dawn and the start of the derby.

Came the dawn, angler and rope were there but the boat was gone.

"Department stores have extra help in their sporting goods departments. It looks like Christmas has started early."

Boat rental operators also feel the derby "lives" most starting the day with nothing left to rent that floats.

30 POUNDER WON

Before the sun rises the sound glitters with the lights of the thousands of boats ranging from rubber rafts to 150-foot yachts, all heading for a favorite spot.

When the dawn breaks, the water is a tangle of lines trailed or jigged, and when a salmon is caught the armada moves to the promising spot.

In some areas it would be possible to leap from coat to boat without fear of a dunking. There were an estimated 4,000 boats fishing in the last derby carrying about 12,000 anglers, all with their eyes on such prizes as boats and outboard motors.

His line tangled with others from nearby boats and—to a man — the other anglers cut their lines to let him land what was obviously a big salmon.

He reeled in a 30-pound, 13 chinook and the first prize.

Kenneth Lawley had hooked a 40-pounder and broke his net trying to land the monster. Occupants of a nearby boat answered his shouts for help and gave him their net.

Why didn't he use his gaff? "Are you crazy?" he said later. "Think of the weight the fish would lose when it bleeds."

Adventure Series Tinged With Suspense TV Miracle

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the minor "miracles" of a television series is that suventure stories are able to build any suspense.

Will Marshal Dillon draw faster than the bad man? There's no doubt about it. If there is to be another show next week.

Will Anne Burke solve the murder? He'd better if he expects the audience to return.

David Janssen, an able and personable young actor, has been playing the part of an innocent, ivy - league, escaped convict for more than a year now in an ABC series, The Fugitive.

As Dr. Richard Kimble, he was convicted of the murder of his wife—a miscarriage of justice because he did not commit the dastardly deed and, in fact, caught a glimpse of a one-armed man whom he suspects of the crime.

En route to prison and execution there was a convenient train wreck from which he escaped. But he is ruthlessly pursued by Police Lieutenant. And all this background is explained each Tuesday before the audience is let in on Kimble's weekly narrow escape from capture by the cops.

Once they find a one-armed man or once the authorities catch up with him, the series will be over.

Tuesday night's episode was typical. Working as a gandener under an assumed name, Kimble is mistaken for the lead of the house and kidnapped for ransom by a paraplegic.

Police learn his true identity and it looks as if his goose is cooked no matter what happens. Will the kidnapper or his wife kill Kimble? Will the police catch him along with the kidnappers? We know better. The suspense, however, was very nice in a misguided way, thoughtfully dropped him along the roadside just before they drove into a police trap.

Even if one suspects the ultimate outcome, it still makes rather stimulating viewing.

1,200 Work On Montreal River Tunnel

By GERARD McNEIL

COCHRANE (CP) — More than 1,200 men are at work building a pre-stressed concrete tunnel that will carry six lanes of traffic below the main St Lawrence River shipping channel.

Part of the $400,000,000 Quebec portion of the Trans-Canada Highway, the tunnel will connect Montreal's east end; a few miles from the heart of the city, with the north shore of Ile-Charron.

A broad, low bridge will cross the shallow channel to the south shore of the St. Lawrence.

In length the bridge and tunnel will total 4,561 feet. Completion date is set for June 1, 1966, well in advance of the world's fair and its heavy influx of traffic.

Named after Louis-Hippolyte Lafontaine, the $75,000,000 project is one that would warm the heart of the 19th century nationalist. The fact that would have appealed most to Lafontaine is that all the engineers are French-Canadian.

A dozen contractors are at work log on the job. Some 1,500 trucks bring 10,000 cubic yards of concrete to the site each week.

WORK INSIDE WALLS

Instead of burrowing beneath the 85-foot-deep river, engineers are building the tunnel within the walls of a great trench that pushes into the channel from the north side of the island.

About half of the men are at work on the entrances from the Montreal and Ile-Charron shores and others are putting together seven 360 - foot - long concrete sections.

Each 28 feet high by 120 feet wide, they are roughly the size of a modern office building.

Sometime next year, the great earth-walls around them will be breached down and the rivers will flow into the hole where the work is being done floating the 32,000-ton sections.

They will then be massive concrete blocks to be connected into place across the river and sealed, to be linked together by divers.

The completed affair will have three lanes on each side of a service tunnel, whose walls will have television monitor cameras for control.

The resident engineer is Bernard Grelon — and the pre-stressed concrete walls of the tunnel will withstand pressure of 200 tons per square inch.

19-Year-Old Kills Mother With Hatchet

BUFFALO (AP)—A 19-year-old boy beat his mother to death Tuesd awith a hatche' behind their home in the nearby town of Clarence, police said.

Police reported the after shaving of 41-year-old Mrs Anna Simerl her son, Christopher, telephoned his father, Vernon, at work and said:

"I killed my mother."

Police said no motive had been established for the slaying.

Christopher was charged with second-degree murder.

REGINA (CP) — Twenty-four top civil servants have resigned since the Liberal government of Ross Thatcher came to power in Saskatchewan five months ago.

Four others have been fired and the jobs of 10 members of the Labor Relations Board have been eliminated.

The changes are no more than should be expected for a government with a "great" philosophical difference from its predecessor, says the premier.

The Liberals have also suggested that the CCF administration grew lax in its civil service policies during 30 years in office and that paring was an inevitable feature of a new administration.

Mr. Lloyd, who had predicted that many bright men brought in by the CCF would leave, has accused the new government of being anti-intellectual. It has a 19th-century concern with men story savings, he said.

Considerable public attention has been focused on the changes since many were among top-ranking civil serv ants. What of the lower ranks of the 7,500-member service?

A public service commission official said this summer resignations and dismissals were running two per cent below the normal 12-per-cent annual average.

MOST DEPUTIES STAY

The deputy ministers of all but three departments have stayed on, as have members of the budget bureau and all upper-echelon personnel in education, natural resources, attorney - general's department, co-operatives, highways municipal affairs, provincial secre tary's office and public works.

Premier Thatcher says mor ale, except perhaps among those he describes as "the left-wingers," is high.

At its May annual meeting the Saskatchewan Government Employees Association passed a unanimous resolution pledging "to continue serving the people of Saskatchewan under the administration of Premier Thatcher with the same loyalty and devotion as they have given to previous administrations."

"Ours is a middle-of-the-road administration. Far from being anti-intellectual, we are looking for all kinds of bright young men for our civil service."

He referred to James Moore, 36-year-old Sorbonne graduate hired as secretary of the economic planning and advisory board, as an example.

Mr. Lloyd said his administration had been able to build up a nationally respected pool of brainpower because its basic forward-looking programs provided scope for talent.

Now, he said, the pool is losing many of its top men because programs and advances in an attempt to reduce expenditures.

CASS-BEGGS FIRED

"In actions of the Thatcher government there are overtones of anti-intellectualism, a disdain for the person whose thinking is guided by values which can't readily be translated into dollars.

"Saskatchewan's citizens under the Liberals have in store a reversion to 19th-century government. I mean government which enshrines the dollar as the only means of measuring value and which accepts the financial balance sheet as the only method of drawing a conclusion."

Mr. Lloyd said the resignation of personnel from the medical care insurance commission and the firing of David Cass Beggs as manager of the Saskatchewan Power Corporation called into question the future of the two bodies.

Mr. Thatcher has said the medical care plan would be retained and expanded. Of the power corporation, he has said only that he wants it to be run more efficiently.

The premier said there was an even greater movement of civil servants from the province when the CCF came to power in 1944. However, the resort of the civil service commission that year said civil servants were continually moving in and out of their jobs because of wartime enlistments and discharges.

About 6,500 of the civil servants are protected from wholesale dismissal by their membership in the Government Employees' Association, which has a collective bargaining agreement with the government.

In addition, the Public Service Act of 1947 was designed to eliminate patronage by stipulating that government jobs are to be filled on an open, competitive basis.

290 OUTSIDE ACT

About 200 upper-echelon employees such as deputy ministers are cabinet appointees not protected by the act or the bargaining agreement. Most have access to confidential information and are vital cogs in carrying out government policy.

When the Liberals came to power they put into effect a policy of cutting the number of civil servants by not replacing persons who retired or resigned and by shifting others to different jobs.

Prominent civil servants fired, in addition to Mr. Cass-Beggs, included S. Elkin, deputy minister of labor; Albert G. Watson, —executive director of the government's Diamond Jubilee and Canada Centennial Corporation; and George Edichok, chairman of the land allocations committee of the agriculture department.

Mr. Cass-Beggs, who ran as a CCF candidate in the 1945 Ontario election, was dismissed the government said, because he "declined to carry out policies for more efficient power corporation operations and because he had philosophical differences with the Liberals.

The government said the Labor Relations Board needed new blood. It had been under Liberal fire as a body slated in favor of labor.

Mr. Elkin said he was fired for political activity on the job.

Mr. Watson was dismissed for questioning the appointment of a former Liberal cabinet minister to replace Mr. Watson as his assistant.

No reason was given for the dismissal of Mr. Echak, who had been a CCF candidate in a federal election and whose committee was alleged by the Liberals as an alleged source of political bandouts.

RETURNS TO JOBS

Prominent men who resigned included Dr. Meyer Brown stone, deputy minister of municipal affairs; Dr. E. F. Gaudry, deputy minister of industry and information who leaves Dec. 31; Walter Housemen, manager of Saskair, the government-owned airline; K. E. Norris, secretary of the economic planning and advisory board; Charles Harris, executive director of the crop insurance board; A. J. William, director of petroleum and natural gas statistics; Dr. V. L. Matthews, associate deputy minister of health; Desmond Bell, head of the information branch director; G. A. Lane economic adviser in the agricultural development branch; officials of the medical care in. surance commission; Jack Hastings had "blinded the government to economic realities, social needs and sound business practices.

Mr. Thatcher said he asked Dr. Brownstone and Mr Tansley in particular to stay on but they declined. Dr. Brownstone explaining that he was the least partly influenced by the availability of a better position elsewhere.

Replacements so far have filled the largest gaps within the ranks of the service, many on a temporary basis until the Liberals can obtain new personnel.

Cross-Canada Survey

University Education Costs More at Major Schools and Harder to Gain Admission

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A university education costs more this year at most major Canadian schools—up to $2,000 for fees and other costs—and it is harder to gain admittance in some regions.

But enrolment this fall soared by more than 15 per cent as the universities stretched facilities or pushed building projects to meet the demand for higher education.

The increases ranged from a $15 levy at Montreal's McGill for student organization budgets through $60 more for general arts at University of Toronto to $70 more for most courses at Queen's of Kingston, Ont., and $80 at Loyola College of Montreal.

The universities of Manitoba and Alberta, Montreal and Laval of Quebec City were among the minority that held the line this year on fees.

ENROLMENT UP

Of the 34 universities surveyed, all but New Brunswick Fredericton and Mount Allison at Sackville, N.B. which are holding enrolments at 2,500 and 1,200 respectively until expansion plans mature, recorded increased student population.

The total for the 34 is up by almost 15,500 this year to 142,000 students.

Cost of living on or off the campus has remained steady in general, averaging about $700 for room and board over the 7½-month academic year, with costs slightly lower in parts of the Atlantic provinces and the Prairies than in central Canada.

With the tuition fee for a general arts or science course averaging about $500, room and board, books and other expenses would push the cost of a year at university to between $1,500 and $2,000 without many luxuries. It would be more for students of medicine and engineering.

A survey of 26 universities by the Canadian Union of Students found fees for arts courses were up this fall by an average $60 in 20 of the schools.

Asks Union President: Jean Bazin's CUS tuition fees going to rise year after year when jobs available for students are declining, when efforts are being made to democratize the university, when financial aid to students is not keeping up with the normal growth of the universities?"

TUITION RESTRAINT

The 28th congress of the union at Toronto in September passed a resolution urging universities to "freeze the fees" pending the result of current studies on costs and the ability of students to meet them. The union also asked university administrations to consult student organizations before raising fees.

While university fees have been climbing, figures compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that tuition fees paid by students account for only 26 6 per cent of the operating and research costs of the universities.

The remainder of a total $235,002,000 in the 1962 63 academic year was supplied by government and endowment—38.9 per cent from provincial governments, 19.3 per cent from the federal government and 15.2 per cent from endowments and other sources.

University capital outlays in '62-63 amounted to $112,000,000, a figure likely to be exceeded this year as almost every higher education institution in the country is engaged in putting up new buildings or adding to old ones. In addition, new universities such as Trent of Peterborough, Ont., Brock of St. Catharines, Ont., Simon Fraser at Burnaby, B.C. and a branch of University of New Brunswick in Saint John are building on campuses.

While some universities report they are crowded, most of them freeze build when current building projects are completes there are indications that the capital expansion in the last few years is catching up with the enrolment growth rate in other centres.

Laval University reports no overcrowding and has a decrease of more than 500 to 6,500 students this year. All qualified applicants for every faculty except medicine were accepted. But only 125 of the 400 qualified were accepted in the medical faculty.

A survey in Ontario showed that over all there was slightly more room than students this year, although not all universities and faculties had extra room.

McMaster at Hamilton, Windsor and Laurentian of Sudbury could have taken more qualified applicants and Toronto and Queen's had unfilled spots in some faculties.

Experts say the appearance of unfilled spots is a result of over-expansion of facilities in some cases, a decline in popularity of some courses in others.

Engineering, for example, is less popular. Toronto had places for 750 but only 492 are enrolled in engineering, a drop of 200 from last year. Queen's can take 300 in engineering but has only 242.

Another factor contributing to unused space in the lecture halls is that some high school graduates apply to several universities and if accepted at several leave last - minute vacancies when they take the opening they like best.

British Columbia Will Rename High Schools

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia will do away with its high schools next year but it won't mean widespread illiteracy.

As part of a major overhaul of the province's education system, the education department has decided high schools will be renamed, effective next September. They will become "senior secondary schools."

Under the new curriculum, new programs have been introduced year by year. Grades 11 and 12 are the targets for 1965.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson says that in many respects the new program will be tougher than that now in effect, but it has been designed to provide special education for a far wider range of talents.

Mr. Peterson says the program involves three basics—general education, vocational preparation and an opportunity for students to cultivate special interests.

Students will be able to follow six "streams" — academic-technical, for university or technical institute; academic; clerical; industrial; community services; arts, or agriculture. But not all these alternatives will be available in all schools.

"Schools will choose from among them those most suitable to their resources and the needs of the students in the community," he said. Size of the school will be an important factor.

Mr. Peterson said the present credit system will be thrown out entirely in the senior years and students will have to complete a full program, involving 4 normal seven courses in each of Grades 11 and 12.

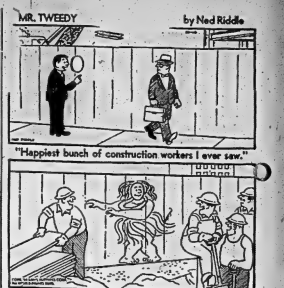
He Robbed, He Reaped, He Sowed



ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— A white-haired man gleefully threw dozens of $20, $10, $5 and $1 bills out of his car window as he drove slowly along Saxtons Street Tuesday night, shouting "here! here!"

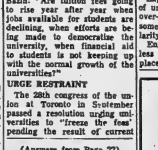
The bills were gathered up by youngsters who followed the car as it made its way down the street.

"When I got there, I'd say about 50 kids, including a lot of teen-agers, were looking for bills. But they were all gone," said Patrolman Albert DeTiege.

He said a $5 bill and five $1 were turned over to him.

Shortly before the incident, police said, a resident of a nearby street had reported $942 in small bills missing from his home.

Demand More Gaelic on BBC Television



GLASGOW (CP)—A demand for more Gaelic on BBC television and radio has been made by the Western Isles Crofters Union, representing crofters in the Hebrides.

In a letter to the BBC, the union criticized the "meagre allocation" of time given to Scottish Gaelic broadcasts:

"With 1½ hours of broadcasting time a week, Scottish Gaelic is the neglected clod-relic of all living languages in civilized societies.

"It is the poor relation of the Celtic family. There are seven or eight hours of broadcasting time in Welsh weekly and relation to Irish Gaelic, program time for Scottish Gaelic is infinitesimal."

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Active, dynamic day ahead. Don't be afraid of failure. Do your best and there will be ultimate success. Remember suggestion made by family member. It is valid. Helps overcome major obstacle!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Your vitality "reigns." Once more you are enthusiastic about pet project. Take time to think. Obtain needed privacy. Then "emerge" as dynamic individual. Others are impressed!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Element of luck rides with you. But don't press it! Fine for expressing true feelings. You receive needed signs of love, affection. Be grateful. Display maturity, sense of responsibility.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Abandon obsolete methods. Be aware of "image." Stress original, independent approach. Responsible individuals are vitally concerned with your ideas. Prepare thorough outline, format.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Collect bits of information. Then piece them together for complete story. Depend upon your own ingenuity. Others appears confused. Be amiable. And don't get caught up in emotional whirlwind!

If today is your birthday . . . you are independent, in thought, action — you are attracted to unorthodox persons, methods, situations.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—On the level of street-corner argument Senator Barry Goldwater is trying to convince the American people that President Johnson's foreign policy toward the Communist states is dangerously soft.

Johnson, in turn, is trying to convince the same audience that Goldwater as president could drag the world into nuclear war.

In defence of his own policies, Johnson has been pounding the theme in recent talks that he alone at expanding freedom in the world while promoting peaceful East - West ties and avoiding nuclear war.

Similarly, Goldwater has increased the emphasis on his claim that if he is elected Nov. 3 he will reinforce peace by instituting tougher policies toward Russia.

The tougher policies advocated by Goldwater include a threat to break relations with the Soviet Union. In the past he has also called for an outright break, saying as recently as September, 1963, "I don't like to lend dignity and respect to an outfit that says they're out to bury you."

In a policy paper issued last April, however, he suggested possible denial of recognition "as a bargaining device . . ." and claimed "the very threat would be of great value to the U.S. in its negotiations with the communists."

WANTS CONCESSIONS

Two months later in an interview with the German magazine, Der Spiegel, he elaborated, saying:

"Before we go blithely selling Russia wheat, for example, let's ask for some concessions. Let's use as a threat to get those concessions the terrific need she has for our recognition. This is not something I would do just overnight. It would come about through consultation with our own people, our allies."

More recently, in evident concern that he was being criticized as a potential president who would lead the country into war, Goldwater has made repeated statements that his major goal would be world peace, to be secured by dealing with the Communist powers more firmly and decisively.

He has coupled this with attacks on the Johnson administration on the ground that John Q. Public "does not understand the nature of the conflict" with communism.

"Our sworn enemy in every basic way is just like the neighborhood tough guy," Goldwater declared in a television broadcast Sept. 18. "Let him push you around and eventually you'll have to fight. Just stand up to him though, just draw the line on his aggressions and . . . he'll back down, and there will be no fight."

'BEGUN TO CRACK'

Johnson dealt with his and the late president John F. Kennedy's policies toward the Communist countries in a speech at Detroit Sept. 8. Under the Democratic administration, he said, the United States has built "military strength greater than the world has ever known", and it has shown in Cuba and Viet Nam it would "stand firm in the defence of freedom." It has "worked to extend the domain of liberty . . . and patiently labored to open new avenues to peace."

"In this world in which we live today," Johnson declared, "no nation, new or old, has gone Communist since Cuba went in 1959. In this world the solid unity of communism has begun to crack. We have worked to help the nations of Eastern Europe move toward independence. . . .

"In this world, the strength of freedom is greater and the prospects for peace are brighter. . . . We must constantly work for peace and I want you to know that today your government is working for peace."

Johnson acclaimed the limited nuclear test ban treaty negotiated with Russia last year as a step to strengthen peace. He also described his other earlier this year to cut "unnecessary nuclear production" as a means to peace. He added:

"I will continue to support every realistic measure that will bring the world closer to peace, without increasing the danger of freedom."

SALE OF RISKS

Both Johnson and Godwater have talked about the possibility of taking risks of war in support of U.S. foreign policy objectives. But they have put their ideas in different words.

On June 28, at Minneapolis, Johnson said: "Today as always a nation to keep its freedom must be prepared to risk war. When necessary we will take that risk . . . but as long as I am president I will spare neither my office nor myself in the quest for peace."

Last February, also at Minneapolis, Goldwater said: "If you get a Republican president you can get foreign-policy changes awfully fast. In my case it would be changed to a policy not of belligerence but the same policy as under Eisenhower and Dulles of brinkmanship and the proper use of our strength."

Goldwater has talked about the ultimate outcome of the conflict between the Western allies and the Communist powers in terms of victory—a victory which he says can be won without war. Johnson deals with the long-range problems of the struggle in different terms, stressing a need to avoid nuclear war.

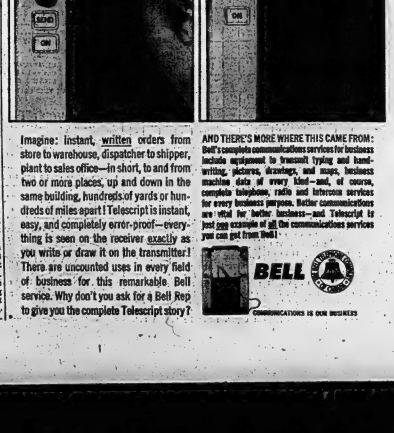
STIRLING



New Proprieter For IGA Store

STIRLING — Last Saturday a prominent storekeeper in the village sold his I.G.A. business to Mr. W. A. Hodgson of Toronto. He has been supervisor of the Ottawa wholesale owned stores of the I.G.A. and comes well recommended to assume proprietorship of the Stirling store.

It is with regret that Mr. Harold Bird gave up his business, however owing to ill health he thought it wise to relinquish some of the heavy responsibility. Mr. Bird took over the business in Stirling as storekeeper 20 years ago in November 1944 and since that time many improvements have been made. Six years ago the store joined the I.G.A.

The new store will begin operations on Novembre 2 and will operate with the same staff as formerly.

Mr. Bird will remain in Stirling with Mrs. Bird and as yet is undecided as to what type of work he will pursue. Their son Allan Bird, his wife and family will be leaving Stirling and it is expected that Allan will manage an I.G.A. store in some other part of Ontario.

Soviet Leaders Defend Ousting With New Attack

Launched Amid Rising Unrest in Red Parties

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Communist party leaders denounced today the Stalinist-type "cult of the personality" in a policy statement clearly intended to explain the ouster of former premier Khrushchev.

"Life shows that not all comrades completely overcame the ways, forms and methods of work that were built up during the period of the cult and rejected by life," an editorial in the journal Party Life said.

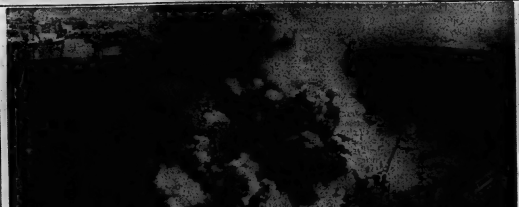
"Precisely for this reason the party is so demanding in the questions of militeneness of the principle of collectivity of leadership, the Leninist norms of party life in all the links of party and state apparatus.

"Not a single Communist, not a single party body has the right to bypass cases when any body displays haughtiness, stops taking into consideration the opinion of comrades and does not concern himself with the development of criticism, the creative and not formal discussions at plenums, meetings and conferences."

RING ADORNED

The new attack on Khrushchev, which in addition his name, came amid mounting unrest in the Communist parties of Europe over the treatment of the deposed Soviet leader.



The Soviet party's explanation in Party Life said it was impossible to let "even the most authoritative person avoid the control of party organizations, and to let him think that he knows everything and that he can do everything and that the knowledge and experience of his comrades are given to him."

The central committee statement said that "experienced, influential leaders" among their business enjoy deserved authority among us."

But in this respect has nothing in common with the extreme exaltation and eulogy of the individual, any work of a person standing "on the top" is done as a prerogative and his deeds and actions are considered infallible," it continued.

"Such an approach leads to no good and it could have revived the norms of the period of the cult of the individual and the party is uncompromising toward it."

Party Life confirmed reports that basic party organizations all over the country are meeting to discuss Khrushchev's fall from power. It also indicated that organizational changes were taking place. It said:

Fair To Be Used As Trade Mart

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is bent on capturing the full business potential of the 1967 Montreal World's Fair despite international rules against trade promotion at such exhibitions.

Plans are afoot here to make the federal trade commissioners in 46 countries to persuade top foreign businessmen to come to the fair and meet their Canadian counterparts. The object is to exploit every trade and investment opportunity.

Nothing of this kind has been attempted at world fairs elsewhere, officials say. These fairs get world recognition only if they are designed for education and entertainment, rather than "trade-fairism."

However, authorities here say the International Exhibition Bureau, created by Canada and 30 other nations in 1928, is "not unfavorably disposed" toward the Canadian plan.

Applauding the government scheme, the Canadian Manufacturers Association said recently that because many foreign businessmen have no concept of Canada's industrial development the last 30 years the fair "is potentially an eye-opener of incalculable effect."

Seizing the chance, the government has established a business development bureau at the fair, headed by G. E. G Hughes of the Trade department.

It expects to get help from the CMA, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, various other trade associations and the provincial departments of trade and industry.

Foreign businessmen will get preferred treatment. They will have a separate lounge or "club" on the fairgrounds. Secretarial help will be available, as well as guides and interpreters.

If he wants to get in touch with a Canadian business or government official anywhere in the country, the bureau will set up the meeting. It will have phone and teletype links with all the provincial capitals. A battery of government and industry officials will be on hand to supply advice.

Four Killed As Car Goes Into Rat River

DOLBEAU, Que. (CP)—Four men were killed Wednesday when their car slid off a steel bridge and went through the railing into the Rat River 30 miles west of here.

Killed were Robert Thibault, 39, and his son Jocelyn, 17, both of St. Elzear de Temiscouata, Que., and Maurice Thibault, 44, and his son Julien, 18, both of St. Juste-du-Lac, also in Temiscouata County.

Friday is expected to be mainly sunny and continuing cold.

Veterans Favored In House

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons struck a rare chord of unanimity Wednesday as a chorus went up from all sides of the House in favor of more money for veterans.

Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet heard a score of members rise with the same complaint — that veterans' allowances and pensions should be jacked up with the cost of living.

It was the over-riding issue of the day, as the Commons turned to veterans affairs after earlier approving the estimates of seven other departments. Today, the House continues on the same subject.

"Surely to goodness, when everyone else gets a salary increase or a pension increase, the veteran is entitled to one, too," said Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East). "The members of this House have had their salaries increased. Why do we have to leave the veterans to the last?"

Both Dr. Rynard and Steve Otto (L—York East) asked the minister to ensure that there is no further civilian encroachment on veterans hospitals

Man Can Live, Work in Space Travel Says Cosmonaut-Scientist

MOSCOW (CP) — A cosmonaut - scientist said Wednesday human beings can "live and work" in the weightless condition of space travel.

Konstantin Feoktistov, one of three men aboard the Soviet spaceship Voshod (Sunrise), that orbited the earth 16 times last week, told a crowded press conference the research led him to the conclusion man can become accustomed to space flight conditions.

"One can live and work in this environmen.," he declared.

Another member of the world's first multiple space crew, Dr. Boris Yegorov, said the scientific capacity for work and their spirits remained high throughout the 24-hour flight.

"In the weightless condition one can work with the most diverse scientific apparatus," Yegorov said.

Feoktistov and Yegorov were able to make direct on-the-spot medical and scientific checks during the flight.

Previous space flights, both Russians and American, carried only the pilot.

Pilot of the Voskhod spaceship, and its commander, was Col. Vladimir Komarov. He told the press conference that the flight was planned for 24 hours

Pearson Says Royal Visit Should Bring Out Moderates

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson suggested Wednesday night that the Queen's recent visit to Canada may prompt moderate Canadians to speak up on the problems facing the country.

He said the Queen's eight-day visit contributed to public recognition of some of the country's basic problems.

"For it revealed to us something about ourselves and about our country, revealed it perhaps with an unprecedented and disconcerting, and at times humiliating, clarity.

"It exposed to vast numbers of moderate Canadians the potentially fatal weakness of division and discord and the danger of too much silence concerning them.

"And if it did that, it contributed much to our ultimate stronger unity."

Mr. Pearson was addressing some 1,500 persons at the annual banquet of the Canadian Good Roads Association, whose annual meeting winds up today.

The prime minister said that by her "calm, courageous and gracious presence the Queen helped to restore Canadian perspective and has until has helped to remind some Canadians that our proudest national characteristics over the years—tolerance and understanding—are being eroded."

The Queen's remark in the Quebec legislature about the continued co-operation of all Canada's parts "are a lasting recipe for our nation's progress," Mr. Pearson said.

There were those would would try to end the co-operation of which the Queen spoke.

"They are a small, if a noisy, provocative minority."

Mr. Pearson said that compromise is a necessity in Canada. "You cannot have a federal constitution . . . except by compromise."

Nobel Prize Winner Will Refuse $53,123 Award

STOCKHOLM (AP)—French playwright - novelist Jean - Paul Sartre won the 1964 Nobel Prize for literature today—and said he will refuse the $53,123 award.

The coveted award, whose winner is selected by the Swedish Academy of Letters, carries with it a gold medal, diploma and the cash prize.

Sartre, 59, was reported by sources here to have written the academy, in advance declining the prize for "personal and objective reasons."

Friends of the writer-philosopher said in France he said he did not want any prize whether a sack of potatoes or a Nobel prize."

In Paris, Sartre told a French reporter he would give no explanation later to the Swedish press or his refusal.

In its citation, the academy spoke of Sartre's "imaginative writing, which by reason of its spirit of freedom and striving for truth has exercised a far-

OTTAWA (CP) — An eight-cent airmail stamp — the first of its denomination since 1946—will be issued Nov. 18, Postmaster-General Nicholson announced Wednesday. Death at the Hands of Gangsters Probably Fate of Joe Bonanno

NEW YORK (AP)—Death at the hands of underworld executioners probably was the fate of Cosa Nostra boss Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno, police believe. They say they have no clue: in his reported kidnaping Wednesday.

Bonanno's lawyer said two gunmen forced Bonanno into a car on Park Avenue.

Police said Wednesday night they believe it was a kidnaping and not a ruse to enable Bonanno to avoid testifying before a federal grand jury. He had been scheduled to make his third appearance Wednesday.

Asked what might have happened to Bonanno, Assistant Chief Inspector Walter F. Hanning said:

"You don't find them alive any more."

Mobster Joseph Valachi testified last year before the U.S. Senate crime investigating committee that Bonanno was one of the top figures in the Cosa Nostra and the chieftain of one of five gangs that control the rackets in metropolitan New York.

Bonanno, 59, was at the Apalachin, N.Y., underworld convention in 1957 that was broken up by state police.

China Rejects Request To Sign Test-Ban Treaty

Wants to Abolish Nuclear Weapons

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China rejected today President Johnson's suggestion that it sign the limited nuclear test-ban treaty and repeated its call for a global summit to abolish nuclear weapons.

It had been expected that the United States would answer this call by proposing through diplomatic channels that the Peking regime sign the test-ban treaty which more than 100 countries, including Canada, have signed.

Johnson said Sunday night in a televised speech:

"We call on the world—especially Red China—to join the nations which have signed it (the treaty)."

"How can we be expected to walk into the trap now that we possess the means to break the nuclear monopoly of the United States? Fantastic, isn't it?

SAYS NOT OBSESSED

"China is by no means obsessed by the idea of possessing nuclear weapons. It will stop developing them as soon as U.S. imperialism does so."

The newspaper, official organ of the Chinese Communist party, said the proposal for abolition of nuclear weapons by a world summit meeting is "practical, reasonable, easily feasible and conducive to cessation of control."

The Chinese paper the Peking government, which exploded its first atomic bomb last week, would not use nuclear weapons "to intimidate others and embark on any adventure."

The state department disclosed Wednesday that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai had sent to President Johnson Monday the same message which he had circulated to other government chiefs around the world, even though the U.S. and China do not have diplomatic relations.

The message was transmitted through Chou's ambassador in Warsaw, Wang Kuo-chuan, to U.S. envoy John M. Cabot who forwarded it to the state department which in turn sent it to the White House.

Officials said that no decision had been made yet on the question whether the U.S. would respond directly and if so what it would say. Private'y, however, they generally ruled out a message from Johnson to Chou but said that an informal, oral statement of the U.S. posi-

Returns turned in to Belleville United Appeal's office now total more than $49,000, more than twice the $21,000 reported to the office after the same campaign-time last year. Total collections in the campaign this year are estimated about $57,000. The campaign is now in its 18th day.

Nine corporate gifts have been received so far from among the 14 largest employers in the city. Two of the top 14 are public institutions, (the C.N.R. and the Hydro office), and cannot give corporate gifts, there are three gifts still to come. Stewart Warner yesterday became the latest of the major employers to donate.

In-plant campaigns are still in progress at Wilson Concrete products Ltd., (when had already raised $2,700 from 72 per cent of its employees last night, and has probably the highest per-capita rate of giving in Belleville), and at Union Carbide and Canada Cement. No reports have been received yet from Union Carbide or Canada Cement. Deloro Stellite reports more than $750 collected to date.

Among school teachers, Moira Secondary School has raised $73 so far, Quinte Secondary School has more than $300 and the campaign is still golog, and Belleville Collegiate Institute and Secondary School teachers have given about $1,200. No reports have been received from public schools.

Brought Historical Diary From Poland

OTTAWA (CP)—A frail, 64-year-old Polish woman has revealed how she smuggled out of Communist Poland in 1959 a valuable historical document on the Second World War German occupation of Warsaw.

Today, Mrs. Rosalia Pietkiewicz lives by herself in a modest $30-a-month Ottawa apartment and takes in sewing.

The document Mrs. Pietkiewicz carried out of Poland and delivered in duplicate is the 900-page diary of Adam Czerniakow, head of the Warsaw Jewish Council during the German occupation.

He took poison in 1942, rather than comply with a German order to round up 4,000 Jews for transport outside the city. His diary reveals that he realized the Germans meant to exterminate all the Jews in the Warsaw ghetto.

Mrs. Pietkiewicz said in an interview Wednesday she first met Czerniakow in the summer of 1941.

"One dark night, I slipped to the edge of the ghetto to meet with friends on the outside who were bringing me medicines and food for my sister, who was ill and for others in the ghetto."

"My friends were angry because of my injury and they reported it to him (Czerniakow). He asked to see me."

Mrs. Pietkiewicz remembers him as "a great man," someone who tried to help those in the ghetto.

Her memory of the 18 years from 1941 until she gained possession of the diary in 1959 is vivid.

"I remember watching helpless from a distance as the Germans took my mother and sister to a concentration camp from which they never returned in 1942.

"I remember working 12 hours a day for a crust of bread in a forced labor camp near Dusseldorf in 1943.

When, finally, the war ended she spent a short time as a displaced Red Cross worker in Germany, then returned to Warsaw.

She soon found the Communist regime there "as harsh as the Nazi occupation," and after 12 years of life under communism she decided, in 1958, to try to join relatives in Canada.

It was at this point that Czerniakow's diary entered her life.

At a secret meeting, she received the eight hand - written notebooks from Elias Greenberg "who had come to own the diary during the war," and later separated the 900 pages.

"I smuggled them through my suitcases. Then . . . I set out for Gdynia, where the ship was to take me to Montreal."

"But God was with me on that day."

Mrs. Pietkiewicz would not say why she expected trouble getting the diary out of Poland or why she had trouble getting out of the country.

The diary was finally sent to Israel last summer after its sale for a small, undisclosed sum.

She said she had some hope of going to Israel some day to see the archives where the diary now rests.

She received her Canadian citizenship last July.

Local Method of Disposing Of Unwanted Cats, Dogs Ordered Stopped by Society

The method of euthanasia used at the Belleville animal shelter for disposing of unwanted cats and dogs has been condemned by an official of the Ontario Humane Society.

Mr. F. M. "Snoop" Young, field representative for the Ontario Humane Society today condemned the local method and ordered it stopped immediately.

"It is the most inhumane method possible," he said.

The method used for disposing of animals at the local pound has been to place them in a closed box and asphyxiate them with the fumes from an auto exhaust.

Mr. Young said that with this method the temperature of the box was raised to well above 180 degrees before the animals died. "It burns them before they are killed," he said.

Alternative methods suggested for disposing of animals was to have a veterinary put them to death by needle injection or with the use of an Electrodiagnost unit by Mr. Young to be the most humane method known.

Cats should be put to death with chloroform or other anesthetic, he said.

Mr. Young's primary purpose for visiting the city was to try and re-organize a humane society for Belleville and Hastings.

Mr. Young wants to meet competent and responsible citizens who are interested in the work of the humane society and assure that Belleville and Hastings never again see left without a humane society.

He will be at the Queens Hotel for the next few days and invites calls from anyone interested in forming a local humane society.

Outbuildings Burned Near Shannonville

Belleville firemen were called to the residence of A. D. Bocking, three miles east of Shannonville early this morning where a barn, pig pen and chicken house were on fire.

However, because of the distance involved, firemen were unable to save the building as the fire had too great a start on them.

The house was not damaged, however, a small amount of damage was caused to a drive shed near the buildings.

It is not known what caused the fire or the amount of damage but the loss is believed to be heavy.

Firemen were still standing by at the scene at 10:00 a.m. this morning.

Two other calls were received at the department yesterday, one a service call, the other to attend a flooded space heater.

Kodiak Bear Walks Back Into Compound

Five tranquilizer-filled darts had been fired into the five-year-old brown bear while it was in a passageway between the old and new bear pits after its escape. The bear shrugged off the effects of the drugs.

Attendants also tried to coax the bear out of the passageway and into confinement with meat and honey-covered loaves of bread.

Finally, the bear, named Illcob, walked into a den behind the black bear pits and two keepers locked it in.

Illcob escaped by breaking a steel lock on the door of its cage. It never was out of the bear compound.

Say Magistrate Used Profanity In Police Court

TORONTO (CP) — A report that Magistrate Gordon Jermyn of the Kingston area used profanity in court is being investigated and action will be taken against him if it is found to be true, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Wednesday.

Mr. Wishart said he could not ask for Mr. Jermyn's resignation, or he could order an inquiry into his conduct on the bench. He said the report of the swear word used by the magistrate was contained in an editorial in the Kingston Whig-Standard.

"I'm investigating to see if this is so," Mr. Wishart told a press conference. "If it is I will take action regarding Magistrate Jermyn — you can be sure of that."

The Whig-Standard reported Oct. 14 that Mr. Jermyn exclaimed during the course of a court case trial: "You are wasting your — time and mine, too. This is stupid."

Later, he was quoted as having said "Well, let's get the hell out of here," when someone brought to his attention the score of a World Series baseball game.

Mr. Jermyn serves as magistrate in the United Counties of Lennox and Frontenac, where he is also juvenile and family court judge. The counties council voted short weeks ago to ask for his dismissal because of earlier incidents in his court.

Magistrate Jermyn is reported to have apologized to Attorney-General Wishart for the earlier incidents.

Govt. Declines to Probe Possible Cases of Conflict Of Interest in Two Depts.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has apparently washed its hands of possible conflict-of-interest cases involving the defence department and defence industry.

Defence Minister Hellyer told Robert Coates, Conservative MP for Cumberland, in a Commons question Wednesday that the government doesn't plan to take any steps to determine the number of retired senior military officers who are employed by firms which hold defence contracts.

In an earlier Commons return, Mr. Hellyer informed Mr. Coates that there is no requirement for such officers to report their civilian employment to the defence department.

Mr. Coates had asked whether the government had tried to determine how many of the retired senior officers now employed with certain firms doing defence business with the government.

NAMES FIRMS

He specifically named Canadair Limited, de Havilland Aircraft, Canadian Aviation Electronics, RCA Victor, Canadian Marconi, Hawker-Siddeley, Canadian Vickers, Avco Systems, Canadian Pratt and Whitney, Canadian Westinghouse, Collins Radio and Computer Services.

The latter came before the Commons after reports a month ago that some government officials were expressing concern over what appeared to be a growing tendency being investigated and action will be taken against him if it is found to be true, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Wednesday.

Mr. Wishart said he could not ask for Mr. Jermyn's resignation, or he could order an inquiry into his conduct on the bench. He said the report of the swear word used by the magistrate was contained in an editorial in the Kingston Whig-Standard.

Officer Claims Accused Said He 'Set' Fire

TORONTO (CP) — An undercover provincial police officer testified Wednesday that Kenneth Wilhorow told him he had set a fire in which a man died, then later denied it.

Wilhorow, 24, of West Lorne, Ont., is on trial for non-capital murder in the death of Frank Welch, 58, also of West Lorne. Wilhorow, accused of "wilfully setting" fire to the building in which Mr. Welch died Nov. 2, 1963, has pleaded not guilty.

Const. Joseph Verbiil told the Ontario Supreme Court that he posed as a prisoner arrested for armed robbery at a cheese factory payroll last Nov. 19 and was locked in Elgin County jail. Wilhorow was the only other prisoner in the jail cell.

He told the court that within two minutes of the cell door closing Wilhorow told him: "... A man died in a fire that I set, but I didn't mean to be charged."

Const. Verbiil said he then asked: "Where was this fire?"

LOCATES FIRE

"I said: 'Last Nov. 3?' He said: 'Yes, 1963.'"

He said he asked Wilhorow: "Did you set it?" and Wilhorow replied.

Robert Kaufman, a fire marshal's office inspector, testified later Wednesday it was his opinion that the fire had started after a flammable fluid was poured in a stairway outside Mr. Welch's one - room apartment, which was burned out.

The Crown's case, directed by Crown Attorney Peter Gloin, concluded Wednesday. the defence is expected to call six witnesses, four of whom appeared Wednesday.

Justice Minister Giving up as House Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Guy Favreau is giving up his House leadership to serve as government House leader, a job that has broken more parliamentarians than it has cured.

Mr. Favreau is leaving the leadership because of pressure of his legal department duties and the burden of leading the Quebec wing of the Liberal party in the next general election.

Choice of a new government House leader has not yet been made. Labor Minister Allan MacEachen is the favorite candidate of backbench MPs, but has twice turned down the offer. Mr. Favreau's deputy and been J. Watson MacNaught, solicitor-general.

The House leader for the government forces is named by the prime minister. The job involves arranging the daily business of the House, and this entails lengthy and frequently extremely delicate behind - the - scenes negotiation with opposition House leaders.

The post usually goes to a minister who has had many years of parliamentary experience and relatively light administrative duties in his department.

Mr. Favreau became House leader last February when he was appointed to the justice ministry. Later he was named Quebec leader of the federal Liberal party.

The 47-year-old Montreal lawyer was immigration minister before becoming justice minister.

Judge's Case Closed Says Atty.-General

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced Wednesday that no further criminal proceedings will be taken against Mr. Justice Leonard Landreville.

"In so far as the department of the attorney-general is concerned," he said in a statement, "the matter of the prosecution of Mr. Justice Landreville is concluded."

The Ontario Supreme Court judge was cleared of charges of conspiracy corruption by a magistrate at a preliminary hearing Oct. 8. After that, the attorney - general's department gave consideration to taking the case to a grand jury.

But Mr. Wishart said that taking such a "double bite" at Mr. Landreville would be extraordinary. The proceedings would only be used were there new evidence or omission at the preliminary hearing stage.

Hastings County 4-H Teams Did Well at Guelph

The Provincial 4-H Inter-Club Competitions took place at the University of Guelph on Friday, October 16. Hastings County was represented by seven teams, a total of fourteen 4-H Club members. Traditionally the Dairy Competition is the largest and very often the keenest. 1964 was no exception.

For example, the Tweed 4-H Calf Club scored 941 points to place seventh in a competition involving 87 teams. In actual points, the seventh place was only a difference of 16 from the winners. This is barely 2½ points a team. It illustrates the keenness of the competition and the work and capabilities of the 4-H members.

To further strengthen this description of keen competition, it is noted the Stirling 4-H Dairy Calf Club stood 15th and were only 36 points away from the winners. Hastings was represented by three teams in the dairy competition, one in swine, one in potato and one in forestry and one in tractor maintenance. The teams, their standing and the names of the members are listed below.

A final comment on this competition is that the results achieved point to the high standard of work being carried on among the club members by the individual club leaders under the direction of Lyall MacLachlin, Assistant Agricultural Representative for Hastings county.

Fire Fighters Association Hold Semi-Annual Meeting

Delegates of the Provincial Federation of the Ontario Professional Fire Fighters Association held their 19th semi-annual district meeting of district No. 2 here Wednesday. The meeting was held at Club Canara.

During the course of the meeting, George Fortune, representative of the Workmen's Compensation Board from Toronto spoke to the delegation.

Mr. Fortune commented on the recent amendment to the regulation of the Workmen's Compensation Act. He dealt with problems of reporting accidents and injuries and explained the new definition of what constitutes a disability.

Mr. Fortune stressed the importance of reporting accidents and injuries promptly to the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Subjects discussed following Mr. Fortune's address were problems of negotiating with the locals concerned, and dealing with such matters as pensions. O.M.E.R.S. (Ontario Municipal Employees Retirement System), retirement age for fire fighters and the effects of the Canada Pension Plan on existing pensions.

The delegates representing locals from Belleville, Pembroke, Renfrew, Ottawa, Eastview Cornwall Brockville, Kingston and Trenton were welcomed by Belleville's Fire Chief, Gerald Vance.

Gordon Ball, Provincial vice-president from Kingston was the chairman. Also during the afternoon meeting, Thomas Graham, president of the Provincial Federation of the Ontario Professional Fire Fighters Association spoke on training for negotiations.

It was also announced at the afternoon session that Belleville has been chosen as the convention city which will be held in June of 1965, hosted by Belleville's Local No. 497.

At the close of the afternoon session dinner was served in the meeting room at Club Canara after which the meeting resumed.

The executive met here yesterday for two main reasons, one to discuss the convention with the Belleville local, and the role each will play in the convention.

Delegates from all of Ontario from as far west as Port Arthur and Fort William and from as far east as Quebec to Timmins in the north will be present as well as delegates from the International Association of Fire Fighters from Washington.

It is expected that about 300 will be here for the convention.

Thinks City Will Get Time Extension

The city of Belleville will almost certainly be granted an extension to the November 6th deadline date for making a detailed application for approval of a centennial project, according to Mayor Jack Ellis.

Mayor Ellis said yesterday that while in Toronto Tuesday he requested an extension to the deadline for making its centennial project application and said he had been promised the extension would almost certainly be granted.

The city will be required to make a preliminary application for grant approval of its Zwick's Island centennial project with detailed application to be made at a later date.

Three Students Will Attend Guelph Seminar

Larry Earl Evenson, Charles George Grimson, both of Quinte S.S. and John English of Moira S.S. have been chosen as one of the 76 students from Ontario High Schools to attend the annual Life Science Seminar at the Ontario Agricultural College, University of Guelph, on October 22nd-24th. These students obtained the highest marks in an examination written last May by over 1,300 Grade XIII students from 220 high schools.

The seminar will be a preview of University education in the life sciences, and will include lectures, a review of research projects, laboratory demonstrations and student activities. The students will be entertained by O.A.C. faculty and students.

Tabernacle U. C. To Mark 154th Anniversary

Rev. Dr. Dan D. Gaynor will be the guest speaker for Tabernacle United Church anniversary on Sunday, October 25 for both morning and evening services.

Dr. Gaynor, minister of the largest congregation in the Bay of Quinte Conference, Wall St. United Church, Brockville, will be the guest speaker at the 154th anniversary services of Tabernacle United Church on Sunday, October 25th.

During his stay in that city he was active in community and wider church activities. He was president of the Chatham Rotary Club in 1949-50. He served as president of the London Conference of the United Church of Canada for a year. In 1960 he moved to Brockville to assume the duties of minister in his present church.

The following spring the colleges from which he had graduated honored him for outstanding service in his church by giving him a Doctor of Divinity Degree (Honoris Causa.)

Cannery Sale Discussed By Member

The 1954 sale of Canadian Canners Ltd., at the time the largest secondary industry in Prince Edward County to Del Monte Canners of California was discussed in parliament last week by Douglas Aikenbrack, MP for Prince Edward-Lennox. "The U.S. firm," he said, "immediately closed all Canadian Canners factories. Some factories were later sold with a provision in the deed that they never again be used for canning agricultural products." At least one of the canneries could still be put back into operation, Mr. Aikenbrack said, were it not for this provision in the deed.

Mr. Aikenbrack said that he believed the same sort of takeover and shut-down has been permitted in other industries, and he suggested that any such agreement as the one that keep Prince Edward County's canneries closed should be automatically voided.

During the same discussion Mr. Aikenbrack deplored the amount of money being sent to the U.S. by Canadian unions, and suggested that Canadian unions should keep and invest their funds in Canada, should be encouraged.

Water Shortage Creates Problem At Gardens

The main topic of discussion however concerned a water shortage problem. Since the level of the river has continued to recede there is not enough supply in the centre's wells. At the present time water for cooling apparatus necessary for making ice is costing $50 a day and can total $5,000 this season unless another cheaper source is obtain. The directors sought expert advice and now are giving consideration to several suggestions. In the meantime the Public Utilities will continue to provide the needed clean water at $3. an hour.

On the Doorstep

Too seldom realised by urban residents in the southern end of Hastings county is the fact they live on the threshold of an area rich in minerals.

Not only rich, but more readily accessible to development than most other areas of mineral deposits in the province.

Its potential is enormous, as the legislative committee on mining was recently reminded in Madoc.

However, not everyone is unaware of its development possibilities—and thereby may hang a bitter-sweet fact of local economic life.

For, mining consultant J. D. Cummings told the committee at Madoc, "this mineral empire is virtually closed to development."

Companies interested in mineral explorations are frustrated because "many people having mineral rights to a portion of land in the area will either not give up their rights or will ask an outrageous price."

He cited one example:

"I know of three exploration deals that have been lost because of a 50-acre claim we couldn't get title to. The owner had forgotten he owned that land but when we approached him for mineral rights he demanded $50,000."

It is not the easiest problem to solve. To do so by legislation—amending the terms of tenure of mineral rights—would be a difficult proposition.

It involves one of the most basic and jealously guarded freedoms in our society—private property rights.

Neither is exploration any guarantee of immediate development. More sophisticated factors than the physical presence of mineral deposits affect the business decision to exploit them.

Yet, it is claimed for the northern townships of Hastings County that they are naturally wealthy in marble, uranium, iron, gold, talc and flourspar. Any future development of such resources could transform the economic dimensions of the whole East-Central region of Ontario beyond contemporary appreciation.

These are times when local industrial growth is a prime concern of our public representatives on all levels of government. Ironically, we have the basic potential for vast development right on the doorstep.

Electronic Release

So the Ontario government is expanding its news coverage.

Premier Robarts' reference to providing free radio and TV tapes on government announcements has brought indignant reaction from his official critics.

Donald C. MacDonald has charged the government with establishing the perfect set-up for "managed news." Andrew Thompson says he will probably bring the issue before the legislature.

In the meantime, however, the government has hired a public relations man to act as commentator or interviewer for the programs.

In other words, apparently, these tapes will be the equivalent of the printed release.

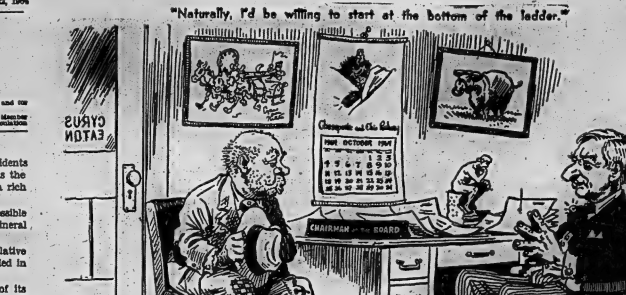
Cynics refer to these as documents informing the public of what the government wants it to know. Invariably, before publication their format falls victim to editorial contraction or expansion.

Undoubtedly the same will hold true for the government-produced tapes; the last of course, will rest on the individual news policies of the stations concerned.

Yet, how does one successfully edit an electronic press release without the possibility of technical blemish in final presentation?

Citizens of Ontario should watch this development with interest. After all, it's at their expense.

Those Reds Again!



Frederick J. Bigg, MP for Athabaska, speaking in Belleville last weekend, has a less-than-elegant turn of phrase for critics of John Diefenbaker.

"They are pinks," said Mr. Bigg. "That means Reds without any guts."

Like the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, Mr. Khrushchev has had similar experiences with the same source in recent days.

Variety, in Mr. Bigg's appreciation of political power, politics maketh the strangest of bedfellows.

Dizzy Spells Can Cause A Fall and Injuries

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 69-year-old man and feel fine. I never have any aches or pains but when I move quickly, getting in or out of my car, or tip my head back when shaving, I get very dizzy. This lasts about 20 seconds. I shall appreciate your comments. — A. C. B.

At your age, changes in the shape of the vertebrae of the neck are not uncommon and can cause pressure on nerves, thereby resulting in dizzy spells.

A disturbance in the middle ear may also be affecting the delicate mechanism which controls balance.

(Sometimes these spells are the result of hardening of the arteries; however, if that were true in your case, you would notice the symptoms under other circumstances.)

A tight collar, putting abnormal pressure on the arteries in the neck, can cause dizziness when the neck is bent in certain ways. Again this may not apply to you, since you wouldn't be wearing a tight collar while shaving.

These are the most likely possibilities. But you should consult your physician. A dizzy spell, or even "blacking out" for a few seconds, can cause a fall and injuries.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss emphysema. This is my husband's trouble, and the doctor has warned him that he must be careful or he will end up in a wheel chair, or worse. — Mrs. D. L.

I've written quite a few columns on emphysema, which is already so prevalent that some authorities say it kills more victims than tuberculosis and lung cancer combined. It is a frequent and often severe complication. In response to many letters from sufferers of the disease, I've prepared a booklet on the subject, "How to Control Emphysema." It explains all phases of emphysema. To receive a copy send an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing 15 cents in coin to cover printing and handling costs.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain encephalitis. Our little girl had it after the chickenpox. It was a mild case and she is all right now. We have four other children and they also had chickenpox but no complications. I took care of them the same way, but what did I do wrong with her? My friends say they never heard of such a thing being caused by children's diseases. — Mrs. W. Y.

Encephalitis is inflammation in the brain — but don't feel that this happened because of anything you did wrong. It can occur occasionally as a complication of other contagious children's diseases, measles and mumps in particular.

The fact that your friends "never heard of it" is not surprising; most of us don't pay attention to thing until we come face to face with them. The virulence of children's diseases can at times create weird complications depending on the vagaries of where they strike hardest. This is unpredictable.

It is the occasional risk of such complications which accounts for my frequent advice: Don't take children's diseases too lightly. I don't mean you should become hysterical or afraid, either. But when a child is sick, he or she should be kept in bed and the doctor should be called.

Frequently nothing can be done to speed a cure. The child recovers naturally with rest and time. But in all such simple illnesses, the doctor's task is to watch for the first sign of any new complication so that it, too can be treated immediately.

Liberal Backbench Is Solid Sounding Board for Taxpayers

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — One of the politically healthiest things about this trouble-starred minority Liberal Government is that it has been getting "playbacks" from its Backbenchers on what the people who pay its salaries through their taxes are saying about it.

It isn't often that the taxpayers get through to the upper echelons of a Federal Government, where the Cabinet tends to become isolated, unhearing of the public voice and seemingly unfeeling of the current trends of events outside the National Capital.

Invariably rushed for time, inevitably weighted down by their ever-increasing responsibilities and walled in by their special assistants, executive secretaries and other political spear-carriers, members of any Federal Cabinet sooner or later find themselves insulated, apart from the hurly-burly of the work-a-day world — but even from their own Backbenchers in the Commons who could up-date them as to what is going on across the land and what people are saying about them.

The Cabinet Minister simply becomes too important — often only in his own eyes — to be bothered by what the party's privates in the Commons, the MPs, are hearing from home where the voters live.

RENE GEORGE HIS CHAMPS

But not in this Government. Perhaps it is because it is a minority administration that it has become so sensibly sensitive to what the Backbenchers think and say.

But maybe it is that Prime Minister Pearson, a Cabinet of his better lieutenants, particularly External Affairs Minister Martin, are wise enough to know that while they themselves are usually too busy for the personal political pole-taking, the Backbenchers, on their trips home to their constituencies, hear the voters and are busy doing it all the time.

So the Backbenchers, when the Government, in their eyes, has openly and publicly booked one — as it has on several notable occasions — have torn strips off those individual Cabinet Ministers responsible.

Finance Minister Gordon has felt the sharp edge of their tongues in the Commons caucus over this Budget bumbles and the still highly unpopular tax on production machinery and construction equipment.

They have laid their lash on Health Minister Marcel Lambert over her politically unprofitable feud with the insurance companies and at least two provincial Governments over her still-in-the-making Canada Pension Plan.

Even the prime minister has come under fire for being, as many of them worriedly put it, "soft" on Quebec.

And when it comes out that another member of the Cabinet has taken his Backbench lumps, it is in more punishing measure than was inflicted on the PM, Lucien Cardin, or Walter Gordon.

Humbled, and made to eat his words, has been Citizenship Minister Rene Tremblay.

TOOK IT BACK

There were rumors before but now it has been confirmed, hard fact beyond any question, that it was the Government Backbench in angry revolt that compelled him to reverse himself completely on some of his thinking, and even his statements on immigration policy.

The turning point for Rene Tremblay came when, without any warning, he announced what he intended to be an almost instantaneous end to amnesty for illegal Chinese immigrants.

It caught everybody — the prime minister, the rest of the Cabinet, and, of course, the Backbench — utterly by surprise.

It shocked and frightened the Chinese community all across the country and set the Italian, Greek, German and other ethnic groups to fretting that if this could happen to one nationality — and it was considered an outright breach of Government faith — then might not something equally unpleasant happen to others.

Telephone bells in the next room or three days were ringing all over the Centre and West Blocks on Parliament Hill as MPs heard from worried constituents.

Among those hearing from home was Postmaster General Jack Nicholson of Vancouver who buzzed himself fashioning verbal sticks and stones for the Backbenchers to hurl at the Citizenship Minister. They gave much pastoral pounding at the party caucus, and two days later he rejected his own policy statement.

Things in the Citizenship and Immigration Department haven't been the same since. For now, out of respect and even fear of the Backbenchers who can become so devastatingly furious, Rene Tremblay checks everything out with the Cabinet, and almost everything with the Commons caucus before making or announcing important policy decisions.

Aim Should Be To Aid Indians

Montreal Star

It will be a sorry day indeed if the Commons, which doesn't need the push in public esteem as a result of the flag wrangle, allows petty partisanship, and a distorted view of what constitutes federal jurisdiction, to interfere with something that could help Canada's Indians.

The country's 200,000 Indians have been treated shabbily enough as it is—the fact that they are have probably the highest infant mortality rate and the lowest literacy rate is indictment enough of this—and anything that can improve their state must be given every possible chance to succeed.

Strictly Personal

Men of Power Lose Basic Liberties

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Men of power often complain that they are losing their basic liberties when they are only losing their license to infringe on other people's liberties.

One of the chief reasons the human race makes such slow and laborious progress is that by the time a valuable idea achieves general acceptance, it has already been perverted into a shape that would shock its originator.

An "acquaintance" is someone who exists in that hazy middle ground between those we are proud to acknowledge we know, and those we are not yet sure we want to know.

"When the nose is always to the grindstone, the eyes can see little else," is an old Persian proverb I have just made up.

The most dangerous heresy of our time, it bears repeating, is the belief that belief in itself is a good thing, regardless of its content; for faith that is attached to an unworthy or inadequate object makes people less than they are, not more.

It is not distance, but velocity that lends enchantment — as some anonymous commentator said: "The charm of a passing woman is in direct ratio to the speed of her passing."

Any philosophy that can be put "in a nutshell" belongs there.

Between the arrogant artistic attitude that the public is always wrong, and the contemptible commercial attitude that the public is always right, there is a sensible middle position — which holds that the public is nearly always wrong in the short run and nearly always right in the long run; which is why the serious artist refuses to work only for the public of today, and must keep in mind the verdict of history.

A good lecturer never puts his watch on the rostrum to remind him when to stop talking — he lets the emotional currents of the audience inform him when he is overstepping the bounds of toleration.

It is ironic justice that the prime minister who tries hard to make his son "rugged" more often succeeds in driving the boy into softness. It just as the father who pushes his son too hard to be "scholarly" will more likely drive the boy up a deep aversion to learning.

One of the main reasons for divorce (one out of every five ages in girls under 20) is the large number of girls who marry because part of the social girls who were in their class have done so; marriage, for them, has become a status-symbol, rather than a vocation.

Farm Workers Being Sought For Ontario

LONDON (CP) — Agriculture Minister William Stewart of Ontario said today he is seeking farm workers, particularly from Northern Ireland, for Ontario farms.

On a two-week visit to the United Kingdom, Stewart and Everett Biggs, Ontario deputy agriculture minister, were scheduled to go to Northern Ireland tonight.

Stewart said in an Ontario House statement that jobs are available on Ontario farms, good news for British prospective emigrants because "we have found in the past that farm workers of Great Britain have integrated well."

Stewart, after visiting a dozen food shops in London's Chelsea area, said he was delighted at the quantity of Canadian food products on display.

He is to meet British food importers and will explore the possibility of increasing Ontario supplies. Biggs plans to visit Duesseldorf, West Germany with a similar aim.

Shrine Fathers and Sons Entertained at Banquet

Sons of the Shrine had their annual evening of delights food and fun at the Shrine Club last night.

Over eighty Shriners and their sons enjoyed the Father-and-Son Banquet, heard a serio-humorous address and saw presentations made.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of cheques to Noble Stu Hibbard by the club's crippled children fund and to the club itself. A third cheque will be presented to the Shrine Hospitals in November.

Noble Plumpton presented the cheque for the crippled children fund to Noble Stu Hibbard, chairman of that committee and his assistant Noble Tom Lewis. The cheque to the club was presented to President Davis.

The cheques represented funds raised from the successful auction sale held earlier in the year. This function replaced the annual police hockey game.

The chief camel herder expressed his appreciation and that of the unit "for the generous response of city residents with donations to the auction sale, also the nobles who so ably supported the venture.

PARADE CORPS

The Camel Herders are the parade corps of the Shrine Club and are a separate group of shriners. The gay Arabian costumes, flash-borne camel, brilliantly colored go-kart and bicycle with the barrels of "Camel's Milk" have taken part in parades in Ottawa, Kirkland Lake, Kingston, Brockville and Watertown to name a few places.

In humorous vein Mr. Flagler recaled his audience with story and anecdote from elephant jokes to those that proved that people can be funny.

Seriously, Mr. Flagler told the youngsters that many were to be helped but more important they must help themselves.

"Not very many are born smart," he said. "Most must learn to be and this can be done day by day. Smart people work a little harder—try a little harder.

He said it was important to learn about and understand people. The world is not funny but those that live in it are. All see others in a different way.

He urged the youngsters to be close neighbors. To be a good neighbor, he said, one must learn to understand his fellow man. If one understands his neighbor he will find the world will be awfully good for him—and a lot of fun.

Noble Sergeant Kelly, RCAF, voiced the appreciation of the fathers with a toast to the boys. Peter Ouseory expressed the thanks of the young fellows.

Says Strikers Must Face World of Today

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) William Mahoney, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), says members of striking Toronto Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) must face the world of today rather than that of yesterday.

The local has been on strike against the morning Globe and Mail and the afternoon Star and Telegram since July 2 and a key issue precipitating the walkout was the use of automatic computers to do some composing room work.

Mr. Mahoney said Wednesday the problem of the Typographical Union "is a very unfortunate one," but that both the circumstances and the union's attitude towards them are 40 years out of date.

He was attending the annual conference of the Canadian Industrial Editors' Association here.

His remarks were made after William Metcalfe, Ottawa, a member of Local 102 of the ITU, asked for his views on the current strike between the union and the three Toronto newspapers.

Martin Says Situation Is 'Serious'

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday the International Red Cross is still having difficulty trying to convince Congolese rebels in Stanleyville to release 300 hostages, including 30 Canadians. The situation was "serious."

Social Credit Leader Thompson asked in the Commons whether there was any developments in attempts to release the hostages, some of whom had been held since July.

Mr. Martin said a Swiss aircraft with Red Cross markings was allowed to land in Stanleyville last month with much-needed medical and food supplies. It was hoped that some of the hostages would be flown out at that time but she relief leaders refused to release them.

Mother Won Over Before Her Marriage

NEW YORK (AP) — Christina Paolozzi, who was dropped from the Social Register because of her nude - from - the-waist-up photograph in a fashion magazine, married a young doctor Wednesday.

The bridegroom is Dr. Howard Theodore Belkin, son of Mrs. Maurice Belkin and the late Mr. Belkin, a founder of Temple Immanual in Passaic, N.J.

When Christina announced her engagement a year ago, she said her mother disapproved of a marriage of mixed religions —Christina is an Episcopalian —and she might have to "give the wedding myself."

But her mother, Countess Lorenzo Paolozzi and the former Alice Spaulding of Boston, apparently was won over, for the wedding in St. James Episcopal Church was followed by a reception for 600.

The appearance of Christina's photograph in Harper's Bazaar created a furor. She said at the time she was more concerned with being blacklisted from 850-an - hour modelling jobs than with being dropped from the social register.

"I didn't even know I was in it," she commented.

Post Office To Issue New 8-Cent Stamp

The first eight-cent stamp produced by the Canada Post Office since 1946 will be issued on November 18th according to an announcement made today by the Honorable John R. Nicholson, Postmaster General.

The new stamp is intended to replace a former 7 cent stamp made obsolete by a recent increase in air mail rates to the United States. In addition to facilitating prepayment of air mail letters, the stamp will be used for parcel post and for first class letters weighing between one and two ounces for delivery within Canada.

The Postmaster General said that the design of the stamp is a re-working of the seven cent regular issue released on March 11, 1964. The only change is in the numeral seven which has been replaced by an eight. The central feature of the design is a modern inter-city jet aircraft taking off from a Canadian terminal.

Since the air mail change went into effect on July 15th, the Post Office Department have provided an overprinted stamp with the seven defaced and an eight printed above it. Supplies of this stamp will soon be exhausted and the new eight cent issue will take its place.

Warn Children Against Talking To Strangers

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Police here have intensified a search for a man, in the area who is reported to have offered sweets, money and in one case a bicycle, to get young girls to go for a ride in his car.

Police Chief Jack Shrubb asked parents to warn their children about the dangers of talking to and accepting any offers from strangers after four more incidents were reported to police Wednesday.

On Saturday a seven-year-old girl was offered popcorn by a man who wanted to take her for a ride in his car. When she refused, the man grabbed her and drove in a circle after the middle of the city. He later released the child unharmed.

Other incidents reported last week and this week told of a man offering girls under 10 candy or money if they would go for a ride with him. None of the girls accepted.

Police have also a report Monday of a mother who spotted a man carrying her daughter to an unmarked car. The woman screamed. The man dropped the child, ran to his car and drove away.

Police said the description of the man—about five feet, six inches tall, between 30 and 40 years old, and dark closely-cropped hair, was similar in all cases.

Police Chief Price Morris of Lakefield, eight miles north of here, said a similar incident was reported to him Friday. He said a man in a black car offered two small boys and a girl all kindergarten students, a ride in his car, but they refused.

PLANE DELAYED

LONDON (Reuters) — A Boeing 707 jet airliner with Ceylonese Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike aboard took off from London airport Wednesday night after a bomb scare delayed its departure. The plane was held almost five hours for a search after an anonymous warning.

Wilson Told To Smarten up In His Dress

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson, a somewhat dumpy figure was advised Wednesday to smarten up his appearance.

"Mr. Wilson should project a more executive appeal," said John Pinchbeck, editor of Tailor and Cutter, the sartorial bible.

Taylor spoke out after The Daily Express published a letter from a woman reader saying that until she saw recent photos of Wilson she thought former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev's trousers were "the baggiest on the political scene."

"He's not a very good example to his ministers, who seem to dress just as badly," the writer, Mrs. R. Charles, added severely.

"But pictures of Mr. Wilson arriving at 10 Downing Street the other day showed him in trousers that must have been 22 inches around the old - fashioned turnups," wrote Mrs. Charles. "With them he wore a spotty old sports coat."

Taylor summed up: "For the formal working day I see him as best presented in worsteds from his native Yorkshire.

"The jacket should be single-breasted to disguise body bulk and an illusion of extra inches can be given with narrow trousers (say 16-inch bottoms) with turnups."

Three Years For Possession Of Dynamite

MONTREAL (CP) — Georges Laporte, 21, a university student who told a judge last week he wanted to blow up "every symbol of colonialism" in Quebec, was sentenced to three years in prison Wednesday for illegal possession of dynamite.

"You are free to express your ideas," Judge Armand Cloutier told him. "But when you do express these ideas, it doesn't mean you are free of the consequences of your statements."

Laporte pleaded guilty last week to possession of 135 sticks of dynamite, an offence that carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. At the time, he told the judge he was against "all federal symbols," such as monuments, particularly those in Quebec City.

Panel Urges Compulsory Car Inspection

MONTREAL (CP) — A panel of traffic experts agreed Wednesday that compulsory motor vehicle inspection is the only way to make sure cars are safe for the road.

Voluntary inspection is an unsatisfactory method, some panelists said during a safety discussion at the Canadian Good Roads Association annual meeting.

Some also criticized government for failing to set up compulsory inspection.

"The voluntary safety inspection system is undoubtedly of some value," said a paper prepared by Harry S. Gray, superintendent of the Vancouver municipal motor vehicle inspection station.

But those who appear most often for an inspection are the drivers of new cars, which need it least. Drivers of older cars do not show up.

"The answer is to make the check mandatory," said the paper, read by S. E. Swallow, director of service for the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

Wage War On Wolves Killing Sheep

PICTON (Staff) — A female wolf and two pups have been trapped during the past week in South Marysburgh township. The war against sheep killing began a week ago at the instigation of Reeve Donald Bond and his council. Alarmed at the number of sheep and lambs killed during the past year (between three and four hundred) council sought the assistance of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. The latter officials became convinced of the presence of wolves in that area, and have rendered fine co-operation in providing traps, bait and advice.

Council engaged Alton Hinman to wage war on wolves and in the first week he has trapped three, two pups and an adult. He is one of the other residents have seen others. Reeve Bond said sheep losses will add two mills to the tax rate this year.

At a meeting recently, Mr. Noble, who owns 500 acres at the end of Point Traverse, reported 83 ewes plus lambs as missing. Others report heavy losses. Most are bringing them inside at night. At first dogs were blamed for the killings: Township clerk Gerard Kavanagh who drives a school bus from Point Traverse to Milford said he had seen a few stray dogs. Presence of the wolves was confirmed from other sources.

South Marysburgh, with hundreds of acres in pasture land, marshes and woods, along with large areas used as military ranges is an ideal habitat for wolves. Reeve Bond believes that the pups, born and raised there, remain, and that this accounts for the high loss in that area. He said that sheep are attacked around the neck and throat and believes that the adults have been killing heavily to feed the pups. Wolves have been shot at scattered points in South Marysburgh and also Athol for some years past. Mr. Hinsman is adding more traps daily and the council has advised dog owners to keep them tied to prevent them being caught in the traps. A recording of a wolf howl is being used to entice the animals close enough to shoot.

Court Had Many Cases

PICTON (Staff) — In Magistrate's Court Wednesday a charge of impaired driving was dismissed against Jack Hollingsworth. Crown Attorney R. B. Picton, was fined $50.00 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while impaired. Morley Marcellus was also fined $50.00 and costs for failing to stop at the scene at an accident. The penalty also includes an automatic 3-months suspension of the driver's licence.

The case was dismissed against Roger H. Young for driving while impaired for lack of evidence, Crown Attorney Picton. All of these cases were defended by R. E. Nourse of Picton.

Albert Campbell, Hillier, charged with drunk driving, case was put over one week to call in another witness. A great deal of evidence was heard in court and the session lasted well into the afternoon.

CANADIANS HELP

BANGKOK (AP) — A team of Canadian experts will help in surveys for proposed highways in west Thailand, the government announced Tuesday. Formal negotiations are yet to be held, the announcement said.

Must Form Viet Nam Govt. By Tuesday

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — The ruling military triumvirate decreed Wednesday night that South Viet Nam's promised civilian government must be formed before next Tuesday.

Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the caretaker premier and his partners in the triumvirate held to the deadline Khanh established after widespread rioting in late summer by Buddhist and student critics of the Khanh administration.

The order was directed to the High National Council, a 17-man agency named last month to steer this Communist-plagued nation from military to civilian control.

Signing the decree with Khanh were Maj.-Gen. Duong Van Minh, the current chief of state, and Lt.-Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, the former defence minister who is reported slated to become ambassador in Washington.

There was speculation that the council may name the chairman, Phan Khac Suu, as the new chief of state if the popular Minh is not retained in that post. The council scheduled a press conference for Friday.

MAY CROSSBREED

The Brussels sprout, a cousin of kale, cauliflower, broccoli, collards and cabbage, will crosspollinate freely with any of these vegetables.

Every home heating fuel claims economy, dependability, cleanliness, convenience.

But compared to other fuels Natural Gas is best.

Just how economical is economical? How dependable is dependable? Just how clean is clean? Compare one fuel to another and the facts will prove that Natural Gas is best no matter what the others claim.

Fact: Natural Gas costs far less than electric heating, and in most areas of Ontario less than oil.

Fact: Natural Gas is so economical that you can heat an entire house with normal insulation evenly, including basement . . . no need for individual room thermostats, for closed off rooms.

Fact: Natural Gas is dependable. Supply lines are buried underground. Weather and road conditions, power failures or burned out fuses do not disrupt the flow of fuel.

Fact: Natural Gas burns cleaner. All its volume is turned into heat energy. No soot. No greasy deposits. No baked-in dirt on walls or drapes.

Fact: Natural Gas forced air systems make living more comfortable and healthier. The warm air is circulating and being filtered constantly. Uncirculated air, as provided by electric heating, is stale air.

Fact: Natural Gas lets you conveniently and economically use your heating system for air conditioning during Summer months. Lets you humidify the circulating air too.

Fact: Natural Gas, properly installed, with Automatic shut-off and other modern safety controls is as safe a heating system as you'll find anywhere. Electricity heads the list of fire causes over all other forms of energy. (Ontario Fire Marshal's Report.)

Fact: With Natural Gas, service is free.

There is other evidence. But these facts are enough to show that although every fuel makes the same claims, if you compare one fuel to another, Natural Gas is best.

Frail Woman Saves Workman From Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — A frail 89-year-old woman seized the legs of a 250-pound workman and saved him from plunging to the street from her sixth-floor window Wednesday.

"Thank God for this lady," Aaron Kodish told police.

Kodish was referring to Mrs. Julia Bower, a widow who is a slender five feet, one inch tall. The 52-year-old Kodish, though only five feet tall himself, weighs 250.

Kodish, superintendent of the building, was putzying a window frame in Mrs. Bower's apartment, his back resting against a window guard, when the guard rail gave way.

He flopped backward, hooked by his knees and with one hand grasping the dangling rail. When he screamed for help, Mrs. Bower rushed over and wrapped her arms around his legs. Then they both began yelling for help.

Other residents of the building tried in vain to pull Kodish in, and police had to complete his rescue.

Man Can

but Voskhod could make a longer space flight.

Similarly, Mastislav Keldysh, chairman of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said the satellite flight program was carried out.

REPORTS PERSIST

Reports have been persistent reports the Jree - man flight was cut short for some reason. These are based mainly on the original announcement of the flight which stated that it would be a long one.

A 16-orbit effort is not long in comparison with some flights Russia has sponsored, ranging up to 81 orbits.

For the first time details were given of the so-called soft landing achieved by the spaceship when it returned to earth.

Parachutes opened and when Voskhod was a little more than three miles from earth, Feoktistov said. Just before touchdown a new landing system went into operation and the ship landed at "practically zero velocity."

Komarov said rockets were used to ease the space craft down. Yegorov described certain transient conditions observed among the crew during weightlessness, including lower maximum blood pressure, fatigue and stress reactions.

WASN'T DISCOMFORTING

Komarov said the end of the Voskhod's flight was "less discomforting than the sensational experience which occurs when the modern elevator comes to a halt." Apparently he was referring to Russian elevators, which often stop with a bump.

Despite the advance in techniques, Komarov said, "in its present state, the Voskhod landing system cannot be used for a lunar landing."

All reported that they felt well through the flight. But Yegorov admitted for the first time that both he and Feoktistov were troubled by dizzy spells.

"Sharp movements of the head caused slight dizzy sensations, sensations of general discomfort," the physician said.

He said the dizzyness was not accompanied by hallucinations or involuntary eye movements, which he described as signs of serious trouble.

MAY HAVE BEEN SICK

Pictures taken of Feoktistov during and after the flight indicated he might have been sick, but he denied any illness.

"I was perfectly all right," the scientist said.

Feoktistov told the press conference the Voskhod was able to shoot higher into space than any earlier satellite because it carried an extra retro-rocket to ensure a safe drop to a landing. The high point was 254 miles, about twice that of previous Russian manned flights.

Feoktistov said the radiation dosage of the crew in space was quite admissable, meaning not harmful. He said precise figures will be published later.

Asked if smoking was allowed in the space ship, he said:

"Yes, but it was not recommended. All three of us are nonsmokers."

The most fantastic sights of the flight?

"The Aurora Borealis," Feoktistov said. "The upper layers of brightness. The earth itself seen from outer space."

Komarov and Keldysh emphasized that the crew did not have to wear space suits.

Yegorov said it was even possible to preserve blood samples for later analysis.

tion on nuclear weapons testing could properly and logically be made by Cabot to Wang in their scheduled meeting Nov. 20.

The U.S. and China have been holding periodic meetings between ambassadors, most recently in Warsaw, two nine years.

Both State Secretary Dean Rusk and Johnson have already publicly dismissed the Chinese manoeuvre as a propaganda ploy for the purpose of offsetting criticisms of China's first nuclear test explosion Last Friday.

U.S. officials have no real belief at this time that China can be prevailed upon to "on the year-old treaty which bans nuclear testing in the atmosphere, space and under water. The pact does not prohibit underground tests.

But officials say that world-wide public opinion which in many countries has been severely critical of the Chinese tests is still a potentially have some influence in Peking.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said Wednesday night that additional evidence from the Chinese test indicates that it was a fission device employing uranium 235 This conclusion is based on a preliminary analysis of airborne radioactive debris.

"The low yield of the test coupled with other information obtained from the radioactive debris indicates that the technology of the device is which we would associate with an early nuclear test."

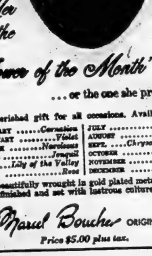
Destroyer Escapes Damage In Dock Fire

SEATTLE (AP) — The worst fire to hit Seattle's waterfront in 50 years raged out of control for more than four hours Wednesday at a shipyard where a $35,000,000 navy destroyer was undergoing an over-haul.

The U.S.S. Marshall was in drydock and could not be towed away because hull plates had been removed. Her crew was ordered to abandon ship but the vessel escaped major damage.

There was no early estimate of loss, but the fire caused major damage to an 8,500 - ton wooden drydock valued by Todd Shipyard Corp., at more than $2,000,000.



Four men were sent to hospital, but none was in serious condition. Dozens of others were treated for smoke inhalation or minor injuries.

The fire, fought by 175 firemen and scores of shipyard workers and sailors, started at the end of a pier where sheet metal work was being done.

Fire Chief Gordon Vickery said welders' equipment might have touched off, but shipyard officials said the welders had left the area long before the blaze erupted.

The shipyard is located on Harbor Island in the south end of the city.

White candles in golden candelabra and the bridal bouquets added to the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a green wool sheath with rounded neckline and cap sleeves with matching jacket, black and white accessories and a corsage of white Sweetheart roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a brown rayon crepe dress in sheath style, beige and brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Chapter Will Sponsor Tours For Students

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario chapter of the IODE will sponsor tours of well known and historic parts of the province for Grade VII students as its centennial project.

The announcement was made by Provincial President Mrs. W. R. Morrison of Hamilton at the opening of the two - day Ontario provincial conference Wednesday.

Mrs. Morrison said the tours will commemorate the centennial commission National Youth Travel program.

The 16,000-member national IODE aims to raise $50,000 for educational centennial projects to be chosen by each province.

Mrs. Morrison said:

"Our provincial chapter, with about half the total membership of the order, will naturally contribute about half the total fund. At our suggestion, it has been decided that the total fund will be divided equally among the 10 provinces. A smaller share will be allocated to our chapters in the Yukon."

SHOWS FAITH

She said the project and the decision to share the funds equally indicates the chapter's faith in Canadianism.

"It has been said that Canadians are apathetic, apologetic and fatalistic about their country, that we know too little about Canada, that our school children don't know the history of their country, that we are overwhelmed by the vast giant to the south and the growing foreign ownership of our resources. These situations, I believe, do exist but their remedy, though difficult, is not impossible."

County Home Sponsors Successful Autumn Tea

By A. HENDERSON

Though outside skies were leaden, yet within Hastings County Home autumn, in all her regal loveliness, of green, gold and scarlet held sway for the anniversary tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon.

After a cordial reception at the door by Mrs. T. Burnside, wife of the Warden of Hastings County, assisted by Mrs. A. Daniels, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Home; Mrs. A. Sexsmith of Bancroft, chairman of the Board of Management of Hastings County Home; Mr. R. Hill, Yorke, superintendent, and Mrs. K. H. Yorke, matron of the Home, the thronging guests poured into the therapy room where the handicrafts of the residents' were for sale.

ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY

Every available space was utilized for the attractive work of nimble and painstaking hands. Among these were the Christmas wreaths daintily executed in blues and whites, bearing red satin bows, and deftly accented with silver stars; strings of colored balls as door ornaments; Christmas candles, and Christmas angels; while on the long tables forming a "U" shape were stuffed toys, dolls, haughty penguins with black frock coats and white vests, pink clad clowns, stocking snakes, woven, white place-mats, a variety of dainty aprons, embroidered pillow cases, tea cloths, daintily dressed dolls as bed ornaments, and a host of others. Even the walls were hung with dainty wall plaques, some round and some in rectangle shape, made from gold-tinted autumn weeds and flowers, as well as patchwork quilts in blue and white.

FINE LEATHER CRAFT

On another long table were wooden book ends adorned with a little Dutch maiden and others with a white polar bear. Here, too, was a fine showing of leathercraft work: book, coin purses, some of which showed tooling, bill folds, attractive jardiniers, some in silver and others in gold work, and still others fashioned in tiny manatees of white and rose, green and white. There were also little felt turtles holding bath soap cases covered with gilded breakfast cereals; little figurines for place settings. Mrs. A. Sergard, instructor of occupational therapy in the home was in charge of this.

LOVELY TEA ROOM

The spacious tea room was a bower of loveliness. Tall white baskets filled with autumn flowers of pink, mauve, yellow and white 'mums, with tall sprays of russet shade, mingled with spikes of lemon-colored gladioli and British Columbia huckleberry scintillated the open doorway; while cascading garlands stretched from light to light, and new plans — purchased by the proceeds of last year's anniversary tea and bazaar held an artificial turkey, while on the walls were plaques showing autumn colored leaves and at the far end an attractive arrangement of green boughs, mingled with sprays of maple leaves. Perched among these was a saucy red squirrel holding a large nut in his paws and on either side flew a scarlet tanager, and a blue bird of happiness.

Clustered at the base were the harvest fruits: red apples; luscious bunches of grapes, green and red; golden carved green squashes; a bag of potatoes — just fine for baking; corn on the cob; and down at the foot the symbol of the harvest, and the joy of Hallowe'en the glowing yellow pumpkin.

At the far end, forming a "T" with the aisle dividing the guest tables was the tea table with its snow-white cloth; centred by a four-tier pink birthday cake, flanked by bowls of pink and green 'mums and highlighted by tall rose-colored candles in crystal holders and at either end, the silver tea services.

Mrs. Doris Davidson, of Belleville, was convener of the tea; while the conveners were: Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. L. Trupp. The hostesses included Mesdames C. Macdonald, E. Bird; E. C. Prentice; George Morey; B. M. Moorman and H. Ketcheson.

PRESIDING

Those presiding at the silver tea services were: Mesdames W. E. Sandercock, wife of M.P.P. Hastings West; Robert Temple, wife of M.P. Hastings South; J. Ellis, wife of Mayor of Belleville; D. MacLean, president of Avondale N.A. sponsors of the formation of the Auxiliary; the Hon. T. Burnside, wife of Warden of Hastings County and C. F. Bateman, wife of clerk-treasurer Hastings County.

During the tea time, soft piano music was provided by Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. J. N. Parrott.

A bake table, laden with delicious confections was conveined by Mrs. W. Kempson of the Ladies' Auxiliary, of the therapy room was Mr. Charles Taylor; taking tickets at the tea room entrance, Mr. Julius Bedore and Mr. Loral Clement. Mr. Robert Odendahl and Mrs. Alfred Livingston.

Mr. James Pelkey was in charge of parking cars.

Appreciation is extended to the Ladies' Auxiliary, and to all the staff of the County Home for their kind assistance in making the day a most successful and pleasant one.

Belleville Chapter 55 O.E.S. Holds Tea at Masonic Temple

In a unique setting of Canada's Indian lore the Belleville Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, No. 55, held a delightful tea and bazaar yesterday afternoon in the Masonic Temple hall. The event was graciously convened by Mrs. Myrtle Cross P.M., assisted by co-convener Mrs. Bobbe Locke.

As one opened the door to the hall there was an eye-catching display depicting the Indian's way of life and showing in particular a campfire scene complete with an Indian family gathered about a glowing bonfire with teepee in the background and many items connected with Indians of the era including a tomahawk, totem pole, bow and arrow and even to a miniature replica of Fort Apache with all its historical characters.

Warmly greeting the many patrons to the main auditorium were Mrs. Dorthy Ellis, W.M., and Mrs. Bobbe Locke, A.M., and the tea room convener was Mrs. Pearl Johnstone with Mrs. Phyl Berry as co-convener. The hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. Phyl Barlow, P.M., and Mrs. Dora Eldridge, P.M.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

In keeping with the theme of the event the white picket gateway at the entrance to the tea room was intertwined with colorful autumn leaves and the pillars were highlighted with replicas of miniature Indian villages complete with teepees and canoes made of birch bark. Here the linen covered tea table was most attractively centred with a small birch bark canoe with an Indian papoose in full costume seated within. Tapering red candles, the silver tea services and trays of tasty relishes completed this novel setting. Each of the guest tables was centred with a miniature teepee set on a golden doily. Lending further accent to the colorful decor were open-work baskets of autumn leaves suspended from the ceiling.

Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were: Mesdames Bessie Clark, P.M.; Dora Elridge, P.M.; Dorothy McGlashon, P.M.; Margaret Shaw, P.M., Phyl Berry, P.M.; Phyl Barlow, P.M.; and Myrtle Cross, P.M.

Kitchen convener was Mrs. Dorothy Jones and co-convener Mrs. Jean Bell, with other members of the chapter assisting in serving and replenishing.

The various sales booths were most colorful decorated with variegated autumn leaves and laden with an abundance of their respective merchandise.

Always a drawing card was the homebaking table convened by Mrs. Jean Adams, whose had a generous assortment of delicacies. Next was the candy table with a variety of tasty sweets in colorful cups and boxes and convened by Mrs. Emily Stevens. The business girls trading post had a wide assortment of articles for sale including jewels, handmade clothes, mittens, socks, baby sweaters and a number of other novelty items on display in charge of Mrs. Wyn Tomkinson with a number of other business girls assisting. The white elephant booth always so popular at this time of year with the fast approaching Christmas season had a fine assortment of decorations and centrepieces for the festive season and these were in charge of Mrs. Ada McMullen P.M. and Mrs. Eva Mick. The grocery booth was in charge of Mrs. Gladys Jeffery and Mrs. Mabel Evans.

The men's booth, not to be outdone was well supplied with a variety of vegetables as well as a number of other items, one of which we a complete barbeque outfit of apron, hat and mitts for the man who likes to cook outdoors. The convener this booth was Douglas Simpson P.P. and Douglas Ellis W.P.

It was announced that the Bethlehem Shrine No. 11 widower of the Queen Elizabeth was the holder of ticket 128, Mr. Dean Pound of 10 Holden Street, Belleville.

My relatives and friends and acquaintances often come home from their travels with news for me of the wonderful food they have eaten.

My brother returned from Boston saying the clam chowder he supped had two or three times as many clams in it as any other clam chowder he has tasted and was a whole meal in itself. But it was the Indian Pudding served him for dessert with a dollop of hard ice cream on top that caught his fancy.

old-fashioned dish by topping it with ice cream and presto, they have made it a standby beloved by thousands.

INDIAN PUDDING (Economical — recommended by WHI):

4 cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup cornmeal, ½ cup molasses, ½ teaspoon cinnamon (or less), ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon mace, 3 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter.

In top of double boiler scald the milk with the salt and then stir in the cornmeal slowly. Let cook over boiling water ½ to 1 hour (1 hour is preferable), stirring occasionally. Measure the molasses in your 2-cup measure, stir in eggs, spices and butter. Stir this mixture into the cooked cornmeal mixture. Turn into buttered baking dish, stand dish in larger one containing about 1" of hot water. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes, or until set. Serve hot from the oven and spoon a generous serving of hard vanilla or maple walnut ice cream over each serving.

PARKDALE L. M. F.

The October meeting of the Parkdale Ladies' Missionary Fellowship was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Reznick. Mrs. Blake opened the meeting with prayer and Mrs. Milligan read a missionary letter. She reminded the ladies of their responsibility to the missionaries, especially in writing regularly.

The business of the evening included the election of Mrs. Synder as the new secretary. The Christmas project was discussed and it was decided to send a parcel as usual to the needy family on the Gaspe, and in addition one to the Wrye family who have recently moved to New Brunswick to attend Bible School.

The meeting closed and a time of fellowship followed.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

SUNDAY

Breast of Chicken Mornay (see Wednesday); Chived Carrots; Brussels Sprouts; Lettuce, Apple and Green Pepper Salad with 1000-Island Dressing; Nut Layer Cake (see Friday); Coffee.

A recipe for Indian Pudding has seldom appeared in this column, simply because, I suppose it is not a dessert that is commonly made in Canada.

Anyway, on Wife's strong recommendation I started testing. After three tries I produced a reasonable facsimile to which he gave a sniffing nod after his first taste.

This is an economical dessert pudding. It is easy to imagine how it was created by some thrifty New England cook who had leftover cornmeal porridge, decided to sweeten and spice it a little and bake it. I suppose it was then served with milk or cream. Our American friends have glamorized this

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Don't become a secretary in one of Canada's embassies if you expect your life to be a string of cocktail parties and dates with glamorous characters out of a James Bond mystery.

"It's hard work and you have to be able to turn your hand to almost anything, especially in a small post," says Pat South gate of Ottawa.

For the last seven years, Miss Southgate, 31, has been a stenographer with the foreign section of the Civil Service Commission.

She has worked in Tokyo and Jakarta, Indonesia, and has travelled through the Far East and Europe between postings. Now she is en route to a new assignment in the Dominican Republic.

"So many girls who apply for jobs like mine have misconceptions about what the life is like," the vivacious blonde said in an interview in Ottawa between postings.

"You shouldn't apply because you want to get away from a boy friend or your mother or something like that. You have to be genuinely interested in travelling—anywhere."

MAY GO ANYWHERE

Stenographers may be sent to any country where Canada has an embassy and the move may come at any time in their career.

"That's the thrill of the job—knowing you can be sent to Turkey or Lebanon or Russia at short notice."

Miss Southgate, originally from London, England, said many girls interested in this sort of a job would be happy to go to Europe but "shrink at the thought of going to Africa, for example."

Although there is a constant flow of applications from young women hoping to become foreign service secretaries, the commission has difficulty filling all its openings. Not everyone who applies has the special requirements needed for the job.

Skill in shorthand and typing is important but by far the best quality is adaptability.

"You have to be ready to accept unusual living conditions, the sound of an unfamiliar language all around you, perhaps a climate different from the one you've been brought up in, or, in some countries, an unsettled political situation."

EMBASSY BURNED

Aside from these realities, however, there are glamorous moments in Miss Southgate's life.

"There's the opportunity to meet people working with the diplomatic corps of many countries, and also the opportunity to meet the natives of the country you are posted to, and learn their unique customs."

Pat, who was sent to Tokyo in 1958 for 2½ years, is enthusiastic about Japan—"one of the most beautiful and cleanest countries in the world." However, life there was "generally uneventful."

That changed when she was sent to the Canadian Embassy at Jakarta, a relatively small mission where she had a great deal of responsibility. In September she witnessed political uprisings which reached a climax with the burning of part of the British Embassy just down the street from her house.

The political unrest made work at the Canadian mission hectic—"there were so many classified telegrams to look after"—so she was relieved to be sent home to Ottawa in July. She also had a chance to visit her parents who still live in London.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Democracy is first and foremost a spiritual evaluation of life and not merely a political formula. It is embodies one of the greatest revolutionary ideas in human history — one that has hardly ever been tried. It does not depend upon the phlegmatic, neutralist notion of mutual toleration — letting all believe as they will, since belief in any cave, is unimportant. This latter view may be a humane approach to differences, but it is cynical, interested in the mechanics and not the ultimate concerns of life. Micah's view still awaits special application: "And none shall make them afraid. For let all people walk each one in the name of its God . . ." Spiritual democracy takes a stand in favor of the self-expression of all peoples, seeks to encourage the sincere pursuit of truth by the few as well as the many, recognizes that the one God may be found at the end of different roads. It reads the commandment in terms of its deeper implications: "Love they neighbor as himself."

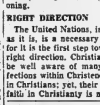
DEMOCRATIC VISION

What impedes our acting on these basic religious ideas? Why has our democratic vision not yet found its highest expression?

We are not incapable: we are, rather, still very young. Man's wrongdoing, suggests a Jewish teacher, is explained by Scripture: "The imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth" — because of his still youthful immaturity. One day we shall become a fuller image of the God who made us, and grow into the role He has assigned us. A child is born into a "booming, buzzing confusion," and long remains dependent upon others for life and sustenance. In our earlier history on this continent, we were dependent upon the Old World — its rivalries, its petty jealousies, its age-old patterns of national and ethnic conflicts were part of our legacy. But a child grows from childhood into youth and when he reaches adolescence he tries out his new wings: he begins to learn the meaning of independence. So with us. It took us a long time to discover the meaning of our political independence, to develop our own unique institutions. The time is coming, however, when we shall move from our dependence upon the social thought of our medieval European inheritance and grow toward the light which is beckoning.

RIGHT DIRECTION

The United Nations, imperfect as it is, is a necessary symbol, for it is the first step toward the right direction. Christians must be well aware of many imperfections within Christendom and in Christians; yet, their ultimate faith in Christianity is not abandoned because men have not yet achieved the fullest understanding of its possibilities. Nor can Jews lose their hope in human improvements, even if men have not achieved social perfection. They cannot; not if they are to be true to a heritage of moral optimism, and to prophets who suggested to backsliders the ever-present option of beginning again.



Today, throughout America, we are witnessing a revival of religious interest. But it will not long endure if it is based upon denominational vanity alone. When churches and synagogues recapture the zeal which characterized their "hungrier days," speak to the moral conscience of the world, and not merely for the sake of preserving their own traditions, they may help men to realise that Religion will be worth saving when it learns the meaning of democracy.

INDUSTRY DOUBLES

There are more than 2,300,000 workers in the construction and transport industries in Romania, doubling the 1950 total.

Autumn

The autumn winds are blowing,
The leaves are falling fast,
Red and yellow, green and brown,
The sky is overcast.
Winter bears upon us
With its snow and ice.

But the springtime follows
For which we all rejoice.
The birds and flowers will come again
The trees be clothed once more.
The grass will grow, the rivers flow,
Obedient to God's law.

These verses were written by Elizabeth Jenkins, of Beverley, Mass., who is 92 years old, and were sent to her niece, Mrs. Maniates, Front Street, Belleville.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

THE CHECK-GRABBER

Let us consider the case of the compulsive host today.

For easy identification, he is the one you see at restaurants with hand outstretched, imperiously demanding the check from the hesitant waiter.

You wouldn't think that such a generous man could be a pain in the neck, would you?

Yet he is a social hazard to a number of people I know who object asking for "handouts," they want to pay their part of the check or who occasionally want to play the part of the generous host.

Here is how one of my friends characterized a certain check-grabber he knows:

"At first, when the bill came I would reach for it, only to feel his heavy hand on mine. When I saw the look on his face, I realized that he was determined at all costs to pay the check. I surrendered, even though I may have invited him to lunch.

"On later occasions, we got into long discussions, when the check came and he grabbed it. I reminded him of the number of times I had been his unwilling guest and once I thought I made my point. He said I could be the next time but when we met again, there he was with his hand out for the check.

"I like this man very much and we do business with each other on an even basis — that is, neither of us profits from the other. So I began to brood about a way to pay the next luncheon tab.

OPENS ACCOUNT

"I finally decided to open an account at our favorite restaurant. I phoned the manager in advance and asked that no check be presented at the table and the amount charged to my account.

"To you think I came out ahead on my tricky manoeuvre? Not on your life. When my friend learned from the waiter that I was taking care of the check, he laced into me for being so unmannerly.

"I've stopped seeing him regularly, and when I do I let him use his money."

There are other examples of men with itchy hankrolls. Women too. I don't know what drives them to their outbursts of overt, heavy-handed generosity. Perhaps a psychologist has the answer.

But there's no question that the man who constantly insists on being the host often steps on other toes. He can be as much of a social nuisance as the guy who keeps his hands in his pocket or looks the other way when the bill is being presented.

Successful Living

Better to Develop the Good Than to Stress Evil

DEAR DORIS — I was certainly surprised at your reply to Mrs. I.F. in regard to the "filthy smoking habit." Perhaps you yourself indulge in it.

DORIS CLARK

You state: "In a free country we still have the right to abuse our bodies and threaten our futures in any way we please!"

What a terrible statement for a social worker, but I am not surprised as I have discovered that social workers appear to help evil doers rather than suppress them.

I knew a minister's wife who told me that whenever her husband had a men's meeting at the house she had to thoroughly housecleam to get rid of the smoke smell. But you say this is O.K.

I say with Mrs. I.F. it is a filthy habit and I do not permit it in my house. — MRS. C.A.

* * *

DEAR MRS. C.A. — Should I have said "We still have the freedom"? That's what I meant. I gave up the old weed many years ago for health reasons, and will talk against it every chance I get.

Yet I still give house room to habitues— with pleasure. Whether or not my guests smoke, or eat chocolates, or play marbles is, ultimately, their business.

And re social workers: You don't eliminate evil by suppressing it. Social workers see the good in people, (even in so-called "evil doers") and build on that. Much more effective.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We live in a town of about 12,000 people. I have been thinking of buying a massage belt for reducing, and letting people use it; in other words, give massages, at a set rate per half hour. There are so many people who need to reduce.

Do you think that I could make a little extra money with it? I need extra money but my husband won't let me go out to work. — SHORT OF CASH.

* * *

DEAR SHORT — You mean sort of a one-man Health Centre? How much do you know about the dieting that should go with the massage? Could you build up your business by telephone?

It would call for a study of reducing and some knowledge of the human body. With study and hard work you might attract some customers. Even then I question whether there are enough people willing to pay money to reduce, to make it worth your while. Whatever you do, start small and don't lose your shirt over it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We moved to our grandfather's home and I despise it. However my mother said one time I could go to school in town and now that we are near enough she has gone back on her word. Do you think it is fair for her to go back on her word? — NAME NONE.

* * *

DEAR NAME — Even big people regret leaving the old, familiar things. Get your mother to explain why the move was necessary; then show you are a responsible member of the family by helping it to work.

She can't work miracles, and there must be a good reason why school in town is now out. Ask her about that, too.

* * *

Confidential to FOURTEEN — Thank you for your information. I have already covered the subject of warts in the column.

Fashion Show Displays Newest Trends in Styles

A "symphony of fashion" set the theme for the annual presentation on Wednesday evening by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of fall fashions for the style conscious woman. Musically the idea was carried out with vocalist soprano Hazelanne Reid contributing three numbers, Mrs. J. H. Forrester introducing the change of styles with a calypso medley, and Mrs. V. L. Lewis providing the piano accompaniment throughout the show.

Mrs. Fred A. Beeny, president of the Auxiliary, welcomed the guests at the opening of the showing, and in the intermission explained some of the different phases of the work done by the Auxiliary. There were jobs to suit every talent, she said, from the glamorous ones of modelling to the utility jobs at the hospital and the Opportunity shop. This shop had raised $45,000 since its opening; a coffee cart was provided morning and afternoon at the hospital; the auxiliary operated a gift corner where it was possible to purchase hand knit babies' garments. A group had been making puppets for about ten years and giving them to the patients from paediatrics. There was sewing to be done for the service groups and help to be given to out-patients. A library cart was provided through the Corby Public library. All services were voluntary.

ARTISTIC STAGE

The stage was artistically designed in green and gold, with green velvet on gilt chairs; bronze mums in brass tripod holders flanking a huge arrangement of copper colored blooms and ferns on a pedestal, and a green carpeted stairway.

Mrs. T. Neil Davidson was commentator wearing a slim white brocade dress, and sparkling jewellery.

The show opened with a collection of casual and sportswear, showing stretch slims in a variety of colors, topped with jackets having an Eskimo motif with fur trimmed hoods.

TWEED FAVORED

Tweed appeared to be a favorite with one striking ensemble in black and white accented with black fur, and black fur hat worn high on the head.

An unusual fabric was one that looked like leather, but was 100 per cent cotton. It was imported from Italy and was scuff and stain resistant, needing just sponge and soap to remove soiled spots. It was water repellant, yet microporous, and was shown in a red suit with matching sweater.

LITTLE FURS POPULAR

Fur coats showed youthful jackets, full length coats of Alaska seal, Persian lamb in grey, brown and black often trimmed with mink, and fine Canadian beaver. Sheared racoon made a pace-setting coat in a dyed rose beige shade, and mink was fashioned in stunning styles. Bolero, capes, shrugs and little furs added glamorous touches to evening wear.

Each costume had its own matching jewels and wrist watches to enhance it, and each was complemented with appropriate gloves, purses and handbags.

Lingerie appeared in lounging pyjamas and in peignors, the hostess gowns were attractive in black velvet and brocade.

EVENING GOWNS

The trend in evening wear appears to be the full length dress with slim skirt, split at back or sides. Several had the high-waisted Empire look with sashes. Evening gowns were sophisticated and glamorous, fashioned in brocades, silk chiffons, velvet and silk crepes.

At intermission hospital administrator Stanley J. Johnston spoke briefly on behalf of the Board of Governors expressing the great appreciation they felt for the efforts of the Auxiliary, and the comforts and favors provided for the patients. "It is possible we will have a part of the building in use by centennial year. Our beds will be increased from 250 to 450, and more volunteers will be needed," he said.

PRIZE WINNERS

Mrs. Johnston drew the tickets for the winning draws which were held by Mrs. E. C. Gillis, Mrs. H. Wray, Brenda Hall, Mrs. H. Lake, Mrs. June Brooks, Mrs. D. C. Stirling and Irene Pemmer.

The attractive models who displayed the fashions were, Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott, Mrs. Michael Lucas, Mrs. W. R. Doyle, Mrs. Ben Burley, Mrs. G. W. Gist, and Miss Judy McKnight.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester was convener of the show with a committee composed of Mrs. Fred A. Beeby, Mrs. Ben Burley, Mrs. J. R. Blackbourn, Mrs. M. F. L. Jones, Mrs. R. A. Evarts, Mrs. A. M. Pedersen, and Mrs. W. T. Simpson. Mrs. Eve Doolittle was fashion co-ordinator.

The exhibitors were McNabb's Ladies' Wear, Ashley Furs, Barbara Flowers, A La Vogue Beauty Salon, Ronald Keel and Avon costume jewellery, McIntosh Bros. Store, and Paul Kelly's Drug Store.

Legion Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Autumn Tea and Bazaar

Using an autumn color scheme of green, orange and brown the Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch 99, Royal Canadian Legion, held a lovely tea and bazaar in the Legion hall yesterday afternoon, convened by Comrade Barbara Shepherd, assisted by co-convener Comrade Edna Blair.

Warmly greeting the guests into the warm and friendly atmosphere of the spacious hall were Comrades Betty Hodge and Edna Blair while the treasurer of the group and taking tickets at the door was Mrs. Daisy Jeffs.

The colorful decor was most attractive, and located at strategic points along the walls were cascading willow streamers suspended from a golden feathered effect with each of the sales tables carrying out the color scheme of brown, green and orange.

The hostess in the tea room was Zone Commander Hope Begley and here the tea table was the focal point of interest with its ecru lace cloth centred with a colorful display of bronze and yellow 'mums and flanked with bright blue candles in tri-branch candelabra. Pouring tea at the silver tea services throughout the afternoon were Comrades A. Bradford and W. Bean. The quartet guest tables were equally attractive, covered with embroidered luncheon cloths centred with a crystal rose bowl holding a solitaire yellow rosebud.

Kitchen convener was Comrade Shirley Benn, while a number of other members of the Auxiliary assisted in serving and replenishing the tasty refreshments.

The sales tables located around the room were laden with a generous supply of merchandise with each being well patronized. These included the bake table convened by Comrades Dergaw and Morris; the apron booth by Comrade Edna Semark; the white elephant table for Comrade A. Hardwick; the novelty table by Comrade D. Baubotte; the candy table by Comrade D. Purdy and the country store by Comrade Meeks. Draw tickets were sold and these were in charge of Comrade Mary Ford.

Learning Proper Technique Of Hearing Aid Important

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife is hard of hearing. Last year I invested a sizable sum in a hearing aid. She tried it for two weeks, said it made her nervous and now the hearing aid is in the bottom drawer.

We have four school-age children who never hear the phone ring because they are "too busy." My wife, of course, can't hear anything. Sometimes I think she would rather not hear because it provides her with a perfect excuse for not doing some of the things she should be doing.

If you can throw me a hint about what I can do to solve my problem I would appreciate it. — EGG EASPERATED.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR EGG — Those of us who are blessed with good hearing can't imagine how difficult life is for people who don't hear.

The suggestion that your wife is enjoying her deafness and is using it as an excuse to shirk her responsibilities is a low blow. I hope you will urge her to try again to become accustomed to her hearing aid. She should seek the help of an expert.

Partially deaf people have reported that a whole new world opened up to them when they learned how to use a hearing aid properly. I doubt that your wife has given hers a fair trial.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS—This is a second marriage for both of us. Bart and I get along well. The only arguments we have are about his sons.

Bart's boys are 18 and 17 years old. He is determined to send these boys to college although they are poor students and show no aptitude for anything. If it weren't for summer school and private tutoring the older boy would never have made it out of high school.

I say college is not for everyone and Bart should put the boys in a trade school or get them jobs.

The alimony and support load is breaking our backs. The added expense of college for middle-income people (which is what we are) is sure to put us in the hole for the next six years.

Bart says "We'll manage somehow." I have a hunch he means I'll have to go to work. May I hear from you please? — MAYPOLE.

DEAR MAY — Your husband's determination to send his sons to college has nothing whatever to do with their scholastic abilities. A divorced father fights private devils that only he can see. So withdraw your objections and stay out of it. This is one battle you're sure to lose.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Is it or is it not bribery to pay young children for doing chores around the house?

I pay our five-year-old 25c a week and our seven-and-eight-year-olds get 50c a week for keeping their rooms picked up, carrying out the trash and going to the corner drug store now and then.

My neighbor says kids should not be paid for doing these things — that family relationships should be built on co-operation and paying children to do chores puts the relationship on a commercial basis. My husband says she is nuts. I don't know what to say. What is your opinion? — WILLING TO LEARN.

DEAR WILLING — I'm in favor of teaching children early that there is some connection between work (giving) and pay (receiving).

An allowance is essential. Even a five-year-old should be taught the wisdom of saving part of what he gets. Accepting responsibility is essential, too — so why not relate the two ideas? This makes more sense than handing a lazy, uncooperative child an allowance as a gift. Too many of our kids grow up thinking the world owes them a living.

John F. Kennedy — inspiration for our generation.

Teen-Age Canada

Nearly Year Has Passed Since Kennedy Was Slain

By JACK HUTTON

The smiling, boyish-looking president had never looked better as his car drove through downtown Dallas. Then the shots rang out — and President John F. Kennedy was dead.

The date: Nov. 22, 1963, a day our generation will never forget.

It's hard to believe almost one year has passed since the youngest president in U.S. history was assassinated in broad daylight. Yet the anniversary of his death is less than one month away.

Many will try to assess between now and November 22 what impact John F. Kennedy had on the world about him. Some mention his courage in wartime and peace. Others praise his ability to inspire.

I would like to say, before the many others comment, that every reader of this column was left a priceless legacy by 46-year-old John F. Kennedy: the example of a man who understood the 20th Century as no other North American leader had done before him.

Do you remember the opening words of his inaugural address, delivered with calculated pauses that reminded some of Sir Winston Churchill:

"Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has passed to a new generation of Americans — born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace."

KNEW SADNESS

John F. Kennedy was a man who knew sadness and unhappiness in his own family and lifetime, despite the image of a rich man's son that many knew before his election to the presidency.

He knew the disillusionment of fighting through a war and almost losing his life, only to see many of the goals lost in the peace that followed.

I believe that's why he was able to tell one press conference in Washington: "There is always an inequity in life. Some men are killed in a war and some men are wounded, and some men never leave the country. . . Life is unfair."

He understood his generation. In John F. Kennedy we knew a man who never saw life as a drama between right and wrong, black against white or our side and the other side. He saw the shades of different opinions and beliefs.

But, if he saw reality with a cold, hard logic he also remained a man of action. John F. Kennedy, like Abraham Lincoln, believed that man could change a world made by man.

In a world where it was fashionable to discount the statements of politicians, we suddenly listened to this one leader, and realized he was talking to us. And he was saying: "You have it within your power to make a better life. Get at."

Somehow it was like feeling a fresh breeze that made the cynics seem weak by contrast. Before John F. Kennedy our generation had too often said: "Why make the struggle? What difference will it make?"

A friend who recently visited Hong Kong told me of a strange experience. "I was having dinner with a Chinese when the subject of Kennedy came up," he said. "It amazed me that tears filled his eyes and we had to discuss something else."

Diplomats and foreign travellers report the same reaction all around the world. It was phenomenal how many young people reacted last November as if their own leader had just been shot.

Someone once remarked about the composer George Gershwin, "They tell me George is dead. But I don't have to believe it if I don't want to." I feel the same way about John F. Kennedy.

But I warn you again. You'll never regard the world around you the same way again after you've read Clarke's predictions of space travel, planet colonization and unbelievable inventions that already exist.

Strike May End Over Weekend

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP)—An end to th. economy-pinching, 25-day-old U.S. - wide strike against General Motors Corporation may come during the weekend.

If it does, it will return more than 300,000 automakers to assembly lines and still more thousands to jobs in supplier plants and the transportation industry. Idle auto workers alone will have lost some $300,000,000 in wages.

The United Auto Workers union Wednesday ordered its 130 units within the GM empire to take a vote Sunday on ending the strike.

President Johnson, plodded both company and union Monday for speedy agreement. He said strike continuance would "jeopardize the continuous upward thrust of our economy" and it was beginning to affect production and employment in other industries.

HURRIED SETTLEMENT

Leonard Woodcock, a UAW vice-president and chief of its GM department, said the vote call was prompted in part by the president's request for settlement action.

He said two other considerations were involved: 1. The pocket - book - pinch on UAW members and their families. 2. The strike's deteriorating effect on the U.S. economy.

The walkout came Sept. 25 in support of union demands in the national contract bargaining. But when agreement was reached Oct. 5 on a new overall settlement pattern, the UAW made return to work contingent on settlement of at-the-plant supplement which

The new national contracts in the U.S. auto industry include sharply higher pensions, early retirement incentives, longer vacations, life and broader insurance coverage, plus wage increases. A Christmas bonus of $25 to $100 is possible also at Ford and GM.

Chrysler and Ford came to terms ahead of GM and UAW President Walter P. Reuther estimated that nearly 54 cents hourly over their three - year span.

COMPUTES AVERAGE WAGE

Si-tke impact on the economy, which Johnson mentioned, has been reflected in many places.

At Flint, Mich., a GM manufacturing centre, more than 900 non-GM workers have been laid off because of the strike.

The Grand Trunk Western and Chesapeake and Ohio railroads reported 200 Flint crew members laid of. because there were no cars for the job. Beer

In striking GM, the UAW ordered members working in its plants making parts and accessories to Ford and Chrysler to stay on the job. Otherwise, all the Big Three U.S. auto makers would have been closed. More than 50,000 stayed on the job, including 20,000 at Ford.

PRODUCTION SAGGED

Consequently, with GM assembly lines down, U.S. auto production sagged last week to 79,980 cars, compared with 179,790 cars, corresponding week a year earlier.

At the same time Ford and Chrysler - Plymouth reported racking up their biggest Oct. 1-10 sales by history while GM's dealers, who got fewer than 300,000 of its new 1965 models before the strike, were running out of cars.

The auto industry consumes an estimated 20 per cent of the U.S. steel output and GM, which uses about half of this, told mills to stop shipping Oct. 1.

Iron Age magazine reported Wednesday that over - all demand for steel "is so great that it is difficult to locate exact information of effects on the market of the GM strike.

STAGE FAST

MADRAS, India (AP)—Sixty-four opposition members from th. state legislative assembly and legislative council staged an 11-hour sit-down fast Wednesday to express sympathy for people suffering from India's food shortage.

Car Production Down Sharply This Week

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's car production will be down sharply this week from the same week a year ago because of the strike at General Motors in the United States.

GM's Oshawa plant has been forced to close due to a lack of parts which are shipped from the U.S.

The Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association says 9,731 trucks and cars are scheduled to roll off assembly lines this week compared with last week's actual production of 7,306.

The increase is due to stepped-up production at Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker.

Scheduled car production this week by company—with actual production last week in brackets, and actual production this year to Oct. 17, with comparable 1963 figures.

American Motors 800 (644); 26,787 (22,675). Chrysler 3,180 (2,443); 78, 855 (61,948). Ford 3,620 (2,461); 119,184 (104,356). General Motors — (147); 214,218 (194,560). Studebaker 576 (468); 12,131 (5,982). Volvo 60 (46); 1,619 (579).

Truck production:

Chrysler 292 (228); 10,425 (7,378). Ford 900 (641); 28,739 (25,460). General Motors — (49); 40,264 (33,271). International Harvester 213 (169); 9,977 (9,962).

Gen. Bernatchez Now Colonel Of Van Doos

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Bernatchez has two pet subjects to bring up in any conversation — the Royal 22nd Regiment and his military career.

The husky voiced retired vice-chief of the army's general staff has good reason to brag a little because the Royal 22nd has been his unit since he graduated from Royal Military College at Kingston in the early 1920s. He commanded the unit in action in Sicily and Italy during the Second World War and won the Distinguished Service Order in that post.

And then in 1952, he was one of the major forces to obtain approval by the then defence minister, the late Brooke Claxton, for establishment of the bilingual tri-service military college at St. Johns.

Today, Maj.-Gen. Paul Bernatchez becomes Colonel of the Royal 22nd, succeeding the Governor-General. The 53-year-old Montmagny, Que., native is only the fourth colonel of the regiment, a post second only to that of colonel - in - chief—the Queen.

The regiment, now celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding during the First World War, had Marshal Ferdinand Foch, the Allied commander in First Colonel.

Dr. Van Blakslee Honored On 51 Years in Profession

By BILL SEYMOUR

It was a memorable occasion when members of the medical staff of the Belleville General Hospital met last evening to honor a man whose name has been well known in Belleville since 1917, when he came here to make a success of his career as a young doctor.

He is Dr. Van Blakslee of 111 Victoria Avenue — the home in which he has lived since coming to this city some 47 years ago.

It was a warm and happy occasion when he was honored at a party at the home of Dr. Richard T. Potter, R.R. 7, Belleville to celebrate his 51st anniversary in the medical profession.

In 1913 Dr. Blakslee graduated in medicine from Queen's University. Standing true to the old saying "go west young man, go west," Dr. Blakslee did just that.

Early in his career as a young doctor, Dr. Blakslee worked for the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in Fort George in the Fraser River Valley area.

Calling on his patients was not as easy then as it is today. Transportation was limited and where a car was not available, the young doctor walked. At other times he chanced a ride on a hand car and on numerous occasions rode a horse.

Desiring to broaden his medical knowledge and skill, Dr. Blakslee went to New York City, where he took a post-graduate course and internship.

He then returned to Kingston, where he worked under the guidance of Dr. I. G. Bog- art. Then, when the year 1917 rolled around, the young man moved to Belleville to join the staff at the then very small Belleville General Hospital, of which he has been a member ever since.

Dr. Blakslee was president of the medical staff of the Belleville General Hospital for a term and later a secretary.

As a token of their appreciation for his longtime friendship and assistance through the years, members of the medical staff at the hospital presented Dr. Blakslee with a gold mantel clock. The presentation was made on behalf of the staff by Dr. Austin Walters. Terry Dolan, on behalf of the Druggists' Association, presented the doctor with a gold wrist watch.

G. Duff, president of the local Druggists' Association, also spoke briefly on behalf of the Associatibn.

FELLS OF CHANGES

Dr. Blakslee said the occasion was a great surprise to him on thanking his fellow workers. He told of the many changes which have been made at the hospital and in the medical profession in general, since he began.

Dr. Blakslee is an ardent fisherman and hunter and is still very much interested in these sports. He is looking forward to the hunting season which opens soon.

Dr. Blakslee and the late Mrs. Blakslee have two daughters, both married to well-known Canadian artists. Mrs. Pat (Peggy) Cowley-Brown and Mrs. Robert (Joan) Hyndman.

Russia's New Leaders Can Prove Pledge of Seeking New Accord by Wrecking Wall

- - Goldwater

PHILADELPHIA (CP)—Russia's new leaders can prove pledges of seeking new accord with the West by wrecking the Berlin wall, clearing out of Cuba and holding some free elections, Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater said Wednesday.

President Johnson and the Democrats' "soft - on - communism" policies are responsible for renewed "unity" between Russia and China, the Arizona senator charged.

"Drift, deception and defeat" by the Democrats also have led the .NATO alliance to its unity, he said, promising that if elected he will hold . "conclave" to put matters right.

Goldwater was back full-time on the Nov. 3 U.S. election campaign trail Wednesday. But he dropped commitments today to attend the New York funeral of former president Herbert Hoover.

He was met by about 200 at the Philadelphia airport, perhaps 2,000 at West Chester around 3,500 at Upper Derby and by about 7,000 at a night banquet including 3,200 who paid $100 a plate—a fa rly common device of the Republicans who are short of cash this campaign.

"We don't have to be belligerent," Goldwater said of new firmness toward Communists. "We don't have to go to war We just have to stop strengthening them."

Consistently, the senator got his loudest and most sustained applause on the Communist issue, buttressed with his familiar accusations about Democratic party corruption.

Members Made Prison Tour Without Press

MONTREAL (CP) — Two New Democratic members of Parliament began a tour with Vincent de Paul Penitentiary Wednesday after a sharp verbal exchange with Warden Michel Lecorre.

An earlier report said the tour was cancelled but Mr. Lecorre said the MPs, Frank Howard of Skeen and Arnold Peters of Timiskaming, entered the prison to interview prisoners following the exchange.

The MPs left the prison after a visit of several hours.

The warden said about a dozen television cameramen and reporters were in his office at 11 a.m., the time the visit, supposedly a "surprise" affair, was scheduled to begin.

"The MPs had arranged for one television cameraman to accompany them on their tour," said the warden.

"I had instructions that no other press representatives were to enter the prison."

The MPs were making their second visit to the prison in two weeks. They wanted to see for themselves whether prisoners provided information to them during their previous visit had been subject to reprisals.

They also wanted to check reports that a 15-year-old boy had been confined to the maximum security penitentiary on a three-year sentence.

The exchange with Mr. Lecorre concerned newspaper articles quoting A'vin Gunn, a former prisoner, as saying that the guards at St. Vincent de Paul were "brutal, sadistic and homosexual."

Mr. Lecorre said later he had not been advised that the additional press representatives would be on hand for the tour.

He said a tour of the prison for the press had been scheduled for Monday.

Other prison officials said both the press representatives accompanied the two members on their Wednesday tour.

Tentative Cure Found for Baby Disease

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A "tentative cure" for hyaline membrane disease, which kills thousands of premature babies every year, was reported Wednesday.

The new therapy, described to the College of American Pathologists, was originated by Dr. Daniel Stowens of the University of Louisville school of medicine.

Hi said the new therapy has been tried on 28 infants in the last eight months and a dramatic recovery occurred in each within a few hours.

AT THE NEW LIQUOR STORE on Station Street, a Wilson Concrete Products crane is being used to install textured concrete panels made by Beer Precast Concrete of Toronto, one of Wilson's competitors. Wilson's make textured panels now, but did not start in time to sell any to the two jobs now installing them in town.

Construction Roundup

THE TATHAM CO.

Bill Tatham is out west now, shooting ducks. He will return to work Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, and the firm has two jobs that will start as soon as he's back. Meanwhile Tatham's is working on a big job on Lake St., Picton, a $100,000 workshop, garage and office building for Prince Edward County. Walls of the precast and prestressed concrete block with precast columns and prestressed beams to hold the 77-foot-long prestressed concrete roof slabs. The slabs, biggest Wilson's can make, will probably be placed Saturday. Bill Northrop is in charge of the contract.

Last service was put in on Tuesday on the $50,000 sewer and water job in Napanee (up the east side of Highway 41.) Just cleanup work remains to be done on the job. It should take Gordon Ferrill and his men a couple of weeks. Sewer and water work is completed too, in the Glenbrden and Eastgate subdivisions. Roy Scott has crews on the two jobs and have a good start now, on pouring the curbs, and are starting to grade the roads.

SIXPLEXES

Howard Thomson started work on his third (and last) six-plex on Sidney St., about two weeks ago. He hopes to have it closed in by freeze-up and rented by spring. Construction is the same as the others—wood frame to be brick veneered. This will make 11 six-plexes on Sidney St. between Wilson Ave. and West Moira. No more are planned.

STRADWICK'S STORE

Kemp Construction of Hamilton is building a new store for Stradwick's Ltd., on North Front Street, just south of College. The new store will be more than twice the size of Stradwick's Fahey St. location, and have a much better business site. The 35-by-118-foot new concrete block building will have a brick, glass and ceramic front.

Hector Morin is supervisor for Kemp Construction on the job, and on an identical Stradwick's store in Oshawa. He hopes to have the local branch operated by manager Don Holmes, moved in to the new store early in December.

NEW LIQUOR STORE

Wilson Concrete Products' crane was working for a competitor Tuesday at the new liquor store being built by Hugh Murray Construction on Station Street. Wilson's had most of the precast and prestressed work in the building, but Beer Precast of Toronto contracted the mosaic facing plates around the edge of the roof. Rather than bring their own crane from Toronto for the job, Beer hired the one already on the site—owned by Wilson's. Wilson's have been making textured precast concrete panels now, but Toronto firms sold the panels now being installed at the two jobs in Belleville.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER BUILDING

Wilson Concrete Products of Belleville started putting below-core floor slabs in Thanksgiving Day, for the high-load areas of the new Ontario Intelligencer building, and low-load floor areas are being poured now. Steel roof decking is in place on the building. Murray Pre-Con of Toronto is putting the textured-concrete face panels at spots around the walls of the building. The job may be completely closed in before the snow flies.

Abandon Mine To Ravages Of the Sea

BRITANNIA BEACH, B.C. (CP)—Britannia, once the biggest copper producer in the Commonwealth, is being abandoned to the ravages of the sea.

Company officials announced today that the pumps have been pulled from the 5,700-foot level of the main shaft, the below the waters of Howe Sound The sea has already begun to seep into the tunnels.

The mine, 34 miles north of Vancouver, has yielded nearly 1,000,000,000 pounds of pure copper since operations began 67 years ago.

Production stopped Aug. 11 when 300 miners went on strike to back their demands for more pay, a shorter work week and improved job classifications.

When negotiations with the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union (Ind.) became deadlocked, the company, Anaconda (Canada) Limited, announced the mine would be closed.

The company said it lost money last year and the mine was a marginal operation.

Digs up Monster Spuds

How many potatoes in a bushel?

As far as Mr. and Mrs. Albert Branton, 10 Donald St. West, are concerned about 30 spuds would make up the required 60 pounds.

Mr. Brenton recently dug a two pound, one ounce monster spud from his garden and another potato weighing one pound, 15 ounces.

The largest one was 18 inches in circumference and the other 16½ inches around.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Railway employees engaged in the running trades, or maintenance of way as well as railroading telegraphers and station agents, may deduct from their income certain expenses incurred by them for which they will not be reimbursed, by the employer.

In regard to the running trades (men employed on trains) expenses at the away from home terminal are the only ones allowable. These will be allowed as meals and hotel bills at least lay-over before the return trip. Such expenses would be records and lodgings. No other expenses are allowable between his home and the railway yards where he picks up his trains. Many train employees who must leave in the middle of the night will claim the cost of a meal purchased on the way to work. This is not allowable.

Believing telegraphers and station agents who are away from home for various short periods may claim as a deduction the cost of his meals and lodging while away. Should his employer not be able to provide transportation to his new assignment and the employee must provide his own, this cost is also deductible.

Extra gangs of maintenance of way men, as those employed with the railway bridge and building department may claim the cost of their board while living in the boarding cars, supplied by the railway. Such employees have no claim for lodging as it is supplied free by the railways in cars used for this purpose.

The railway labor unions have been sponsors of great assistance to their members in advising as to allowable expenses on their income tax returns. If you are a new railway employee and are in doubt as to what expenses to claim check with your union first before contacting the income tax department.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I am a relieving telegrapher. At times I go to a station 20 miles away. I cannot get railway transportation there and back for the period I work. I use my car and come home each night. Can I claim the car expenses, which are not very high?

ANSWER: Yes.

QUESTION: I am a railway engineer. My home terminal was changed from Hamilton to Toronto. I live in my own home in Hamilton. Can I claim my car expenses from Hamilton to Toronto?

ANSWER: No. Your expenses are those incurred after you report for duty. Expenses are not allowable at the home terminal of your run.

Defrauded Govt. Of $12,939 In Ten Years

TORONTO (CP)—A 66-year-old man who served in both world wars was placed on six months' hard labor two years Wednesday, under suspended sentence, after being convicted of defrauding the federal government of $12,939 during a period of nearly 10 years.

Magistrate Donald Graham ordered Syman Johnston to begin repayment of the money at the rate of $15 a week out of his $90-a-week salary.

Johnston pleaded guilty, saying medical bills and labor expenses for his invalid wife, before her death last year, forced him to desperate measures.

He applied for assistance in 1955 under the Veterans Allowance Act although he was working steadily at the University of Toronto and earning $4,700 a year. The allowance is for veterans not steadily employed and making less than $900 a year. He obtained an allowance of $108 a month which lasted until late last month.

Johnston served as an army captain in the First World War and a sergeant with the RCAF in the second.

Association for Retarded Hears Report of Recent Conference

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Association for Retarded Children held their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening in Merrywood School with president Whitney Pettey presiding.

Ten children are in attendance this year at the school. Routine business was looked after in which the heading Mrs. William Hoey and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, vice-president of the Association were asked to carry out the request from Cordova Mines Home and School to speak at their meeting November 10th.

Reports were given of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children conference held recently in Toronto.

Mrs. Hoey gave a comprehensive report of the conference, covering not only the addresses by research but the talks as well. It has now been established that academic training is quite limited, also that such training should be based on the I.Q. of the child. Those children with a definite limited ability and to those below 30 who are not receptive to the three R's but still trainable socially, in the arts and crafts and other ways.

The behavior of any retarded child depends on the amount of brain damage and the location of the brain the damage occurs. Neuropathways are being developed, connections are being strengthened and learning begins.

DEVELOPMENT OF PERSONALITY

Development of personality does not just happen says Dr. S.J. Keogler, assistant superintendent, The Children's Psychiatric Research Institute, London, Ontario. Mothers play an important role in the personality development of the child, maternal deprivation can have a serious effect on the emotional growth of the child, equally important is over protection. Emotional effects which parents suffer when faced with the diagnosis of a retarded child can also be seen in the developments of the retarded youngster. Lack of stimulation and education within the family setting also takes its toll on child development.

Too many stimuli come to the hyperactive child. These be on not self control and not to be accepted in his neighborhood has damaging effects.

There are now 3,000 registered retarded children in Ontario. The greatest benefit to the children is the awakening of the general public and sympathetic understanding of the problem.

NEW PROGRAM

A new program regarding these schools will be introduced by Bill 191, in January 1965; the success of the new program depends on the understanding of the community. In March 1963 Hon. William Davis announced that the grant would include cost of transportation. In the incoming legislation, the building is the responsibility of the local association, the school will be administered by an educational authority of six members.

Of the six members of an educational authority, two shall be appointed by the local association, the other four by the councils of the municipalities involved.

Grants will be based on a percentage of current cost and the rest of the necessary finance from a tax from the municipalities where the children reside.

NOT CHARITY

This takes the associations out of the realm of charity drives and Mrs. Hoey continued by saying, "The welfare of the children is our deepest concern in the development of this plan".

Further brief reports were given by Mrs. A. E. Toombs and Mrs. M. Austin.

Peru, Economically One Of Healthiest Countries but Socially It Is Very Sick

Peru is a nation where 50 per cent of the arable land is owned by less than two per cent of the population. In this story, Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press, describes the government's hurried efforts to institute a program of land reform.

By PAUL KIDD

LIMA (CP)—At the 11th hour, Peru has begun its journey along the highway of social reform.

The question is: Can the liberal - minded government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry reach the road end of social change before the midnight of violent revolution strikes?

In the words of General Angel Valdivia, who administers the state of Cuzco: "Ayrarian reform can be the answer, but it has to be done quickly."

A brutal statistic probes deeply into the cause of that sickness—four-fifths of the arable land of this rugged, majestic Andean republic are owned by a mere 1.4 per cent of the population.

And the country's 5,000,000 Indians, their feet invariably bare and their stomachs often empty, are getting weary of serfdom.

Sporadically, the landless, Inca-descended Indians manifest their impatience in violent action. Grabbing rocks and machets, they invade the nearest large estate, known as a hacienda.

NOT AL LEEPULSED

Usually, it takes contingents of civil guardsmen and federal police, lobbing tear gas bombs and firing shotguns, to hurl the the Indians back.

Sometimes, they are not repulsed and remain squatting on the land they have seized.

In the mountain-ringed area of Cuzco, once the capital of the great Inca empire more than 100 land invasions have taken place during the last year.

Communist agitation in this region is intense. Some 80,000 Indians have been organized in Red-dominated unions for political action.

Pro-Castro and pro-Chinese elements combined with Peruvian Trotskyites to spark disturbances, and peasants are reported to have been armed with with guns from Bolivia and Cuba.

A leading firebrand is 29-year - old Trotskyite Hugo Blanco who was thrown in jail by the military junta which ruled Peru from July, 1962, to June last year.

LAND TAKEN AWAY

To the Indians, the land seizures do not constitute theft. before the Spanish conquest of 1537, the land was theirs, and they lost it only after decades of vicious battles, followed by centuries of bloody repression.

Today, most of the physical repression is gone, but the bulk of the land belongs neither to the Indians nor to the 5,500,000 cholos, as Peruvians of mixed blood are known.

It is held, instead, by the country's 1,500,000 whites with 7,000 families owning one-third of the land.

On the Pacific coast, one hacienda starts at the sea, climbs over the Andes and slopes down to the pasts beyond.

On the fringe of Lima's city limits, six haciendas average 15 square miles each, with the prosperous owners paying their workers wages of 70 cents for a 13-hour day.

Some hacienda-owners have set up company - like stores where Indians buy at high prices and become indebted. The debts pass down through generations and the workers are bound to the farm like serfs.

SOME ARE SLAVES

Indeed, in the worst instances, Indians are tied like slaves to a hacienda by law; they cannot leave, receive no pay and are granted only a small plot of land to work for themselves.

After working during the day, as Indian must watch the hacienda owners' flock of alpacas, which roam at night. Should he lose an alpaca, he must pay for it with two from his own small herd.

It is from these colo, muddy Andean villages, where people walk in bare feet, that the riches of Peru go down to Lima, where the hacienda-owners build mansions.

But, at last, this feuda, hangover is being smashed.

President Belaunde, after being handicapped by an opposition-controlled Congress for almost a year, has finally got a land reform la won the books through which he plans to re-settle 1,000,000 peasants.

BIG OWNERS HIT

Moving at full speed, he has already expropriated 837,500 acres of land.

Conceived with a thoroughness rare in Latin America, the 248 articles of Peru's land-reform law carefully outline the exact procedure by which the government can expropriate 12,000,000 acres of arable land.

The law exempts from expropriation efficiently run farms and the highly productive sugar and cotton plantations on the coast.

But it hits the largest landowners; the 7,000 families, for example, will have to give up one-third of their land.

Specifying that all expropriated cattle, buildings and equipment be paid for in cash, Belaunde's new agrarian reform provides that the land itself be bought by the government with 18-year to 22-year bonds carrying four to six per cent interest.

ECONOMY BOOMING

The government estimates that the land reform program will cost $308,000,000 and it hopes that the dispossessed hacienda owners will invest most of the money they receive in Peruvian industry.

Three per cent of the republic's annual budget will be set aside for operating funds until the whole land redistribution project is completed, some 20 years from now.

INCA LEGACY — Peru's 5,000,000 Indians are direct descendants of the Incas, a civilization that is still much in evidence in the republic on the Pacific coast of South America. Remains of the Inca empire make Peru a mecca for archeologists and mines first sunk by the Incas are still being worked. (CP Photo)

LAND LUST IN PERU — Peru's 1,500,000 whites own four-fifths of the arable land. The country's 5,000,000 Indians and 5,500,000 cholos, Peruvians of mixed blood, are either landless or work on large white-owned haciendas to which they are tied by debt passed from generation to generation. Indians have resorted to violence in some cases, invading and squatting on large estates and resisting attempts to move them. Here a gathering of Indians organizes a protest demonstration. (CP Photo)

FREE-HAND — Fernando Belaunde Terry became president of Peru in 1963 but for almost a year was hampered by an opposition-controlled Congress. He now has managed to have a land reform law passed and is moving quickly to resettle 1,000,000 peasants on land expropriated from many of the country's big land owners. (CP Photo)

With government officials predicting a record $2,000,000,000 gross national product and a $50,000,000 balance - of - payments surplus at the end of this year, a record $770,000,000 budget will start the social changes on their way.

The soaring budget is almost double that of two years ago when Peru had a $421,000,000 budget out of a gross national product of $3,300,000,000.

Foreign investments in Peru are about $1,200,000,000 while the nation's currency is stable and convertible.

HEAVY INVESTMENT

Peruvian capital has been heavily invested in the republic during the last six years and there has been little flight capital.

Belaunde came to power on a platform of social reform and economic development along the lines of the Alliance for Progress and he is matching his promises with deeds.

The 52-year-old president has initiated legislation to provide low-cost housing for thousands of Peruvians, establish more modern tax-collection methods, provide land and credit reforms and give deserving young students a free education from elementary school through college.

During his first year in the presidency, Belaunde has opened his office one day a week to any Peruvian with a grievance and has a staff to rectify legitimate complaints.

In this reform-hungry nation, such an approach may help steer Peru safely over its crucial 11th hour.

Tomorrow: Canadian - born priest helps Lima's poor.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A number of people stopped and admired the handsome drake and hen mallards exhibited by the Belleville Fish and Game Club at the Kiwanis Outdoors Sports Show recently.

If the beautiful birds could duck-talk (and they do communicate) they could tell you quite a story.. And in the telling they might make Fish and Game Director George Woodhouse blush with mare or less pride.

"Mike," the big drake you saw strutting around the pen keeping an eye on his greenhead galaxy, would tell you he had duckfolk in such faraway places as Egypt, Central Asia and other hunting outposts of the world.

And he'd say that the heavyweights of the clan are raised in these parts, some weighing four pounds four ounces. His heaviest American cousins seldom go over the three pounds ten ounces weight.

"Give us another three years," Mike said in an imaginary interview, "and we'll tip the scales at five pounds, fighting weight."

"We are called 'greenheads'," Mike said, "but actually that is a misnomer. When we are old enough to go look for a job our colors are a brownish-black, with no maple leafs attached."

"And," Mike added, burying his beak in a tuft of under-belly plumage, "we carry around with us 12,000 feathers by actual count. That's four times as many as that barnyard freak, the rooster, can boast."

"We mallards," confided Mike, "are a proud branch of the duckdom tree. In the recent Wildfowl Olympics, the redlegs took second place in the 2,000-mile aerial marathon to the canvasbacks."

"Actually," he went on, "the redleg is nothing but a mallard drake whose original ancestor was born with colored legs. He can flit along the skyways at 60 miles per hour, some ten miles slower than the canvasback jet type."

"In the Wildfowl Marathon over a 2,000-mile track, Joe Canvasbacks' team and the mallards flew the distance non-stop at altitudes ranging between 200 and 2,000 feet. We didn't stop for duck soup nor did we provide any for trigger-happy humans."

"And don't let anybody kid you into believing that these air force prechion flyboys were the first to perform what they call aerial acrobatics. Shucks, our forebears were doing these stunts a century before Orville Wright lifted his box-kite off the ground."

Mike was right. The mallard can perform amazing tricks while doing his flying exercises. George Woodhouse tells me it can fly sidewise, upside down and what not while keeping its head perfectly level.

"It's a wonder the bird does not twist its neck off its body performing almost unbelievable acrobatics," he says.

In his lovelife the mallard drake is the Radolph Valentino of the feathered webfoots. He will mate with anything that has feathers and swims. But as a family duck he is as loyal as they come, after he has been hen-broken.

He will chase the beauty of his choice for hours until she is convinced of his sincerity. She leads him a merry chase, then after deciding he's her drake, she turns the tables.

With wings whirring and flapping she drives the other quitters away from her choice. She can outfly him—and does so—driving him into an isolated region.

She flies directly above him until he is forced down then she goes female and nestles against him. They seal the marital deal by rubbing beaks—and he is hooked. Then the mating takes place and Mr. and Mrs. Greenhead go house-hunting.

Usually she is a prolific family gal. One hen was known to have laid 29 eggs. The young mother covers her eggs with down plucked from her breast which makes for perfect insulation. Twenty-six days later the new family is peeping for food.

"They were so busy trying for goals they forgot to play their positions."

That was the explanation offered by coach Billy Reay for the second - period disaster that caused his goal - hungry Chicago Black Hawks to blow a three-goal lead and then settle for a 5-5 tie with Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night.

Montreal stormed back from a 3-0 deficit with five goals in the middle frame and only Chico Maki's marker midway through the finale salvaged a tie for the Hawks.

The victory, before 12,921 Forum fans, moved the Canadiens into solo possession of first place in the National Hockey League with six points. The Hawks climbed into a tie with Toronto for second at five points.

Detroit nipped New York 1-0 on Norm Ullman's goal in the third period in the only other game played.

Boston Bruins play host to Toronto Maple Leafs tonight in a single contest.

Ralph Backstrom, who wears a Canadiens sweater this season apparently only because of coach Toe Blake's patience, paced the Montreal rally with his first and second goals of the season. John Ferguson, Jacques Laperriere and Gilles Tremblay provided the other markers.

HULL SCORES SECOND

Chicago's ill - fated attempt to add to their lead in the second period produced only one goal, Bobby Hull's second of the season.

A disallowed Canadiens goal following the opening faceoff resulted in a letdown that saw the Hawks jump three unanswered goals past Charlie Hodge in the first period. The questioned goal was a blistering shot by Yvan Cournoyer that appeared to rebound out of the net.

"That one caught the inside of the net or I should have glasses," Blake said afterward. "It upset my players."

Backstrom ignited the second period Montreal comeback at 1:33 while Stan Mikita was off and during the 18th — minute capped the rally with his second as the Habs took a 5-4 lead.

Ferguson scored on a hard backhander that caught Chicago goalie Denis DeJordy unaware. Hull tallied three minutes later and the Hawks led 4-3.

SCORES ON OWN NET

But Hawks defenceman Wayne Hillman scored accidentally on his own team as Tremblay's shot bounced in off his stick. Laperriere produced the equalizer at 18:13 and eight seconds later backstrom struck for the go-ahead goal.

Maki's tie - maker came at 21:01 of the final frame as he took a "lead pass" from Fred Stanfield and broke in behind two Canadiens rearguards to beat Hodge with a low trickler that rolled over the goalie's pads.

Ullman's goal in New York, a deflection of Doug Barkley's 50-footer drive, broke up a stirring duel between netminders Roger Crozier of Detroit and Marcel Paille of Detroit.

Paille was especially impressive, coming back after taking 12 stitches to close a cut suffered when he was gashed by Gordie Howe's skate. Paille had 36 saves while Crozier posted 18 stops for his first shutout of the season.

Crozier came up with some beautiful saves, particularly during the last 1:36 of the game when Barkley was penalized and the Rangers pulled Paille for an extra attacker and a two-man advantage.

Koufax, Chance Rate Highest

Three Yankees On All-Star Team

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Yankees placed the most players on the all-star team annual major league baseball all-star team. But two Los Angeles pitchers collected the most votes.

The Yankees to make it are outfielder Mickey Mantle, catcher Elston Howard and second baseman Bobby Richardson. Most likely to join them are Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers and Dean Chance of Los Angeles Angels.

Koufax, winner of 19 games before he was sidelined for the season by a sore arm in early August, polled 77 votes as the outstanding lefthander in the balloting by 85 baseball writers. Chance, a 20-game winner for the Angels, drew 71 as the top righthander.

Others named were first baseman Bill White of the National Series champion St. Louis Cardinals, third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, shortstop Zoilo Versalles of the Angels and outfielders Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants and National League batting champion Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates.

NATIONAL LEADS

The voting was based on regular season performances. In all, six National Leaguers and four American League players were selected for the first team.

The National League, however, piled up the votes for the second team to the American League's three.

Those chosen were right handed pitcher Juan Marichal and first baseman Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco, outfielder Hank Aaron and catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee Braves, second baseman Ron Hunt of New York Mets, third baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis, shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati, outfielders Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins, Johnny Callison of Philadelphia Phillies and left handed pitcher Gary Peters of Chicago White Sox.

Clemente, who batted .330, was third in the balloting with 61 votes. He was followed by Robinson with 59, Howard 54, Mays 54 and Mantle 51. Oliva, the AL's batting leader with .323, was named on 30 ballots.

NOT QUITTING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver wants to run. For two more years, says his wife, Wendy. That could take him to the British Empire Games, where he hopes to capture a gold medal. The Sun quotes Mrs. Jerome in an interview in Tokyo.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Times Wednesday listed six men who it says have applied for the general manager's job with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

The newspaper said the favored contender is Rogers Leshew, now an assistant coach and minor football co-ordinator with the club.

Others included head coach Bobby Dobbs; Wayne Robinson, former coach of British Columbia Lions and now an assistant with Iowa (University) Hawkeyes; Don Easterman, former Stampeder quarterback, Lynn Bottoms, former Stampeder defensive halfback; and Joe Restic, assistant coach with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Nationals Tie Memphis

WINNIPEG (CP)—Gary Aldcorn scored with 30 seconds remaining in the game Wednesday night to earn Canada's national hockey team a 3-3 tie with Memphis Wings.

A crowd of about 1,000 watched Nationals take three of a possible four points in the two-game series against the Central Professional League club. Nationals won 3-1 Tuesday night.

The team which will represent Canada in the world championships March 4-14 at Tampere, Finland, now has an exhibition record of 3-1-1.

Bruce Kidd Quits Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Distance runner Bruce Kidd says he has retired temporarily from competitive racing—at least until he recovers the desire to run.

Kidd, a fourth-year political science student at the University of Toronto, made his announcement in a "news letter" Wednesday in The Varsity, the university's student newspaper.

It was one of a series of articles he has written for Canadian University Press from Tokyo, where he has been competing in the Olympics.

"I don't know how long I'll stay out, for running has almost become part of my metabolism, but it'll be until I get back the desire to run for goals," he wrote. "I hope I get that desire back."

Kidd, rated one of Canada's best chances for an Olympic medal, failed to show well in either the 5,000- or 10,000-metre runs.

"Post-mortems of my disappointing performances can never be precise. You may think it strange that a big ham like me should get stage fright before the Games.

"Maybe my confidence suffered for the lack of any good competition I experienced this summer. And in the moment of truth of my second race, the 5,000 metres, I just couldn't hurt myself to try to win.

"The mental disappointment comes from the ever-present realization that, after working harder his summer than ever before, I'm in the best physical shape of my life. Could I be overtrained?"

In That Judo Final

Canadian Surprised Japanese

TOKYO (CP) — Isao Inokuma gave Japan its third gold medal in judo today at the Olympic Games but he was forced to go all out to beat Doug Rogers of Canada, who took the silver medal.

With Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako among the 18,000 fans looking on, the surprising Canadian gave Japan's top amateur judo performer the battle of his life.

The silver medal he won was Canada's fourth medal of the games, making the total one the two biggest ever struggled gold, two silver and one bronze with each other but neither Inokuma went the limit of 15 could gain an advantage.

It was an epic climax to the first judo program in the history of the Olympic Games, made all the more intense the fact that the two antagonists were clearly the cream of the crop.

Inokuma had no trouble what ever reaching the finals and Rogers very little.

It was the third gold medal for the host country in judo, the others having been won in the middleweight and lightweight classes.

minutes in the final match to gain the decision over Rogers, a six-foot four-inch, 265-pound factory worker from Toronto.

The only heave of the match came at 8.50 when the Japanese caught Rogers with a shoulder throw. But Rita came off the mat and did not count.

HAD SLIGHT EDGE

Up to this point Inokuma appeared to have an edge though it was slight. For the last six minutes of the time-limit bout

Canadian Wins Silver Medal In Judo

Dramatic Surprise

By JACK SULIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Doug Rogers, a sweeping young Canadian who studied judo in Japan, showed today how well he has learned his lessons, capturing the silver medal in the heavy weight class in one of the most dramatic surprises of the Olympic Games.

Making his way impressively through the preliminary round and the semi-finals of the one-day competition, Rogers lost out in the final to Isao Inokuma of Japan.

Nevertheless, the Japanese master of the sport had the fight of his life. There wasn't a takedown in the entire 15-minute match.

Inokuma got the decision largely on his slight superiority in the first eight or nine minutes. A much more experienced athlete than Rogers, he always seemed to be perfectly poised whereas the Canadian sometimes looked wary and was nearly dropped once or twice.

BATTLED EVENLY

In the last few minutes they battled on even terms before 15,000 spectators in the packed Nippon Budokan Hall, including Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako and the Canadian's father, Rev. Albert Rogers of Vancouver.

Inokuma's victory gave Japan all three judo medals contested to date. The fourth and last, in the open class, is up for grabs Friday but Canada will not be represented.

Competitors may participate in only one judo class and Rogers, a 22-year-old native of Truro, N.S., was the only Canadian taking part in the sport at the Olympics.

His silver medal brought Canada's total of medals to four. Oarsmen George Hungerford of Vancouver and Roger Jackson of Toronto won the coxless pairs for the only Canadian gold medal and, on the running track, Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., took the silver medal in the 800 metres and Harry Jerome of Vancouver the bronze medal in the 100.

This is Canada's second best performance at the Olympics since the Second World War, topped only by the haul of two golds, one silver and three bronzes at Melbourne in 1956.

HAD BIG DAY

Elsewhere on the Olympic fronts, it was a big day for Germany and Russia.

The Germans picked up two gold medals, one silver and one bronze in canoeing and the gold medal in the equestrian team dressage event and as at Rome in 1960, stand a strong third behind the two giants, the United States and Russia, in terms of total medals.

The two German paddling victories came in the Canadian singles by Jurgen Eschert and the women's kayak doubles by Roswitha Esser and Annemarie Zimmermann.

Russia won three of the seven gold medals in canoeing and Sweden picked up two gold. Russia's Ludmila Khvedosiuk took the women's kayak singles, Andrey Khimich and Stepan Oschepov captured the Canadian doubles and a Russian quartet took the kayak fours.

Sweden's 20-year-old Rolf Peterson dethroned defending champion Eric Hansen of Denmark in the kayak singles. Sven-Olof Lindfelius and Gunnar Utterberg gave Sweden a second gold medal when they successfully defended their title in the kayak pairs.

Canada got two boats into the finals and both came seventh. Paul Stahl of Montreal in the Canadian singles and Ander Elbert and Fred Heese, also of Montreal, in the Canadian pairs.

A surprise feature of the canoeing competition was the unprecedented showing of women from the United States. While the U.S. men were out of the running, as usual, the combination of 15-year-old Francine Fox and 33-year-old Floriane Perrier came second in the kayak pairs behind the German tandem of Esser and Zimmermann, and pretty Marcia Jones was third in the kayak singles, barely nosed out by Hilde Lauer of Romania.

Italy emerged as the major cycling power for the second st.aight Olympics although its three gold medals won in Tokyo were two less than in Rome four years ago.

Mario Zanin, a 24-year-old mechanic, won Italy's third gold medal in a breathtaking finish against Kjell Akerstrom Rodian of Denmark in the 121 mile race. The Italian's margin of victory was just 1-30th of a second. The bronze went to Walter Godefroot of Belgium.

Zanin was timed over the gruelling course in four hours, 39 minutes, 51.63 seconds.

Belgium, Germany, Czechoslovakia and The Netherlands each won a gold medal in the seven-event cycling program.

The Russians, badly beaten in the track and field competition, apparently were headed for another upset in gymnastics in which four years ago they won 16 gold medals.

With the completion of nine of the 14 gymnastics championships the Russians had two gold medals.

And their second gold today came through a fluke when Czechoslovakia's newly - crowned gymnastics queen, Vera Caslavska, fell in the women's uneven bars after leading the competition. Russia's Polina Astakhova was placed first and the Czech fifth.

Franco Menichelli of Italy won the gold in the men's floor exercises, Miroslav Cerar of Yugoslavia took the men's pommel horse, Takuji Hayata of Japan captured the men's rings and Miss Caslavska grabbed her second gold medal in the women's long horse vault.

In all, Russia picked up four of the 15 gold medals awarded today, to move within 11 of the United States with one full day of competition left. The U.S. had a 34-23 lead, but in the over-all medal standing it was much closer—36-17.

Russian athletes won 12 medals over-all in the 12th day of competition while the U.S. picked up only a silver and a bronze in the canoeing.

Canada 14th In Basketball

TOKYO (CP) — Canada finished 14th in the 18-country Olympic basketball tournament, losing a squeaker 68-65 to Hungary today in a playoff to decide 13th and 14th places.

The determined Canadian team, which trailed 37-28 at half time, tried desperately to tie the score in the second half and closed the margin to two points. But the Hungarians, who grabbed most of the rebounds, increased their margin to five points in the last minute.

By GORDIE HOWE

Chicago Black Hawks had the best power play in the National Hockey League last season. They scored 30 goals while they had a one man advantage.

Seven times they held a two man advantage and scored once.

Getting possession and maintaining control of the puck is all-important on the power play. I think Chicago's success on it was a combination of several things.

When you have Stan Mikita who is a fine puck carrier and Bobby Hull, one of the better puck carriers around, you also have Pierre Pilote, who can move the puck real well, you automatically have an edge.

Teams have their set patterns on power plays. Detroit counts on shooting the puck in as a rule and hustling after it. If things are going bad on a power play you'll find you have more tendency to shoot it in and go work for it. Because you have the advantage of the odd man.

Toronto is strictly hustle. If you're working hard enough you should gain possession. Montreal has used a system of its own in the past.

If the puck was being carried down the ice, the Montreal right winger went like crazy. The right defenceman went like mad. Then the inside man would pull up, which had a tendency to draw in the defence.

Then they just lobbed the puck over to that back man who was coming like crazy. That's how they got possession in your end.

Deadline Set For Juveniles

An open practice for players wishing to play juvenile hockey in the B.M.H.A. this year has been called for Tuesday, October 27, it was announced this week.

The practice will be held from 10.00 to 11.00 p.m. at Memorial Arena next Tuesday and any boys wishing to play are asked to turn out.

Registration for the juvenile division has been small to date and it was announced that registrations will not be accepted after October 27.

Team rosters and schedules have been drawn up for the B.M.H.A.'s bykes, squirt, peewee, bantam and midget divisions but not for the juvenile, due to the small registration.

League schedules are slated to open next week.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three newcomers have joined the National Hockey League's big seven scoring leaders in a crowded 11-way tie for fourth place.

Wednesday night's action had little effect on the upper echelon of the point leaders, although 10 goals were scored at Montreal.

Kent Douglas of Toronto retained his lead at eight points while Chicago's Stan Mikita crept closer, picking up an assist for a total of seven points. Toronto's Red Kelly, idle along with Douglas, was in third place with five points.

But there's a traffic jam at the next rung with 11 players hooked at four points. The group was enlarged by the addition of Montreal's Claude Provost and Chicago's Chico Maki and Doug Robinson, who all earned a point.

The leaders:

Douglas, Toronto	1	7	8
Mikita, Chicago	1	6	7
Kelly, Toronto	3	2	5

Sport Snapshots

By JACK BRAUCHMANN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Skrien, coach of British Columbia Lions, was getting ready to take his Western Football Conference leaders to Edmonton for the other day for a game against the fourth-place Eskimos.

The talk got around to Willie Fleming—and the suggestion that the flashy halfback seemed to have lost his sparkle.

Skrien insisted he hadn't.

"Fans remember mostly Willie's spectacular runs and catches, but the team hasn't needed that kind of playing this year.

"Last year, we were always fed one of the big play and Fleming was usually the guy who provided it. But our offensive strength this season doesn't require that we score so many touchdowns."

The explanation sounded reasonable — especially when you consider that Lions have lost only one game this season—but apparently Fleming likes to make his own case, and with action instead of words.

So, against Edmonton last Saturday, he carried the ball 10 times for 186 yards and scored a couple of touchdowns. Including a 109-yard romp. It broke the Western record of 100 yards set by Tom Casey of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1952 and tied the Canadian Football League set last season by George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes.

LOAD FOR WILLIE

It's true that Eskimos' defence leaves something to be desired—the club has given up 416 points this season — but Fleming's effort should be accepted as evidence that he hasn't lost any of his explosive power.

After all, Edmonton gives his mosh attention to Fleming—as any club in the league. And, as Eskimos coach Nell Armstrong later said, "every club in the league looks for Fleming because he is a constant threat."

In 1963, Fleming averaged better than nine yards a carry, scored 12 touchdowns and caught 23 of 32 passes thrown to him for an average 22.8 yards a catch.

If his production is something spectacular this year, his coach feels he makes up for it in other ways.

The pressure on Fleming has taken some of the load off quarterback Joe Kapp and rookie fullback Bob Swift Skrien says. If they double up on Fleming, someone else is free.

"Willie has done everything we've asked him to do this year."

As for the patented homerun pitch from Kapp to Fleming down the sidelines, Skrien says the team has "needed it only once this year."

USED SPARINGLY

"It's not a good bread-and-butter play. It only has a chance of success if we have been able to draw our opponents' defensive secondary in to stop the short gains. If we used the play often, it would lose its effectiveness."

While other clubs have been concentrating on the 185-pound Will o' the Wisp, Swift has become a sensation. The 20-year-old fullback has scored 10 touchdowns, and Skrien says a lot of his success results from the attention paid to Fleming.

Before the Edmonton game, Fleming's longest run had been 34 yards, far short of the 96-yard run he made in a 1963 game. But now that he has run 100 yards from scrimmage—the maximum possible—the critics may realize that in coming seasons there won't be much chance of an encore to match that.

And there are a few coaches around who'd like to have a halfback with a 6.3-yards-per-carry rushing average, especially one who, some say, has lost his touch.

Well-Known Fight Promoter

Jack 'Deacon' Allen Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Jack (Deacon) Allen, 71, a figit promoter for more than half a century, died suddenly Wednesday night after an apparent heart attack.

A native of San Francisco, few were clear when he arrived on the Toronto scene but some of the fight mob recalled that he had promoted a Jack Johnson fight as early as 1912.

He managed many a fighter but some of the better ones got away from him. He once handled Jimmy McLarnin who later became world welterweight champion. His last fighter was George Chuvalo.

Allen and Chuvalo parted company two years ago. Since then the Deacon confined his fistic operations to a little, second-floor gym over a cigar shop and billiards parlor on west-end Queen Street.

Next to boxing, he loved horse-racing and good food. He died on his way home to his bachelor quarters after working at Woodbine race track where he was employed as a member of the public relations staff.

When firemen were called to revive him after he had collapsed in the foyer of his apartment house, they found under his arm a barbecued chicken and a copy of Racing Form. Only an hour earlier he had invited Jim Vipond, Toronto Globe and Mail sports editor, to share dinner with him.

The Deacon won his name because of his saintly mien. One thing he was always reticent about was his age. His driver's licence gave his birth date as Jan. 26, 1893, but friends said he was at least 75.

EATS HEARTILY

The duck-billed platypus eats at least half its own body's weight each night, including up to 1,200 earthworms and 40 fresh-water crayfish.

SERVICE VOLUNTEERS

Since 1961, more than 110,000 U.S. citizens have volunteered for service in the Peace Corps and more than 10,000 have been accepted.

Represents Speed Not Style

TOKYO (AP)—Olympic great Jesse Owens believes American sprinter Bob Hayes, the 1964 100-metre champion, represents speed but not style.

"He's like a freight train barreling downhill without brakes," Owens said. "But then you can't argue with success because, from the standpoint of speed, he's the greatest.

"When Hayes runs you can see tightness and straightness, but you also can see power."

Owens, who won the 100- and 200-metre sprints and the broad jump at the 1936 Berlin Olympics, is in Tokyo covering the Olympics for several U.S. newspapers.

His Olympic broad jump record of 26 feet, 3¼ inches remained unchallenged until Ralph Boston of the United States broke it at the 1960 Rome Olympics with a leap of 26 feet, 7¾ inches.

Morrow won the 100 metres in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, Sime was second to Armin Hary of Germany in 1960 at Rome.

County Issues Injunction

Braves Vote Move To Atlanta

NEW YORK (AP)—National League club owners meet today to consider the transfer of the Milwaukee franchise to Atlanta for 1965 but a bare knuckle fight between the Braves and Milwaukee officials raises speculation as to what action—if any—the owners would take.

The Braves' board of directors voted Wednesday to move the team—for the second time in 11 years—and the owners were expected to approve the shift.

But several hours after the club's decision to quit Milwaukee was announced, at contempory injunction was obtained by Milwaukee County officials restraining the Braves from moving, or from seeking permission to move.

Whether the unprecedented legal manoeuvre would serve to block the club owners' action at today's special meeting could not be determined. Legal papers apparently would have to be served here prior to the meeting.

NOT INFORMED

League president Warren Giles said Wednesday night he had not been informed of the injunction and planned to go ahead with the meeting. He would seek legal counsel, he said, if it became necessary.

Milwaukee's legal counterpunch followed a 1240-6 vote by the Braves' directors, meeting in Chicago, to shift the club.

Braves representatives were ordered by circuit Judge Roopers apparently would have to Dreschler to appear next Tuesday to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

Until the legal bombshell was dropped it appeared certain that the owners would approve the shift. Approval by six of the other nine clubs was needed and no serious opposition was foreseen.

The Amazing Ethiopian

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP) — The five-minute mile isn't much.

But 26 five-minute miles, plus a lap around the stadium for good measure, is.

That's what 32 - year - old Abebe Bikila, the Ethiopian army sergeant, did Wednesday in the marathon. And he did it with his shoes on.

Abebe also won the marathon in Rome in 1960, running barefooted, but his time there didn't compare with the 2 hours, 12 minutes, 11.2 seconds he ran in Tokyo on a cloudy, cool day along a road lined with trees and Japanese.

Abebe thus became the first man ever to win the marathon twice, and ran the 26 miles, 385 yards faster than any human ever had before.

He did it with a steady plodding stride, never looking back, never changing expression, only occasionally wiping the sweat from his moustache with the back of his hand.

MILLIONS WATCHED

Millions watched him every step of the way over the Japanese television systems which use equipment that makes the stuff in the United States look like the original used by Thomas Alva Edison.

Abebe plodded into the stadium, blocks ahead of his nearest pursuers, and trotted once around. He raised his arms to break the tape, and then he ran over to the infield grass and flopped on his back and did some bicycle-like exercises with his legs in the air.

Then he faced the crowd, waved three times and bowed.

He wasn't even breathing hard.

The next fellow into the stadium was Kochiki Tsuburar of the home team, but he was staggering when he burst into view. Only steps behind him was a big blonde Englishman, Ben Heatley, who caught the Japanese on the home stretch and beat him home.

SAVED THE BRONZE

The Japanese runner still saved the bronze medal—and that meant the Rising Sun flag was going to go up in the national stadium for the only time in these Olympics.

As each man made his appearance the applause seemed to grow.

"Moh sukoshi. moh sukoshi," shouted the Japanese, "A little more, a little more," and then it was over the line.

An hour later they were still plodding across. Some were gathered up in blankets and carried off to the dressing room.

Meanwhile, under the grandstand, Abebe was talking to the press, his replies sometimes passing through three interpreters—from Ethiopian to French to English to Japanese.

He ran in shoes, he explained, because he always does. He would have used shoes in Rome but they didn't fit.

Body Votes To Accept E. Germans

TOKYO (AP) — The International Amateur Athletic Federation, controlling body for amateur track and field, voted today to accept East Germany as a separate team.

Hitherto in Olympic competition since the Second World War, the two German teams have been combined.

Previously the East Germans had applied to the Olympic committee for separate recognition.

The approval of the track feceration was granted by a vote of 129 to 96 over the strong objection of the West Germans.

ROBOT FLEA

MOSCOW (AP)—A robot flea half-an-inch long and wearing six shoes has been devised by engineer Alexander Sysoliatin, the newspaper Evening Moscow reports. The paper said the creature's body mechanism is capable of making 13 leaps—and that it "jumped, jumped and disappeared like a needle in a pile of hay."

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Highland Girl, a fleet three-year-old filly that has been out against some of the best sidewheelers in Ontario all summer, provided her ability to perform over any kind of track when she captured the second division of the featured City of London pace at the Western Fair Wednesday night.

She was clocked in a rapid 2:11 4-5 on an extremely sloppy track to post her seventh win in 26 starts this year.

The first division of the London Pace went to Admiral Byrd but he could do no better than 2:14 4-5 for the mile.

Highland Girl returned $3.40 to win while Admiral Byrd, a three-year-old gelding, was also installed as favorite and paid an even $3.00.

MONEY FOR SCHOOLS

LONDON (AP)—An independent survey reports at least $1,400,000,000 is needed to replace unsanitary and inadequate school buildings in England and Wales. The available monies budgeted for such replacements through 1967 is $224,000,000.

Two-Dollar Ticket Worth $171,084,60

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The twin double at Yonkers Raceway Wednesday night was worth a near - record $171,084.60 to the unidentified holder of the one $2 ticket sold on the winning 2-7-6-7 combination.

The biggest twin double pay-off on record was $172,726.80 for a $2 ticket on the 4-1-8-8 combination at Roosevelt Raceway last Sept. 10. Yonkers' biggest previous was a $55,430.70 payoff last June 1. The combination was 4-2-5-5.

Winner of the sixth race Wednesday night at Yonkers was Carolina Belle $45.80. Yankee Frisco, winner of the seventh race, paid the same amount for a win bet. Hilldian took the eighth race and paid $25.20. Dr. Lindsay won by a nose in a photo finish in the ninth and final race and paid $11.80.

The Indians received a reported $75,000 plus two players to be named at a later date. There were reports that Rod Daley, a left-handed pitcher, will be the other player to go to the Indians.

Young Judo Winner Is Happy Man

TOKYO (AP) — Doug Rogers, a young Canadian who had hoped for a bronze medal in judo but ended up with a silver, is a happy man today.

"At first I hoped for a bronze medal," said Rogers. "But after taking the semi-finals, I set my sights for the silver, and when I made the finals, naturally I thought of a gold medal."

"A slight superiority" made the difference, his coach, Frank Hatashita, said, "Isao's slight superiority."

Rogers, 23, a native of Truro, N.S., said the Japanese gold medallist, Isao Inokuma, deserved the win.

"I thought he would get the decision," said Rogers. "He has had twice as much experience as I have. I was glad to go the full 15 minutes."

This was the first final match to go the full 15 minutes and this was the strategy of coach Hatashita.

"We hoped to go for the decision, using Doug's weight advantage to wear Inokuma down," said the coach.

Betsy Drake Now Making First Movie in Six Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I woke up one morning and decided I wanted to go back to work," says Betsy Drake, explaining why she is making her first movie in six years.

Betsy is the cello voiced beauty who made a "star" when she appeared opposite Cary Grant in Every Girl should be Married. The movie title proved prophetic and in 1949 she became Mrs. Cary Grant. Her acting career was intermittent after her marriage; then, six years ago, she quit entirely.

"My marriage was breaking up, and that consumed all my energies," she said. "And I was tired of what went with acting in Hollywood. The work itself I loved. But everything that surrounded the business of acting seemed to be sheer idiocy."

Four years passed before she filed for divorce from Grant—"I still love him," she explained at the time. After another two years she decided to return to films. She talked to George Chasen, Cary's longtime friend and agent, who recommended an agent for her.

TALKS OF ACTIVITIES

The first job turned out to be Clarence, the Cross-Eyed Lion with Marshall Thompson. After finishing her role, she excited on her activities over the last six years.

"I suppose one of the things that made me want to go back to acting is the work I have been doing at the neuro - psychiatric clinic at UCLA," she said. "I have been conducting classes in which the patients act out their hostilities instead of just getting about them.

"What I do is assume the role of villain in the dramas, rather than subjecting the doctors and nurses to that position. I take the part of mothers, fathers, ministers, and others with whom the patients have hostilities. Oh, we have some pretty wild sessions some days . . . .

"If I do some more acting in films or television, I would want to do comedy. I've always felt more comfortable in comedy."

Then she does intend to marry again?

"Of course," she replied.

Raymond Massey Feels Strongly About Politics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Raymond Massey, who plays kindly, dedicated Dr. Gillespie in NBC's Dr. Kildare series, recently has been appearing on television as Raymond Massey, American citizen, in an earnest pitch for funds to support the candidacy of his chosen candidate for the U.S. presidency in next month's election.

The filmed appeal, seen at the end of several paid broadcasts on behalf of the Goldwater-Miller Republican ticket has drawn a spate of mail. The Canadian-born Massey estimated that the mail has been running at a rate of about five disapproving letters to four approving.

"Some of it is hysterical and abusive, but some of it is intelligent and reasonable," he said. "I am not sorry I did it. I was appearing as an individual, and I dislike the idea that just because a man is an actor, he is, in a sense, disenfranchised."

DISCUSS ROLE

This led Massey to a discussion of television's way of identifying a performer with the part he plays week in and out and, in Massey's case, year in and out.

"I cannot imagine that this identification is important," he said. "I have an objective view of myself as an actor and I chose to believe that the public can differentiate between me as an individual and the part I play."

Massey noted that while many performers openly ally themselves with one or another political party, others are careful to present a neutral face to the world.

"I think many of them are scared—not of the effect it will have on the public, but about how the producers of their shows feel," he said. "I feel strongly about politics and some years ago I campaigned for Eisenhower."

LOREN & MASTROIANNI

For the first time since each achieved international stardom, Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni are teamed, in Joseph E. Levine's "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," now on its fourth big day at the Park Theatre, through Embassy Pictures release. The romantic comedy, in color and wide screen, was directed by Vittorio De Sica.

The Academy Award winning scenes ("Two Women") and the handsome star of "Divorce — Italian Style" and Fellini's "8½" last appeared together eight years ago in "Too Bad She's Bad."

Two of the world's top performers, Loren & Mastroianni are considered the hottest combination on the screen. Early in cinema history John Gilbert and Greta Garbo ignited flames aroimd the world. But not since Clark Gable and Jean Harlow fanned that flame has a love-team so exciting tempted moviegoers and caused so much breathless anticipation. Complete shows 7:00 and 9:20 p.m.

BUILDING LOTS

We have the greatest variety of lots in the Quinte area. Waterfront, wooded, or cleared lots available in city and rural areas. As low as $500.00 with low monthly payments.

FUTURE REWARDS FOR TODAY'S HOMEBUYER

Those who purchased homes let us say in the early 50's had to pay $70.00 — $80.00 monthly to carry their mortgage including taxes. Today payments are closer to $100.00 monthly. Rental accommodation is likewise higher. Next year, 1965, you will protect his investment if you buy now for only $70.00 — $80.00. The same trend is happening in the rental cycle. In all likelihood those who purchase today's new homes will find they will pay for the next 10 or 20 years, while others will suffer the continuous increases in payments for rent. Why not protect your future by buying now for the next 20 years. Buy now — not any one of our many, many new or be sale house — remember some 1973 taxes could reach $150.00 monthly.

Self-Realization Sole Aim of Revolution

KINGSTON (CP)—Dr. A. R. M. Lower, retired professor of history at Queen's University, said here today the sole aim of the "revolution" in Quebec is "self-realization."

In an address at International House on the Queen's campus, Dr. Lower compared "the loose background of English Canadians with the heritage of French Canadians which goes back to little handfuls of progenitors" who came here between 1660 and 1690.

"The result," said Dr. Lower, "is that every French Canadian is the same French Canadian. They look alike and they are intensely aware they are people."

In contrast, he said, English Canadians have come from almost every corner of the globe in recent times and this leaves them no sense of belonging to a group as the French Canadians have.

"The French and English will never unite," he said. "Both are extremely proud and realist ant cultures."

Woman Freed on Murder Count

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Iva Osborne, 57, of nearby Trout Creek, was acquitted Wednesday by an Ontario Supreme Court jury of a charge of non-capital murder in the stabbing death of her husband, Robert, 63.

Mrs. Osborne testified that when she and her husband returned from a drinking session, he had been in an argumentative mood.

She said that after leaving the living-room of their home her husband continued to nag her. She said that when she returned from the kitchen with a knife in her hand, her husband lunged at her.

HELSINKI (CP) — The Finnish government has accepted Canada's offer to take part in a meeting at Ottawa early next month to discuss United Nations peacekeeping activities and other questions.

Khrushchev Ouster Brings Unrest in East European Communist Party Ranks

BERLIN (AP) — Unrest is spreading in East European Communist parties over Wednesday to have been disrupted by unruly demonstrations.

Communist organizations rarely admit their views are anything but unanimous.

Information Bureau West, an unofficial Western intelligence agency, said its East German sources reported visible unrest over last Thursday's fall of Khrushchev among the middle and lower ranks of the Communist party.

It said there had been an unprecedented flood of questions at seminars and several had to be broken off because the discussion leaders lost control of the meetings.

Walter Ulbricht, the East German leader, has said nothing publicly.

The East German central committee Sunday said that Khrushchev's ouster has triggered deep emotions among our party and people." The East German party was among the first in eastern Europe to say a kind word for the deposed Khrushchev.

Elsewhere in eastern Europe, the Polish, Hungarian and Czechoslovak parties have openly praised Khrushchev.

Dismay and resentment were expressed by European Communist leaders after Pravda, without actually naming Khrushchev, accused him of "hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions . . . bragging and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience."

The new Soviet leaders, Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, have tried to reassure the restless Communist parties abroad. Both pledged at ceremonies Monday welcoming the three Soviet cosmonauts to continue policies laid down by Khrushchev.

Those policies let up on the pressure Khrushchev put on Soviet Stalin's day, allowing the various Communist states a little more freedom to act on their own.

PRAISES KHRUSHCHEV

In the Communist bloc, Premier Janos Kadar of Hungary, for example, praised Khrushchev for his understanding merits in the fight against the Stalinist personality cult and in the maintenance of world peace."

East Germany's politburo expressed confidence in the new Soviet leaders but said, "it is known that Comrade Khrushchev has also made much in carrying out the Marxist-Leninist policy."

Luigi Longo, chief of Italian Communists, said in a speech the way in which Comrade Khrushchev has been replaced leaves the worrier and anxiety."

The French Communist party said Wednesday it wants more information on "conditions and methods" by which Khrushchev was ousted. The big French party said, in order to get the answers, "the political bureau has decided to ask the central committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union to receive a delegation of the French Communist party."

The Norwegian Communist party organ said Khrushchev did not deserve "to be thrown into the garbage."

Denmark's Communist newspaper said it "acquaintance in the Soviet Union" of the downgraded Khrushchev has been halted because of the adverse reaction.

Opposition Leader Hints Government May Have Trouble at End of Month

OTTAWA (CP) — The government runs out of spending authority about the end of this month. The Commons flag committee is due to report Oct. 28. Does this suggest anything?

The answer to that question may be in an acid comment by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker earlier this week.

Clearly annoyed with what he considered the lack of information in a reply by Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Diefenbaker remarked:

"When he asks for co-operation in the days ahead we shall remember the answer he gave us when we ask for information."

The ominous tones were clear, but not what they portended. However, a look at the calendar, the size of the government's pocketbook and the imminence of the flag committee report may give a clue.

Informants say the opposition has no intention of giving up its weapon—the ability to withhold supply—before it has a good look at what the flag committee recommends.

NEEDS MONEY

Government sources indicate that after the flag committee reports—but before the Commons is asked to approve the committee recommendation — the government plans to ask Parliament for further interim spending authority.

Its current spending powers expire Oct. 31 and by that the November bills it will require a further parliamentary transfusion of funds before the month.

If the flag committee fails to find a design acceptable to virtually all committees members, the opposition may need the weapon of withholding interim supply to stave off adoption of a design unacceptable to them.

Interim supply debates can be, and have been, carried on for weeks.

The opposition, therefore, is expected to insist that before the government is granted any more money the flag design will be acceptable. If it isn't, the opposition then has the clear choice whether to withhold the money and force an election on the issue.

Industry Needs Apprentices Says Official

TORONTO (CP)—D. C. McNeill, director of the apprenticeship branch of the Ontario Department of Labor, said Wednesday night that more apprentices are needed if the province's industries are to have enough skilled tradesmen in the future.

Mr. McNeill said in an interview following a meeting of North York Township's board of education advisory vocational committee that the need for skilled labor was growing faster than the supply.

Mr. McNeill said his department planned to compile lists of vocational school graduates and encourage them to enter apprenticeship programs. He said the graduates would be made aware of skill trade opportunities in their fields.

Astrological Forecasts

By SIDNEY OMARR

For October 23

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Efforts may cause frustration. This because results are difficult to pin down. Day which requires display of determination, patience. Confusion results from message, call or letter.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Give situation time, study. Would be premature to jump at new opportunity. Indications are favorable. But one in position of authority is "not ready." Take a hint. Wait!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Cycle high. Lend helping hand to fellow workers. One who seeks aid is sincere. Your intuition serves as reliable guide. Fine evening for being with good friends. Conserve energy.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Fine lunar aspect highlights romance, creative activity. You could "shine" at social affair today. Permit personality to come to forefront. Express true feelings. Others are interested!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): One who displayed flexibility in past . . . now appears stubborn. Strive to understand. Key is friendly attitude. Your sense of showmanship could turn drab evening into sparkling success.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Be aware of career, of goals, ambitions. Obtain valuable hint from today's Gemini message. Be co-operative. But insist on credit for job well done. Say yes to fresh challenge.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Emphasis on plans which add to income. Key found through written word. Study your paper. Check with authorities. Don't be afraid to ask. Answers received may prove of real value.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be perceptive. Face issues as they exist. Your vitality grows. There is reason for enthusiasm

'Just a Second'

"I'll have to get the misses to put these roses in next time . . . she'd drive anything up the wall."

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): There are behind-the-scenes actions working in your favor. But on the surface indications appear discouraging. Hide your thinking. You have valuable assets . . . this soon becomes obvious.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Stop pressing! Key is relaxation. You gain more by "letting go." Lunar position emphasizes moderation. Solar position highlights friends, achievement. Be receptive, relax!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): Concentrate on areas where you are "strong." Don't neglect talents, abilities . . . or friends. Show appreciation for past favors. Display originality, initiative. Good time for setting wheels in motion.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Be aware of security measures. Build solid foundation for efforts. Be sure, aware and confident . . . Attend to details. Don't overlook fine print. Good time for important actions.

If Today Is Your Birthday . . . you possess powerful drive . . . with you — it's all the way or nothing. Confusion-situation due to be clarified.

General "Yes-No-Ism": Cyclic high for Gemini, Cancer, Leo. Special word to Sagittarius: Emphasis on partnerships and contracts.

Conservatives Dump Butler Without Fanfare

Future of Party Leader in Doubt

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—The inscrutable R. A. (Rab) Butler, 62, has been dumped without ceremony from the Conservative party's policy - making command, apparently because of his strange statements during the election campaign.

This development came in a bland 13 - line announcement from the Tory central office Thursday night easing Butler from rule over the Tory research department without even mentioning his name.

Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, the former prime minister, took this method of "spiking Rab's guns," as one newspaper put it, although his own future as leader of the party is in doubt.

The defeat of the conservatives in the Oct. 15 general election started newspaper speculation about Sir Alec's possible departure.

"If Sir Alec ready to step down," was the headline in today's Conservative Evening News, which indicates Reginald Maudling, 47, former chancellor of the exchequer and key man in the election fight, as Butler's successor.

Conditions Sharply Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — Five New Democratic MPs, including three who came away from surprise penitentiary visits sharply critical of conditions, called on Justice Minister Favreau Thursday night to sponsor a parliamentary inquiry into Canada's penal system.

They also demanded in a letter to Mr. Favreau that he issue a declaration setting a time limit on stop use of cells at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, condemned by a 1938 royal commission as unfit for use.

The five MPs who signed the letter were Arnold Peters (Timiskaming), Frank Howard (Seema), Reid Scott (Toronto Danforth), Andrew Brewin (Toronto Greenwood) and David Orlikow (Winnipeg North).

Their letter was sent shortly after Mr. Favreau announced that he and Works Minister Deschatelets will tour St. Vincent de Paul, near Montreal, next Monday and take reporters with them.

An aide to Mr. Favreau said the minister had not yet seen the letter, delivered Thursday night, and Mr. Favreau probably will not make a statement until later.

PLANNING TOUR?

The MPs' letter said that to awaken public interest in the penal system a royal commission will not be adequate.

The letter quotes the 1938 Archambault royal commission about cells at St. Vincent de Paul, which Mr. Howard, Mr. Peters and Mr. Scott have seen recently. The commission said "these cells should be condemned without qualification and in future no prisoners should be confined in them."

The MPs also called for immediate announcement of the government's policy with regard to changes recommended in a 1956 committee inquiry dealing with humanitarian and psychological facilities.

They noted that Mr. Favreau in a recent speech said in some respects Canada's correctional services have been shockingly backward.

Two previous inquiries had aroused public interest but nothing was done to keep interest aroused, the members said.

But, the letter said, a committee should be created "to deal with some of the most disgraceful penitentiary conditions in North America and certainly the most disgraceful in Canada at St. Vincent de Paul.

Veterans' Estimates Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The veterans affairs department Thursday was accused by several Commons members of working a hardship on veterans through a "benefit of the doubt" clause in disability pension and allowances applications.

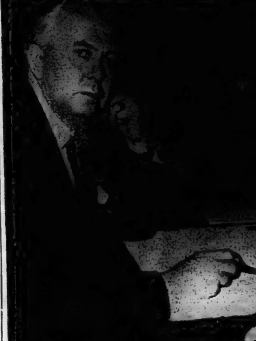
The complaints came as the Commons considered the department's $330,792,000 worth of spending estimates for the present fiscal year. The estimates were passed just before the night adjournment.

Opening of today's sitting marks a new record for the number of sittings in a single session—175 days. The previous record of 174 was set during the 1960-61 session.

Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet admitted there were difficulties involved with the doubt clause.

But he had made no decision about any change because he has not yet found a solution that would not create more difficulties than at present.

Mr. Teillet was under fire from several Conservative members for failing to indicate when disability pensions and allowances would be increased.



He said he regretted being unable to make an announcement during the estimates but renewed a pledge made a few weeks ago that legislation would be introduced in the Commons before the end of the year.

Former Conservative veterans affairs minister Gordon Churchill rapped Mr. Teillet for a "dereliction of duty" in failing to produce the department's annual report on time, and said that under the present minister veterans are receiving less attention than they deserve. The minister said the report had been prepared on time but had been delayed at the printers.

Mr. Teillet also said the department's special study into the needs of veterans of the 1941 expedition to Hong Kong—many of whom suffered malnutrition and diseases while in prison of war camps—has not been completed.

He said such a study required a great deal of time so that a policy can be formed, but that no Hong Kong veteran was refused any departmental service unless it was clearly established that his condition was connected with wartime service. More than 90 per cent of these veterans are now on pension, he added.

Mr. Teillet also said a veterans advisory council is being formed so that the Royal Canadian Legion and the National Council of Veterans can be kept informed of departmental plans.

Nobel Prize Winner Tells Why He Refused the Honor

PARIS (AP) — Jean - Paul Sartre says he turned down the 1964 Nobel Prize for literature with no intention of being "a man who is honored."

"This is why I cannot accept any distinction awarded by high authority, whether it be from the East nor from the West, even if I understand their existence very well, the 50-year-old French playwright, novelist and philosopher said Thursday.

"It is not the same thing if I sign myself Jean-Paul Sartre or 'Jean-Paul Sartre, Nobel Prize winner, he told reporters at the Swedish Embassy.

A spokesman for the Swedish Academy of Letters, which selects the winner of the annual award, said the award stands regardless of Sartre's attitude. He said the French author could give the $53,123 prize money away or leave it in the Nobel fund.

The academy's 18 members selected the controversial author and philosopher for "imaginative writing, which by reason of its spirit of freedom and striving for truth has exercised a far-reaching influence on our age."

Sartre, chief exponent of the philosophy known as existentialism, said he appreciated the honor but had to renounce the award for "personal reasons" and objective reasons."

He said he did not wish to have any institution confused with his name. He always had turned down citations, such as the French Legion of Honor offered him in 1945, he said, and he would reject a Soviet Lenin Prize if one was offered him.

Sartre said his objective remains that the struggle for peaceful coexistence of communist and capitalist cultures "should take place between men and cultures, without the intervention of institutions."

He had warned the academy early this week that he would refuse the award.

Russian author Boris Pasternak reluctantly turned down the award in 1958 after a blistering denunciation by the Soviet government. British playwright George Bernard Shaw accepted the award in 1925 but donated the money to a British-Swedish literary foundation.

In Sartres book Being and Nothingness, he summed up existentialism thus:

"Man can will nothing unless he has first understood that he must count on no one but himself; that he is alone, abandoned on earth in the midst of his infinite responsibilities, without help, with no other aim than the one he sets himself, with no other destiny than the one he forges for himself on this earth."

Thant Calls Meeting

Thant described China's nuclear test explosion as regretable and in violation of a 1963 general assembly resolution condemning all testing.

"I feel that it could be very worthwhile to have a dialogue between the United States, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom, France and the People's Republic of China perhaps some time in 1965," he told a press conference.

Thant said he saw little chance of averting a confrontation on UN finances between the United States and the Soviet Union in the forthcoming General Assembly.

He said he would continue encouraging both sides to make concessions, but "in face of the rigid positions, I do not propose to come up with any personal formula" for a settlement.

The United States contends that the Soviet Union and nine other nations now two years in arrears on their peace-keeping assessments will lose their assembly vote under article 19 of the UN charter.

Papers Asked To Negotiate With Printers

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Philip Givens asked the three Toronto daily newspapers Thursday to negotiate separately with local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) in an effort to settle the printers' strike which began July 9.

In a letter approved by board of control by a 4-to-1 vote, the mayor said the request was made as a sincere effort by the board to assist in a matter of vital concern to the community at large.

The board authorized Mayor Givens to communicate with the papers—the Globe and Mail, the Star and the Telegram—and with Louis Fine, the Ontario labor department's chief conciliation officer.

A publishers' committee has been set up to negotiate for the three dailies since the printers went on strike. There have been no negotiations with the two parties since August. The papers have continued to publish.

LESAGE SEES POPE

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul received Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec in private audience Thursday night in the Spalo Library. The audience lasted about half an hour. Lesage arrived in Rome Wednesday on a private visit. He paid a brief call at the Canadian embassy Thursday morning.

No Discrimination Against Foreign Enterprises - Kierans

PARIS (CP) — Revenue Minister Eric Kierans of Quebec told French business leaders today Quebec is a province that offers future industries electric power at "an irresistible cost."

Mr. Kierans, speaking in French, also sketched tax benefits the Quebec government offers new industry and stressed the point that there is no discrimination towards foreign enterprises.

Quebec's "true problem is twofold: It wanted to promote secondary industry to absorb its labor force, and it wanted to decentralize this industrialization.

"Far from being regional, the Quebec economy possesses the factors necessary to a great expansion, and is in fact already one of the great industrial zones of the world.

Mr. Kierans said there was In both Canada and France a fear of loss of sovereignty because of foreign operations. He said he felt this argument often was offered by vested interests who wanted to protect their position, usually "at the price of the people".

"I consider nationalism is an outmoded notion in an era of compression of distances and instant information, particularly among old peoples like the French and the Quebecers.

Mr. Kierans said it might be difficult for the French to understand the dynamisms of Canada's federal system.

He was convinced Canada could once again be a highly-centralized economy".

He added that "the Lesage premiership is not separatist and we have no intention of leaving Confederation; we feel that separatism is only the marginal result of a malaise caused by an excess of centralization. We are no longer nationalistic; Quebec is at the adult age and we feel nationalism is a malevolent appeal whose only aim most of the time is to alienate deep emotions to the profit of hidden (occult) interests.

Murderer Escaped 44 Years Ago May Keep Date With the 'Chair'

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A convicted murderer who missed a date with the electric chair 44 years ago faced today the possibility that the date might be kept after all.

Leroy Marion Dunlap, 66, had been hiding his real identity since he escaped from jail here May 12, 1920.

Dunlap was arrested Thursday in a soldiers' home in Washington, D.C. He waived extradition and was returned here Thursday night.

Sheriff Joe Sala said he would be transferred to Summit County Jail. It was there that he and two other men sawed through a window and escaped. The trio said another man were convicted in the January, 1920, of slaying Steven Bossos, an Akron restaurant owner.

Dunlap, accused of being the triggerman, escaped two days after his trial started. He was convicted in absentia, as Ohio law provides, and sentenced to the electric chair for first-degree murder on May 17, 1920.

Lawyer Cletus G. Roetzel, the original prosecutor, speculated Thursday that only intervention by Governor James B. Rhodes, or a new trial, should one be granted, can save Dunlap's life.

"I knew it was coming," Dunlap said when taken into custody.

"It has been a long time. I was hoping it wouldn't."

Goldwater Hurls First Big Attack At Jenkins Case

Charges Govt. With Lapses in Security

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senator Barry Goldwater launched his first full-scale volley on the Walter Jenkins case today as he charged the Johnson administration with lapses in security in both the White House and the state department.

Goldwater, Republican party candidate for the U.S. presidency, called for a bipartisan panel to oversee FBI reports on both former presidential aide Jenkins and former Democratic Senate secretary Bobby Baker.

In an election campaign speech prepared for whistle-stops between Los Angeles and San Diego, he charged the state department had permitted 150 persons to handle secret documents without waiting for full security investigations.

He suggested that President Johnson name two persons to serve with former vice-president Richard M. Nixon, representatives Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Michigan and Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, Republicans, on a board to supervise issuance of FBI reports on both the Jenkins case and the charge of a $25,000 kickback by former Democratic party treasurer Matthew McCloskey.

The Goldwater text, written before an FBI report on Jenkins was released Thursday night, called for the release of both reports before the election Nov. 3.

NO SECURITY BREACH

The FBI report said Jenkins had not compromised U.S. security.

Williams has charged that McCloskey was involved in a $25,000 kickback on a federal contract and that Bobby Baker was the go-between on the deal.

Security of another kind was the topic of conversation in Boston, where shots rang out Thursday night outside the hotel where Senator Robert Kennedy, the Democrats' vice-presidential candidate, was staying. Police later turned out that the shots were fired by a policeman at a youthful purse-snatching suspect.

Humphrey told a business group that the present U.S. economic expansion was only the second in the last 100 years to last more than three years. He charged that election of Goldwater, instead of Johnson, would undermine the confidence of the international banking community.

Humphrey made Thursday's only major political address as the election principals toured to aid the New York funeral of former president Herbert Hoover.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, Oct. 22, 1964

The Commons studied and passed the $330,792,000 estimates of the Veterans Affairs department.

Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill said Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet has been derelict in his duty, citing a delay of months in the department's annual report.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said service men without wartime service should have some protection against suffering injuries.

James R. Tucker (L—Trinity - Conception) said there should be benefits for men with the Newfoundland forestry units who served overseas during the Second World War.

India's Dussehra Festival Worst Since Monkey Army Licked Ceylon

NEW DELHI (AP)—According to Indian legend, good finally triumph over evil in October. In New Delhi, October, 1964, will go down as a win for evil.

In the first place, there weren't enough of the rich sweets and cakes Indians love to eat during the Dussehra Festival. These 10 wonderful days of eating, dancing and singing commemorate the homecoming of the Hindu god Rama who led an army of monkeys to Ceylon to battle demon king Ravana and recover his kidnapped wife.

The tale of victory by Rama (good) over Ravana (evil) is dear to Indian hearts.

Marriages often are scheduled for this time of year in hope a little of Rama's success will rub off on the newlyweds. Each family tries to outdo its neighbors in entertaining guests with elaborate meals and snacks.

This year, with a crippling country - wide food shortage, many families "lost face" because they couldn't offer guests even a wide of ragged coffee or a handful of sweets.

Shopkeepers who had festival foods available raised prices beyond reach of many Indians. And there were the usual power failures in the capital, sickness from contaminated water and government fumbling.

By this time, Dussehra for many was not much fun.

Then came serious develop-

Goldwater Trend Is Up

Collected $59,500

Donations to Belleville United Appeal's campaign totalled about $58,500 today, and nearly $60,000 of the total has been turned in to the Appeal office in the Kiwanis Centre. About $50,000 remains to be collected if the Appeal is to reach its $108,000 target.

In-plant campaigns continue at American Optical, Canada Cement, Union Carbide, Wilson Concrete Products and Northern Electric. Reports indicate that the campaign at Northern Electric has more than $3,000 so far, that Union Carbide has raised more than $1,000 and that Wilson's is approaching the $3,000 mark.

Only about 50 per cent of the professional men of the town have been canvassed so far, about 40 per cent of the businesses and about half the "special names" . . . people who usually give substantial donations. About three-quarters of the public service employees have been contacted, about 60 per cent of the national corporations have donated and Columbia. The offer by Fish and Game Clubs follows the killing of a number of trump-

New Traffic Lights System Makes New Safety Signals

Belleville's three busiest intersections once more are making safety signals — but with a difference.

They're now fully automatic.

Traffic lights at the Bridge-Street intersections with Coleman, Front and Pinnacle Sts. were out for nearly three hours early today while workers and traffic police put finishing touches to the revamped system.

Biggest single change — and improvement—has been at the Front Street Four Corners where walk signals have been added to the signal intersections.

So much work has gone into this installation that Ernie Brown and Dave Wilder of Pinkle Electric have probably become the best-known men in Belleville.

However, city police will stand guard at the spot in the next few days, until the walk lights are familiar to pedestrians—and motorists.

The force's traffic department also has issued a word of warning about the signals.

"If a pedestrian is in the act of crossing with the walk light and it suddenly changes, he should continue on his way—not start to retrace his steps," said Staff Sergt. Ralph Blatchford.

"The lights controlling oncoming vehicles will remain red; motorists at the intersection will be required to wait the pedestrian's crossing as in the past."

Incidentally, pedestrians crossing from south side of Bridge will have a ten-second delay. This is to clear traffic jams off the Lower Bridge.

Lights at all three intersections now are controlled by a new timing device with the latest traffic-control features claimed for it.

It can control 19 signal changes — its present function calling for a maximum of 12 changes.

However manual control also has been retained, enabling one officer to regulate all three intersections simultaneously.

Joy Ride Was Expensive for Three Youths

Costs of a "joy-ride" charged against three Belleville youths today was estimated at $1,050.

Wolvers' car was damaged, one in a police chase near Lake Simcoe, and repairs total $1,000.

The three youths, also were charged with a break-in at the Uptown Poolroom in which a money-doll with $40 was taken.

Longstaff was sentenced to a year definite and six months indeterminate in an Ontario reformatory. His two companions were placed on two years' suspended sentence.

Apportioning the automobile repair costs Magistrate T. Y. Mills ordered Salter $100 since he merely acted as lookout and did not take part in the actual car theft. Wolvers was ordered to pay $525—the terms of compensation to be set later.

GRAVE DIGGERS'

LIKE A hero (AP)—Archeologists were appalled at finding three Indian women selling prerelics relics on a street corner for $2 each. Their unsold wares were diverted to museum officials until they are taking the women into custody, believed the women were dupes of a band of men who dig relics out of the ancient Indian burial grounds for profit.

Former PUC Chairman Dies

TRENTON — A well known Trenton electrical contractor, Albert E. Atkinson died suddenly at his home about 6:00 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Atkinson had served on Trenton Public Utilities Commission from 1961 until 1966 and had served as chairman of the commission for five years.

He is survived by his wife Susan.

Meanwhile the funeral service for Trenton electrical contractor, Irvine (Mack) McGaughey, will be held this morning at St. Peter's Church.

CHOLERA INCREASES

GENEVA (AP)—More people died of cholera in 1963 than in any of the preceding five years, the World Health Organization reports. There were 65,157 cases, 21,735 fatal, compared with 41,575 cases and 12,016 deaths in 1962. India and Pakistan were the principal sufferers. W.H.O. has warned that an Indonesian cholera strain called "El Tor" has spread in the western Pacific in contagious form.

Negotiate For Surfacing Part of Street

TRENTON — Chairman of public works with Trenton council, Councillor Joseph Gould said yesterday he was negotiating with R. J. McKay and Company of Picton for the surfacing of the widened section of Dundas Street. The council-lor hasarded a guess that paving might start before the end of November.

Meanwhile, Dufferin Ave., south of Dundas Street West is almost completed. Workmen were out yesterday smoothing out the "bump" where the new pavement meets the old near the Dowsley Funeral Home. A number of motorists have phoned the town hall to complain of the bump.

A storm sewer has been installed on Dufferin Ave., north of the main highway between this and Henry Street. Now, the work will be completed by installing a catch and sidewalk installations may be delayed until spring.

Next on the public works' agenda is the installation of a storm sewer on Bridge Street, adjacent parts of North Byron.

And tenders have been called for installation of a sanitary sewer to start at Quinte Street and work its way 3,000 feet to the sewage plant on Mc-Gill Street. The job has been estimated at $83,000 for the 31-inch sewer pipe.

WILL PROBE PLAN

Meeting in Trenton on Wednesday, the members of the Board of Health were told by the town about a new federal-provincial housing subsidy plan that is very low rate of interest, the new agency will loan money to individuals to build new homes and the loans are let out on a long-term basis. Board members feel there is a definite need for homes for persons in low-salary brackets in Trenton.

VON Canvass Expected to Go Over Objective

TRENTON — George Greer, president of the Trenton Victoria Order of Nurses, is optimistic about the response in Trenton, Frankford and Bayside to the annual VON canvass for funds. The VON hopes to clear $2,000 this year to help out with higher operational costs.

In east Trenton, captains Mrs. Jack Couture and Mrs. Mitchell David report a good response, although few of the 40 canvassers out have submitted total sales yet. The story is the same in west Trenton where Mrs. Dorothy Fisher and Mrs. Maxine Turtle are heading up the drive with 40 canvassers.

Captains in the Middleton Park area, Mr. and Mrs. James Giles, with 30 canvassers, report 75 per cent of results in and a good response to the appeal.

In Frankford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wickson say no results are in yet from their 20 canvassers. The campaign will continue until the end of the month.

Letters sent out to store owners, managers and individuals in the Trenton summer have netted $900, Mr. Greer said. He said Ralph Weaver will make personal calls on executives following the drive.

Sam Mowbray, chairman of last weekend's Scout-Cub Apple Day campaign, reported today 213 Cubs and Scouts had realized $435. Mowbray commented that this was "good."

Friday, Scouts sold the ruby-cheeked apples on downtown street while Cubs canvassed private homes. Saturday, both sold apples downtown.

Speaker Suggests Kindness Club For Training School Children In Treatment of Animals

The first general meeting of the new season of the Belleville and District Council of Home and School Associations was held last night in the auditorium of the Harry J. Clarke Public School. Eighteen enthusiastic interested people attended including delegates from Amelasburg, Glen Miller, Marmora and Cobourg.

Approval was given by the members to the Parkdale Association to remain dormant for a year as provided by the constitution.

The meeting was reminded by the president that all members, associations and councils are welcome to suggest ideas for a centenary project for the Canadian Federation. However the deadline for such suggestions is November 30th of this year.

Mr. Sandy Young, field representative of the Ontario Humane Society, in town on business, was welcomed to the meeting and spoke on the problem outlined in The Ontario Intelligencer yesterday. He stressed that nowhere in the school curriculum was there any provision for instruction in the methods of treating animals. He outlined a program, developed by the Ontario Society over a period of years and covering children between the ages of 6 and 14 known as the Animal Defenders' League of which a local unit would be called a Humane Club and run along the lines of the Junior Red Cross.

LACK OF KINDNESS

The speaker suggested that this program could become a part of the curriculum in the primary grades of public school. He cited the lack of teaching of kindness to animals in the fact that the Society had reams of helpful material available for a Home and School Association or Council wished to implement such a program. This material is available to anyone from the Ontario Humane Society, 50 Maitland St., Toronto 5.

Mr. Young stated that the Society has the power to enforce legislation enacted in the Ontario Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act as well as certain sections of the Criminal Code. He made known the fact that persons being cruel to any animal could be prosecuted by the local police.

AREA CONFERENCE

The Area Conference will take place November 7 in Kenner Collegiate, Peterborough, with the theme "Home and School—Working for Tomorrow's World". All Associations are urged to have representation at this event. If a sufficient number are going a bus may be chartered. Members should let their council president know.

A display of publications on consignment from the Ontario Federation but only available to councils was highlighted with certain exceptional printings being mentioned. "Through the Years," a recent release explains to those people, who question the value of a provincial federation, the various accomplishments the Ontario body has done in the fields of School Curriculum, teacher qualifications and supply; scholarships and bursaries; school equipment; children's reading; radio and television programs; films; health and welfare and recreation, etc.

This informative booklet is available from the local councils.

HEAR DELEGATES

Two delegates to the leadership training camp held at Lake Couchiching last June were at the meeting. Mrs. Walker of Marmora and Mrs. Faye Ferguson of Glen Miller. Mrs. Ferguson gave a stimulating report on the value of the camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Long debated questions designed to educate the members as to the value of a Home and School Association to the children, parents and the community. The first flew on occasion and many laughs resulte.

The executives of all the district associations were reminded of the training shop to be held in Peterborough on Saturday, October 31. Members are asked to let their president know if they are going.

Stephen Flintoff Dies at Home, Ill Long Time

Following a lengthy illness, Stephen Arthur Flintoff, manager of Spencer Frigid Locker, hunter and angler, died at his home, 375 Bridge Street East on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Flintoff was born in Oshawa, 67 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Flintoff and had been a resident of this city for the past thirty years.

From the time he came to Belleville as manager of the Lockers, he had taken a keen and active interest in community affairs. In the sporting life of the city he took a most active part. He was an energetic and accomplished curler, an ardent angler and hunter.

When the Quinte Curling Club was proposed Mr. Flintoff gave time and money out of his ability to make it a success and the club honored him with an honorary membership. He sponsored the first Sportsmen's Banquet for the members of the club and this event has proved to be the most popular of any held by the club during the year. He was a charter member of the Club.

Mr. Flintoff would drive miles to drop a line into a trout stream and walk miles through the bush in search of deer. He loved the outdoors, the companionship that it afforded and the recreation that it gave. For many years he was a member of the Oshawa Hunt Club and always looked forward to trips north with the boys in the fall. He was never happier than in residence at his summer home down the Bay.

Mr. Flintoff enjoyed the friendship of a wide circle in every walk of life. He was a conversationalist, a great story teller and loved his home and children and the door was always open for friends to drop in.

He was a member of Bridge Street United Church and socially was a member of the Belleville Club. Surviving are his wife, the former Muriel Fern Gregory, three daughters, Mrs. Malcolm (Mary) Grigg of Oshawa; Mrs. Rae (Jean) Bowen of this city; Mrs. David (Shirley) Lockyer of Scarborough; one brother, Allan Flintoff of Weston and one sister, Mrs. Fred (Doris) Sills of Oshawa. Also surviving are 12 grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Saturday morning at the John R. Bush Funeral Home and interment will be made in Oshawa Union Cemetery.

Cobourg Native Dies in Calif.

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP) — Lewis A. Cunningham, 77, a native of Cobourg, Ont., who was a pioneer inventor in the field of automatic controls, died Tuesday night at the Los Altos home of his son-in-law, Dr. George C. Halverson.

Mr. Cunningham, who had more than 80 patents registered, primarily in automatic controls at various times was chief engineer for Minneapolis-Honeywell Corporation, Minneapolis; the Perfex Controls Corporation, Milwaukee, and the Bendix Corporation, Baltimore.

He invented the "protectostat" which was the basic device for modulating heating controls.

Dr. Halverson said this device was instrumental in leading to the merger which created the Minneapolis - Honeywell Corp. now a leader in the controls field.

Mr. Cunningham was a graduate of the University of Toronto.

REV. DENTON MASSEY speaking at last night's Ladies' Night at the Masonic Temple.

Teens Not Lost Generation Denton Massey Tells Masons

Today's teenagers are basically steady and far from being a lost generation, a large assembly of parents were told by a prominent clergyman at the Masonic Lodge last night.

Mr. Massey is rector of the Church of the Holy Savior and as such probably the most socially-celebrated pastor in Canada. A scion of Ontario's Massey family he is first cousin to the former governor-general and actor Raymond Massey.

Occasion of his visit to Belleville was the annual ladies' night in Belleville's Masonic Lodge, attended by close to 200.

Bad publicity given teenagers was the result of "the various fear" who take advantage of a situation, Mr. Massey said.

"I wonder if you could take yourself back to your teens and had under your hands what the teenager today has, how you would behave?"

Of his youth in the 1920's he recalled: "I thought that was a lost generation — and I certainly don't feel that way about this one."

"Supposing you in your teens had the opportunity of sitting in front of a TV box of tricks and see what our children see, what effect would it have had on you?

"And yet these children remain basically steady. I know I'm dealing with them every day."

Mr. Massey also took issue with critics of religion who decried its value on basis of analytical "common sense."

The three tenets of Christianity were truth, hope and love — "and the greatest of these is love."

"Yet if we try to analyze love where would we end up?"

"Christianity has been described as the opiate of the people. What a warped view.

Christianity doesn't lull us to sleep. It is a positive thing."

And, he also told the assembly: "It seems to me that we can at times find some sort of practical application of our Christian faith."

Chairman for the evening was George T. Greatrix.

Grades 9 and 12 in County Tested for Tuberculosis

The regular monthly meeting of the management committee of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association was held recently with the president, Mr. C. W. Fraser, presiding. The usual business matters were handled and reports were given by the various chairmen of committees.

SIX POSITIVE

Up to the time of this meeting, only the tuberculin testing of the pupils of Bancroft High School had been completed. Pupils of Grades 9 and 12 are done throughout the county on an annual basis, and the necessary x-rays taken of the positive reactors. It was reported that six positive reactors had been found in the Bancroft School. It was the decision of the members that a follow-up would be undertaken this year on the families of these positive reactors, in an attempt to persuade them of the importance of trying to trace down the source of the TB germ that had made the child a positive reactor. This project will be in the hands of Mrs. Bruce White of Madoc, who will act as a representative of the Association.

Testing of the balance of Grade 9 and 12 pupils in the county has been arranged and will be completed by early December. The testing in the county is carried out by Dr. J. R. McSherry and the City of Belleville is under the jurisdiction of the Department of Health.

SEAL CAMPAIGN

Preparations are now well under way for the seal sale campaign, which opens on November 16th. The appeal letter has been prepared, packing sessions have been arranged, and material is ready for distribution for advertising, it was reported by the secretary.

Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson reported on two recent meetings that had been attended by herself and Mrs. Basil Kuglin, and the effort that had been put forth in the matter of the formation of a Health Unit in Hastings County.

A report was read which is prepared by the Ontario Department of Health on the hospital admission chest x-ray program for the Province. The members were pleased to note that the percentages for the Belleville and Trenton hospitals are maintaining a much higher level than in the past few years, and their co-operation is much appreciated by the Association.

A most interesting report was given by the chairman of the social and rehabilitation committee, Mrs. Maureen Bridge, who told of assisting patients with their needs for clothing, toilet articles, etc. Also the smaller items such as a gift at birthday time, boxes of candies on such occasions as Thanksgiving, or any small way in which to show the patients that they are remembered. Visits to the homes of patients and ex-patients are also a part of her work with the Association.

A letter had been received from Miss Nora McAlpine of the Indian Health Service thanking for the help received in the recent x-ray survey at Tyendinaga Reserve, and reporting that 327 Indian people ranging in age from 6 to 75 years had been x-rayed. She stated that this turn-out was a bit disappointing. No active cases were reported, so it is assumed that none was found.

Trenton's Plebiscite

Trenton town council has moved in dramatic fashion to emphasize dissatisfaction with Ontario's municipal tax structure.

It has approved a plebiscite at the coming town elections seeking public opinion on whether the province should substantially increase education grants.

The electorate's reply is a foregone conclusion. School costs are now the perpetual bane of the local taxpayer, who year in and out watches the cost of local education consume an always-increasing portion of the community budget.

Trenton's town fathers also intend circulating their resolution on the plebiscite throughout other Ontario council chambers, encouraging similar action. The hope expressed is that "the voice of the people" will be directly brought to bear on government thinking.

The idea, perhaps, displays some sharp political thinking since the plebiscite will stimulate local action and thus directly bring pressure to bear on local government members.

Yet, just how effective it will be in obtaining immediate government response already has been answered.

The day after the Trenton resolution, delegates of the Association of Mayors and Reeves met with the Ontario Cabinet seeking changes in the present cost-sharing complex.

Among other improvement the delegates asked the government to assume 80 per cent of education costs.

The delegation afterward described the session as "unusually promising."

London mayor Gordon Stronach reported as most encouraging the general admission by the Cabinet that the property owner is carrying too much of the burden of education.

However, the delegation was quoted as being told, no final decision could be reached on a new split in education costs until the province's taxation committee brings down its recommendations.

There, for the present, the matter will apparently rest, but not it is hoped, too much longer.

For it already has rested too heavily, and too long, on too few shoulders.

Remembrance Day

It now seems a certainty that Remembrance Day will be accorded the dignity of a formal national holiday.

Such an event has long been overdue and there should be nothing but wide approval of the move, even though it was achieved through political disagreement.

Recognition was assured when the government lost 44-49 on an amendment to the proposed national labor code. The amendment including Remembrance Day among statutory holidays was made by Stanley Knowles and vigorously supported by Conservative speakers.

There could be a suspicion the government wanted to lose the vote since it could not well afford involvement in another issue with such strong overtones of national sentiment. Apparently, support to some degree, also, was lukewarm on government benches. Some Liberals were reported to have remained out of the seats rather than vote against a Remembrance Day holiday.

Since its inception among the nations of the former British Empire, Remembrance Day has come to have particular significance for Canadians.

The world has marched a far, and painful, distance since these days 50 years ago when young nations, just out of the colonial stage, rallied to the side of the mother-country in distress.

Canadians have been in the vanguard of that march toward world peace. In the past it has taken them from the waterfronts of Hong Kong and Dieppe to the hills of Korea.

Latterly it has brought them—thankfully with less dramatic results—to the Gaza Strip and now Cyprus.

Remembrance Day in our time has come to symbolize Canada's willingness to accept the ultimate sacrifice in the cause of a universal truth.

Legal questions arising out of the use of motor vehicles are still being determined on principles and according to procedures which were fashioned for the age of the horse and carriage.—Oscar F. Lindell, Q.C., of Vancouver, former president of the Canadian Bar Association.

Declaring that "the railways will move to meet opposition and to regain, retain and create passenger traffic," General passenger Traffic Manager, Canadian National Railways outlined his views to the Canadian Industrial Traffic League last night on some of the new, modified or expanded physical facilities planned for rail passengers in the post-war period.

Here are some of the features mentioned as being under study for rail passengers when normal conditions return: Well lighted low fare excursions; simplified conditions, time limitations and rates of return tickets; reduced rates for quantity purchases; extension of checked baggage privileges; reserved seats (as coaches); increased speed of trains and frequency of service; "similar priced" meals; and garage facilities at stations.

Must Guard Our Forests

Kingston Whig-Standard

There is plenty of evidence to show that the preservation of forests for public use is not the main concern of any of the multitudinous government agencies which exist in Canada to promote our forests. Pressure to permit mining and other depredations within public forests is never-ending and if it had not been for public opposition, expressed through newspapers, some government forestry officials would have permitted mining in certain Ontario public parks long ago (Quebec and British Columbia have already granted such permission.)

The point is that, while the commercial aspects of forestry are important, there is some doubt that the people should be expected to pay for as large a part of the research as is now being assessed against them. Private enterprise is quick to scorn public enterprise but always quick to accept public benefits. It would be more fitting if people were to betray just a little less enthusiasm for acting as agents for private companies and a little more for their function as wards and protectors of public property.

The Citizen And Police

Ottawa Journal

That young man in Whitby awaiting sentence for failing to assist a police officer must feel he has been hit by a law he knew nothing about.

This illusion that law enforcement is the business of the police, and the police alone, has grown up in Britain and the United States as well as Canada. When duty calls and trouble, respectable citizens apparently feel they are entitled to pass by on the other side.

See what happened in Ontario in this case. The court heard testimony that a police sergeant attempting to arrest an intoxicated man was caught by the throat and held so tightly he began to lose consciousness. Six times during the struggle the policeman asked a man of 21, standing nearby, for assistance, but in vain. Help came finally from a passing motorist and an arrest was made.

What is well known is that an officer must not be wilfully obstructed in his duty or assaulted. What appears to be far less known is that other section of the Criminal Code which says that everyone is liable to imprisonment for two years who "omits, without reasonable excuse, to assist a public officer or peace officer in the execution of his duty in arresting a person or in preserving the peace, after having reasonable notice that he is required to do so".

A few court reminders that assistance to the police is not a matter of choice should be helpful.

Harris Says All Art Is Abstractions

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When I hear a person say that he wants more "realism" in art, I know what he means. He means that he wants more sentimentality, and less realism.

The confusion and self-delusion that exist in the popular mind on the subject of art can be easily demonstrated: for the same people who demand "realism" in painting decry "realism" in literature.

Presented with a grimly realistic piece of writing — say, the "Studs Lonigan" books of James T. Farrell — such persons immediately recoil in disgust and indignation.

"Why put in all the sordid details?" they protest. "It isn't necessary to show everything in a novel. We know that people are often ugly and dirty, and life can be bleak and squalid. But why not point out the higher things, the positive things, instead of the scum?"

Theirs is a defensible point of view; but then they have no right to clamor for "realism" in art — for what they really want is the pink-and-white picture on the cover of a candy box, and not a faithful reproduction of life in all its aspects.

And, similarly, what they want in painting is not "realism" but a candy-box portrait that will be familiar and reassuring and possibly "cute."

Horses, dogs, pastoral scenes and mothers nursing babies are their favorite pictorial subjects.

Now, these subjects are part of reality, but not all of it. They are abstracted from reality — that is, they are pulled out of the qualities and pathos of real life and presented as abstract ideals of The Perfect Horse, Perfect Dog, Perfect Natural Scene or Perfect Mother and Child.

So it is quite clear that these people are not against "abstract" art at all — they merely want the kind of abstractions they are used to, so that they make them feel comfortable and do not compel them to re-examine their way of looking at the world or thinking about it.

All art is abstraction, of one sort or another. No art is realistic, for then it would no longer be art, but photography. Some art is an abstraction of sentimentality, and some is an abstraction of intellectual thought and profound emotion.

Until we understand this, we understand nothing about art, or about our reactions to it — and we do the artist a grave injustice by making judgments on his work.

Several Possible Causes Of Pain After a Fracture

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I broke a bone in my left seven months ago and it still pains me. Should I go back to the doctor? — M. W.

There are 26 bones in the foot, so you can realize that they are rather close together. This intricate pattern must bear your weight.

There are several possible causes of persistent pain after a fracture. Among them are: incomplete healing; healing out of position; excessive callus (bone scar) formation; pressure on a nerve or muscle; weakening of the arch or other part of the foot structure.

By all means go back to your physician rather than suffer interminably. It i. quite reasonable to think he may want another X-ray to see what the condition is now, but he may also have ther suggestions on perhaps different shoes, arch support, possibly weight reduction.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Have you ever heard of anyone eating raw potatoes on the average of one a day? I started eating them about two years ago. My husband says raw potatoes are no good for my stomach but they seem to give me energy to work. I tire very easily just doing the chores. He says I should see a doctor. What do you suggest? — Mrs. W. J.

There's no reason why you shouldn't eat raw potatoes if you like them. They won't harm your stomach. Since you tire so easily, you should do as your husband says — see a doctor. The fatigue could result from some form of anemia, underactive thyroid gland, faulty eating habits or some other condition which can and should be readily detected and corrected.

Dear Dr. Molner: I understand it is possible to contract poison ivy from household pets that have been in contact with the plant. Could this be true of other viruses, etc., from handling animals? — W. G.

Let's not go overboard and scare ourselves about this.

We can contract poison ivy from contact with the sticky, gummy, juices of the plant (or poison oak or poison sumac). A dog can run through an ivy patch, and get some of the sticky stuff on his fur. And we just might, at times, pat the dog and get it on us. It's as simple as that.

Certainly there are diseases we can catch from animals. Like rabies, for one. Or tularemia from a diseased rabbit or psittacosis or "parrot fever", or brucellosis from cattle, or trichinosis if we happen to get pork containing trichinae and don't cook it thoroughly to destroy the parasite.

Yes, there are ailments transmitted by animals, and I make a point of mentioning from time to time, the important ones. But don't be afraid of pets. Just be aware of the dangers, if any. After all, we get the vast majority of our transmittable diseases from people, not from animals.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a relative who can't drink more than two bottles of beer or two highballs without appearing drunk or doped. I feel certain he doesn't use drugs; however, he dips snuff and I wonder if it has the power to change a person so quickly? — M. S.

Snuff is a form of powdered tobacco and I strongly doubt that it has anything to do with this case. Why look for a difficult answer when a simple one is available? He's just a man who cannot tolerate alcohol (Could he, on occasion, have more than he lets you know?)

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is, and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 23, 1964 . . .

Seventy four miners died in Nova Scotia six years ago today—in 1958—when a "bump" deep underground wrecked the No. 2 coal mine at the Springhill colliery. One hundred men survived the disaster, including some who had been trapped for as long as nine days underground before being rescued. The dramatic rescue attempts were watched by millions of Canadians when CBC cameras were installed at the pithead during the two main attempts at rescuing the trapped miners.

1934 — French scientist Jean Picard and his wife landed safely after rising more than 10 miles in a balloon over Ohio.

1934—C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black, British flyers, flew from London to Melbourne, Australia, in less than three days.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—the British Admiralty announced that 70 warships were engaged in an Allied search of the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans for nine German cruisers; the German armies claimed the capture of several villages near Lille on the Western Front.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939—Tass, the Russian news agency, reported that the U.S. freighter, City of Flint, was taken to Murmansk by German raiders as contraband prize; two German submarines were sunk by British planes, and two British merchantmen were sunk with the loss of 14 lives; sharp patrol engagements were reported on the Western Front between German and French troops.

Ma.. Headed Back to Trees

Financial Post

After man came down out of the trees, he worked hard to improve himself eventually getting to the point where he had a nice home, a five-day week and a television set. But man always wants something new.

Accordingly, the Toronto Transit Commission advertises: "If your wristwatch have been dull, and you're tired of sitting around watching TV, try a myope tour during the next few weeks when the countryside will be at its prettiest."

Away from progress, in short and back to the trees — which in our present state of mass boredom represents an exciting change from boozebridge and The Beatles.

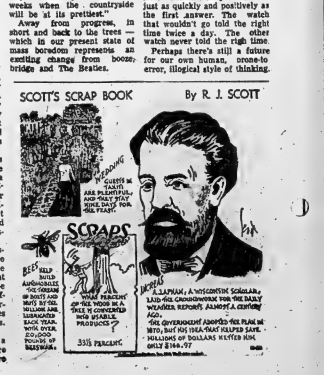
At Last! A Stupid Computer

Stratford Beacon Herald

If this is your day for worrying about whether automation and computers are going to put everybody out of a job, leaving machines in charge of everything, and the unemployment rate at 100 per cent, then consider the story about the two watches.

The story was picked up in Ottawa by a press gallery correspondent, but, as usual, it has been going the rounds, and that Parliament Hill just happens to be the place where it was pinned down in writing.

A man had two watches and was having trouble with both of them. The trouble with one watch was that it lost seconds a day, and he couldn't seem to get it regulated to do any better. So he decided that the other watch was that it wouldn't go at all.



He had the problem fed to a computer, asking the electronic brain to tell him which watch he should keep, and which watch he should throw away.

The computer digested the facts and answered that he should keep the watch that would just go at all, and discard the other one.

Then he asked the computer for its reasons. It came back just as quickly and positively as the first answer. The watch that wouldn't go told the right time twice a day. The other watch never told the right time. Perhaps there's a future for our own human, drone-to error, illogical style of thinking.

Arthur Klein, Ontario's Chief Magistrate

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Wishart said Thursday Arthur Klein, 56, Crown attorney for York County and Metropolitan Toronto, will become Ontario's chief magistrate.

Mr. Wishart said the appointment probably will become effective Nov. 1. The job of chief magistrate is a new one created by legislation attached to last year's session of the legislature.

The chief magistrate, Mr. Klein will be charged with maintaining a liaison with other magistrates in the provinces and with working towards a uniformity of sentencing in Ontario's magistrate's courts.

The first man to be appointed to the post was Magistrate Robert Graham of Niagara Falls. However, he resigned for health reasons in July, before he had formally taken over. The second appointee, Magistrate Hugh Locke of Toronto, died in September.

Born in Walkerton, Ont., Mr. Klein is a graduate of Osgoode Hall. He has been a Crown attorney since 1938.

SCALE ROYAL PAY

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgium's 2,000,000 pensioners proposed Thursday that the allowances of King Baudouin and Prince Albert, like the pay of some union workers, be linked to the cost-of-living index. Expecting approval, it presented parliament a bill that would boost annual payments to Baudouin from the equivalent of $40,000 to $930,000 and those of his 30-year-old brother from $70,000 to $78,000.

NATO Has Super Secret Centre in Quiet Suburb

LONDON (Reuters) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has a super-secret underground communications and intelligence centre in a quiet suburb of north London.

From the air, the key defence post in Northwood looks like suburban Britain — neatly sloping hill. But beneath the soil is a huge underground centre which can house 1,000 persons in the event of an emergency. It has its own oxygen supply.

The main function of the centre, known as Saclant—Supreme Allied Command Atlantic—is to ensure control of the Atlantic Ocean remains in the hands of the Western Allies.

Saclant, whose headquarters are within the RAF coastal command base at Northwood, kept an eye on the large Russian "spying" force of aircraft and ships in the North Atlantic which shadowed the fleet of some 125 vessels and 170 air craft drawn from seven nations taking part in the manoeuvres.

The only thing to identify the base above ground are the flags of the seven nations which help to staff Saclant — Britain, the United States, Canada, the Netherlands, Denmark, Belgium and Norway—and the blue-and-white flag of the Atlantic alliance itself.

Security is the watchword at Saclant. A security check leads down into the tunnel-like entrance to the command post where a second check of ID police check those coming and going.

To reach the operations room, two floors underground you have to pass through bank, vault-like doors and then through a maze of narrow, battleship-grey painted corridors.

At full strength and during exercises, approximately 1,200 persons handle the centre on a three-watch 24-hour basis. Some 300 of them are military men and air reservists who live and work nearby.

Report Progress On Brochure For Tourism

A meeting of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association was held recently in Madoc with representatives from Stirling, Stoneboro, Millbridge, Madoc, Trenton and Coe Hill. Mr. James V. Holt, president, presided over the meeting.

The new brochure and tourist directory and guide which is being prepared, was briefly outlined. The association was accepting membership from business establishments in the Highlands of tourist trade at $10 a membership.

The Department of Tourism and Information has films on how to meet and greet the tourist, which Stirling Chamber of Commerce has agreed to show to groups. These films are available to any organization that is interested in them.

Mr. Al Hamilton of Trenton Chamber of Commerce suggested that restaurants and other eating places in Hastings County should promote foods grown or manufactured in the county.

Persons interested in the tourist promotion business was invited to attend the tourist business conference to be held in Campbellford on October 28th.

Tribunal Frees High Ranking Military Officers

SAIGON (AP) — A military tribunal today freed 20 high military officers and civilians accused of the Sept. 13 attempt to overthrow South Viet Nam's Premier Nguyen Khanh.

The chief judge, Maj. - Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Le, said there was not enough evidence to support the treason charges against the 13 military officers and seven civilians.

The packed courtroom exploded with applause and laughter. Most of the spectators were relatives or friends of the defendants, who included the former interior minister, Brig.-Gen. Lam Van Phat, and the former 4th Army Corps commander, Maj.-Gen. Duong Van Duc.

The court's decision was a sharp blow at Khanh, who had ordered the trial despite his promise on Sept. 14 that there would be no reprisals for the coup that failed.

Weekly Livestock Review

Huge numbers of unfinished slaughter cattle traded slowly at lower prices. Cow prices were uneven and bulls steady. Replacement cattle were active at steady prices and the demand centred on steer stock calves.

Veal calf prices were steady. Hog prices were lower and lamb prices were higher.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 12,500 head, about 3,000 head more than last week due to the build up for Friday's stocker sale and 2,000 head more than the same week in 1965. Western cattle receipts were 589 head, a decrease under last week's 4,435 head. Western stock calves totalled 945 head, 223 head less than last week. Specials and calves were shipped off the market for slaughter in the United States and there was no shipment to Eastern Canadian slaughterers.

Prince Philip Brushes Aside All Formality

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Prince Philip brushed aside formality Thursday to shake the hands of well - wishers among enthusiastic crowds after a ceremony at Mexico's independence monument.

Amid the friendliest scene so far of his nine-day official visit to Mexico, which began Wednesday, he chatted to British war veterans, school teachers and pupils and promised English schools in the capital a day's holiday.

Accompanied by Mexico's ambassador in London, Antonio Armendariz, and the British ambassador to Mexico, Sir Nicolas Cheetham, Philip placed a wreath of flowers in the colors of the Union Jack.

Police Stage 90-Minute Man Hunt

Julius Detrich, 42, of Etobicoke has been charged with impaired driving and seven counts of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

A city-wide alert was broadcast about 6:30 p.m. after a car forced another automobile into a ditch by driving directly at the oncoming vehicle.

The wanted car smashed into several other vehicles in different parts of the city.

Police said it was a wonder no one was killed during the chase.

They said Detrich had an argument with a woman earlier in the day.

Two Bulgarian Athletes Wed At Village

TOKYO (AP) — Two Bulgarian Olympic athletes were married at the Olympic village today in a centuries-old Japanese religious Shinto ceremony.

A Bulgarian spokesman explained that the ceremony wasn't really religious and, anyway, the couple had been married in a Bulgarian Communist civil ceremony at their embassy the night before.

The groom, gymnast Nikolai Prodanov, 24, and the bride, broad jumper Diana Yorgova, 21, left after a wedding reception for a 24-hour honeymoon in Kyoto, temple-dotted former capital of ancient Japan. They will return to Tokyo for the closing Olympic ceremonies Saturday.

"They chose a Shinto ceremony as a gesture of good-will toward our Japanese hosts and because the ceremony is so beautiful and steeped in tradition," a Bulgarian spokesman said. "We don't consider the ceremony has any religious significance."

It was the first time, officials said, an Olympic couple had been married during the Games.

Formation Humane Society Here Follows Disposal Methods Probe

Following this week's report of the inhumane method being used for the disposal of unclaimed animals in the Belleville animal shelter, formation of a new humane society in the Belleville and Hastings area seems assured.

Mr. P. M. "Sandy" Young, Sidehaw for the Ontario Humane Society, who with Mrs. Hall week condemned the method by which unwanted animals were being destroyed, said he had received dozens of letters and telephone calls from citizens interested in the formation of a humane society here.

Mr. Young said today the name of the new society would be the Hastings County Branch of the Ontario Humane Society with a public meeting within the next 30 days to be in the form of an inaugural meeting.

Either Mr. Young or Tom Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society, will attend the meeting.

In the meantime, Mrs. Fred Beeby, 40 Ritchie Ave., has volunteered to spearhead interest and field any inquiries from interest citizens.

Mr. Young said he was immensely pleased with the interest of both city and county officials who were said cooperating 100 per cent in efforts to form a new humane society here. (The previous humane society was disbanded in 1957).

Meanwhile, the asphyxiation chamber presently used at the local animal shelter has been disclaimed and until an approved method of destruction disposal is introduced, local veterinarian Dr. Harry Burns will put unclaimed dogs and cats to sleep with needle injections.

Reservations have been made at the Toronto Canadian National Sportsman Show for a booth to promote tourism in this region.

Mr. Grant McKitrick, past-president, presented a plaque in appreciation of his service as a president of the Regional Council in 1965.

650 Gallons Oil Pumped After Operator Dies

The sudden death of an oil deliveryman delivering oil yesterday at a West Belleville home resulted in approximately 650 gallons of furnace oil being pumped onto the ground.

Reginald E. Musgrove, 11 Carman Ave., had coupled his oil truck hose to fill the tank at the home of W. J. Maugham, 101 Avondale Road, when he apparently suffered a heart attack. The hose was attached to pumping oil after the basement tank was filled and approximately 650 gallons was spilled before a chance caller found Mr. Armstrong's body and shut off the pump.

Mr. Musgrove said the oil was forced out the storage tank air vent pipe. The oil that seeped down through rock outside the basement wall into a sump pump well in the basement and then out into a disused backyard septic tank.

Facing Moral Revolution

By CLARENCE W. CRAMPTON

America today seems to be undergoing a moral, as well as a social, revolution. Long-accepted moral standards are being challenged. A wave of rebellion against all inhibitions is sweeping across the nation. This new "liberalism," especially concerning sex, is encouraged by much that is seen on movie screens and read in modern novels. It is exploited by advertising. It has even crept into college campuses. It is supported by some who speak in the name of psychiatry. Magazines depending on the pornographic are sold everywhere. When mothers in a Pennsylvania city sought to protest the sale of topless bathing suits for women, they were taunted by teen-agers who yelled, "Go get home," and "Get with it."

What are we to think of all this? Where is it leading? Are the historians right who say that obsession with sex is a mark of a declining civilization?

On this, as on all other themes the Bible speaks to all ages. Including our own. I Timothy 4 speaks of two subjects that are of universal interest — food and sex. We are not to think of these as evil, but to accept them as gifts from God, and enjoy them in the light of His purposes.

LOOKING AT LIFE

There are three possible ways to look at the natural and the physical blessings of life. One is to say, the desires of the flesh are evil, renounce them. The second is to say, the desires of the flesh are good, indulge them. The third is to say, the desires of the flesh are gifts of God, accept and use them with reverence and gratitude.

Concerning the first attitude, the Bible rejects the idea that the desires of the flesh are evil. It specifically denounces those who "forbid marriage and enjoin abstinence from foods which God created to be received with thanksgiving." (I Timothy 4:3 RSV). These and many passages teach that the way to the good life is to renounce all human desire, but this is not the teaching of the Bible. It teaches that everything, including the body, is created by God, not by Satan, created human appetites but He also made men to use them like men, not beasts.

The third philosophy, that all of life is God's gift, and should be accepted and used as God has always been the teaching of Judaism and Christianity. As I Timothy 4:4 (RSV) puts it, "For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving."

If God created the body and its desires how could they be evil? Things or hungers are not evil in themselves, but misuse can make them so. Sensuality is good but if one sits in it too long, he gets burned. Food is good, but if one overeats, he endangers his health. Freedom is good, but it can be turned into license. The flesh is not in the sun, or food, or freedom, but with man himself. Treated sacramentally, life takes on meaning and joy. Obsession with physical pleasure can bring one to the point of Adam when he replied to his psychiatrist, "Remember? I wish to God I could forget some things."

Contrary to much popular opinion, self-discipline does not destroy the personality, but adds to it. A disciplined people do not rob a nation of strength, but add to it. On the other hand, "a profligate people can and do rob a nation of strength." Moreover, as I Timothy 4:8 (RSV) says, training the body can add to its strength, but training the whole life in godliness "holds promise for the present life, and also for the life to come."

Russian-Made Cars Being Sold In Copenhagen

COPENHAGEN (AP) — The electric sign from a Danish auto dealer's showroom proclaims:

"Plymouth . . . Valiant . . . Moskvitch."

Soviet cars such as the Moskvitch aren't exactly flooding the market, but they are making a dent. About 45 a month are sold, in contrast to 1,000 Volkswagens from West Germany.

Nordisk Diesel, the importers, estimate that more than 1,500 Moskvitches and Volgas have gone on to Danish roads since imports started in 1961.

Sven Heitmann is the most successful of 10 Copenhagen showrooms with Russian cars. He sold more than 150 last year, and says sales are going up.

"Most of the Soviet cars I sell are bought by people who heard the cars recommended by other people," he says.

TAXES RAISE PRICE

Danish sales taxes are high, bringing the price of a Moskvitch up 13,000 kroner or about $1,700. The Volga de luxe has room for five.

Few other family cars of this type can be bought at similar prices. American cars are much more expensive, many being in the $5,000-$7,000 range. About 1,000 U.S. passenger cars are imported every year.

Dealers believe that more Soviet cars would be sold if the Russians built in the body designs were more up to date. As of now they seem fashioned after models of the West German Opels.

More important is a political barrier.

What attracts buyers apparently is low price and solidity. The cars are built for bad Russian roads and the Soviet makers say the steel bodies are designed to withstand below-zero temperatures. Danish experts speak favorably of the body steel.

A Danish newspaper man who has driven a Moskvitch two years declares:

"They are about the soldiest things since the model T Ford."

Mountaintop University To Try Off-Beat Ideas

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—"The reputation of a university is built on the quality of the graduates, not on the path they took to get there," says Dr. Duncan Patrick McTaggart-Cowan.

And as president of Simon Fraser University, he'll get a chance to test his belief when the institution, now being built on top of Burnaby Mountain in this Vancouver suburb, opens next September.

Simon Fraser will try a variety of off-beat educational ideas, not the least of which is an arrangement for admitting applicants who may not have gone beyond Grade 10 in high school.

Other Canadian innovations include athletic scholarships, ignored by other universities in this country, year-round teaching and provision for top students to complete a four-year course in three years.

And Dr. McTaggart - Cowan plans a continuing unemployment scheme under which three students could share the same year-round job. One would work for four months while the others attended school. This way each one would get four months of work and eight months of education.

TO COST $34,000,000

By next September $17,600,000 will have been spent to provide facilities for up to 2,000 students expected to enroll in the first year. Included will be an academic quadrangle ($2,400,000); science building ($2,000,000); library ($3,000,000); gymnasium ($1,300,000); and theatre ($700,000).

In five years the total will have reached $30,000,000.

All will be connected by a mall containing underground parking and stores, student council offices and an information centre. Sidewalks will be covered, and the whole campus proper will be covered so that convocations can be held there even in rainy weather.

The university was born a little more than a year ago, the result of a reorganization to the provincial government in a report on higher education by Dr. John Macdonald, president of the University of British Columbia.

HELP ATHLETES

Explaining why Simon Fraser will offer athletic scholarships, Dr. Shrum says:

"I am not at all for subsidizing athletic bums or degrading our academic program with sub-standard students. I am for helping outstanding athletes further their education, so long as they can meet the academic standards and keep up their grades."

The university will accept selected Grade 10 graduates if they can pass entrance exams in English and either the humanities or the sciences.

Special consideration will also be given to persons over 25 who have not gone beyond Grade 10 but who show ability.

The university plans to hire exceptional professors at high salaries and then have lecture to classes of 300 to 400 in certain subjects in large lecture halls.

Video tapes of the lectures would be made, and the lectures of noted professors in other institutions would be brought to Simon Fraser students on tape as well.

Along with the big classes, there will be emphasis on tutors. Dr. Shrum has talked of recruiting such tutors among housewives who have put their degrees on the shelf after graduation.

Birth Control Key Issue In New Scheme

By GERALD MILLER

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council committed itself today to producing a document on modern world problems, accepting a controversial schema as a basis on further deliberation.

The council prelates voted 1,576 to 300 to accept the schema on the church in the modern world for further discussion. Now they must move into a detailed debate of such problems as birth control, nuclear armament and world hunger.

Out of the debate an entirely new schema is likely to emerge. The present document has been criticized by both conservatives and progressive prelates in the past three days.

The debate is expected to continue through this third session of the council—which is to end Nov. 21—and then resume in a fourth session, with drafting commissions rewriting the schema in the recess.

Council spokesmen said the assembly's secretary - general, Archbishop Pericle Felici, announced that Pope Paul had decided to have a fourth session at an unspecified date.

KEY ISSUE

Birth control is one of the key issues in the document and a mention of contraceptive pills in the council debate Thursday focused attention on a related question: Do Roman Catholic churchmen have the right to discuss the pill?

Some prelates and priests say a change in traditional church bans on artificial contraception is coming and there should be freedom to discuss it.

Others insist that artificial contraception will never be accepted by the church and discussion of it must stop.

Still others, including Pope Paul VI, have suggested that medical - theological studies might bring changes. But they say that for now there should be no more public discussion of the pills by clerics.

Archbishop John C. Heenan of Britain, in a council speech Thursday, criticized theologians "who wish to attack sound doctrine." Many bishops said he meant theologians who have publicly advocated doctrinal changes to permit Roman Catholics to use the pill.

Wilson Plans To Fight Trade Gap

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson is reported to have approved an emergency plan to fight a widening foreign trade gap. There is speculation that the scheme, to be unveiled today, may include some form of import controls.

Canadian authorities today expressed some private misgivings about the possible impact of the Wilson plan on Canadian exporters. However, they emphasized that most Canadian exports to Britain are of an essential nature—such as foods, metals, minerals, newsprint and lumber—and likely would not be affected by any restrictive action.

Canada last year shipped about $1,000,000,000 worth of goods to Britain. Officials estimated this year's total may rise to about $1,200,000,000.

Britain's big trouble is that it has been buying at a rate more than it has been selling, covering its trade deficit with foreign borrowings till present a speculative run against the pound. It is widely anticipated in London that currency crisis measures will include heavier borrowings from the International Monetary Fund.

The London Daily Telegraph and other publications speculate that the emergency action will include import restrictions such as imposed by Canada during its 1942 currency crisis —as well as tighter controls over the use of British sterling for investments abroad.

The concern for Canadians and other exporters who may be affected is that any temporary restrictions imposed by Britain may tend to become ingrained as a permanent feature of the economy.

Asked whether Butler will hold any important office in the party organization, Blakenham replied:

"No, because this was the only important office he did not."

Meanwhile, informed sources said Prime Minister Harold Wilson does not plan an alliance with the nine-strong Liberal party to strengthen his four-seat majority in the Commons.

This was proposed Thursday by Labor backbencher Woodrow Wyatt.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE

"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The "Deferred Contract Sale" (or "Lease Purchase Agreement") is a device through which persons lacking cash resources can acquire property ownership.

The terms of these agreements, however, vary widely, and it is crucial to carefully examine and understand them. The wrong and right ways of approaching these agreements are demonstrated in the following letters.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have been renting a house for nearly three years. The landlord put it up for sale a year ago, but has not sold it yet. He wants $7,000 for it. Our lease is coming up for renewal and he told us if we wanted to buy the house we could — even though we don't have any money.

Instead of our regular lease, he would give us a "Lease Purchase Contract" to sign. We would keep on paying him like we do our rent but end up owning the house. All we have to do is pay him $30 a month instead of the $20 we pay him now, and he will credit the $20 toward paying off the house. When we have paid in $7,000 this way we will get a paid up deed and title.

Of course, as owners we will have to keep the house up and repair it, but he says that won't be much. We don't have to put any money down and he isn't even going to charge us interest.

We can't afford to buy a house the regular way because I have been sickly and my husband is only a laborer making a small salary. We can afford another $30 a month, though, by cutting down on some things — and this looks like the only way we can get our dream of owning our own home to come true. But as I read your column every week, we thought we would ask you about this first. Thank you for any advice you can give us. — MRS. A. M. P.

ANSWER: I am happy to receive your letter and welcome the opportunity to give a faithful reader some good advice.

DON'T DO IT!-!

If you get into this agreement you will become yet another victim of an abusive real estate practice.

It is a stretch of the imagination to consider this a form of home ownership. It would take nearly 20 years to accumulate enough credit to get the deed. In the meantime you won't even be accumulating equity. If you should move or default, you lose all the extra money you have paid toward the house. And based on my knowledge of literally thousands of such cases, very few people ever end up owning under these "purchase" plans.

The net effect of your contract would be that you pay an exceedingly high rent, pay for all the repairs and maintenance costs (relieving the owner of this obligation), and get no real benefits in return.

DON'T DO IT!

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have never written a letter like this before, but I like the way you answer the questions you get, and I need some sound honest advice.

My only son is getting married soon, and like any father I would like to help him as much as I can. He believes, however, that the best way to really help him is by letting him stand on his own two feet, and to earn his own way.

He likes a house I own that is worth about $10,000, and wants to buy it "for his wife and himself". Understandably, he has no money because he just got out of service and before that he was in high school.

I could easily afford to just give him the house (and would like to), but I believe it would hurt him in the long run. He also wants to buy it as a matter of pride and independence.

What do you suggest as the best way for me to sell him the house, following sound and regular business practices, so he won't feel I am making things easy for him? — S. M. W.

ANSWER: This may seem a contradiction of my advice to MRS. A. M. P., but I suggest a type of "Lease-Purchase" (or Deferred Contract Sale) as a device by which your son can acquire ownership on a fair basis.

Establish a fair rental value on the property — $120 per month ($1,440 per year) is about right for a $10,000 house. A fair return on your capital, plus taxes would be about $700 per year. The $200 per year balance can be credited to your son's account.

In about five years (when the total reaches $2,500) he will be able to secure a regular mortgage and at that point title will be transferred to him.

You will have received a fair price for the house (savings plus mortgage), and your son will become the owner of the property and responsible for the mortgage payments.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I bought a small apartment building in partners with buddy who works at the same plant. He works days, and I work the night shift, and I have a good arrangement — by hour management.

It turned out lousy! He has no backbone and can't turn a tenant down — no matter how suitable they may be. Also, tenants just wait and ask my partner — Mr. Santa Claus — who says yes.

I finally got fed up. Our bills for tile, paint, carpets and a pink slab (!) are over $1,000. I have refused to pay these bills and as I am around all day I am the one getting threatened. I tell them to collect from my generous partner and let him pay out of his own pocket. They say I must pay. What is right, and what can I do? — S. J. H.

ANSWER: I'm afraid you are stuck. In a partnership (unless exceptions are stipulated in the partnership agreement) each partner is liable for the commitments and acts of the other. You probably will have to pay the bills.

The solution for the future is not really in the area of real estate practice, but I will make a suggestion: either change shifts and stick close to your partner when he talks to your tenants, or sell out and get a new partner (or a stooge, perhaps) who can say no.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have always just left my car on the street, but decided at last to build a garage on the side of our house. We are now a two car family and I don't know if we have enough room to build that big a garage.

Could you tell me how much room is necessary for a two car garage — also for a one car garage. — T. P.

ANSWER: The minimum inside dimensions for a one car garage is 10 feet by 20 feet, and for a two car garage 18 feet 4 inches by 20 feet.

These are minimum dimensions, however, and you will find 11 feet by 22 feet and 20 feet by 22 feet more convenient and better designed to handle larger cars and station wagons.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

India's

ments on the international scene.

Nikita Khrushchev, left standing when the music stopped, had been considered a friend and trusted friend in India—a benefactor who, though he didn't have guests in for Dussehra, could reach into his bag and come up with such goodies as jet fighters, tanks and steel mills.

TO EASE PRESSURE

Khrushchev was counted on for another big gift. It was felt he would do nothing to close the split between the Soviet Union and Communist China, thus continuing to relieve Chinese pressure on India's Himalayan frontiers.

Something akin to panic spread through New Delhi at the thought that Khrushchev's successors might make a deal with Communist China—a deal that could be made at their concentrate on India and Southeast Asia.

Then China, to many Indians a modern demon, exploded its first atomic bomb, making things clear how greatly Pe king's technical and military might outclasses India's.

To top it off, Indian national pride took a severe licking in Tokyo where India's Olympic competitors were buffeted about by almost everyone in sight.

All in all, it was one of the worst Dussehra festivals since elephant and monkey army licked that demon down in Ceylon.

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

President Mrs. McKibbon opened the meeting with a welcome to all and gave the aims of the Home and School stressing their importance to both parents and children.

These pennies provide much needed drugs and food for needy children and help children in Canada at an early age to share with those less fortunate. A motion to carry on UNICEF again in the school was approved.

INTRODUCES STAFF

Principal H. E. Moorcroft welcomed the parents to the meeting and introduced his staff. Mr. Moorcroft gave an enlightening talk on the new mathematic curriculum now being taught in Grades 7 and 8 in the school, stating that pupils find it both challenging and fun. At present King George School is the only public school in the city using this new system.

Mrs. R. Graham spoke to the parents on the advantages of oral French being taught to public school children, giving the Penfield school progress. Following a question and answer period it was moved to have a speaker at a representative of the school to form a class. Mrs. R. Settle volunteered to look into.

Mrs. Cavalier thanked the speakers on behalf of the executive and parents.

President Mrs. McKibbon outlined the programs for the coming meetings.

The meeting was adjourned with refreshments served.

Soroptomists Hear Talk on Automation

Automation was the topic under discussion at Monday night's meeting of the Belleville Soroptimist Club.

Led by the guest speaker, Miss Kathleen Patterson, special services officer of the Trenton National Employment Office, the members went into various phases of this serious problem, including effects on workers in industry and business and the steps being taken to combat the anticipated unemployment.

Miss Patterson, who was introduced by Miss Marion Baker, explained the Government Retraining Program S. A good basic education is essential to survive the situation resulting from progress of automation, Miss Patterson said, and impressed upon the club members the need for encouragement and assistance to young people to secure as high an education as their abilities will permit. She stated that even many university teachers are being encouraged to obtain an even higher standing than they now possess in order that they will be qualified to train the multitude of teachers necessary to carry on the advanced education needed.

Miss Patterson said that as time goes on it will be necessary for all to take up hobbies, preparing for the leisure time to be provided by the shorter hours necessary to absorb the manpower, freed by this advancing machine age.

The speaker was thanked by Miss Lucy Baker with personal thanks added by Miss Dorothy Matthews, president of the Soroptimist club.

Women's Institutes

CHATTERTON W.I.

The October meeting of Chatterton W.I. was held at the church hall with Ivanhoe and Pine Grove institutes as guests.

The president, Mrs. Carter, opened the meeting which was followed by a word of welcome to the guests.

Mrs. Ben Bleecker, in charge of the program, opened with a reading. The Misses Leslie and Nicky Gardner favored with several folk songs which were well received.

The Pine Grove ladies put on a fashion parade of hats depicting the talents and arts of those participating which included music, cooking and gardening. Mrs. Allyn Flakin acted as commentator; Mrs. Pollock of Ivanhoe gave a reading; Mrs. Ivan Clare, Pine Grove, favored with a medley of piano numbers and Mrs. B. Haggerty of Ivanhoe gave a reading, followed by a round of community singing.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Bleecker introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Brant Humphries of Belleville.

Mr. Humphries related the story of an old Roman road that runs from Antwerp through Holland to Belgium. In early years this part of the country was all forest although today it all built up into towns and farms. In the early days people travelled this road, chiefly by foot and usually carried their valuables on their person, and to be struck down by a giant of a man who lived in the forest who robbed them at his pleasure. On one occasion a rich man who was travelling this road decided to end the evil in the act of prayer just before the giant struck. The giant, astonished at this, let the man watched to see what the man was doing. Meanwhile three travellers happened upon the scene and the giant realizing he was outnumbered fled into the forest — never to be seen again.

BUILT CHURCH

This rich man built a church at the highest spot where the loudest bell could be heard 500 years ago which is still standing. This church, named "The Little Church of Flanders" in 1914, is most unique and small to the regular standard of churches. Its architecture is Gothic and has its small windows and heavy oak doors makes it most eyecatching. There are no pews in formation with the altar at one end. Around the walls are carvings and pictures while in the corner next to the altar stands a miniature forest with a road running through it and a man kneeling in prayer. This is a memorial to the man who built the church.

The church still has its doors open to the public and anyone going to Holland are invited there.

Mr. Humphries recited one of his many verses of prose.

Mrs. Bleecker thanked the guest speaker and those taking part in the program.

SEEK COURSES

REGINA (CP)—A record 150 of Regina's more than 2,000 unemployed are attending six-week courses this fall to gain the necessary academic qualifications to enable them to apply for vocational training school entrance. F. J. Dixon, collegiate board adult education director, said the demand was so great this year that the courses had to be extended by four weeks over the pattern for last year. Ten professional teachers instruct in English, mathematics and science.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hodgins will reside at 291 Marland Avenue, Oshawa.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Duplicate bridge at the Bay of Quinte country club proved so popular in the summer that a similar group is going to carry it on through the winter. Starting November 3rd and the first Tuesday of every month duplicate bridge will be played at the Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quinte.

The group is unsponsored and strictly social, and anyone may play. It is not registered for master points, but if it proves popular another year may see the group buy its own boards and cards and other equipment.

Many Attend Eggleton U. C. Anniversary

MADOC JUNCTION — An anniversary service was held on Sunday morning at Eggleton United Church with a good number in attendance.

The minister, Mr. A. Smith delivered an inspiring sermon and the choir of young voices, with Mrs. Bruce Stapley, pianist, rendered a special anthem.

The church was beautiful flowers — one placed in the church by Mrs. Harlow in memory of her husband, the late Mr. Warren Harlow and a second basket of chrysanthemums placed there by Mrs. Carl Bridges added a touch of beauty for the service.

Visitors at the church were later entertained at the various homes in the neighborhood.

WHEAT SALE?

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Soviet trade official has arrived here to negotiate for the purchase of wheat from the Canadian Wheat Board, reliable sources said Thursday. The official, Nicolai Belousov, came here from Ottawa and visited the headquarters of the wheat board, a government marketing agency. Canadian officials are reported confident of making a sale to Russia, but nowhere near the size of last fall's huge 1 of 238,000,000 bushels of wheat and wheat flour.

Herrington - Andrews

White gladioli and chrysanthemums adorned the altar in Christ Church, Belleville for the recent marriage of Judith Irene Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Andrews, Belleville to Jack Robert Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Herrington, also of Belleville. Rev. Everett Smith officiated at the ceremony assisted by Rev. James Smith.

Mr. John Withers, church organist who played traditional wedding music also accompanied the bride's choice of hymn selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of nylon lace and net over white satin, featuring a lace bodice with square neckline studded with seed pearls and sequins, and long sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of nylon net flowed from a headpiece consisting of a cluster of lily-of-the-valley. She carried a cascade of pink roses, white stephanotis mingled with fern.

The matron of honor Mrs. Jean Gannon, cousin of the bride and the bridesmaids Miss Bonnie Gardner and, Miss Lynda Seamen, cousin of the bride were identically attired in street-length dresses of deep pink nylon net over taffeta highlighted with wide satin sashes and matching shoes. Their headdresses were taffeta roses studded with sequins and matching veils. Each carried a cascade bouquet of pink azalias and white pons. The demure little flower girl was Miss Lynn Anne Brown, Belleville dressed in a white frock with pink headdress and carried a basket of white pons and pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Ken Dalpee of Belleville was groomsman, while LAC Jack Andrews of Chatham, N.B., brother of the bride and Mr. Herb Seamen, cousin of the bride of Belleville were the ushers.

The reception was held at Club Canara where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with white doves and pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Pink and white candles and the colorful bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece dress of acetate lace over rayon taffeta, beige accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Assisting at the reception was Mrs. D. Meddings, cousin of the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Kingston and Watertown, N.Y. the bride chose a two-piece coral colored suit of wool boucle, black accessories and a corsage of garnet and yellow roses centred with a white gardenia.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Lynda Seamen, Purdy Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Herrington will reside at 256 N. Park Street, Belleville.

TRESSFASTENING

Dear Susanna. Here is how I keep our family's hair brushes and combs clean, and it only takes a few minutes.

Gather them all up, comb the loose hair out of the brushes, fill the basin with hot water, pour in a little liquid ammonia (you'll find it under a trade name on your grocer's shelf for around 25 cents) then put in the brushes and combs.

Let them soak for a while and the soil falls out like magic — even from the boys' combs who use so much cream.

Rinse well, and lay them all out on a towel to dry. — B. F.

Now that we have the brushes and combs clean, let's give ourselves a bouffant hairdo. Fins and dandy, but how do we keep it puffed while we sleep? One of the trickiest ideas is to take a long, long strip of toilet tissue (pink or blue looks quite dandy) and wrap it lightly and softly around your hairdo like a turban. Use pin curlers to fasten it down carefully.

Now toddle off to bed without a worry in the world, safe in the knowledge that you will wake up in the morning looking like Madame DuBarry instead of Sally o our Alley. — SUSANNA

TRAVELLING SALESMEN

Dear Su-anna: When ironing men's white shirts, especially if the man in your life can't stand being all stiffened up with starch try keeping a waxed bread wrapper turned inside out on or near your ironing board where you can reach your hand over it.

It will give your white shirts a professionally finished appearance, and help keep them looking fresher longer — use it for ladies and children's white cotton blouses, too.

Then, if you are packing several in his suitcase for that out-of-town sales trip, tuck the cardboard forms from new shirts in under the collars. — Mary E. Dillon

KNITTING NOTE

Dear Susanna: I always cast on the first row of my knitting with needles two sizes larger than the pattern calls for. Guarantees a nice stretchy edge for the welts or ribs, and you never end up with a tight band around the bottom of sleeves, or along the edges of gloves or mitts. — Molly

Bulbs in February Preview of May Garden

This feline can't seem to figure out why flowers can be blooming so beautifully indoors while February keeps the trees outside absolutely bare. These giant Darwin tulips from the Netherlands were planted in the fall and then the pots brought into a dark cool basement where they produced foliage prior to being brought into normal room temperature for blooming. Forcing bulbs is as easy as that. This particular variety is Paul Richter, one of the finest and largest red blooms.

Cemetery Tour by Bridal Party Would Be Tasteless

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son is marrying a very lovely girl a few days before Christmas. Marcia is sweet and attractive, but her flair for the dramatic sometimes goes beyond what I think is good sense.

Unfortunately Marcia's mother passed away last year. They were very close. Although her father is paying for the wedding she has asked me to help her plan it.

Last night when we were discussing the arrangements Marcia said it would make her very happy if the entire bridal party went out to the cemetery after the wedding ceremony. She said, "I want to feel that mother is with me on my wedding day."

ANN LANDERS

I'm afraid to tell Marcia what I really think. I've seen her at her mother's grave. She goes to places and it's really awfully hard on everybody.

I don't want to impose my views on Marcia but what she has in mind would spoil the day for all of us. May I hear from you, please? — IN ABEYANCE.

DEAR A — If Marcia wants to visit her mother's grave on her wedding day she should go before the ceremony — perhaps with her fiance and her father.

To ask the bridal party to trek out to the cemetery would be tasteless in the extreme. I hope you will tell her so and help keep the day a joyous one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 11-year-old son has been doing poorly in school for the past two years. When the boy was not promoted last spring I had a conference with his homeroom teacher. She told me he should be tutored in reading, and offered to put us in touch with a tutor.

My husband says it's a racket and that the teacher probably gets cut in for bringing the "sucker" to the tutor.

Our son is bored with school and it's a struggle to get him to do his homework. My husband says, "Don't nag him."

If I didn't nag him, Ann, he wouldn't do one thing but play ball and look at TV. I need your help. — LOSING BATTLE.

DEAR BATTLE — Experts in the field of education tell us that an appalling number of highly intelligent children do sub-standard work because they are unable to read properly. A student with inadequate reading skills cannot grasp the fundamentals of any subject.

I urge you to take the teacher's advice and hire a tutor. Thousands of youngsters who were academic cripples have become fine students after they learned to read.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please don't throw this letter in the basket because it starts out like others you have printed. It really is different.

First, God bless you for telling people to stay home unless they are invited to visit. I sent those columns to several friends who used to drop in and it helped. Now I need more help.

What can I do about neighbors and friends who still appear at the door and say, "I thought I'd surprise you."

I'm a nervous person and when this happens I become nauseated and upset. Help me, please. — MIGRAINE MARY.

DEAR MIGRAINE — The best way to deal with people who surprise you is to surprise them.

Have your speech prepared: "I wish you had called. I don't feel well today and I'd be miserable company. So sorry I can't ask you in."

Anyone who drops in again — after that speech — deserves to hear it one more time.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MUCH of the fun of any holiday, for children, is anticipation and advance planning. Let them think of ways in which to make your house "spooky" for visiting trick-or-treaters. Readers' Friday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION:

Could you send me your recipe for walnut cake which I tried about four years ago and found very successful? It was made with egg whites and had a lemon icing. This recipe has been lost . . . Kathleen P.

ANSWER:

In the Fall of each year we receive a few requests for nut cakes from folks who have some hickory nuts or black walnuts on their property or have bought a basket on their local market.

I made a nice fresh nut layer cake this morning and cut it into thirds and tried three different icings on it. All were good. See below.

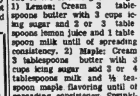
NOTES:

You must follow directions when chopping the nuts. They must be fine or butter might not support them. This method definitely does.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Melon Ball Fruit Cup; Scallops (or Tuna) Newburg on Hot Split Tea Biscuits; Harvard Beets (see Tuesday); Spinach; Upside Down Pear Gingerbread; Coffee.



NUT LAYER CAKE (4 egg whites):

Add ½ cup of the sugar to the egg whites in beater bowl and beat until very stiff. Cream the butter and remaining 1 cup sugar together until light and fluffy. Sift the sifted flour 3 times with the baking powder and salt. Fold the flour mixture into the creamed mixture, one-third at a time, alternately with the cold water mixed with almond extract, also one-third at a time. Turn beaten whites into batter and fold in a little. Sprinkle finely chopped nuts over whites. (Note: Nuts should not be ground. They should be chopped by knife by hand or in a little cylindrical nut chopper or in the goblet of your blender.) Fold just enough to incorporate whites and nuts. Turn into two 8½ or 9" layer cake pans, lined on bottoms with wax paper and buttered and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 28 to 32 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on racks.

When cool frost between layers and on top and sides with one of the following Frostings: 1) Lemon: Cream 3 tablespoons butter with 3 cups icing sugar and 2 or 3 table spoons lemon juice and 1 table spoon milk until of spreading consistency. 2) Maple: Cream 3 tablespoons butter with 3 cups icing sugar and 3 or 4 tablespoons milk and ½ teaspoon maple flavoring until of spreading consistency. Sprinkle with finely chopped nuts this is an elegant old-fashioned cake. 3) Plain Butter: Cream together 3 tablespoons butter with ½ teaspoon salt, 3 cups icing sugar and 3 or 4 tablespoons milk until of spreading consistency.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

A pot-luck supper added pleasant informality to the general meeting of the United Church Women of Bridge Street and the attractive Hallowe'en table decorations planned by Miss Helen Sulman made it a special occasion.

At this was the annual thank-offering meeting, the worship service led by Mrs. G. Moore and Mrs. S. Gilmour brought a message of the large place thanksgiving should have in one's living. The passages read from the Old and New Testaments reminded the members that the furrows of the Scriptures are sown with the seeds of thanksgiving.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Madeline Young introduced the guest speaker, Miss Margaret Halliday for many years a missionary in Angola, with the United Church. Miss Halliday was engaged in educational work and gave the group encouraging news from this field.

The opening of schools in rural areas has been most rewarding. The Laubach method of teaching English has amazing results and ability in English is a step toward entrance into more advanced schools in the mission centres.

In the schools, the practical is stressed. Lessons are put into practice, while they are students, lessons that will make for better health and better homes.

There are school gardens where the students produce a variety of fruits and vegetables and learn how to improve quality of production.

WELL-TRAINED VOICES

In church choirs the well-trained voices make a valuable contribution. On one occasion one of these choirs sang the 23rd Psalm to the tune Crimond. An African friend asked Miss Halliday if this was a new tune. When she told him that it was an old Welsh tune, he said "You have had this beautiful tune for so many years and we have just got it now".

Mrs. J. Parrott accompanied Dr. Elizabeth Scott in a sacred number that was in harmony with the Thanksgiving program.

Mrs. J. Reynolds voiced appreciation.

BUSINESS SESSION

The president, Mrs. Bryson Leslie conducted a brief business session. The members were briefed on their responsibility for making the coming bazaar a success.

WELLINGTON U.C.W.

WELLINGTON — The October meeting of Unit 3 of the Wellington UCW was opened by Mrs. C. Burr, who cordially welcomed members of Unit 1 who had been invited to attend this special meeting.

Mrs. Dart led the group in the devotional, taking as her theme, "Giving Thanks." It is good to cultivate a thankful heart; gladness is a source of strength.

After a short business period Mrs. K. Lane introduced Mrs. R. A. Thompson, the guest speaker. Mrs. Thompson spoke of her recent visit to Great Britain and showed beautiful slides of her tour of England, Scotland and Wales. Views of historical buildings were shown, including the modern Coventry Cathedral, in which parts of the old were incorporated in a special chapel. The group also enjoyed the many lovely views of typical English gardens from the formal gardens of ancient Hampton Court to the informal cottage gardens and commercial rose gardens.

Mrs. Foster thanked Mrs. Thompson for the group's "guided tour" which was most interesting and enjoyable to all.

HOLLOWAY STREET U.C.W.

Holloway St. U.C.W. held their October meeting in the church parlors Wednesday evening.

The president, Mrs. R. Taylor, opened the meeting with a poem. Business of the evening included discussion on the various projects for forthcoming bazaar, the rummage sale in November and the Golden Book of Charity labels.

The devotional was led by Mrs. D. Shantz. A duet was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. Daniels, accompanied by Mrs. Hobbs at the piano.

"Count Your Blessings" was the topic of the speaker, Mrs. H. Hutt, who pointed out that these in Canada have far more that the real challenge is to deserve all which has been given and said, "As we bless our forefathers for our heritage, we have an honorable obligation to our children by showing our thankfulness to God in our homes and community."

QUESTION: I'm planning a shower for a close friend and have decided the most practical thing to do is give her one with a bathroom motif and tell each guest what to bring. This way all the gifts will be color-coordinated and there won't be a hodge-podge of patterns.

I planned to have one girl bring a shower curtain, one a bath mat, one a couple of bath towels, one a few hand towels, etc., so that we could get a complete ensemble but without anyone having to go to too much expense.

One friend, I understand, thinks everyone should bring what she wants: that the gifts should be general and that I was too bossy in telling guests what they should bring. I don't want to give this impression, but I think my plan is much more practical and easier all around.

Is it considered correct for the hostess to plan a shower thi. way? — G. A., Trenton, N.J.

ANSWER: Yes, it is. And I think the idea is a good one. By concentrating on one individual room, guests are able to outfit it completely and choice of color and patterns is not left to chance.

However, instead of assigning a gift to each guest, it might be more tactful to make a list and let each pick what she wants to bring.

QUESTION: A friend of mine was engaged for three months. During that time she collected a number of presents at an engagement party and two showers. The engagement was broken a month ago, but she has not, to date, returned any of the gifts. Several of us are quite concerned about this, since we had gone to some expense supplying her with some lovely accessories and appliances for the apartment she was to furnish.

One friend says she's inclined to wait the gifts to return the presents. At least we could get refunds, or save the gifts for other showers that are in the offing in the near future. What is correct in this type of situation? — C. B., Hartford, Conn.

ANSWER: The girl should have returned all gifts as soon as her engagement was called off. A relative or an especially close friend might tip her off about this fact of life, in case she doesn't know what's expected. If this cannot be arranged, then I'd suggest you just drop the subject, but be very wary in the future about attending an engagement festivities for her if she decided to accept another proposal. And, incidentally, for future reference, it's not necessary to bring a gift to an engagement party. Relatives may give presents, if they wish, but friends are not supposed to do so.

Church Groups

ST. MARGARET'S EVENING GUILD

The first meeting of the fall season was held in the church hall recently. The president, Mrs. Rushton, welcomed several new members.

Mrs. E. Anderson has agreed to act as recording secretary for the remainder of the year in the absence of Mrs. A. Rump who has been ill. Further plans were discussed for the bazaar, to be held in November. The members enjoyed Military Whist under the direction of Mrs. J. Bilsbie and refreshments served by Mrs. M. Angus and her group.

The Evening Guild met recently with a good turnout of ladies. Several new projects were undertaken and it was decided to make a donation to the Altar Guild of St. Margaret's. Everyone joined in a work evening to help with doll clothes and flowers for the bazaar, under convener, Mrs. C. Miller.

The second meeting which was held, was well attended. After current business was disposed of the group worked on bazaar projects. Both occasions were concluded with a social time and refreshments served by Mrs. W. Black's group.

DEAR NO SIG. — Would it be "decent" to leave a terrified bride to her fiveknight jitters, when we could be helpful? If you could see the pile of tragic letters which seek knowledge from me on these taboo subjects you'd understand why I felt something needed to be published about it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — With regard to cures for nail-biting: I, too, am a "cured nail-biter." The cure? I had my teeth extracted!

I also know of another nail-biter who was cured by the same means. The finding of the "cure," I might add, was accidental — my teeth had to come out, and lo and behold my nails profited! — "ANOTHER CURED NAIL-BITER."

* * *

DEAR ANOTHER — I suppose it figures that if the teeth come out, the nails stay on. But isn't the treatment rather drastic?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — What do you think of a man who never stops working except to sleep? He is working and saving for a secure old age. (Right now it's more secure than the average man's.)

He never takes his wife and family anywhere; not for an outing, never a vacation. When I ask him he always says, "Wait till I retire." — BORED TO EXHAUSTION.

* * *

DEAR BORED — I'd say he has forgotten what life is for. When he does retire, he will know so little about how to play that he will just fold up and die.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a 14-year-old girl. My problem is my 16-year-old brother. He has got the filthiest mind I have ever seen. When I have my friends over it's really embarrassing to hear the filthy things he comes up with, either about me or one of my friends, or any girl.

Do you think he is mentally ill? I think it's a possibility because he has even used filthy language in front of my mother. He is very greedy — he thinks he is the only person in the world. — M.B.S.

* * *

DEAR M.B.S. — Not mentally ill. Just a little off the beam in his attitudes to sex and his desire to be shocking. This seems to him to be smart and grown up — which, of course, it isn't.

Straightening him out ought to be the job of his parents. If they're aren't doing it, I'm sorry for him.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a widow of seven months. Have observed some widows of my acquaintance who do not wear their wedding ring.

Wondered if this was a matter of personal preference or if there is an accepted procedure in this matter. I am wearing wedding and engagement ring and intend to wear them at least a year, or perhaps longer, on left hand. — JUST WONDERING.

* * *

DEAR JUST — Wear both, indefinitely. You are still "Mrs. Wondering," aren't you? The exception would be if you should get engaged again.

* * *

Confidential to CRY BABY — Go out with other boys. He may or may not be back.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Every time my husband goes away (he is in the air force) I get to thinking how I'm such a "beast" to him, sometimes.

Before he left he said the only time I love him is just before he goes away for a while. And also he said that I don't care if he goes out on me. I think he already has but I don't think there's much point in bringing it up. Do you think he is doing this to hurt me?

I love him very much and would hate to think that he may not love me. Do you think that if I show my feelings more it would help? Also, when we go out in public I feel very inferior to him. Why? I always have the feeling that he is looking at other women and comparing them to me. He is tall and good looking and I am average looking.

I know I should trust him more as they say love is based on trust, but can I? Maybe I am a little nuts. — THE NUT.

* * *

DEAR NUT — You have taken to poor methods of getting a rise out of each other.

He teases you, then listens for a declaration that you do care. You are a "beast" to him in a vain attempt to overcore your feelings of inferiority.

Far better for you both to start making love with words, deeds, trust in each other. Write him a love letter. Go one hundred per cent of the way.

He may swoon over this unaccustomed affection, but when he comes to you'll be off to a new start. Don't muff it.

* * *

Confidential to VERY SCARED — Even the doctor has difficulty telling at first, although you should consult him. I do not know of any other early signs than the one you suggest.

CONDEMN RESTRICTIONS

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — The Interamerican Press Association closed its 20th annual meeting here Thursday with a nine-point declaration condemning all forms of restriction on freedom of the press in the hemisphere. The general assembly denounced the "inhuman imprisonment" of more than 20 newspaper men in Cuba and exhorted the entire press of the hemisphere to remain alert and active in the struggle against the Castro regime — called "public enemy No. 1," by the association.

Canadian Girl Invited to Join Cruise

PORT ELIZABETH (AP)—A 24-year-old Canadian girl who has been roaming the world for nearly two years plans to join a yacht at this South African city on a two-year world cruise.

Samantha Smith of Montreal, who has been working in a Port Elizabeth land surveyor's office for the last five months, met Egon Glasel of East Germany, owner of the yacht Loverbird here and was invited to join the crew.

Glasel's route from Cape Town in his 40-foot steel-hulled yacht will be to St. Helena, The West Indies and then Bermuda where he may spend some time. From there he will go through the Panama Canal to the Pacific Islands. After that nothing is certain.

"This is what I have been waiting for all my life," said Miss Smith.

LEARNED TO FLY

Adventure has always appealed to her. At 18 she learned to fly in a battered old Tiger Moth. While still at the University of Montreal she got a free passage on a small tramp steamer bound for the Seychelles.

"It was the driftiest old ship I have ever seen but the trip was a wonderful experience," she said.

Since leaving university she has wandered all over the world.

"I qualified as an architectural designer and have have some training in land surveying so that I have never had any difficulty in getting a job," she said.

She has visited Europe, Honolulu and many parts of Africa. Before coming to South Africa, she worked in several towns in southern Rhodesia.

She has no experience of ocean yachting but is prepared to learn the hard way. She has resigned from her job and is to go to Cape Town to join the yacht.

"All the travelling I have done has given me itchy feet," said Miss Smith. "I am so excited at the thought of this trip that I can hardly wait to leave."

CITY SLUM TO DESERT COMMUNITY — For six years, following their eviction from the rat-infested slums of Lima, capital of Peru, the citizens of Pampa de Comas have lived in the arid foothills of the Andes. In 1958, 18,000 peasants and workers migrated seven miles north of Lima and created their desert community. The population now has increased to 125,000. Here, some straw huts sprawl on the simmering slopes. (CP Photo)

Montreal Priest Legendary Figure Throughout Lima For Work at Pampa de Comas

A 39 - year - old Montreal priest is helping re establish poor Peruvians from the slums of Lima. His work is described in this story by Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press.

By PAUL KIDD

Here, on the stony barren slopes of the Andes foothills, 125,000 Peruvians live in crippling poverty.

The misery that envelops Comas is pierced only by one shaft of hope, provided by a remarkable French - Canadian priest and a group of aides.

Six years ago people evicted from the rat-infested slums in the heart of Lima trudged to the empty desert hillside rising out of the plain seven miles north of the capital. They were joined by Indians from the mountains.

Erecting straw huts, the peasants and workers squatted on the government-owned land—and Pampa de Comas was born.

It was to this drab world amid the sand and the dust and the ignorance, that Father Andres Godin came four years ago.

Today, the 39-year-old Montreal-born priest is a legendary figure throughout Lima.

LIVED IN HUT

Father Godin began his work in Latin America by organizing trade unions and co-operatives among nitrate quarriers and fishermen in Chile.

Then, one day in 1960, he rode up to Comas on his motorcycle. For 10 months, Father Godin lived in a straw hut by the side of the road while he organized a parish in the squalid community, which had only 18,000 residents at that time.

Today, the priest has a house and a church.

And, thanks to his efforts, Comas has the best technical school in Peru and a bustling well-stocked clinic.

Through the Roman Catholic mission, young Peruvians are learning desperately needed skills while thousands of slum-dwellers suffering from sickness and malnutrition have a place to go for top-flight medical treatment.

Comas, spread over 15 square miles, is the biggest slum in Lima and the third heaviest populated community in Peru.

HOMES OF STRAW

It is, essentially, a self-made city. The squatter settlement now has a municipal charter and an elected mayor and council, and is slowly struggling to give itself an identity and a better standard of living.

Homes of woven straw or pieces of heavy cardboard are being replaced in older parts of the city by brown-hued brick hovels.

But when a worker has a family to support on a wage of 80 cents a day, the vital bricks come slowly.

Helping Father Godin to raise Comas on to a new plateau of hope are six Canadian Oblate Fathers, six Brothers of Charity from Montreal, five nuns from Quebec, four German technical instructors, three American nurses and social workers, and a group of keen, young Peruvians.

Life in Comas is hard. This is a place where most homes have only one room in which as many as eight persons live, with three or more family members sleeping in one bed.

Squatting on the hillsides, the slum-dwellers have no rent, nor have they any meat.

ONE MEAL A DAY

One meal a day is not uncommon in many parts of the barriada, as the slum is known. The staple diet of most residents is a monotonous round of rice, beans, corn and potatoes. Once a week, perhaps, they will get fish and bread.

There is little garbage to collect; even potato peels and corn husks are eaten.

Almost every family has at least one dog to protect its poorly constructed home against burglary. Roaming the streets under no control, the hundreds of dogs create a tremendous health hazard.

An even greater health threat, however, comes from water.

Deposited from a tank truck into large uncovered drums and barrels outside houses, all water is supposed to be boiled before being drunk. Frequently, this precaution is not taken and serious intestinal diseases follow.

There are no bathrooms and no sewerage disposal.

BURY INFANTS SECRETLY

Almost three out of four persons in the barriada are under 25 and the mortality rate among children is shockingly high.

In the middle of the night, young parents sneak across to the arid slopes of the nearby mountains to bury their dead babies in unmarked graves to escape paying burial taxes.

It is in this grim setting, through an arm of the Roman Catholic Church, that Canada is playing a valiant role.

With Canadian and American-raised funds and aid from the Alliance for Progress and a West German government assisted Catholic agency, Father Godin has built his mission.

Wearing an open-necked tartan shirt, the priest took me on a tour of the mission, which overlooks the Pan - American Highway.

In the clinic, some of the 120 patients who pass through its rooms each day were waiting to be treated by one of the team of five doctors.

Three of the doctors each receive $125 a month for full-time service from either the Peruvian government or the parish while two volunteer doctors donate half a day each week.

TRAIN PERUVIAN WOMEN

A nun from Lennoxville, Que., is in charge of the nursing and social work at the clinic.

She is helped by Virginia Jackson and Mary Knowles, both graduate nurses from Boston, and Janine Reiser, a social worker from Columbus, Ohio. All Papal Volunteers, each receives a scant $40 a month on which to live.

Nine Peruvian young women are being trained as nursing aides. They register patients, write up case histories, assist the doctors, take blood pressures and help with dressings.

Throughout the year 39,000 cases of all types were treated at the clinic while the nurses conducted hundreds of group instruction classes in hygiene, sanitation and home nursing.

The two - year - old technical school, which cost nearly $200,000, is attended by 360 boys and 84 girls.

BOUGHT OLD CARS

The three - year graduation courses, patterned on Canada's trade school system, have been approved by the Peruvian ministry of public education.

Each school day is divided into four hours of theory and four hours of workshop classes. Theoretical courses include technical drawing, mathematics, physics and chemistry, English, political science and social doctrine.

In the workshops, instruction is given in, auto mechanics, general mechanics, electrical engineering, welding and carpentry.

The skeletons of five stripped-down cars were lined against the side of a large, airy workshop.

Father Godin described how, after lengthy bargaining, he finally obtained the autos from a New York used car dealer for $33 each. He then persuaded a shipping company to take the vehicles to Peru without charge.

In the girls' technical school, Canadian nuns teach cooking, sewing, child care and other subjects.

TEACH ADULTS

At night, some 1,200 adults attend the mission to learn trades and how to read and write.

Father Godin gave Comas a great thrust forward in social development when he persuaded former President Manuel Prado and his wife to visit the squatter settlement.

After touring the slum, the president was so impressed with the work of the Canadian directed mission that he pledged the government's participation in helping develop the poverty-torn community.

Work now is beginning on a sewerage system and a water supply while electric light has come to certain sectors.

Today, 35 schools and four government clinics have been established in the barriada, although the mission remains the showplace of the community.

Small industries, such as shoemaking, are being established to help ease the squatter town's crippling 40-per-cent unemployment rate.

In the words of a Peace Corps official, what has been achieved by Father Godin in Pampa de Comas is "nothing short of fantastic."

Navy Shopping For Destroyers Weapons System

One of the possible choices on the shopping list is the American Asroc (anti - submarine rocket) torpedo which can carry a nuclear or conventional warhead. The price would run around $15,000,000 for the seven ships.

The Navy says the new weapons system it devised for the seven St. Laurent class destroyers, built before the Restigouches, and two of the six Mackenzie class destroyers — anti-submarine helicopters and shipborne landing platforms for them — has been a smashing success.

But the system can't be applied to the Restigouche class destroyers, informants said Wednesday, because the added super - structure might capsize the ships. Weight distribution in the Restigouches is different than in other RCN destroyers.

The Asroc has been in use with the U.S. Navy since 1960. It has a reported range of up to eight miles.

It appears doubtful that the government would order a nuclear warhead for the weapon inasmuch as it has signified it would prefer that Canada withdraw entirely from any nuclear role.

Hundreds of Farmers Mark Four-Counties Corn Day At Carrying Place Farm

The growing of corn has largely taken over as a cash crop for many farmers in the Quinte district who only a few years ago depended on the canning industry.

And whether corn is grown as ensilage or as a grain crop, the same farmers are finding that corn can produce double the amount of feed and up to double the cash return per acre.

In fact, oats, the once staple grain crop for this area, in many instances is being replaced by fields of waving corn tassles.

Big new shiny roofed silos and corn drying storage cribs are becoming more and more numerous throughout the area as more and more farmers realize the advantages of corn growing.

To further acquaint district farmers with the advantages of corn growing, the Quinte District Soil and Crop Improvement Association in co-operation with the Ontario Department of Agriculture Thursday staged a "corn day" at the Longstaffe Farm at Carrying Place in Prince Edward County.

Hundreds of farmers from the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland took in the program including reports of field trials and the various yields obtained.

Special speakers from the Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph spoke on corn production and corn growing machinery, while C. Ross, vice-president of Canada Starch Co. Ltd. of Montreal spoke on corn marketing.

In addition there was a corn machinery display with pickers, shellers, combines, tillage equipment, sprayers and planters on display.

After the speech making was over the machinery was put to work and farmers were able to view actual working demonstrations.

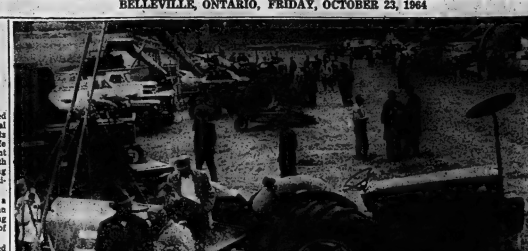
Mr. G. Rendell, Deseronto, president of the Quinte District Soil and Crop Improvement Association, along with vice-president Charles Buchanan and J.R. Longstaffe extended a personal welcome to district farmers. At the conclusion of the program Mr. and Mrs. Longstaffe were hosts to visiting officials.

Noon luncheon was made available by the Albury United Church Women.

Speakers during the day included George Jones, Crop Science Department at O.A.C. who outlined the advantages of corn growing, while Dr. S. Moggrich, Ontario Department of Agriculture at Clinton spoke on corn machinery.

Visiting farmers showed keen interest in the field trial reports. More than 40 corn plots were planted on the Longstaffe farm — 20 of them different types of hybrid corn — with crop examples and yields being posted for the benefit of visitors.

Many of the plots showed a per acre yield of more than 100 bushels, the highest being Pioneer No. 388 with a yield of 118 bushels.



The lowest yield reported was 88 bushels per acre, although officials said this was a poorly chosen type with too late maturity date.

Corn with a maturity date of from 85 to 90 days was required for the Quinte district, although constant improvements were resulting in corn which would mature at temperatures which only a few years ago were considered impossible.

The advantage of proper spraying for weed control was also emphasized. In one instance a test plot yielded 10? bushels per acre using atrazine spray for weed control. With cultivation only the yield was but 72 bushels per acre.

Planting speed is also an important factor in corn growing.

Proof of this was the fact that a four miles per hour planting speed for one plat resulted in a yield of 105 bushels per acre, while a seven miles per hour speed reduced the yield to 91 bushels.

Keen interest is shown in big display of corn growing equipment seen at the "corn day" program at Longstaffe Farm Tuesday. Farmers from four counties took in the program.

Italian Reds Again Question K. Ousting

ROME (AP) — The Italian Communist Party, biggest in the West, has again questioned the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev as Soviet leader and also criticized China's atomic explosion last week.

The party said Thursday night that the Soviet Communist Party "has not yet given the necessary and exhaustive explanation of the facts" that led to Khrushchev's fall as premier and Communist party boss. It expressed strong confidence of his policy of peaceful coexistence.

The Italian position was made known to party workers in a statement that came a month before Italy's municipal elections. Earlier, Luigi Longo, the party chief, said that "the way in which comrade Khrushchev has been replaced leaves us worried and critical."

Fred Lang, 4, of Deseronto, at the controls of huge $7,000 corn harvesting machine is dwarfed by the size of the self-propelled monster that cuts corn, husks and shells it, all in one operation.

Jack Haggerty, of Brighton, district Ontario Department of Agriculture fieldman, with area farmers Ross Benway of Hillier, and Tom May of Maycroft Farms, Picton, inspect high yield from corn test plot on Longstaffe Farm.

Khrushchev Now an 'Unperson,' No Indication That He Existed

MOSCO W(AP) —Nikita Khrushchev has become an "unperson."

For a week there has been no public indication in the Soviet Union, the country he long dominated, that such a man ever existed.

His picture has disappeared from public places. His books are no longer heaped in display in stores.

The nearest that the man who shoved him aside have come to admitting there ever was a Khrushchev is attacks on leadership failures obviously attributed to him.

Criticism of the "cult of personality" used to refer to Stalin. Now it means Khrushchev.

The attacks may soon become more direct, naming Khrushchev and attributing all sorts of sins to him. But, for the moment, he has been dropped down "the memory hole."

That was the term George Orwell used in his book, 1984 for the incinerator that destroyed records. What, policy reasons in Orwell's imaginary state dictated that a person should not have existed, all references to him were dropped down the memory hole. Histories referring to him went that way and so did current material. He became an "unperson."

BOOKS LEFT ALONE

There are no signs that the books are being destroyed here. That would be difficult.

In recent years, the Soviet press and radio were full of references to Khrushchev.

A children's radio program on science referred to Khrushchev's backing of science. A program for farmers was full of Khrushchev's sayings on agriculture. An article on art referred to Khrushchev's leadership in artistic fields.

Now just anonymous policies are cited, usually with claims that the party is following Lenin's line.

The tide also is going out for Khrushchev's role in the Second World War.

Before he achieved power in the four years after Stalin died, Khrushchev was credited with only a small war-time part. In recent years he has loomed large in histories and anniversary articles, particularly on fighting in the Ukraine where he was long the party boss.

The 20th anniversary of the liberation of the Ukraine from the Nazi armies would have been an occasion for lavish praise of Khrushchev's role. Instead, articles on it appearing after Khrushchev' ouster ignored him.

Khrushchev now is an "unperson."

SUBS FOR CUBA

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The exile Cuban Information Agency (AIP) said Thursday Russia is preparing to give Fidel Castro a submarine fleet manned by Soviet - trained Cubans. The Russians, AIP said, have built a submarine base at Punta de Mulas in Oriente Province and at Matanzas, a deep - water bay near Havana.

Judgment Reserved on Former Mayor

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) Defence Counsel Charles Dubin, acting for former Bracebridge mayor Glen Coates, said Thursday Coates acted "with honesty and integrity" throughout his dealings with the Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company.

In his summation in Coates' preliminary hearing which was adjourned to Saturday for judgment, Mr. Dubin argued that there was no evidence on which Coates could be committed for trial.

The former mayor faces two charges of municipal corruption and one of conspiracy with NONG President Ralph K. Farris in connection with the granting of a natural gas franchise in Bracebridge, 35 miles north of Orillia, to NONG in 1956.

Mr. Dubin said the only thing the Crown has proved is that the accused did receive NONG charge. But, he told Magistrate A. J. Marck, the issue was not the acceptance of stock alone, but the acceptance in consideration for the Bracebridge franchise.

He noted that the Bracebridge council had tentatively agreed to grant the franchise to NONG before Coates was elected in 1956.

Special Prosecutor Harvey McCulloch of Hamilton said in his summation that the magistrate must decide whether there is incriminating evidence that should be submitted to trial.

Earlier, Lorne Love, hotel owner in nearby Port Carling and a friend of Coates, testified the former mayor had given him 150 NONG shares for safe-keeping in 1958 during public hearings of Ontario Energy Board. Mr. Love said he sold the shares for Coates in Toronto in 1962.

After the Coates hearing ends Saturday, Magistrat Marck is scheduled to hear the case of former mayor Wanda Miller of nearby Gravenhurst on similar charges.

Earlier this month, former mayor Wanda Craig of Orillia was committed for trial on municipal corruption and conspiracy charges in Ontario Supreme Court sittings in Barrie next month.

Similar charges against Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, former mayor of Sudbury, were dismissed and Attorney - General Arthur Wishart announced Wednesday no further action would be taken against the Ontario Supreme Court judge.

Molotov Has No Comment

MOSCOW (AP) — Former Soviet foreign minister V M. Molotov brushed off correspondents today while strolling along a downtown Moscow street.

The old Stalinist, asked for comment on the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev as premier, said:

"Some other time. I am very busy now."

Molotov was retired in disgrace after he clashed with Khrushchev in 1957. He lives quietly in Moscow.

Will Require Four Billion Of Risk Capital to Develop Canada's North Resources

EDMONTON (CP) — About $4,000,000,000 will be required in risk capital to develop Canada's northern resources and Canadians should give to play a greater role in the task, says Maurice Strong of Montreal.

Mr. Strong, executive vice-president of Power Corporation of Canada, told the third national northern development conference Thursday at least $2,500,000,000 of this capital must come from private sources.

Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, told more than 300 delegates at the conference that Canadians must be prepared to accept foreign control of industries if they desire an ever-increasing speed-up in resources development.

"This is unfortunate, but it is the price we pay for the relatively rapid development and sale of our natural resources as, which . . . provides us with the so-called high standard of living. . . ."

Northern Affairs Minister Laing said the federal government has let a $250,000 contract for new studies into the feasibility of a national grid which would connect power resources across Canada. A preliminary study had been completed last spring and the further research would be completed by 1966.

The announcement came minutes after G. W. Clayton, chief electrical engineer of H. G. Acres and Company, Niagara Falls, said that until an inventory of Canada's potential energy resources was made "it will not be possible to assess fully the role that undeveloped hydro - electric potential can play in future Canadian development."

Generating capacities in Canada would have to increase to 64,000,000 kilowatts from 23,000,000 by 1967, said Ian M. McKinnon, Ottawa chairman of the National Energy Board. This required an outlay of between $3,200,000,000 and $4,000,000,000 but it was impossible to say what percentage would go to hydro development, conventional thermal plants or nuclear power plants.

Major hydro projects now under construction or planned involved a total generating capacity of 22,088,000 kilowatts.

Long - distance transmission lines offered a possible impetus to hydro development in remote Canadian regions, Mr. McKinnon added.

Next year Hydro-Quebec will put into service a 750-mile, 735,-000-volt alternating current line, longest of its kind in the world.

Dr. Uno Lamm of Wasteras, Sweden, a pioneer in the development of long-distance power transmission facilities, said direct current systems now appeared feasible for distances of up to 3,000 miles provided great voltages were invested. Such facilities in the United States could prove of future benefit to Canada.

Peter J. Celliers, New York, a public relations director with the Mexican National Tourist Council, said money as well as effort and interest were required sites to develop the far north as a vital tourist area.

He suggested a special tourist development fund, to which industries could contribute, be established. It had proved beneficial in Mexico which like Canada, has wilderness areas to develop and promote.

Committee on Flag Design Meets Secretly in Gatineau Hills Without Agreement

Amid wide-spread pessimism over the chances of getting near-unanimity among the 15 committee members on a flag design, the committee's self-imposed deadline for shaping a report to the Commons passed Thursday night without agreement.

A reliable source said further meetings are planned. In its schedule of sittings, the committee had agreed to try to reach a final decision on a report Thursday night.

The committee met secretly Thursday afternoon, forsaking the committee room they have used for the last five weeks for an undisclosed meeting place.

Later, they moved 5 miles north of the capital into the Gatineau Hills for a dinner meeting at the summer residence of Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton on the former estate of Mackenzie King.

One source said the deliberations have reached the stage where "there are prospects" but the source declined to indicate whether they are good or bad prospects of picking a design acceptable to nearly all the MPs.

Another source indicated that the committee's problem centres on the positions taken by some of the seven Liberal MPs and a few of the five Progressive Conservatives.

INSIST ON MAPLE LEAVES

The Liberals—not all of them according to reports—are said to be insisting that the committee recommend a design containing three maple leaves. They are said to be adamant against including the Union Jack in any form.

The Conservatives, on the other hand, are said to be insisting that the Jack be present in some form and that the maple leaf theme be confined to any number of maple leaves except three. Not all Conservatives were said to have gone into Thursday's meeting with that as their stated position.

This is about the point at which the committee began its flag studies after the Commons became deadlocked on the government's resolution proposing a flag of three red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at each side.

The committee did some hard battling Wednesday. Following its meeting, gloomy reports about prospects of agreement filtered through all the parties.

One committee member was reported to be so unhappy at the Wednesday session he was considering not even bothering with the Thursday meeting. However, all members showed up.

Accused Denies Telling Officer He 'Set' Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Wilberow Thursday denied he had told an undercover provincial police constable he set fire to an apartment building last November in which a man died.

Wilberow, 24, of West Lorne, Ont., is charged with non-capital murder by "wilfully setting fire" to a business and apartment building Nov. 3, 1963, in which Frank Welch, 63, also of West Lorne, died. He has pleaded not guilty.

He said he told Const. Joseph Vertolli, supposedly charged with the armed robbery of a cheese factory payroll, that he did not set the fire.

"He asked me: 'Did you set the fire?'" Witherow testified. "I said, no, it did not."

Const. Vertolli testified Wednesday that Witherow had told him shortly after entering the cell he had set the fire, but denied it the following morning.

CROWN ENDS CASE

The Crown's case, conducted by Crown Attorney Peter Gloin, was concluded Wednesday after 14 witnesses had been called and testimony from a police officer who died before the trial had been presented.

Defence counsel Harold Stafford called his 10th and final witness Thursday, Mr. Justice Campbell Grant said the Crown and defence summaries and his charge to the jury should be concluded today.

Witherow also denied telling Harry Robbins, a 19-year-old West Lorne schoolboy that he got $500 for every job he "pulled off."

He said he did not tell Robbins that West Lorne would be a ghost town when he got finished with it.

He did not know who Const. Vertolli was when he entered the jail, Witherow said.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. E. CARVER, Sports Editor

If you are a natural "forest ranger" and love to take these strolls along nature paths or wander on the forest flourished, Algonquin Park is your baby.

Or if you are a canoe buff the Park has fifteen beautiful routes you can follow in the wild beauty of this area.

The Parks Division of Lands and Forests has published a booklet titled Algonquin Park Canoe Routes, which is a beautiful and valuable piece of work.

It describes the routes in detail and also lists what to take in equipment, and what food is necessary for two people for one week. It may be obtained by writing to Parks Division, Department of Lands and Forests, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

And if you are writing for the booklet don't forget to ask for the pamphlet, "How to Survive in the Woods." It is well worth your while if you are a woods wanderer.

It advises you not to panic if you lose your way in the woods. The trees that seem to be closing in are your best friends.

Find Yourself. Before you give yourself up for lost, try to fix your position in relation to the sun, a high hill or a large lake or river. If nothing seems to help, follow the slope of the land down hill; this will often bring you to a lake which may put you back on the trail. (Too bad you don't have a compass to show you the way to go home.)

Save Yourself. Don't wander aimlessly; this will only waste your strength and get you nowhere. For safety's sake, do not climb trees or stumble around in the dark. While you still have daylight find a clearing and make camp. Choose an elevated spot, where rain water will not collect, and build a shelter of green boughs. Stay in the open where you can be seen by searching aircraft. Gather dead, dry wood and build three fires in a triangle. (Three fires or three anything are a distress signal.)

Always carry waterproof matches, sheath knife, snare wire, fish hooks and line, compass, map, pocket first aid kit, fly dope and raisins or sweet chocolate. Ration your food and don't panic!

PICK HAWKS

Just in case you want to do some carry-noson wagering and willing to do it on the basis of the hockey experts' opinions bet your next door neighbor the Chicago Black Hawks will be the team to beat for the NHL championship this season.

The experts are the writers and broadcasters of the six National League cities. Eight of them came up with the Hawks to finish in first place while seven claimed the Leafs would be top-dogs.

The Hawks who have never finished first in 38 years in the NHL barely edged out the three-time world champion Leafs in the pool in which points were awarded on the basis of six for a first-place vote, five for second and so on down the line.

The votes indicated that Montreal will finish third, Detroit fourth, Boston fifth and the New York Rangers sixth. But remember, last year the experts selected the Hawks to take it all and they didn't even get to the finals.

In the poll conducted by the Hockey News, the Canadiens received almost as much attention as the Leafs and the Hawks. The Habs gathered 85 votes, indicating the experts predict a three-team NHL race between the Leafs, Hawks and Canadiens.

It doesn't take too much brain-racking to figure that out but before you wager the cookie-jar change that this will happen remember the Red Wings could very well toss a monkey-wrench into the prediction machinery.

One of the oddities of the poll is the fact that the men who do the selecting have ignored the Maple Leafs three straight years in their balloting and each season the Leafs have come down in front to win the cup.

Marlies Whip Red Wings

Petes Dump Flyers 6-1

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls took its first loss and Peterborough its first win Thursday night, and the pair still shook up both the top and middle rungs of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A standings.

The Petes played well and consistently to dump the Flyers 6-1. Niagara Falls, previously alone atop the league, dropped into a first-place tie with Toronto as the Marlboros staged a come-from-behind victory, 8-4, over last-place Hamilton Red Wings in the only other league action.

Peterborough was in last place with only one tie in three games before meeting the Flyers, who had won three and tied two in their previous contests. Now the Petes share fifth place with Montreal.

SCORE TWO EACH

Dale Watson and Andre Lacroix scored a pair of goals each for Peterborough. Dick Scammell and John Vanderburg one each, with Brian Bradley counting the Niagara Falls goal in the second period.

Two-goal performances also came from Mike Corrigan and Barry Watson of Toronto, as the Leafs scored six goals in the last period to overcome a 3-2 Hamilton lead. Neil Clark, Paul Laurent, Doug Demerville and Brit Selby put the other Marlboro goals.

Cats, Larks Battle In Key Clashes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger - Cats and Montreal Alouettes have little in common this season except their hopes for victories in this weekend's Eastern Football Conference action.

The Ticats lead the conference by two points ann a win against cellar-dwelling Toronto Argonauts at Hamilton Saturday would clinch a first-place finish in the conference, their fourth in four years.

The Alouettes, who lead the Argos by two points, could sew up the EFC playoff berth with a win over second-place Ottawa Rough Riders at Montreal Sunday.

The regular season winds up with Montreal playing Hamilton and Toronto meeting Ottawa.

The Toronto-Hamilton game will be televised on the CBC eastern network Saturday, starting at 2 p.m., while the Ottawa-Montreal clash will be televised on the Eastern network of CTV starting at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Linebacker Jerry Fields is scheduled to return to action with Montreal Sunday. Wilbert Scott will sit out the game and Harold Connor will return as offensive guard.

LOCKLIN TO END

Cooley will team up with Dick Walton, permitting Billy Ray Locklin to play right defensive end.

Coach Frank Clair of the Rough Riders says regulars Ted Watkins, John Henderson and Whit Tucker will not dress. Clair is also considering newcomer Bo Scott as a replacement for Ed Ulmer as defensive halfback.

The Hamilton-Toronto coaching strategy has developed into a mutual admiration society between Nobby Wirkowski of the Argos and Ralph Sazio of the Tiger-Cats.

Wirkowski plans to insert end Dave Pivec at centre for the long, third-down snaps. He was forced into the situation last Sunday against Montreal when Norm Stoneburg, usually a reliable man on the long snap, nearly cost the Argo's the game with his errratic play.

Quarterback Jackie Parker has the nod to start against the Ticats with Karl Sweetan his backup man. Halfback George Hughley is not scheduled to dress.

The Tiger-Cats will go with the same lineup that trounced Ottawa last week. Halfbacks Joe Zuger and Bob Clarkson will be sitting out with injuries.

Toronto's big worry is the return of Willie Bethea who was out during the first part of the season with injuries and absent in two previous meetings with the Argos.

Leafs Came Back In 2-2 Draw

Bruins Had It, Bled It, Tied It

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston's view of the National Hockey League from its accustomed last place appears to be an upside-down that Bruin penalties are needed to enable the team to count points.

Both Bruin goals in Thursday night's 2-2 tie with Toronto in Boston were scored by penalty killer Reg Fleming while his team was shorthanded Boston received only three penalties and the question that might be asked is whether they would have done any better with more infractions.

Bruins blew a two-goal lead and their defences were so weak that only a back-to-the-wall performance by goalie Eddie Johnson preserved a tie. Fleming, traded by Chicago after his last season performance in which he scored only seven goals and six assists while ticking off 140 minutes in penalties, is a favorite with fans hopes alive for a period and a half.

His first marker came assisted by Forbes Kennedy while his teammate Lee Bolwin was sitting out a penalty at 12:38 of the first period.

Good things repeated at 9:38 of the second when he caught the Toronto defence off guard and scored unassisted.

SPARKLED IN NETS

Andy Bathgate scored first for Toronto in the middle of the second period and Bobby Pulford evened the score during a powerful, 18-shot Maple Leaf attack in the third period. His goal was the third of a series of shots at Johnston who made two outstanding saves while lying on the ice.

Johnston was called on to make 33 stops to 17 by Maple Leaf goalie Johnny Bower, considered a fair favorite to be the state of Bruin preparedness.

The tie enabled Toronto to move into a first-place tie with Montreal, both teams having identical records of two wins, two ties and no losses.

Montreal announced Thursday they have lost defenceman Terry Harper for an indefinite period because of a chip fracture in one of lumbar vertebrae suffered in Wednesday night's game when he was checked along the boards by centre Pres Stanfield of Chicago.

However, the club surgeon said the injury is not serious and will not affect Harper's hockey future. He has been replaced by Bryan Watson of the American Hockey League Quebec Aces.

City Club To File Entry In Int. League

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Jim Day, riding The Comet, swept Canada back into the lead Thursday night in international jumping competition at the Pennsylvania National horse show.

The 18-year-old Day, from Toronto, also reclaimed the individual lead that 19-year-old Neil Shapiro had taken Thursday afternoon.

In a tremendous display of sportsmanship, Shapiro gave back the blue and gold sash emblematic of the individual lead even before Monday night's event ended.

Day and The Comet rode two perfect rounds in the international "doubles - and - trebles" event, winning in a jump-off with the blazing time of 33.9 seconds.

Shapiro, riding Jacksorbetter for the fourth straight time, ran into trouble in the first round, knocking down the last fence of a difficult in-and-out hurdle.

ROARS APPROVAL

The crowd roared its approval as the luckless Brazilians posted their first score of the week-long show—a third-place ribbon behind Dr. Gianni Franco Samaja, aboard Mr. Jim.

For a moment it appeared as though Rafael Jimenez, riding Gaylord, would give Mexico its first blue ribbon, but Day's time was 1.3 seconds faster. Jimenez had to settle for second place.

Carol Rohland, 21, of North Branch, N.J., wound up fourth on San Pedro.

With two days of competition remaining, the Canadians hold a 72-64 edge over the United States in unofficial team standings. Day leads Shapiro by eight points, 42-34, in the individual race.

Mexico remained in third place with 32 points, followed by Argentina with 12 and Brazil with four.

Intermediate hockey, absent in Belleville for the past two years, will return to the sporting scene this winter, it was announced following a player meeting last night.

Player-spokesman Stu Moirhead said that the Belleville team, known as the "Ellis Printers," will go ahead and file entry in the eastern section of the OHA when the season opens late League this Sunday.

A league meeting will be held on Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Trenton RCAF Social Centre.

Expected entries for the loop's season are the Napanee Empire's Falcons, Belleville Ellis Printers, Picton (possibly McFarlane Canadians and RCAF Globetrotters.

The Kitchener league's western section has five entries. They are Port Perry, Port Hope, Cobourg, Brooklin and Bowmanville.

Belleville will hold an open practice ice on Sunday afternoon from 3:00 to 5:00 o'clock, under the eye of one of the city's most experienced hockey men.

The team announced last night that Glen "Chicken" Sutherland agreed yesterday to handle the coaching job.

Goyer, well-known in both playing and officiating ends of the game here for many years, was a popular choice with fans among the players attending the meeting and sponsor Richard Ellis.

Another experienced city sportsman has been appointed to manage the team and expects to reach a decision on the matter within a few days.

Last night's meeting was called to determine the number of interest players in the city and spokesman Muirhead said the response was good.

"There were about nine players turned out for the meeting but a number of others, unable to attend, said they definitely wanted to play," he said.

Muirhead said Goyer expected to see from 20 to 30 candidates in all out for the early workouts. Players have been asked to bring their own equipment this Sunday since the newly-formed club has none as yet.

A number of experienced players, including Dave Jones, Ralph Plaue, Floyd Crawford, Don Barclay, Wayne "Weber" Hunter, Ernest Geegan, John "Shaker" Baker, Lionel Boily and others, are members of the club at this time. Most have been working out with other clubs.

The team expressed confidence of operating on a tight budget since the loop's four expected entries are so closely grouped. The longest trip would be to Napanee, 25 miles away.

Ellis' expect to play home games at Memorial Arena on Sunday evenings, with admission worked through a booster-type membership card and/or silver collections.

Steelers End Rumor Of Shift

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers ended rumors they might move their National Football League franchise by announcing Thursday its plans a proposed new stadium on the city's north side for 4C years and development of a letter of intent signed by Steelers' president Art Rooney was made at a press conference by Mayor Joseph M. Barr.

The action by Rooney means both of Pittsburgh's major league teams are set for action in the proposed new $20,000,000 stadium.

Pittsburgh Pirates, the city's baseball representative, agreed earlier to terms of a 40-year lease. Both leases are expected to be confirmed around Dec. 1.

Saskatchewan Roughriders are out of the running this year but still vitally interested in winning a Western Football Conference match Saturday night.

The low five points behind British Columbia Lions and unable to overtake Lions for first place, Riders still need a victory in the game at Vancouver to reestablish a winning frame of mind.

They were defeated 42-0 in Calgary last Saturday night and have beaten Lions only once in the last nine tries. This year the scores have been 27-16 and 17-2, both in Lions' favor.

The Stampeders, still shooting for first place and only a point behind the Lions, go into Edmonton for a game against the Eskimos Saturday night.

The Lions, who have three games remaining to Calgary's two, will lock up first place and a bye into the playoff finals with any combination of B.C. wins or Calgary losses adding up to two.

Veterans Lead Tournament

CORONA, Calif. (AP)—Jack McGowan of Largo, Fla., and Howie Johnson of Palm Springs, Calif., two veteran professionals with a minimum of success on the pro golf tour, shared the first-round lead in the $40,000 Mountain View Open Thursday with five-under-par 66s.

McGowan, 53, never a winner on the PGA tour, posted 31-35 on the par 36-35—71 Mountain View course. Johnson, 39, who hasn't won a tournament since 1959, shot a 32-34.

Two shots back at 68 were Dow Cupit of the golf club and Jack Rule of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rule's round was highlighted by a hole-in-one, the first of his career.

Seven other players, including Dick Sikes, who won his first tournament in the Sahara Invitational last week in Las Vegas, were tied at 69.

Jerry Magee and Al Balding, both of Toronto, shot rounds of 72 each. Magee is par of the course in 37-35 and Balding made it in 36-36.

Mayor Asks Giles' Help

MILWAUKEE (AP)—National League president Warren Giles has been asked to use his influence to bring about the sale of the Braves to a group of Milwaukee men who have offered more than $6,000,000 for the club.

The request, made Thursday night by Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier, was coupled with a call for immediate expansion of the league as "a direct way out of the current confusion over the Braves' desire to move to Atlanta."

Maier's suggestion was endorsed by Democratic Representative Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, who had threatened a Congressional investigation of baseball because of the Braves' owner's attempts to move to Atlanta while they have a year remaining on their rental contract for County Stadium.

Russia Wins Olympics Championship

Powerful Comeback

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP)—Russia won a total of 19 medals including seven gold, to overcome a United States lead on the final full day of competition today at the Olympic Games and take the over-all medal championship with 96 medals to 90 for the Americans.

The Russians swept three of the 10 boxing championships, took two of the five gymnastic titles, captured the men's team sabre fencing and the men's volleyball, but lost the women's volleyball gold to Japan.

The United States won two more gold medals, taking the basketball championship and the heavyweight boxing title to bring its total to 36, more than any other country. Russia had a total of 30 gold medals.

There are two final equestrian events remaining—the individual and team grand prix jumping —before the closing ceremonies Saturday, but neither the Russians nor Americans are expected to do much in them.

COME FROM BEHIND

In a thrilling basketball final, the unbeaten U.S. squad defeated Russia 73-59 but the Americans had to come from behind early in the game to turn the trick. It was the sixth straight Olympics the U.S. has won the basketball gold medal and it also was the 47th straight win without defeat for the Americans.

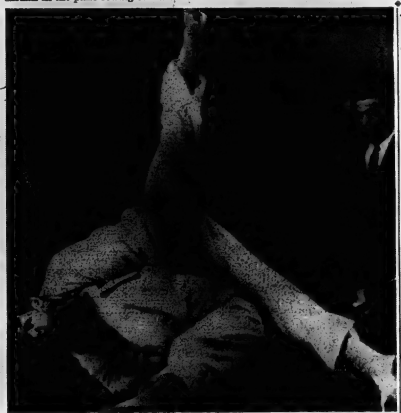
Big Joe Frazier, a 20-year-old slaughter house worker from Philadelphia, outpointed Germany's Hans Huber to win the heavyweight boxing title.

But the Russians captured the gold medals in the feather-weight, light middleweight and middleweight classes, and got four silver medals when four other Russians were beaten. All losers in the finals were awarded second - placed silver medals.

Poland's hard-hitting boxers won three gold medals, beating Russians each time in the light-weight, light welterweight and welterweight classes. Italy won two gold medals in the fly weight and light - heavyweight classes while Japan took the bantamweight gold award.

THIRD STRAIGHT TITLE

It was the big showing in boxing and gymnastics that enabled the Russians to win their third straight unofficial team championship in the last four Olympics.



While the gymnasts were not up to the form that brought them 10 gold medals in 1960, they won enough silver and bronze medals to go with their four gold to help put the Soviet team on top of the final standing by a narrow margin.

Volleyball Gold Medal To Russia

TOKYO (CP)—Russia's onrushing Olympics forces won the gold medal in volleyball today when its powerful team blasted Brazil off the court.

The Russians beat Brazil 3-0, and wound up its competition here with only one loss in the 10-country round robin—to the agile Japanese team several days ago.

Czechoslovakia won the silver medal by easily beating Korea 3-0 today, and Japan took the bronze by beating The Netherlands 3-1.

Czechoslovakia's only loss was to Russia. Japan lost two, to Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The Russian women's volleyball team was certain of a medal, playing Japan later today to break a points tie. Poland already has won the women's bronze medal.

HIRE BECKER

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals announced Thursday the hiring of Joe Becker as pitching coach for 1965. Becker, 52, managed Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in 1952. He was hired under Red Schoendienst, new St. Louis manager, to replace Howard Pollet, who resigned to devote more time to his Houston insurance business.

US Wins Olympics Hoop Title

TOKYO (CP) — The United States came from behind tonight to defeat Russia 73-59 and win the Olympic basketball championship for the sixth consecutive time.

Lucious Jackson paced the Americans, who overcame a sloppy start to lead 39-31 at half time. It was the 47th consecutive victory for U.S. teams in basketball since the event was added to Olympics competition in 1936.

Both teams entered the final with 8-0 records and the tall, tireless Russians were rated a strong chance to beat the defending champions.

An overflow crowd of 5,000 in the 4,200-seat National Gymnasium annex saw the Russian give the Americans a scare in the first part of the first half when they grabbed a 14-11 lead.

Compare the age, plainly marked on each bottle of Wiser's whisky with any other brands in their price classes. You will find, on the average Wiser's whiskies are older. And "older" to Wiser's means aged in wood . . . and "married" in wood — a process of returning the spirits to wood after final blending for a further period of quiet aging. So for the best whiskies, the best value — drink one that's OLDER and WISER'S.

For good values in well aged whiskies: Wiser's De Luxe, 10 years old; Wiser's 101, 6 years old; Wiser's Old Rye, 5 years old; Wiser's Special Blend, 4 years old.

WISER'S

Coffey Near 2 Records

REGINA (CP)—End Tommy-Joe Coffey of Edmonton Eskimos is on the verge of setting two pass-receiving records with two games left in the Western Football Conference season.

Statistics released Thursday showed Coffey has gained 1,029 yards on 62 pass receptions in the 14 scheduled games played this season. He needs eight more passes and 97 yards to equal the WFC single-season records for receptions and yards gained.

Calgary Stampeders' flanker Bobby Taylor set the mark for receptions with 74 last year. End Ernie Pitts of Winnipeg Blue Bombers picked up a record 1,126 yards on pass receptions in 1959.

So far this season Taylor has 57 passes for 817 yards in 14 games. Flanker Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan Roughriders has caught 56 for 824 yards.

Determined To Shift To Atlanta
Braves Fight Injunction Blocking Move

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee Braves, determined to move their franchise, will seek to set aside a court order that blocked their initial efforts to play in Atlanta next year.

The Braves' board of directors was all set to ask for National League approval Thursday but was unable to do so because of the temporary restraining order awarded to the Milwaukee County Commission by a Wisconsin circuit court.

As a result, the league decided at a special meeting to delay any vote of approval until the club's free legally to leave Wisconsin.

The county bases its case on a breach of contract since the Braves' pact provides that the club perform at County Stadium in Milwaukee in 1965.

William Bartholomay, chairman of the Braves' board of directors, acknowledged the legal manoeuvre was a temporary setback but expressed confidence the club will be able to show cause before Circuit Court Judge Ronald Deschert next Tuesday why it should be permitted to leave Milwaukee.

At Tuesday's hearing in Milwaukee, it will be decided whether an injunction shall be granted against the proposed move.

WOULD BE BLOW

Should an injunction be granted, it would be a severe blow to Atlanta's hopes of having a major league club in 1965. A 52,000-seat stadium costing $18,000,000 is halfway completed and was expected to be ready for the Braves next April.

National League president Warren Giles said: "I anticipate another league meeting as soon as the restraining order is lifted — which should be soon."

Another reason the league delayed its vote which had every aspect of being in favor of the move, was the threat made by Eugene Grobschmidt, chairman of the Milwaukee County Board, to sue the league and the other nine club owners, as well, if approval was given.

Thomas Reynolds, a major stockholder in the Braves, said the club was prepared to make any financial settlement with the county to cover rental and concessions.

"We regard this the same as if we fired a manager who still had a year remaining on his contract," he said. "In that case, he would be paid his full contract. That is what we are prepared to do in this case."

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two more players gained entry to the ever-crowded last rung in the National Hockey League's big seven scoring leaders as a result of Thursday night's 3-3 tie between Toronto and Boston.

Toronto's Frank Mahovlich's assist pushed him up a notch from a tie for fourth slot to a tie for third place with teammate Red Kelly.

Kent Douglas didn't pick up any points but remains the leader, a bit of a surprise considering his showing last year when he couldn't hang onto his Maple Leaf slot. He has a goal and league-leading seven assists for eight points.

Kelly's third-place total of five is made up of three goals and two assist while Mahovlich has two goals and three assists.

The massive scramble for fifth spot is shared by 13 players, the latest: Toronto's Andy Bathgate and Bob Pulford who both scored.

Brundage Stops IBM Tabling

TOKYO (AP) — Avery Brundage of Chicago, International Olympic Committee president who instructed International Business Machines Corporation to discontinue the compilation of medals by nations, said today the medal tables "are completely misleading."

"If an Olympic ranking is wanted it should be on a per capita basis which will tell an entirely different story," the official said in a statement released by the Games' organizing committee.

"On such a basis, it is the smaller nations like Hungary, Australia, Finland, etc., which are Olympic heroes," Brundage said.

The Chicago hotel owner always has been against the unofficial point system which news media have used in the past.

For three games, IBM, which has been handling the results through a vast electronic system, put out a table of medals by countries until directed to stop by Brundage on Thursday.

The release, giving Brundage's views, said further:

"No one should be forgotten the newly developed countries which have sent teams for the first time in compliance with the Olympic philosophy: 'The important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well.'"

Brundage went on:

"The Olympic Games are contests between individuals and not between nations and cannot be used to measure different social or political systems."

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jane B Byrd, a five-year-old mare, scored her fourth win in four outings in capturing the sixth race at the Western Fair Raceway Thursday night, pacing the mile in 2:11 2-5 for the fastest time of the night.

Jane B Byrd has had three in a row at the London oval and won her final appearance at Richard' before being shipped here. Despite her previous record, she returned $5.80 for the win in the $400-purse event.

The feature event of the night, for a purse of $600 went to Pierre Herbert in the ninth. He trotted the mile in 2:11 3-5 over a sloppy track and returned $6.80 for the win.

MONTREAL, (CP) — The power-play goal has taken on some early season significance in the National Hockey League. Of 56 goals scored by the six teams in the NHL's first 10 games, 23 came with a team holding a man advantage. In the first 10 games last season, power plays accounted for only 13 of 59 goals.

The information is contained in figures released Thursday by the league.

The figures may indicate a weakness in a team's penalty killing unit. But they appear to have nothing to do with stricter officiating, rigid, new rules on face-offs and interference infractions.

For the first 10 games, at least, there has not been an appreciable gain in the overall number of penalties called.

CALL 121 MINORS

Referees called 121 minor penalties, the same as in the first 10 games last season This year there has been one more major and three more misconducts than in the similar 10 game period last season.

Toronto Maple Leafs were the best power-play team in the first 10 games, scoring at better than 50-per-cent clip—five times on nine instances when they had a man advantage. But the Leaf penalty - killing team, best in the league last season, was the least effective during that period, giving up six goals while shorthanded 18 times. The Leafs have not been known for a destructive power play in recent seasons.

New York Rangers, led by Lou Angotti who scored three of their six power-play goals, had a scoring percentage of 25 with the extra man, and killed off 79 per cent of their penalties successfully.

Next was Detroit Red Wings, with four goals on 17 opportunities, for a 23.5 percentage. They had a 69.2 percentage on penalty - killing, giving up three goals during the 12 times they were shorthanded.

KILL PENALTIES

Montreal Canadiens were better penalty killers than power play opportunists. They scored only three goals in 13 power-play situations, but permitted only two goals in the 3 times they were shorthanded, a comfortable 84.6 per cent average.

Boston Bruins, with three goals on 10 extra-man chances, had a 15.8 percentage, and their penalty - killing average was 77.8.

Worst power-play team in the 10 games was Chicago Black Hawks, a mark of 9.1 percentage, scoring only two goals during the 17 times the opposition was shorthanded.

But the Hawks made up for it with their penalty - killing team. the best in the league's opening games, which conceded only two goals when shorthanded, for an 88.2 per cent average.

'Dancer' Back In Training

TORONTO (CP) — Northern Dancer, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes this year, is back in training. However, it won't be known until next March whether the horse will ever race again.

Luro supervised the unloading of the Dancer from a van after an all-night trip from New York.

Field Hockey Gold Medal Won By India

TOKYO (CP) — India beat Pakistan 1-0 today to win the gold medal at Olympic field hockey competition.

Pakistan took the silver medal while the third - place bronze went to Australia.

At the moment of the final whistle Indian spectators in the crowd of 2,000 at the Komazawa Hockey Stadium poured on to the playing field and embraced the Indian players. India's win revenged the loss to Pakistan in the 1960 Olympics at Rome.

A fight threatened once when Pakistan's coach - forward Muhammed Afzal raised his stick as if to strike India's right-back Prithi Pal Singh. But players from both teams ran toward each other. There was just pushing but order was soon restored.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—A foreign-bred horse is again favored to take the $50,000 Canadian championship Stakes at Woodbine Racetrack here Saturday. But, for the first time since 1953, a Canadian - owned thoroughbred is highly rated in the 1-mile race on the turf.

Will I Rule, a four-year-old gelding owned by F. E. Nicol of Philadelphia, is the lone American entry—and the favorite—in a race which hasn't been won by a Canadian horse since Navy Page in 1954.

However, track experts feel Greek Form, a five-year-old horse owned by Willow Downs Farm of Toronto, has a good chance is catch the American horse.

Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., seventh leading rider in North America and current leader at New York's Aqueduct Park, will ride Will I Rule as he did when the gelding won the Niagara Handicap at Fort Erie Racetrack in August, its only other start in Canada.

Greek Form, who will be ridden by Jim Fitzsimmons, has won five races this year, including his last three starts at Woodbine, among them the $18,200 Jockey Club Cup.

Quebec's State Secretary Suggests English-Speaking Provinces Change Programs

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—The state Secretary Lamontagne suggested Thursday night that the English-speaking provinces revise their education programs.

WILL GET SUPPORT

"But it is quite clear that if the state is to succeed in changing the status quo and in working out a reasonable compromise, they will get the general support of the French-Canadian people.

"This compromise will require important adjustments in the economic, cultural and political fields.

"French Canadians, especially in Quebec, should be able to participate fully in the direction of their economic life without having to give up their culture.

"This increasing participation should be part of a general plan that private corporations ought to initiate as quickly as possible in order to adjust to the cultural and social environment."

Balcer Wants Constitution Of Equality, Partnership

TORONTO (CP)—Leon Balcer, Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker's Quebec lieutenant, said Thursday Canada should write a new constitution that guarantees the equality and partnership of French- and English-Canadians.

The deputy leader of the Progressive Conservative party said the century-old guide for distributing powers between federal and provincial governments should be scrapped and a royal commission appointed to draft a new one.

"It should be an organic (living) document with a proper preamble expressing the goals of our country, including a bill of rights . . . and an operative section that takes into account our federative system and the fact that we are a country which is composed of two founding races of different language and religion," he told a luncheon meeting of the Empire Club of Toronto.

The former federal transport minister, member of Parliament for Trois-Rivieres, Que., for 15 years, said the British North America Act of 1867—basic document in the present constitution — should be scrapped because it inspires only "boredom and embarrassment."

WOULD HELP

An "essentially Canadian" constitution would help repair relations between French and English Canada, he said, and "must insure the equality and status of the two major groups and their partnership."

A royal commission composed of federal and provincial representatives, prominent historians, economists and lawyers would serve as an "escape valve" for some of the discontent in Quebec's social revolution, Mr. Balcer said.

It would be "a useful forum for all these busy intellectuals and provide a purpose for their exercises," he said.

Mr. Balcer said after the speech that it expressed his personal view and did not represent the opinion of his party or any group in it.

Two Newspapers Suggest Enquiry Into Royal Visit

MONTREAL (CP) — Two newspapers in Quebec province —one of the English-language, the other French—have suggested a public inquiry into the events surrounding the Queen's visit to Quebec City.

The suggestions formed part of their editorial comment on a one-man report made by Solicitor-General Claude Wagner about charges that police brutality marked the sometimes stormy two days of the visit, Oct. 10-11.

The idea of a public inquiry was broached in the editorial columns of two Montreal newspapers, Le Devoir and The Star. Le Soleil, a French-language paper in Quebec City, remarks that the possibility of a "deeper" investigation than that carried out by Mr. Wagner "should not be ruled out."

Claude Ryan, publisher of the French-language Devoir, wrote his paper's editorial. He termed the report "too personal, too subjective."

The Star says a public inquiry could call on persons harboring complaints to make them in the form of testimony. Such an inquiry "could also dispel any suggestion of partisanship in the minister's inquiry."

BACKS WAGNER

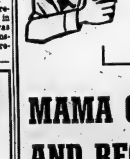
The solicitor-general draws strong backing from Lorenzo Pare, the editor of the Quebec city newspaper L'Action.

Mr. Wagner said in his seven-page report to Premier Lesage that separatists, university students, thugs from Montreal and a small group of reporters caused most of the trouble during the Royal Visit. A total of 23 arrests were made as a result of disturbances.

Mr. Pare, who won prominence at the time of the Duplessis era, says the press in Quebec and elsewhere made "hysterical" elements look like prominent people and thus served as "the origin of a veritable hysteria."

Mr. Ryan wrote in Le Devoir that he has no doubts about the reliability of press reports on the events that occurred during the visit.

"Taken together, they were unanimous in showing the excessive brutality, the intemperate zeal of the Quebec police," he wrote Thursday.



The Montreal Gazette says "it is not in the least surprising that the police acted excited at times with a degree of haste and severity that was regrettable.

"What happened would not be defended. But the circumstances were such that what the police did would be understandable, even excusable."

"Nothing can turn a political act," was how the report was described by Robert Marcotte, president of the Laval University Students Association.

Le Soleil takes special exception to the report's "very severe" strictures against the press.

The press did give exaggerated importance to separatist elements, Le Soleil says, but the paper goes on:

CBS' 'The Defenders' One Program That Has Quality

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) —Viewers are likely to become more and more grateful that there is at least one program of high quality of CBS The Defenders, as we move deeper into the current television season.

Its scripts range from the warm and sentimental, like the excellent The Year Old Gang a few weeks back, to the broadly humorous, like Thursday night's Conflict of Interest. No matter what the mood, the material and characters usually are intelligent, the treatments civilized and the production polished.

Thursday night's effort, however, was pretty far out even for The Defenders. It was based on a libel suit brought by an explosive avant garde playwright against a rather silly British critic. The meat of the story was the battle of wits between a clever young lawyer and the father-in team of lawyers.

Usually, E. G. Marshall's role is that of stern and relentless defence counsel, with an assist from Robert Reed, who plays his son. Perhaps the program structure's credibility is suggesting that junior was a really big naive kid. It was hard to believe that the established character could be so completely taken in by the pretty lady law prof's obvious famme fatale tactics.

But it was all in good fun and a nice change of pace for the performers and audience.

Springhill Well on Way To Recovery After Disaster In '58 That Took 75 Lives

By DICK ANDRES
Canadian Press Correspondent

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — "There will always be a Springhill, said the late mayor Ralph Gilroy on Oct. 23, 1958, when this Cumberland County coal mining town was stricken by its third major disaster in two years — an earth - shaking "bump or cave-in in No. 2 colliery that took the lives of 75 miners.

Today, six years later, this prediction could not be more accurate. The town seems well on the way to recovery through the establishment of new industry and the recent announcement that an early start will be made on construction of a new $8,000,000 federal medium-security penal institution.

It was another "Blaze Thursday for Springhill in 1956 when a terrific underground upheaval, locally called a "bump, trapped 174 miners. Eighty - one crawled out during the first 24 hours and another 18 made "miracles — 12 more rescued after being entombed six days and six more freed after eight days.

The first of the three disasters came on Thursday, Nov. 1, 1956, when an explosion in No. 4 mine caught 127 miners under ground. Only 88 were rescued alive and the mine was sealed permanently. A third disaster again in 1957 when a $1,500,000 Boxing Day fire swept the entire main street, wiping out nearly a dozen business establishments and adding to the community's financial woes.

The 1958 tragedy ended the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company's mining operations in Springhill. The closure of No. 2 mine threw 900 men out of work.

Today there is a new hustle in evidence on the town's hilly main street. Even before 1956 when upwards of 1,000 men were working daily in the two pits, the genial miners gave themselves lots of time en route to and from the collieries to talk with old friends and cronies. The never-say-die spirit that the late mayor Gilroy so strongly emphasized in the dark days of 1958 is producing results today.

Two years ago a modern new hospital to replace the aged All Saints Hospital that was the stage for many dramatic scenes as trapped and injured mine survivors were united with their families. A new federal building replaces the familiar old post office whose, walls were cracked by the previous "bump."

A new mine is operating, employing slightly over 100 men. New industries include a woodworking plant and a battery factory. There's a new vocational high school and a minimum-security correctional institution that occupies the old mining site.

New stores and other buildings have been erected in the gaps the fire opened on main street. Many private dwellings have taken on a new look as the result of inspired efforts by the owners.

The Springhill office of the National Employment Service, which also covers the towns of Oxford and Parrsboro, listed only 232 males registered unemployed at the end of September. That's a sharp reduction over last year when 332 were listed.

FAMILIES MIGRATE

This low unemployment figure is due in large measure to the fact that the population—7,600 in 1956 — dropped by nearly 2,000 as families moved away in search of employment.

Springhillers can be found almost anywhere in Canada and the eastern United States. Attleboro, Mass., for instance, is called little Springhill by residents here due to the fact that a large number of their friends and neighbors migrated to that city where they work in a jewellery manufacturing plant.

Some commute from Springhill to nearby Amherst, N.S., and Dorchester, N.B., where a group of younger men are taking apprenticeship training for employment in the new penal institution when it is built.

Those who remain in Springhill are optimistic and more than ever echo the sentiments expressed by the late Ralph Gilroy on that fateful Thursday six years ago.

TODAY-SATURDAY
LAST 4 DAYS
Judge Can't Jail
Pregnant Sophia!

One of the oldest laws in the Italian Penal Code is the genesis for one of the episodes in Joseph E. Levine's romantic-comedy "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," which opens tonight and Saturday at the Park Theatre, through Embassy Pictures release. Starring Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni, the trilogy is in color and wide-screen.

The law (article 136) states that no expectant mother can be imprisoned until 8 months after her child is born. Fifteen years ago, Mrs. Concetta Muccado, a Neapolitan woman convicted of selling black market cigarettes, avoided jail for five years by bearing seven children. When, during a barren year, she was finally sent to jail, an Italian newspaper raised enough money to pay her heavy confiscated fine. It also raised enough furor to persuade the authorities to commute the sentence.

In the film adaptation of Mrs. Muccado's struggle with the law, Miss Loren portrays the perennially pregnant Neapolitan woman and Mastroianni her hard-pressed husband.

Complete shows tonight 7.00 and 9.20. Saturday 5.00-7.15-9.30 p.m. A matinee matinee show for children starts at 1.00 and ending at 4.35 p.m.

This Is Where the Ducks Are, Men!

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — When Austin Reed wants to find a black duck he knows just where to go.

He takes off for Ile aux Pommes, an inhospitable rock-grass island near the mouth of the Saguenay River, 150 miles northeast of Quebec City.

"For some reason we don't know about yet, the island has the highest concentration of black duck nests in northern Canada, and is equal to the highest concentrations found in the United States," Reed says.

"I have been able to estimate that there are slightly more than 50 pair of black ducks using the island."

Reed's interest is not in hunting the black ducks. He's a 24-year - old waterfowl biologist, the Quebec government's first, and he is engaged in a detailed study of the black ducks.

Little is known of the species that abounds in the northeastern section of North America. Ducks hunters, however, consider it the most important of any single species of game duck," Reed says. "It's shy and wary and is a great challenge to hunters who must hide in blinds and use decoys, calls and lure it into firing range.

Reed hopes his study, which has been going on for two years, will lead to better conservation and hunting regulations.

BOON TO HUNTERS

"It is of great interest to biologists to have a complete understanding of the life history of these species. Information on reproduction is particularly important if we want to know how best to establish the number of birds we can safely leave at the end of a hunting season so as to reproduce enough young for another hunting season on the next spring."

Ile aux Pommes, the black duck paradise, is just one mile long and 600 feet wide. Its population of 1,000 nesting pairs is spread over acres of the island's observations by lantern light.

"My normal day would start by looking for nests. I'd usually start about seven o'clock in the morning to let the birds get settled for the day. I'd spend about four hours nest-hunting, another two hours in a blind watching the activity of a bird at its nest."

29 DAYS TO HATCH

Although the study is far from complete, Reed has been able to come up with a few conclusions.

The average number of eggs per nest is 9½; it takes an average of 29 days for the eggs to hatch; and about 39 per cent of nests reach the hatching stage.

Reed isn't satisfied that his estimates reflect what happens under normal conditions, however.

"I consider that last year, living on the island, I disturbed the birds too much, and probably my nesting figures.

"This year I'm trying something different to avoid close and constant contact with them. By visiting the island one or two days a week and leaving the birds undisturbed the rest of the time, I feel I can get better results."

And this year the job isn't lonely. His bride of a few months accompanies him as a field assistant.

'My Fair Lady' as Great On Screen as on Stage

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP)—The news about My Fair Lady is all good. On the screen as on the stage, it remains supreme entertainment.

There was no need to sound a legions of My Fair Lady lovers when Warner Brothers bought the show for a record $5,500,000. Would the studio attempt to enhance its investment with a super - production such as marred the films of Rodgers and Hammerstein hits?

Such fears are allayed by the finished product. The film is faithful but not slavish to the original. As an adaptation — or solely on its merits as a movie it is well might faultless.

The casting of Audrey Hepburn as Eliza Doolittle raised some eyebrows. They may now be lowered. While it takes a few moments to get used to her as the smuged flower girl, her transformation to a lady is accomplished with rare beauty and delight. Even her singing is believable, though most of the audience is aware of the aid of an offscreen soprano.

Nothing new can be said of the performance of Rex Harrison beyond observing that it is one of the classic characterizations of the century.

DECOR IS NOTABLE

Jack L. Warner, personally producing his first movie in decades — he normally oversees other producers — spent a reported $17,000,000. The film was all shot under roof in Burbank, it remains supreme entertainment.

George Cukor directed My Fair Lady with impeccable taste. Alan Jay Lerner, who wrote the original book and lyrics to Frederick Loew's great melodies, wisely chose to adapt the film himself. All the memorable lines remain intact—and amazingly fresh. Lerner has also added some transitional scenes which help progress the plot.

It is considered poor reviewing form to compare a work with its original source, but the temptation is inescapable. The Harrison arias seamed to be equally well done in the film, while I Could Have Danced All Night and the Ascot Gavotte were even more sparkling than on the stage.

Oddly, With A Little Bit of Luck and Get Me to the Church On Time do not register as well. Stanley Holloway (the only other of the original cast beside Harrison) is capital, but the numbers lack the raucous musical quality they had on the stage.

As of now, My Fair Lady appears the favorite in the Oscar derby, in all departments.

NEW GERSHWIN SONGS

The new movie, "Kiss Me, Stupid," will have three previously unpublished songs by George Gershwin in its score.

We have a new ranch bungalow with 3-car garage situated on a 100' lot, or if you prefer a smaller cheaper home we have a 3 or 4 bedroom home on the west hill with 3-car garage. Terms to suit. Money available for trade or straight sale.

the women's gymnastics but Russia's dethroned queen, Larisa Latynina, still collected the largest number of medals—one gold, two silver and three bronze—with a total of five exercises. The Russian women took the team title.

In the men's competition Japan picked up five gold and four silver medals while the Russians, who once dominated the sport completely, had to be contented with only two gold, a silver and two bronze medals.

CZECH GIRL TOPS

The best individual medal won by the Russian men was by Boris Shakhlin in the horizontal bar event.

In the windup of the gymnastics today, Japan's Yukio Endo asserted his dominance as the world's greatest gymnast, capturing the third gold medal of the games in the men's parallel bars finale to become undisputed Shakhlin as all-around individual champion and was a member of the winning Japanese men. team that got the all-around gold.

In all, the Russian gymnasts today won two gold, four silver and one bronze.

Overshadowing the best single day's performance for the Soviet team. Their 19 medals included seven gold, 10 silver and two bronze.

Utilities Manager Given New Four-Year Contract

CAMPBELLFORD — The P.U.C. held their regular meeting on October 20th, a week later than the regular date.

A letter had been received from the Ontario Municipal Commission as follows: "Your Mr. Kellogg attended the Intermediate Water Works Operator's course held September 28th to October 2nd at the commission laboratory and obtained an "A" grade in the examination held at the end of the course.

The examination results were placed in classes according to the following classification A (80 to 100%); B (65-80); C (50-65); Under 50".

Paul Kellogg became operator of new filtration plant in early fall and the results of the P.U.C. felt they had chosen wisely and expressed their gratification.

Manager James McMullen was given a new four-year contract.

The commission had agreed to underwrite the expense of the luncheon for the Industrial Day and carried out the agreement, at the meeting on Monday night. There was no further request from the Chamber of Commerce to underwrite the expense of refreshments for the luncheon, stating the Chamber of Commerce was short of funds. The P.U.C. Commission refused to pay the added expense of refreshments for the luncheon.

Four Injured When Tractor, Car Collide

CAMPBELLFORD — Four young men, employees of Bank of Montreal in Campbellford were involved in a car and tractor accident on County Road 31, just east of Campbellford.

Driver of the car William Pickering was taken to Civic Hospital with a broken jaw, he is reported in satisfactory condition. Douglas Marcelle was also taken to Civic with undetermined chest injuries. Douglas Jacquest was retained in Camp. Hillcrest Memorial Hospital for observation. John Donald, the fourth occupant of the car suffered shock.

Arthur Stephens, driver of the tractor was admitted to hospital with lacerations and kept for treatment of undetermined injuries.

The four bank employees were on their way to a bank meeting in Belleville when the car crashed into the rear of the tractor.

The tractor had two red lights on the back and head lights on the front. The impact threw Mr. Stephens backwards off the tractor into the windshield of the crashing car. The car had to be pried away from the tractor with crow bars.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP)—The current session of Parliament, already breaking precedents for lack of holiday inducements, is also breaking records in longevity.

Today is the 175th sitting day of the session, which began last week Feb. 18. The longest previous session was 174 days, in 1960-61.

But the 1960-61 session took recesses for both Easter and summer. This session will be forever known as the Coyne session, when the former Conservative speaker was forced to dismiss Bank of Canada governor James Coyne by legislation — a bill which the Senate, in a non-boiled, permitting Mr. Coyne to resign after dramatic committee hearings.

This session — for which no end is yet in sight—started out with high Government hopes of being one to bring about a truly Canadian Canada, as one minister put it.

The object was to have a new Canadian flag, a constitution fully domestic in Canada, a Canada Pension Plan, new cooperation with the provinces, a new federal-provincial tax and government departments and responsibilities.

So far, the flag issue is still locked up in a closed committee. Provincial opting out of pensions on the constitutional amendment formula, a new draft of the Pensions legislation has to be introduced, legislation still has to be passed dealing with federal-provincial tax collections, and promised new departments of government have not yet been created.

Along with session length and its inability to agree even on taking a recess, Parliament has established a record of talk. The printed Hansard record of Commons discussion passed the 9,000-page mark 10 days ago Transcripts of committee proceedings, as well, is a comparable mountain of paper.

Harbor Labor Dispute May End Today

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's stevedores and cargo checkers were to vote today on proposals they could end a labor dispute that left Toronto harbor idle Thursday. Eighteen ships were tied up.

Union officials have promised that if the proposals are accepted, about 600 members of Locals 1842 and 1869 of the International Longshoremen's Union (CLC) will return to work about 1 p.m., a harbor commission spokesman said.

A joint letter by the Toronto Harbor Commission and five stevedoring firms had accused the locals of violating their collective agreements by failing to discipline errant workers.

Strikers Given Five Days Each For Obstruction

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Robert Fraser and Frederick Bleker, striking employees of the Welverine Tube plant here, were sentenced to five days in jail each Thursday for obstructing police during an outbreak of violence near the factory Sept. 22.

Two other strikers, Arthur Jadischke and Harvey Cornell, were freed Jadischke was acquitted by Magistrate J. D. Ogg, who found the charge of obstruction against him did not contain the word "wilfully" and was thus defective.

The Crown then withdrew a charge of obstruction against Cornell. It also did not use the word "wilfully."

The Criminal Code says "everyone who resists or wilfully obstructs a police officer in the execution of his duty . . . is guilty of an indictable offence."

IS CONVICTED

Fraser was convicted of obstructing Const. William Egan while the officer was trying to arrest two strikers on the picket plant during disturbances in which police were jostled, one car overturned, a car and bus were overturned and burned and stones were thrown at non-strikers.

A second charge against Fraser of causing wilful damage to a car, owned by a non-striker, was dismissed. He was accused of breaking an aerial off a car as it entered the plant.

Bleker was convicted of obstructing Const. Harold Pym.

Calgary Herald Starts New Printing Press

CALGARY (CP) — Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta pressed a button to start a 600-ton, high-speed press Thursday as part of official opening ceremonies of the Calgary Herald's new mechanical building additions and expanded facilities valued at $5,000,000.

Premier Manning was joined by officials of Southam Press Limited, newspaper executives, businessmen, industrialists and government leaders who attended the opening.

St. Clair Balfour, president of Southam Press, used a printer's rule to strike newsprint from a plaque commemorating the event.

Premier Manning said the present time is a serious and significant stage in the history of journalism.

"Complex relations between business and labor pose a well - informed public which is essential to the preservation of a democratic society.

"The news media are one of the most effective agencies for public enlightenment. The men who stand between the news print and the product, and what they do and make, have a profound impact on the future course of the world today."

US Military Budget Won't Show Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara says neither the Kremlin shake-up nor Chinese nuclear detonation will bring any significant increase in next year's U.S. military budget.

Speaking of U.S. nuclear might Thursday at a press conference, McNamara said "these forces are adequate to survive a surprise attack upon this country, and survive with sufficient power to strike back in such a way as to assure the annihilation—even of the most Communist Chinese and the Soviet societies."

McNamara said it is too early to assess the military significance of the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev and other changes in the Russian hierarchy. However, he expressed confidence that the United States will preserve conventional forces and battlefield nuclear weapons strength are enough to support U.S. security "for the foreseeable future."

All this suggests that the military budget for 1965 will again call for spending of about $50,000,000,000.

He said the U.S. had anticipated for about three years the possible development of a nuclear device last week.

"The actual detonation, therefore, does not require any change in our strategic nuclear forces or the plans for those forces," he said.

Quebec Justice Given Two-Year Prison Sentence

Perjury Conviction Ends Dramatic Trial

MONTREAL (CP)—Superior Court Justice Adrien Mesnier has been lodged in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail to await a decision on a bail request while appealing a two-year sentence for perjury.

The 58-year-old former member of Parliament was convicted on three counts of perjury Friday and sentenced to two years in penitentiary by Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel.

The conviction, believed without precedent in Quebec judicial history, came one year after his appointment to the bench and climaxed a dramatic trial. He showed no emotion as he was led from the courtroom handcuffed to a provincial police-man.

Lawyers for Mr. Justice Mesnier immediately filed notice of appeal and failed to obtain his release when Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay took the request for bail under advisement. A decision is expected next week.

Crown Prosecutor Marc Briere objected to the granting of bail on the grounds that the offence was not discreditable and Mr. Justice Mesnier "could well decide to spend the rest of his days elsewhere."

WOULD LOSE POST

In Ottawa, a government source said the judge would be removed from his post "practically automatically" if the conviction stands but that no action could be taken while the case is being appealed.

Judge Turmel brought in specially from Sherbrooke, Que., sessions court to hear the case, said he was convinced "beyond all reasonable doubt" that Mr. Justice Mesnier had knowingly given false evidence "with the purpose of deceiving the court and hiding the truth." The charges were based on testimony given by Mr. Justice Mesnier during a closed-door hearing before Claude Wagner, former sessions judge and now Quebec solicitor-general.

The hearing involved a police complaint against a former client of the accused, who practised as a lawyer for 25 years and was once a Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal-Papineau before his appointment to the bench.

DENIES TALK

He denied under oath that he had held a telephone conversation with police in September, 1962, in connection with the mysterious disappearance of a dossier concerning a $64,000 bank robbery.

When a police recording of the phone call was produced in court, he insisted the voice was not his. He also was charged with lying about the removal of exhibits from a court file and about the date of notice of a civil action filed against police.

Move That Clock Back Tonight

The day has arrived to collect that debt from Father Time.

You can't charge him interest, even though he has owed you one hour of extra sleep since last spring.

At any rate, before you climb into your little trundle bed this evening, move the family's "Big Ben" and any other timetellers one hour backward.

The act will not only allow you to catch an extra hour's shuteye come Sunday morn but will keep you in line with the rest of the country.

Officially, Eastern Standard Time goes into effect at 2.01 a.m. Sunday, October 25.

And remember, the hands go backward this trip, not forward.

Balanced Budget Now Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — After six months of the current fiscal year the federal government is almost $500,000,000 better off than at the same point last year.

Finance Minister Gordon reported Friday night a budgetary surplus of $396,900,000 for the period April 1 to Sept. 30, compared with a deficit of $96,-400,000 a year earlier.

If this continues, Mr. Gordon may be close to a balanced budget. Last March he forecast a $455,000,000 deficit but has said subsequently that it will be substantially less."

The improvement lies in rising tax and non-tax revenues. They are 21 per cent higher than in the first half of the last fiscal year. Expenditures have advanced by less than four per cent.

GIVES COMPARISON

Here is a comparison of budgetary operations in the first half of the current fiscal year, compared with the first half of the previous one:

Expenditures increased to $3,-095,400,000 from $2,978,700,000.

Revenues rose to $3,492,300,-000 from $2,882,300,000.

Personal income tax revenues at $1,060,300,000 were 17.2 per cent higher than $906,600,000 a year earlier.

Corporation income tax revenues advanced 25.3 per cent to $800,500,000 from $638,700,000.

Income Tax Cut Probable

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — A 1965 cut in federal income taxes now seems highly probable on both economic and political grounds.

It appears the foundations for such action are being carefully laid in a series of speeches by Finance Minister Gordon, Industry Minister Drury and other cabinet members.

Their recurrent theme is the need for expansionary policy to stimulate not just economic growth — Canada already has that—but a growth rate high enough to provide jobs for the thousands of youngsters now flooding into the labor market.

Without such action unemployment will surely rise again, authorities here believe. If now is running at a seasonally-adjusted rate of about five per cent of the labor force.

Expansionary policy could mean easy credit. But credit alone is "easy." If anything, the prospects are that international events could cause interest rates to rise.

IS READY TOOL

Hence the most readily available tool for Ottawa to stimulate demand, production and more jobs is a tax reduction, Mr. Gordon has frayed indications are that both personal and corporate taxpayers would benefit, the latter the most.

There are compelling political arguments being advanced here for such a move.

The minority Pearson government is facing several high parliamentary hurdles on the pension plan, flag, redistribution, government supply and other issues. Many observers expect the government to clear these hurdles, in time.

Meanwhile, broad suggestions that Mr. Gordon's next budget speech—if he gets a chance to deliver it—will contain tax cuts, are viewed here as an excellent hedge against the possibility of a winter election.

With federal revenues rising, Mr. Gordon has said the year's deficit will be substantially less than the $455,000,000 he envisaged last March.

The economy is also ripe for a tax cut.

This year's advance in gross national product (GNP) is expected to be between seven and eight per cent over 1963. Mr. Gordon has said the current expansion will continue "well into" 1965.

77-Year-Old Feminist Candidate For Position of Vice-President

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—A feisty 77-year-old feminist named Rebecca Shelley is running for vice-president of the United States in the Nov. 3 election—but her name will not appear on any ballot.

Mrs. Shelley, whose 232-acre farm home north of Battle Creek is known to many of our nation's conscience against the war in Viet Nam carried on by this administration."

Mrs. Shelley was among early suffragettes and has written numerous magazine articles and a book called A Widow's Mite.

Asked what her first reaction would be in the unlikely prospect that she was elected, Mrs. Shelley replied:

"I'd be shocked."

Mrs. Shelley, a widow, and Hoover were given a push to write - in candidates last month at a meeting of the Farmers Educational Service, a group she described as "devoted to peace."

"With me, this is a matter of conscience,' Mrs. Shelley added. "I feel there must be

2 Big Communist Parties Send Delegations to Moscow

PARIS (AP) — Western Europe's two biggest Communist parties, dissatisfied with explanations of Nikita Khrushchev's ouster, are sending delegations to the Soviet Union to learn more about last week's Kremlin shake-up.

The mounting unrest over what happened to the former Soviet leader has spread to Cuba where top party leaders are whispering that the Russians should set the record straight.

The French Communist party, second-largest in the West behind Italy's, sends a three-man delegation to Moscow today.

The Italian Communist party has also said its representatives would meet soon with the Soviet party's central committee, which voted Khrushchev out of office.

The small Austrian Communist party announced in Vienna Friday it would send a delegation to Moscow Monday.

In Havana, meanwhile, Premier Fidel Castro's government began passing the word privately Friday that they want a full explanation soon. They praised Khrushchev in conversations with correspondents and said that the Kremlin should publish full details to dispel what one called false impressions left by the surprise action.

However, top leaders who were personally friendly with Khrushchev said they were certain that his ouster would not result in a change in Soviet-Cuban relations.

Khrushchev has been indirectly denounced but not by name since the announcement eight days ago that Leonid I. Brezhnev had replaced him as Communist party boss and Alexei N. Kosygin had taken over as premier.

Soviet Culture Minister Ekaterina Furtseva said Friday, however, that the former ruler was living in Moscow

"As far as I know he is well," she told a reporter upon arriving in Rome to attend a series of ballet performances

In New York, the Communist party newspaper, The Worker, said Khrushchev's removal had ported a lot of people. Put the publication added the change "revealed that the leading bodies of the U.S.S.R. felt Khrushchev would not be able to, for reasons of health, age and personal faults, carry out Soviet policies."

In Rome, the Communist daily Paese Sera said in a Moscow dispatch that Communist party sources there accused Khrushchev of changing his mind too often and of scrapping a five-year economic plan for Eastern Europe.

Communist Albania which sided with China's hard line policy toward the West against Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence, denounced the ousted chief Friday. The Albanian government hailed the change as a "great victory" and called for the "complete destruction of traitors" to Marxism.

House Far From Completing Spending Program for Year

OTTAWA (CP) — From the progress this session of Parliament has made so far in its record-breaking 175 days work, it will be many moons yet before the Commons completes work on the spending program for a fiscal year which now is nearly six months gone.

Of the 22 departments of government into which the main 1964-65 spending program of $6,703,500,000 is divided, Commons work has been completed on only seven.

The 530-page blue book of estimates was presented to the Commons March 5 by Finance Minister Gordon, to cover the new fiscal year which began April 1. For nearly six months government bills have been paid by interim spending authority—the same as the authority for which the government moved on Friday to cover November and December.

MPs Fail To Save Rail Town

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition members led by arty Deputy Doug Fisher were unsuccessful Friday in last-ditch attempts in the Commons to have the CNR's run-through program at two divisional points put off for six months.

The program is to go into effect this weekend at Nakina, Ont., in Mr. Fisher's Port Arthur riding, and at Wainwright, Alta.

The husky NDP member, claiming run - throughs will mean the death of Nakina, threatened to organize a "possibly" illegal action by leading rail workers into a work stoppage.

A CNR spokesman said Friday the company plans to go ahead with the program for Council Stand on Birth Control Is Big Question in Background

VATICAN CITY (AP) — How specific a stand will the Vatican ecumenical council take on the problems of birth control?

This question lingered in the air Saturday today as the ecumenical council faced the prospect of another session in which to discuss the Roman Catholic Church in the modern world.

The council fathers voted Friday that a council schema on the subject was, despite criticism from both conservatives and progressives, acceptable as a basis for discussion.

At the same time Pope Paul VI sent word there would be a fourth session, at an unspecified date, after the current third session closes Nov. 21.

This means more time to discuss issues such as family life, birth control, nuclear warfare and other big problems confronting modern man.

For many Roman Catholic couples, the main point of interest is birth control. They want to know when and if a change in the church's traditional stand on contraception is coming.

A sampling of views among the council fathers indicates that the council will make no definite pronouncement on birth control until Pope Paul speaks on the matter. He said last June that a study was under way and that he would announce the outcome.

The modern world schema says in its section on family life that out of methodological studies might come "practical solutions."

Council sources report that most bishops feel that detailed discussion of birth control should be left to the specialists doing the study for Pope Paul.

They say that the results can then be incorporated into the council document after the pontiff announces them.

The Roman Catholic Church is opposed to artificial forms of birth control but approves of the so-called rhythm method of family planning based on the menstrual cycle.

Harlem, Brooklyn Students Stage Pitched Battles

Toe-to-Toe Encounters With Makeshift Arms

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 400 teen - agers battling among themselves in two separate outbursts of violence Friday night terrorized bystanders in subway stations and on the streets of Harlem and Brooklyn.

Twenty-two youths were arrested—seven in Harlem and 15 in Brooklyn before the brief, pitched battles were broken up by police.

At least four persons were injured in the Brooklyn outburst when Negro and white students of the same high school armed themselves with car aerials, baseball bats, can openers and other weapons to settle an intra-mural dispute which police said had racial overtones.

The Harlem disturbance, of short duration, was blamed on a disagreement between Negro students of a high school and a vocational school. Police said nothing racial was involved.

The Harlem battle broke out in a subway station beneath the crossroads of the predominantly-Negro community, sending bystanders on the run for the street above as the youths lashed out with a variety of makeshift weapons in toe-to-toe encounters.

POLICE TIPPED

Police had been tipped that a battle was brewing between students of the two Harlem schools and extra patrolmen were assigned to the area to guard against violence.

The Brooklyn disturbance erupted outside a high school and soon spread over several blocks, with screaming youths racing along streets flailing sticks, car aerials and clubs at passersby.

Eventually the marauding teen-agers found their way into a subway station in that borough and there set upon several passengers and a group of 10 high school girls waiting for a train.

At least four persons, including a 71-year-old man, were injured in that round of battle.

RUNS FOR BOARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Irving Greenberg, a 35-year-old construction company president who charged the city government in July with inefficiency and waste of tax dollars, announced Friday he will run for board of control in the Dec. 7 civic elections. Mr. Greenberg said a delay in the public inquiry into the charges, approved by city council July 22, prompted his decision to run.

Prisoners Put Back In Cells

JESSUP, Md. (AP)—Defiant prisoners at the Maryland House of Correction rioted Friday night but ended their rampage when 100 state police herded them back into their cells.

The prisoners jammed locks, burned clothes, mattresses and blankets, drenched ceilings below by ripping out plumbing and threw furniture and debris from the four-tiered cellhouses.

Vernon P. Peperack, state commissioner of corrections, estimated the damage at $50,000 but said it might be greater.

Four prisoners suffered minor head injuries from objects dropped or thrown from fiery stoves. They were treated at the prison infirmary.

Lt. - Col. George Davidson, chief of operations of the state police, led the troopers into the two cellhouses and a dormitory where about half the 2,783 prisoners ran loose. Peperack estimated that only 300 prisoners were involved in the most serious part of the rioting.

GUARDS RESCUED

A dozen guards who had barricaded themselves in cells when the rioting started were rescued by the troopers, who wore steel helmets, carried long riot sticks and shotguns.

The rioting started when a prisoner became disorderly during the first feeding at dinner. He punched a guard and was removed.

"There was a rumble (fight) at the time," Peperack said, "but we got the men quieted down and they returned to their cells."

The rioting resumed after the second feeding, however, and continued for almost three hours.

The House of Correction is a medium-security prison built in 1928. It is about 16 miles south west of Baltimore.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

FRIDAY ,Oct. 23, 1964

The Commons discussed the government request for an authority to spend $740,710,974 during November and December pending approval or all departmental estimates.

This opened the way for debate on the CNR's proposal to extend runs for some train crews past the point where previously they had been relieved.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) threatened to lead rail workers in his riding in a walkout to protest the run-through at Nakina, Ont.

Acting Transport Minister Hellyer defended the CNR action and said Mr. Fisher apparently declined to resort to illegal means of protest.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said Mr. McGrath is typical of "do-nothing" Liberals who are responsible for the situation.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the CNR will break a 1926 agreement if it wipes out division points without first negotiating with the unions.

Stirling Youth Killed In Early Morning Crash Near Glen Ross on Hwy. 33

Despite Strike Work Resumed On Five Jobs

The strike by the Quinte District Council of Carpenters against three local contractors continues in stalemate today, after carpenters stopped work on five jobs about six weeks ago. Work on all five jobs has since been resumed, with non-union carpenters, and one of the jobs has been finished since the strike started. A few of the union carpenters have returned to work on the struck jobs although picketing is some cases, continues. Most trades are crossing the picket lines, where necessary, to go to work.

Business manager for the union, Harold Blakey of Trenton, said yesterday that application for conciliation had been made to the Department of Labor and that conciliation officer had been appointed. No date has been set for a conciliation meeting, he said, but the carpenters hope it will be before the end of this month. An unofficial spokesman for the contractors said today that the contractors are willing to attend a meeting.

The Union demands a wage of $2.80 an hour for the men working on the struck jobs, an increase of 30c an hour over the $2.50 now being paid.

The contractors have said they agree the wage would be fair, but they argue that carpenters of another union, working for other firms in the area, are working for salaries as low as $2.00 an hour.

Likewise, Confederation right will be upheld if opportunists and power hungry groups are allowed to take over.

The Conservative party by its very name is a party of conservation, of regard for time tradition - maintaining the best from the past and adding to it carefully in building for the future."

The speaker believed in the two party system being the most workable. "Those who care, and most of us do, about our country's future, must keep democracy strong and in good condition by using it.

OBSTRUCT SOCIALISTS

As the major Canadian parties, the long established Liberal and Conservative, discovered the popular attractiveness of socialistic ideas and incorporated them and so the development of the straight socialist party in Canada was obstructed.

She believes it most say clearly and distinctly, so everyone can understand that the Conservative party is against socialism. The idea of everyone having everything, of less work and more pay, higher government pensions and less taxes, is so deceptively attractive that none oppose the idea, but dreaming this utopian dream will not bring it about. We should look around us and profit from what we see.

WELCOME THE FUTURE

"We should welcome the future and all the excitement of the discoveries of the next ten years. Speed, scientific discoveries, even other planets and times.

How We'll Keep in Touch Tomorrow

An automatic dialler which will automatically dial up to 900 pre-selected numbers and an electro-writer capable of instantly transmitting hand written messages to the other end of the continent, are part of a sales demonstration trailer which has been set at Belleville's Northern Electric plant this week.

The trailer is used by the company to demonstrate new telephone equipment in use throughout the past two years.

The equipment ranges all the way from company manufactured teletypewriter equipment capable of sending printed messages at the rate of 100 words a minute, to the best word in office communication systems and special telephone receivers for the hard of hearing.

Since the trailer came to Belleville, more local Northern employees have had the opportunity of viewing the new equipment, parts of which some day may be manufactured in Belleville.

Yesterday, members of the Belleville Industrial Commission toured the travelling trailer and had its myriad of specialized telephone equipment demonstrated by Andre Robillard, Northern Electric Sales Promotion representative. Company Superintendent T. W. Davidson accompanied the party.

Northern Electric is particularly proud of its various forms of inter-office communications. Its conventional-appearing telephones and "open" intercoms can do almost everything which might be asked of an inter office system.

Also on display were "confidential" sets which boast a scrambler to perfectly audible voice at the receiver end; new Princess phones which will not shirt errors in dialing, and special sets which block out background noise for noisy locations.

The Magical dialler will be available in Canadian within a few months. The Electro-Writer is not Northern made but is demonstrated using a Northern 601-A data telephone set.

With a minimum of instruction a qualified office typist can quickly become a competent operator. The receiving machine, 2,000 or more miles away can be sending and merely by dialing the distant number.

Government Will Pay Part of Payroll

The federal government has approved paying a large portion of the payroll for Belleville's new public works building.

Robert Temple MP announced yesterday the Department of Labor had approved the project as part of the winter works incentive program, and will pay $23,100 of the payroll.

The number of jobs provided by the project will be about 60, Mr. Temple said, and man-work days 2,300.

Easter Seal Campaign Put In High Gear

Plans for the 1965 Easter Seal campaign and the program of activities carried on for crippled children by service clubs in the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox and Addington were discussed at a Belleville dinner meeting of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children held Thursday, October 22nd, 1964, in the Queen's Motor Hotel, Belleville.

There are 232 Service Clubs which are all actively engaged in helping crippled children. These clubs will be conducting Easter Seals campaigns in their communities from March 18th to April 18th next year. The resulting Easter Seal contributions are then used by the clubs and the Ontario Society for Crippled Children to provide care and treatment for Ontario's needy crippled children.

Chairman of this district meeting was Mr. G. Shoniker, Chairman of District Council No. 19, and the service clubs represented were: Lions Club of Bancroft, Rotary Club of Belleville, Kiwanis Club of Madoc, Rotary Club of Stirling, Rotary Club of Napanee, Rotary Club of Picton, Rotary Club of Trenton.

John Lewis Arrives Home 6.30 Sunday

"Welcome Home John Lewis" will be the theme of a special reception at the CNR station Sunday evening when Belleville's John Lewis returns to this city fresh from the 1964 Summer Olympics in Japan.

John will be arriving in Belleville at 6.30 p.m. at which time he will be greeted at the CN railway station by a reception committee headed by Mayor Jack R. Ellis and members of city council.

A band will also be on hand for the special occasion.

Citizens of Belleville are urged to turn out at the CNR Station to give John Lewis a hearty "welcome home".

Mr. Lewis beat the Canadian record in weight lifting at the olympic meet in Tokyo, placing ninth in the olympic weightlifting competitions.

Hospital Well Represented At Convention

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital is well represented at the 60th Annual Convention of the Ontario Hospital Association being held in Toronto this week. Among those attending from the hospital are: S. G. Graham, Chairman, Board of Directors; O. M. Newton, Vice Chairman, Board of Directors; Miss H. F. Naudett, Administrator; Dr. John Simmons, Chief Engineer; Mrs. Doris Kerachum, Housekeeper, Mrs. Elinor Rouse, Director of Nursing Services, Mrs. Agnes Williamson, Purchasing Agent; Mrs. Gertrude McColl, Dietician. Together with personnel from hospitals all across Ontario, they are attending the largest annual gathering of hospital people in Canada.

Registration is expected to top the 5500 figure of the 1963 convention.

People from almost every branch of hospital service, including administration, stewardship, nursing, and dietetics, are in attendance.

Program topics are geared to the convention theme: "Hospital Progress Through Planning and Action." Under consideration are many important subjects such as: dental care in general hospitals, disaster planning, and hospital bed utilization rates. Delegates will also hear a report on what is being accomplished through the "regional approach" to hospital planning and administration.

The Honorable Judy LaMarsh Minister of National Health and Welfare, is the guest speaker at the opening-day luncheon. Other featured speakers include the Honorable Matthew Dymond, Ontario Minister of Health, and Chief Justice Emmett Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada, and chairman of the Royal Commission on Canada's Health Services.

Running concurrently with the OHA meeting is the Annual Convention of the Hospitals Auxiliaries Association of Ontario. Mrs. L. H. Bearss, and Mrs. D. B. Adams, from the Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, are attending the sessions.

Trenton Memorial Hospital is one of 250 public general, Red Cross, chronic and convalescent hospitals in several major allied health institutions which, as members of the Ontario Hospital Association, are working together voluntarily through their association to achieve the highest standards of patient care and treatment.

Ambitious Sports Program To Be Launched Tomorrow

TRENTON — Tomorrow Trenton's ambitious winter sports program will be launched for another season.

And Mayor James MacDonald is leading a hand by dropping the puck to officially raise the curtain on the long list of varied activities.

Local All-Star midgets and juveniles who fared so well last year and whose "winning ways" prompted considerable attention to the community perform in the openers against a fast company from Kingston.

The local Lions Club and Legion backers of these two fine aggregations in their 1963-64 campaigns are again supporting them 100 per cent. The first "star-studded" encounter gets underway at 6:30 p.m.

Meanwhile followers of Junior C hockey look for some fancy action from Howard Wesse's Apple Kings scheduled to make their premier appearance at the Community Gardens in a pre-season tune-up with a highly regarded team called the Wings from Napanee. Wednesday, November 4 is the date set for their 'debut.

Nowadays manager Wesse is experiencing organizing pains (similar to growing pains) signing players and having him exchanged with the top brass — namely coaches and public relations man. The 13 players who had penned their "John Henry" on the dotted line as of last Sunday romped through an impressive work out Wednesday night. However coaches John Provencal and Alex Bain have made it known to one and all they will not be impressed by early season spectaculars.

Names familiar to local fans since the inception of the Trenton Minor Hockey Association — Lewis, Rogers, Glover and Johnson — appear on the Kings' roll call. Hitched-up with experienced newcomers mentor Wesse holds they need careful watching. Tom Glover scored 23 goals and picked up 11 assists roving the left wing lanes for the Midget All-Stars during the regular season last semester . . . the Kings' boss offered as evidence to quality his forecast . . . while mentioning the names of several high scoring personnel he now has under his wing.

Napanee Child Dies in Fire

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Kelvin Rose Brown, nine-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown of Napanee, died Friday of burns and suffocation after the room he was sleeping in caught fire.

His mother and another son, Kevin, 2, sleeping in another part of the house, escaped without injury after they were awakened by a passig motorist who tried vainly to rescue the children.

A fire department spokesman said the blaze apparently started in the kitchen.

Business, Pro Women Hold Monthly Meet

TRENTON — The monthly meeting of Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, was held in the Hotel Gilbert, president Violet Kennedy presiding.

Highlight of the evening was guest speaker Miss Helen Stagg, member of Kingston B&PW Club, who was introduced to the club by Miss Kay Patterson. Miss Stagg gave a very informative outline of her hobby, Graphic Art, also a very capable speech accompanied with slides of her recent trip to Ghana, where she spent eight weeks. She was very capably thanked by Miss Gwendoline Mahon.

The brunch which was held Sunday last at the home of Mrs. Doris Davis, was most successful, and a letter from Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson was sent to congratulate the club on its past record, and to wish even greater success in the future.

Also a letter was received from Miss Nada L. Dane, national president of CFBPWC, encouraging members to accept new challenges, and to be prepared to do something about it.

Future Indefinite

B. J. Stafford, assistant vice-president of Industrial Acceptance Corporation, speaking to the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club Tuesday night, censured extensions of government welfare as encroachment upon the individual's freedom of choice.

His remarks were in support of the private enterprise system, a proven social philosophy in our society which Canadians—as Mr. Stafford justifiably intimated—would be foolish to abandon.

But are there two sides to this social coin?

Mr. Stafford, in theory, was attacking the principle of government intervention in a way of life guaranteed almost entirely by the free enterprise system. This principle holds that a man may come to know the good things of life if he chooses to apply himself. (The old adage stated that a man could always find a job if he was willing to work.)

Basically in this is he correct. But we live today not only in an age of acquisition of good things, but one of transformation. A man's willingness to apply his ability may count for nothing unless his natural talents are trained to keep pace with change. And the changing pattern of opportunity for many Canadians today is signified in one word: Automation.

The night before Mr. Stafford spoke in Belleville, Arthur V. Pigott, vice-president of the Canadian Scholarship Fund, and an expert on education for industry, spoke to the Young Progressive Conservatives in Toronto.

The crux of his address was that within the next two years up to 4,500 Canadians a week will be displaced by automation.

Industry, he was quoted, had failed to build its own technical schools and now there is a desperate need for technicians. Automation is, therefore, a far greater threat in Canada than elsewhere.

Co-operative planning between labor, capital and education was necessary, he said. A 1961 visit to West Germany showed unemployment at .3 of 1 per cent and, Mr. Pigott suggested, this could be explained by comparing Germany's 1,200 company schools to Canada's 27.

Census statistics, however, population differential must be taken into account. Control of much of Canadian industry by outside interests may also be a factor. And a telling one, possibly, in support of encouraging more control by Canadians of their economic productivity.

Yet, while these considerations may be peculiar to Canada, they also may reflect on the operating philosophy of its private enterprise system.

If funds are not easily available from the system to aid its own contributors in periods of stress and change, what source must invest in their healthy economic survival?

Government already is seriously engaged in retraining programs in this country while guaranteeing the intermediate welfare of the participants. These participants are also consumers and with automation their numbers will grow. On their success in adapting themselves depends largely the future of the free enterprise system as we know it.

Thus, public funds even now are being expended in support of the private enterprise system.

And what, is that in theory, but government welfare in an enlightened cause?

Politics Incognito

The influence of public opinion polls in politics is not completely taken for granted.

This process might well be transferred to Canada, the Brantford Expositor points out.

Canadian politicians (says the paper) pay lip service to the idea that grass should govern what the brass does, but not many of them mingle among the people except at election time. The Indian incognito approach offers a useful precedent. Mr. Pearson might try secreting himself in a meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire and Mr. Diefenbaker might try to sneak into a gathering of the Jean Baptiste Society.

The important thing about modern living is to do as little of it as possible. I'm not advocating a complete cessation of breathing, a total throwing-in of the sponge. No. Just relax in a nice old-fashioned non-tubular chair, gaze at the wall, and run over in your mind all the gay, up-to-date things that you are not doing." —Arthur Marshall.

"Relax, lady, when we get through you won't know yourself."

'Goons' Get More Sympathy Than Offended Victims

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The continued bleating by the "Bleeding Hearts" over what they weep was police "brutality" in subduing the louts, holigans, beatnicks and perhaps, who knows, even dangerous Trotskyists at Quebec City, raises a basic and increasingly disturbing question:

Just how offensive does an offender have to get before the law is justified in stepping in and straightening him up?

The way the emphasis has shifted since the royal visit, there seems to be more concern about whether the goons were "brutalized" than about those insults to the Queen.

It remains open to question and continuing debate whether or not there was actual police "brutality."

But there is no question that the Queen was insulted, grossly so — and in such sickening fashion, with such filthy epithets screeched in her direction that the public still doesn't know just how obscene, by rotten it was, because the kind of gutter language used simply can't be reported.

The laws of decency and taste prevent the full story being told.

"We Won."

Yet, in the days since, there seems to have been such a strange manipulation of sentiment that the comfort, care and convenience of Mrs. Hooligan students has become the prime concern.

Questions in and out of Parliament have been directed not so much at what the louts did to the Queen but what the police did to the louts.

There is no question of how the Separatist feel about it.

Pierre Bourgault, leader of the RIN, has been in Hull, just across the Ottawa River from Parliament Hill, and publicly crowed

"We won the second Battle of the Plains of Abraham."

And that just might be so — especially if the "Bleeding Hearts" manage to convince enough people that it was not the right of the people of Canada to have the Queen received at least with simple courtesy, but the right of the hooligans to be able to insult her without police interference that was without.

The question of right has continued to confuse RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan, some of whose observations on the spirit were reported in Ottawa Offbeat earlier this week.

Enlarging on his theme, Commissioner McClellan, concerned about the increasing emphasis placed on the rights of those who break or even undermine the law by their cynical discounting of its role, suggests there are other important, or at least equal rights.

THE PRIORITY

With Mountie McClellan this is the "prior right," and he is frank to say that it is not being given the attention it warrants.

In fact, this "protection of society from society's enemies," as he puts it, is something "our people are not getting in full measure these days."

Sobering times like Weepers and the Bleeders, the exponents of "soft" police, courts, prisons and parole boards have been so gnawing away at this principle right of society that a depraved maniac with a lifetime record of sex crimes can be forgiven and forgotten long enough for him to murder four young boys eight months after being turned loose.

"I hold," says the Commissioner, "that in a society which professes to live by rule of law, any and every person has the right to expect he can walk the streets and lanes of our cities and countrysides with a reasonable, and I repeat reasonable, expectation that he or she can do so without fear of violation of the person either by robbery, assault, rape, insult or obscenity. Such is not the case today."

It clearly wasn't the case in Quebec City, where the person of the Queen was "violated," as the Commissioner expresses it, by both "insult and obscenity."

But say nothing about how the Queen might have felt or how the millions of Canadians must have been humiliated by it — speak only of the "brutality" police and the way they savaged those innocent students engaged in nothing more serious than a harmless prank.

Are We Really Soft as This?

Vancouver Sun

You might have known it. When the University of Saskatchewan invited a visiting professor from the University of Moscow to lecture on economics the roof blew off.

Regina Tory M.P. Ken More demanded the Dominion Government give assurances Professor A. B. Nicolaev will not spread Communist doctrine and that national security will be protected.

What else could a visiting Communist economics professor teach except Communist economic doctrine? What else could a university expect to give him for? And what else could be more useful to a non-Communist university student?

We live in a world partly Communist. We trade with Communists. We attempt to maintain our own system against them. If we are going to hold our own with them, we'd better know — know well, in detail and from the horse's mouth — what their system is.

If we dare not let our university students learn at first hand what communism is and what arguments its followers have in favor of it, we are too much afraid of it to fight it effectively. To make a hysterical mental isolation hospital out of a university is the next thing to guaranteeing its graduates will have no realistic understanding of the major problems of our age and society.

If one professor in a whole university is going to be a danger, the Communists have us beaten already.

Diesel Fumes Cut Vision

The diesel truck, which pollutes the city, has its faults in other grounds, too.

The fumes which those monsters of the highway emit can, and often do, cause an oil film to develop on the windshields of cars and trucks which follow them. At night this thin coating, which appears cannot be seen, tends to diffuse the light thrown by the headlamps of oncoming cars. The result: a vision difficulty that could cause accidents.

To Your Good Health

Many Women Are Concerned About Fibroid Tumors

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you explain fibroid tumors? I need to know about them. — Mrs. M. Z.

Your letter reminds me that I haven't discussed fibroid tumors (also just called fibroids) for some time. Yet they are a problem with which a great number of women are concerned.

A tumor is a growth that results when cells multiply faster than is necessary to maintain a part of the body at normal size. The extra cells create a lump.

If, for reasons the medical profession is still trying to understand, this process of extra cells continues, and fin ally spreads to other areas, then we have cancer, or a malignant tumor.

But there are far more ordinary or benign tumors than malignant or cancerous ones.

Tumors can occur in various types of tissue. We may have lipomas, or fatty tumors, just under the skin. These are common, and are benign. Or we may have tumors in other types of tissue — and again, many are benign and some are malignant.

If a tumor develops in fibrous tissue, we call it a fibroid tumor. The uterus (or womb) is made up of fibrous and muscle tissue. Some other parts of the body consist of fibrous tissue, but the uterus is the best suited for various good reason, is quite subject to these tumors.

Approximately one woman out of every three will have one or more fibroid tumors of the uterus. Many never know it. Some know it but are not bothered. And some are bothered and should have these tumors (or the entire uterus) removed.

Removal depends on whether the fibroids are doing any harm. Thousands of women have been told by their doctors, "You have a fibroid tumor, but don't worry about it. We'll just watch it." Wise women accept this advice; others don't believe their doctors and start to worry.

Yet truthfully, these tumors rarely become malignant. (If they do, they almost never spread at once.) And there is reason to think that if one of them is to "become malignant," it really is so from the start.

With women and child-bearing age, occasionally such tumors prevent pregnancy, and it may be best to remove them without disturbing the uterus.

With other women, these tumors may periodically subside at menopause, Or, at an age at which pregnancy is unlikely anyway, the uterus may be removed (hysterectomy).

A great many children have been born to women with one or more fibroids, and there are cases of several fibroids in a single individual.

Thus the "answer" to fibroids depends on the individual. Your doctor must make the decision. In one case he will say, "We should operate right away." In most he will say, "Let's wait and watch." In the majority of these no serious trouble will ever develop.

Dear Dr. Molner: When doctors examine people why do they pull the lower eyelid down and look into the eye? — E. F.

One good reason is to see whether any yellowish tinge appears in the white of the eye — an early clue to jaundice and liver disease. There may also be a disorder of the lid lining, such as inflammation, allergy, etc.

Hate-Mongers Trip on Snag

Fifty beautiful British women have been brought to Cyprus to help the British intelligence services which have recently stepped up efforts to get Cypriot Sixth secrets. They were scattered all over the island 25 days ago and their first assignment was to cover a bar in Limassol. Some of these modern Mata Haris are already in Nicosia and the scope of their activities will soon be disclosed. Does it sound true? It is at any rate a summary of a story in the Cyprus evening paper "Tweetes Ora" (which means "Stop Press") and has been hurried forwarded to me by a friend in Nicosia. But from the Cypriot point of view the story has unfortunately not had the desired effect of hotting up anti-British feeling. The main population of Nicosia, between certain ages, has been busy searching for them and if they can be found Britain may yet regain its popularity.

CLEANING FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 24th, 1936

Something new in the line of Hallowe'en entertainment was introduced to the children of Belleville when they combined their conventional fun with the principles of helping others. It was the Kinsmen "Shell Out" Hallowe'en that gave the kiddies an opportunity of enjoying themselves and also practicing that greatest of all virtues — charity.

Again this year the Kinsmen Hallowe'en "Shell Out" party will be held at the Armouries prior to which householders will be asked to purchase "Shell Out" tickets at one cent each. These tickets will be sold by the school children prior to the big night. There is really something of interest for the kiddies this year as two bicycles will be given away to the boy and girl selling the greatest number of "Shell Out" tickets. Scores of other minor prizes are also to be given away to the sellers by the Kinsmen.

One year ago yesterday the coldest winter in the records of this city and province was ushered in with a fall of snow which covered the city and district to a depth of four inches and two-thirds of an inch of sleet and rain which made it fully bringing down miles of telephone, telegraph and electric wires and crippling transportation on roads throughout the province. The mercury descended to below freezing and sustained the ice and snow on country roads and city streets. Today the temperature has dropped to 14 degrees above zero and apples on trees to an estimated amount of 80,000 barrels were frozen throughout the district and many car radiators were cracked by the erocus water pipes in city houses burst.

The sum of $2,901 on signed card pledges, $1,230.50 being in cash, has so far been raised in the Y.M.C.A. drive to raise the sum of $5,000, Mr. Morley F. Duff, the president of the Y.M. C.A. is quite hopeful that this desired amount will be secured.

Aging Executive Tells World How He Survived Merger Game

By THOMAS COLLINS

The man with a good job who wakes up some morning, at about age 50, and discovers his company has been merged — this is becoming one of the acute retirement situations of our times.

Business mergers are happening, on all sides now. Actually, most of them are the purchase of one company by the other. But "merger" sounds nicer. And behind the facade of that word a host of key me.. in the bought company — men with long, successful careers and somewhere beyond age 55 — are being thrown in the "out" basket.

A 60-year-old banker who has just gone through the ordeal has some advice for other men who may get caught on the losing side of a merger, and a suggestion for beating the game:

1. "Even if you are a top officer in your company don't be too sure you'll have advance warning a merger is coming. I was given just two hours' notice before public announcement was made that our bank was merging with a larger one. This will scare the daylights out of you, which you can't avoid, and if you have been considered important in the community it will be very embarrassing. Which you also can't avoid."

UNSPUCK BY DESIGN

2. "Everything is sweetness and light as the merger wheels start grinding. The bought employees and executives are reassured about their jobs, are told things are going to be the same, only better. The aim of the dominant company is to hold the little company firmly together until the shock to its customers is over, then let it come unstuck by design. This frequently lulls bought employees to hang onto their jobs past a point where they can walk out in indignation and get others."

2. "After a couple of weeks, officials of the big company start making visits. One the first week, three the next, maybe two the next. They ask questions, look into all phases of the operation, ask to be introduced to important people around town. . . all the time reassuring every body. After a while they keep coming but stop going. They take over desks and offices. They don't talk to you much, except to ask questions."

4. "Sometimes in two months, sometimes in eight — in our case it was four months — the officials of the big company start consolidating some of the lesser jobs and taking over some of the duties of the executives. A typical comment to the executive is 'We want to free you for bigger things.'"

5. "The day they start 'freeing' you is the day they start hoisting you into the "out" basket. In progressive steps you will be relieved of more and more responsibilities — if you are an executive — until you become nothing more than a sort of bridge spanning the gulf between the new officials and the old customers of the bank. This job has no future — the new officials get their own bridges built pretty quickly. Then they announce that you are retiring early, 'For health reasons' probably."

COMMON SENSE

The banker says his common sense told him the officers of the bought bank didn't have a chance, once the merger came. He says he had seen too many mergers, and only in fluke situations have the bought executives been retained. "I really can't fathom it," he says. "Some executives of a merged company are certainly good. But there seems to be a fever, an obsession, or something that leads executives of the big company to the theory that if you buy 'em you fire 'em."

The day the officials of the conquering company were going away, and started taking over desks, the banker made his move. He resigned "in protest." The Big Brass of the company came running. He couldn't do this. No. No. No "What bothered them, of course, was that I might give the place a bad name among all the customers who were my friends. Nothing more."

"So I made a deal. I agreed to defer my resignation for six months and drop the 'in protest' from it, provided I could get a $25,000 bonus, payable over 10 years, at 4 percent interest. I got it.

"And in these next six months I collected every spec of information that might be valuable to a savings and loan association in town. Where, incidentally, I am now an executive."

Fear Missionary Beaten to Death In the Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The U.S. embassy said Friday it feared American missionary William Scholten has been beaten to death in rebel-held northwest Congo.

Reports that he is dead came from several reliable sources, including a Roman Catholic bishop, the embassy said.

The embassy was worried about the fate of Scholten's wife and five children. They were reported at Aketi, about 200 miles from the rebel capital of Stanleyville, where Scholten was said to have died about Sept. 24.

Scholten, 33, a missionary-teacher of the Unevangelized Fields Mission whose headquarters are with the interdenomination mission at Bala Cynwyd outside Philadelphia.

The headquarters said it had been notified of his death.

Find Owner Guilty of Discrimination

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The Ontario Labor Relations board has found Ernie Donnelly, owner of Speedy Ern's Cleaning Service here, guilty of discriminating against employees because of union activities.

In a judgment handed down Wednesday, the board ruled that Lyran Logan, discharge by Mr. Donnelly Sept. 11, must be reinstated and given $3.25 in back wages for the time lost after his dismissal.

The board also ruled in favor of Mrs. Madeline Bryant who was removed from one position and placed in another with lower pay. She is to receive $18 compensation and be reinstated to her former position.

The plant is organized by the Building Service Employees International Union, a Canadian Labor Congress affiliate.

These people explode the myth about the high cost of electric heating. They have it.

Mr. G. Baker, Sarnia, Ontario

"Our bill for electric heating over the past season was approximately $160—about the same as other heating systems. If I build another house I will have it heated just the same way."

Mrs. E. Zimmerman, Timagami, Ontario

"I don't think you could run anything any cheaper. I wouldn't want to part with electric heating. This is just what I want. There's nothing like it—and that's that."

Mr. Ralph Diegl, North Bay, Ontario

"We heat about 1,750 square feet plus all of the basement. We heat our garage too. I think our heating costs compare favourably with other systems."

Mrs. S. Watts, Waterloo, Ontario

"I think electric heating is quite reasonable. We have seven rooms and a recreation room and an extra room in the basement. Our entire electrical service, including lights, cooking, laundry, water heating and home heating came to only $272 last year."

Mrs. J. R. Morgiavoh, Fort William, Ontario

"It costs us about $225 a year for electric heating. We're quite satisfied with it and I think if we were ever to build again we would put electric heating in."

Mr. L. Lochner, Brockville, Ontario

"Actually electric heating is my favourite subject. I found that our electric heating cost was 20% lower than Hydro quoted. One thing I particularly like about electric heating is that it's completely maintenance free."

Mr. F. J. Thomson, Harrowsmith, Ontario

"Last year our electric heating cost was about $200 which is perfect as far as I'm concerned. The heat is very uniform. Quite a difference from our other house."

Mr. Robert Riepert, Kitchener, Ontario

"I find that my heating cost is very satisfactory. I've had other heating systems but I feel that this is the best. I think it will become very popular."

Mr. R. Brunelt, Thornhill, Ontario

"We have a large four bedroom house and we heat the basement including a recreation room, workshop, laundry room and dark room, yet our heating cost last year was only $186."

Electrically heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. With all its advantages, is it any wonder so many people throughout Ontario are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system. If you are buying or building a new home, it will pay you to learn how electric heating can add to the comfort of your home and to the value of your investment.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME

If you are planning home extensions or if parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

A LETTER FROM INDIA

"She is young and very sweet,
From the silver on her feet
To the silver and the flowers in her hair."
— from a poem on India by Lawrence Hope.

As explained last week, because of her departure for Canada, Mrs. George K. Graham, Trent Road, was unable to be a guest at a wedding while visiting Delhi, India, where her son Cal. Robert J. Graham is the Navy, Army Air-force Advisor to the Canadian High Commissioner.

However, his wife Vyryn, and their daughter Margaret (Bobbie) did attend "being the only outsiders". Here is Vyryn's delightful account of Mrs. Graham of the event:

DUST LIFE

"Life has been so busy, though all of a sudden it's so quiet I can hardly stand it. As I write at my desk, Bobbie is sleeping. It's 2 p.m. Sunday and she has not slept since a few hours Friday night.

"Saturday morning was a ceremony just for the family, when they put ashes on Aruna's face and silver armlets on her wrists, with which she bonged all the girls for good luck. Bobbie had to leave at three when she and I went to see a polo match between the British Army and the Indian Army — (the British were swamped!!)

"Then I rushed her back to the wedding festivities and I went later with friends around 5:30. . . The bridegroom, whom you met at Bobbie's party, arrived on horseback preceded by young boys carrying lamps on their heads. There was a brass band to which uncles and cousins did the punjobe dance.

"The procession stopped every few feet for recitations and music, but eventually the bride-groom arrived at the verandah. She was garlanded by Aruna's mother, then he garlanded Aruna.

"Then they left and went into the house, where they sat in a corner of the drawing room for all to see. Aruna's engagement present was a necklace of rubies and diamonds. I've never seen anything like it! She wore a pink and gold sari, eyes downcast all the time, and never saying a single word.

"There must have been 500 people and dinner was the usual chicken, rice and curry. We stayed until about 12. The wedding ceremony was at 3:30 a.m. and I just couldn't stay, but Bobbie was on her feet all the time, and it ended at 7:30 a.m. The bridegroom gave the girl who were with Aruna a gold ring with a ruby and a diamond.

"I went over the next morning at 10:30 for what they call Doli and it's very sad. Bobbie and I were the only 'foreigners' and at first I felt terribly out of place, but in no time we were in the spirit of the thing. There was a delay because the bride must wait for everything (cosmetics, clothing, etc.) to come from the bridegroom's family and when it arrived I was sitting beside a chest which a sisterin-law opened and I couldn't believe my eyes!

BRIDE'S ATTIRE

"First, the bride's sari — pink with silver fringes, every inch. Four strands of long pearls with a diamond clip at the end as well as her ruby and diamond necklace. Three sapphire and diamond drops for her hair, which the girls washed and set yesterday. (Aruna had wanted to go to the Ashoka (hotel) to have it done, but her aunt said no, because neither the bride-

Church Groups

MESSENGERS GROUP

RAWDON — Last Sunday morning approximately 35 children and three adults were in attendance at the church hall for the regular meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Messengers.

Brenda Campbell was pianist and Kenneth Couch gave the call to worship. Janet Scott read the theme entitled "Our Church". Mrs. Raymond McConnell conducted a questionnaire from World Friends and read a poem about the church and Sunday School. Mrs. Frank Spencer was in charge of the devotional. Gordon Hoard presented his report.

In the business period plans were made to hold a night meeting on November 23 at the church hall for the children and their mothers. Christmas baskets for the Fred Victor mission will be packed at this meeting.

Bonnie Williams contributed a piano solo and Miss Janet Fletcher showed a film entitled "The Church in the People" and Judy McAdam voiced thanks.

groom nor his family should see her, and they are staying at the hotel). A wedding dais (a ring set with precious stones hung from her ear and clipped to her nose. The ring was so heavy it kept coming loose.)

She had an ornament on each hand, from wrist to fingers made of pearls and precious stones and she wore the most magnificent ring of diamonds and rubies!

"All the time she looked most downcast. (In fact, Bobbie said the bride was "all in" from all the ceremonies and she hadn't eaten). When she came out for breakfast in the morning it the garden, dressed in all this garb, I thought the poor child would faint. Her mother-in-law kept feeding her sweets and someone from her family fed her curry and rice and coffee to keep up her strength.

GOOD LUCK KERNELS

"Through the Doli (a ceremony held under a little bower of flowers) and they were blessed), Aruna threw wheat kernels on her family for good luck and everyone cried at the bridegroom's family took over and she supposedly left her home for good. Even the groom's family cried and I think perhaps I shed a tear.

"We arrived home by one. The groom's parents held a reception at the Astoka at five. I was taking to the groom's sister, a doctor in gynecology (F.R.C.S.) and she had been responsible for most of the shopping which she had done with Aruna.

The jewellery was magnificent. When the mother-in-law took it out of the trunk for Aruna to wear, it was all in the big cases we saw in the shops.

"The bride and groom left for the groom's family home for three days, when she will wear her wedding sari.

"Then they planned to go south for their honeymoon."

This wedding, Mrs. Graham says, was a marriage of love, not one arranged by the parents, as is still the custom in parts of India.

QUESTION:

Could you possibly send me your recipe for Pineapple Drops a drop cookie published a few years ago, containing crushed pineapple and dropped from a spoon onto cookie sheet? . . . Mrs. E. S.

Costumes Start Hallowe'en Party Off on Right Foot

DEAR DORIS—Please suggest some games for a Hallowe'en party. This gang is hard to loosen up. — BOY-AND-GIRL TEAM.

DEAR TEAM — First, make them come dressed up. This starts them off feeling like clowns.

The first game is Bobbing for Apples, either in a tub of water or hanging from a string.

Word Ghosts call for quick thinking. The first player names a pair of words which go together, like "Table Top." Second player picks up the last word and adds a word to make another pair: "Top hat." Third says "Hat box." Then next says: "Box lunch."

DORIS CLARK

When a player gets stuck, he says so, then starts a new pair. He may get stuck three times before he is "out." Keep it moving by putting a time limit on responses.

A Balloon Relay is sure fire party fun.

Then of course, there should be a parade, with a prize for funniest costume, most original costume, and so on. More games, if you need them, can be found in the game books at your public library.

Have you got a pal who will tell a ghost story that frights dimmed, before refreshments?

Have a ball!

DEAR DORIS — By dint of hard work and severe dieting I have six times managed to lose up to 60 of the 100 pounds I should lose, only to see it all go back on.

I have tried diet, massage, exercise, fasting, starch-free diets, high protein diets, high fat diets and still continue to ride my see-saw. The slim active athlete lodged in my weighty body, peering out of my puffy eyes and looking over my double chin longs for release, which it begins to look as if only death will bring.

May I have the address of Topa? — FAT-IMPRISONED ATHLETE.

DEAR FAT-IMPRISONED — Your athlete isn't even athletic. Her muscles are flabby. Topa might give you the resolution to lay her down and tone her up. Write for details to Mrs. Jean P. Flatt, 248 York Road, Dundas, Ontario. This international club has liberated many a blithe, but billowing, spirit.

Lecture on Chest Surgery First in Series of Talks Given to Graduate Nurses

The first of five lectures in the fall series of Nursing Education was held at Belleville General Hospital Education Hall, Monday evening. An informative talk on "Chest Surgery and Nursing Care" was well presented by Dr. R. B. Lynn (F.R.C.S.), Professor of Surgery at Queen's University, Kingston.

Mrs. Jean McDonnell, president of Belleville Community Nursing Registry, welcomed all those present. Mrs. Doris Howie, chairman of Nursing Education Committee, introduced the guest speaker.

The well-attended audience listened with interest as Dr. Lynn discussed the two major types of chest surgery (a) lung (b) heart, and the associated nursing care.

RELATIVELY SAFE

The doctor, in discussing chest surgery, said "Chest surgery is not new. Portions of lung were first removed in 1890. First heart surgery was done in 1913 in France. Chest surgery is now relatively safe due to the general knowledge of positive pressure anesthesia, blood factors and antibiotics to control infection. The mortality of lung surgery has now dropped to 2 to 3% from that of 50% in 1940.

In lung surgery, either a segment, lobe or whole lung is removed, depending on size of the lesion caused by benign or malignant tumors, T.B. or abscess.

The oldest patient of Dr. Lynn's having had a successful lung operation was 83 years of age.

Following surgery, the patient must do frequent diaphragmatic breathing exercises, previously taught by a physiotherapist. Underwater drainage of the chest tube must also be maintained.

LUNG CANCER

He stated that lung cancer is the main cause of death in men. He said there is no doubt that the commonest cause of lung cancer is cigarette smoking. Since smoking became popular among women, the incidence of lung cancer in females has also increased.

Dr. Lynn stated heart surgery is an expanding field. There are two things a heart surgeon does (a) closes a hole (b) relieves obstruction of flow of blood in heart. He then explained the various common types of heart conditions requiring surgery, either by open or closed method.

HEART-LUNG MACHINE

He explained the principles and use of hypothermia, reducing the patient's body temperature from 38°c to 30°c. He also explained the principle of the "heart-lung" machine and how it works during open heart surgery, replacing work done by the heart and lungs. The heart and lung machines which now costs $15 thousand, was perfected by German physiologist in 1895. In 1936, anti-coagulant heparin, an anti-coagulant was discovered.

He stated the average adult goes home two weeks after surgery and a child usually goes home in one week. A question period followed.

TRANSPLANT NEW HEART

Dr. Lynn, in closing by saying that 'the day will come when a new heart can be transplanted into a human. At present all problems are solved except that of immunity.

A film-lecture was followed by an interesting film showing surgery of rare heart condition of a four-year-old boy.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. June Howe. Refreshments were served by the student nurses.

The Nursing Educational lectures are sponsored by the Community Nursing Registry every Monday evening for the next four weeks. Next week the speaker will be Dr. R. Scott who will discuss "Common Dermatological Problems and Nursing Care."

Any graduate nurse interested is urged to attend.

Going Places
Scotland's 'Heritage' Enjoyed In Every Country of World

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

INVERNESS, Scotland — The Glen Mhor and Glen Albyn Distilleries of Mackinlay's and Birnie, Ltd., are situated across the road from each other, about 100 yards apart.

Each produces Scotch whisky in exactly the same fashion — as, in fact, do all of the more than 100 distillers of Highland malt whisky in the country. Each plant is under the personal supervision of William Birnie, uses the same barley and same Loch Ness water.

And each — as do each of the 100-plus others — produces a slightly different tasting whisky.

No one knows why. The differences have been attributed to everything from bends in the pipes and dents in the stills to cobwebs in the ceiling. There are distillers who refuse to clean their fermenting rooms, and some replace worn out stills with the dents copied.

But nothing has been proved scientifically in the 400 or 500 years since the first Irishman (sorry, laddies, it was an Irishman) first distilled whisky in exactly the same manner in which it is distilled today. All anyone knows is that attempts have been made to copy the stuff from Australia to America, with conscientious and dismal failure the result.

All of which is sufficient reason for Scotch whisky being one of the two or three top industries of Scotland, accounting for a staggering 40,000,000 Imperial gallons of production a year. Three-quarters of its retail price goes into excise taxes. Hardly more than a fifth of the production is consumed in Great Britain, as opposed to nearly half 25 years ago. Nearly three times as much is produced these days as 25 years ago.

SOLD EVERYWHERE

Scotch whisky may well be the only product in the world sold in absolutely every country of the world, including Tibet and Outer Mongolia.

Strangely enough, whisky distilling was not even legal in Scotland until almost the middle of the last century. Of course, no one died of thirst before that, and towns like Campbeltown, subsisted on the production for sought-after whisky comes from the villages of the Spey valley, which is dotted with self-sufficient little communities consisting of the distillery, its management and employees, families, and the omnipresent excise officer who is responsible for the legality of the spirit until it is bottled and sold.

Before it is ever sold in the public, it is first sold — without being delivered for as long as 12 years — to one of the nearly 2,000 blenders of Scotch whisky in the country.

As surprising as the number of distillers in the country may seem, the number of blenders is even more surprising. Hardly a handful of those 2,000 are well known in North America (even more strangely, two of the five best-selling labels in the United States are all but unknown in Scotland).

Running down the mysteries that make blending so much the other head of this two-headed industry he paid a visit in Markinch to two best known Scotsmen in the world, Haig and Haig. Known only as the John Haig and Co. Ltd. in Scotland, the company is the oldest in the United Kingdom and one of the five largest.

WHISKY LORE

It takes only a week to make a batch of whisky, and each distillery makes a batch a week. But to mature it takes up to 12 years of letting it rest in casks which formerly held sherry wine (those at Haig still clearly bear the label of John Harvey and Son, the major British producer of sherry.

Anyone who ages whisky more than 12 or, stretching a point, 13 years, is considered to be out of his mind: Mr. Birnie and the Haig people generally agree that nothing much happens to it after that time.

Whisky production probably became an industry as a result of the Scottish farmer's legendary thriftiness. He couldn't bear to waste grain, and he couldn't destroy it and charge it up to the government, so he fermented and distilled it.

Most of the color of whisky is artificial; naturally, it is quite pale. Anyone who thinks pale-colored whisky is lighter tasting is kidding himself. It is simply lighter colored.

Much whisky is exported at full proof (undiluted) in casks these days, since most taxes are based on volume. Experts in Scotland deplore this trend on the grounds that foreign water alters the taste of the whisky considerably. Some have gone so far as to export Scottish water for highball-mixing.

BLENDING IS AN ART

"Whisky blending is 100 per-cent an art, not a science. There is no formula. Blenders do it all by sniff-test alone, selecting the products of up to 45 different distilleries for inclusion in their blend — which they guarantee varies imperceptibly from previous bottlings. All this is in spite of the fact that the distillers' products may vary.

Haig's prints as many as 700 different labels and produces nearly as many different styles and shapes of bottles. Many odd ities dictate these. New Zealanders passing through the United States developed a taste for the American-style bottle; hence the N.Z. bottle is an imitation. Some South American countries require a non-refillable design.

Neither Mr. Birnie nor Haig's particularly care whether you mix your Scotch with water, tea lemonade, or ginger ale, an admirable British live-and-let-live attitude. The only thing that bugs them is when Americans come to Scotland and ask if the water is safe to drink.

Ann Landers
Letters Indicate School Nurses Are Hardboiled

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I disagree with you about school nurses. In our school the only way a kid can get sent home is if the coroner pronounces him officially dead.

Last year during a measle epidemic the school nurse wouldn't let anybody go home no matter how sick they were. When I nearly passed out the teacher sent me to the nurse. She told me to lie down on the cot for half an hour. When the nurse left the room, I got up and phoned my mother. Mom came to get me and I had a temperature of 104 degrees.

The way you sided with the school nurse makes me think you must have been a school nurse yourself before you were Ann Landers. True or false? — HOOSIER STATE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR HOOSIER — False. I was never a school nurse but I did try (unsuccessfully) to fool a few school nurses in my day.

The mail on this subject has been running 20 to 1 against me. I'm ready to admit there must be some pretty hard-boiled school nurses around . . . or that you kids have a mighty strong union.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Jack and I have been married 16 years. We have two children in school. My husband is the only one who has allowed his father to run his life. His older brothers moved out of town (lucky people) but we are stuck because Jack works for his father. His hope is that he will one day inherit the business but he has nothing in writing.

Jack's hours are killing. In fact he has no hours. He is in the store morning, noon and night. He draws no salary. His father doles out whatever he feels like giving — and it's never enough. We are forever stalling bill collectors and I am sick of it. The business does well and there is no reason for my father-in-law to be so tight.

I have begged my husband to stand up like a man and tell his father he wants a salary, part ownership and an annual vacation but he says "Not yet." What can I do? — SOUND AND FURY.

DEAR SOUND — Your husband's dependency on his father is an old and a sick story—You need a third party to help put the father-son dependency boy relationship on a business basis.

Does your husband have an attorney? If not, he should engage one. As a starter, the attorney should be hired to draw up your husband's will. Then he should insist on a steady salary, royalty arrangements and other details which have been too long neglected.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last night the clown I'm married to showed me a copy of the letter he wrote to you. For Lord's sake please don't print it!

I've been through so much with this spe I couldn't take another blow. All I need is for that letter to appear in the paper and I'd head for the bridge. The big jerk even signed his right name.

This is an urgent plea, Ann. I beg of you, please don't let me down. — ON MY KNEES.

• • •

DEAR ON — Get off your knees and stop worrying. I never use the real name of a troubled reader — and I never will.

I have your husband's letter before me and you have my word it will not appear in the paper.

• • •

Confidential to PLENTY SHOOK — Your letter indicates that you do not know what homosexuality is. Discuss this with your doctor and inform yourself instead of tossing around misinformation.

• • •

Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," gives sound and solid rules for teen-age dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Rhythm Method Spreading Say Originators

WASHINGTON (AP) — A volunteer program in Canada in which Roman Catholic couples instruct other such couples in the rhythm method of family planning has spread to some 35 cities in that country, its originators have reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilles Bresault of Montreal said more than 3,000 couples have been instructed since 1950 on how to avoid unwanted pregnancies while using the rhythm method approved by the Roman Catholic Church. The church condemns any use of artificial contraceptive devices and also the use of the new "Anovlant" pills if intended to prevent conception.

The Bresaults described their instruction method Thursday at the closing session of an international symposium on rhythm sponsored by the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the National Federation of Catholic Physicians' Guilds.

They said their organization is known as SERENA, which stands for "Service d'Equipes Notre-Dame des Naissances" — "service for the regulation of births."

They said the organization uses carefully chosen and trained couples to teach other couples how to practice rhythm with the help of thermometers and the charting of symptoms and temperature.

They reported that not one unwanted pregnancy had occurred in those cases of instructed couples who had abided by the method. Of 600 individually - charted post - ovulatory phase of each month is "completely safe."

Gamma Mu Will Sponsor Puppet Show

President, Mrs. Al Hall, of the Gamma Mu Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, welcomed future pledges at a recent meeting held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Black. The guests were Mrs. Thomas Lally, Mrs. David Davey, Mrs. James Tustin, Mrs. Edward deCaux, and Mrs. John Day.

Plans were finalized for the sponsoring of "Puppets on Parade", a presentation by the Peterborough Puppet Guild on November 7th.

The cultural program entitled "Antiques" was presented by Miss Elizabeth Black, with the help of aides, in the form of antique chairs of the 18th and 19th centuries, furniture, tin, pewter, glass and rural Quebec was outlined.

A social hour followed with refreshments served by Mrs. Hugh Murray, and Mrs. John Turner.

JEWELRY CENTRE

Sometimes called the "Town of Gold," Valenza Po is the jewelry centre of Italy, where handcrafted work is especially prized.

Belinda Mulroney, 91, Has Had Full, Rich Life

"I wouldn't do a darned thing different if I had it to do over again," she said.

If Belinda Mulroney, now 91, were to do it all over again it would be a busy life — from nursemaid in Philadelphia to selling box lunches at the Chicago world's fair to stewardess on an Alaska steamer to running a hotel to mining in the Yukon gold rush.

"I staked me nine claims in '97; had a crew of 10 men working each, and by '98 I had an affidavit from the Canadian Bank of Commerce of $1,800,000."

Belinda Mulroney says she doesn't know where the money went but she has her money's worth in memories.

She recalls arriving in Philadelphia at the age of 12 and working as a nursemaid. She sold box lunches for a woman at the Chicago fair and saved $3,000 which she promptly lost after starting her own box lunch business in San Francisco.

"Business was building up fine when the rat who owned the building set fire to it but he could collect insurance."

She says she became a stewardess aboard an Alaska steamer and got bearing of the Yukon gold rush. She saved enough to make a down payment on the Fairview Hotel and bar at Dawson City, Yukon, stayed with it until it was paid for, then tried mining.

She married a French wine merchant "sent me flowers and junk for about a year before I noticed him"—and at one time was head of the Golden Money Mining Company, a combine with more than 50 claims.

"The bank that was financing the business never did find out I was a woman."

The couple moved to Fairbanks to take part in the Alaska gold rush but neither made nor lost money.

From there it was to a fruit farm in Washington state, then to Seattle, where her husband died.

"It's been a wonderful life and I don't regret a thing," she says. "I've worked hard and never learned the easy ways a woman can make a living. Everything I've done I'd do again."

BALLET WINS PRAISE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Winnipeg Ballet performed here Friday night before an enthusiastic audience that included Prime Minister Pearson and his wife. Ottawa critics said the large audience which almost filled the Capitol Theatre for the performance praised the company's young but professional group of 23 dancers for their fine technique and witty exuberance.

BACKS JOHNSON
TORONTO (CP)—George Hogan, secretary of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, said Friday the election of Goldwater as president of the United States would be a catastrophe for the whole world. Speaking to a group of University of Toronto students, Mr. Hogan said: "I don't think Goldwater is a conservative in any sense and I find myself, for the first time, hoping a Democrat wins."

Demand Grows for Nurses in Ontario

There are more nurses in active practice in Ontario than ever before in history. But demands for nurses in hospitals, private practice, industry, teaching and public health have increased.

A growing population, a steady increase in hospital, medical and surgical insurance, a trend toward government-sponsored health insurance programs, an increased awareness of the importance of good health care and preventive medicine . . . these are all reasons why more nurses are needed.

A Lift for Living
Self-Control Is Lesson Man Must Learn Early and Well

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Do you attempt to escape all d[illegible] ch[illegible] and distract duties, rather than face them?

Do you easily lose your temper?

Do you give in to your whims, buying merchandise impulsively rather than according to plan?

Do you follow your mood wherever they lead you, even into sullenness and a sulky silence?

Do you fuss and fume over little things?

Do you frequently say and do things for which you are soon sorry?

Do you make many resolutions that are soon broken?

Do you tend to start many good projects that you do not finish?

Do you become grumpy and irritable when you lose a debate or a game?

If your honest answer to such questions is "yes" you have a control problem.

Self-control is one of life's first and most important lessons. A small child must learn to control himself if he is to fit into his social environment. He soon taught that he cannot yank the tablecloth from the table no matter how much pleasure it gives him to watch the dishes clatter to the floor. He must tell people who offend him. He must restrain himself from doing some things, like crayons, such as paper towels, crayons and the dog's rubber bone, and he learns himself to eat some foods he does not relish. Later, as respect for his body grows, a person learns to say "No thanks" to an offer of a second piece of pie or another dish of ice cream. He declines many invitations to late parties and denies himself all the excesses that taste buds promises of relief from boredom.

GOES AGAINST FEELINGS

The mature person learns to be mannered when he feels illmannered and kind when he feels unkind. He is generous for the sake of good causes even when he feels a mite stingy.

Some measure of self-control toward other people is a stark necessity, or one becomes a social outcast. But it goes past control his physical appetites. Nature casts him aside.

The writer of the New Testament letter, Titus, advises his correspondent, "Urge the young men to control themselves." (Titus 2.6, The Revised Standard Version.) Dr. James Moffatt translated the phrase, "... to be masters of themselves at all points." What alternatives are here in such self-control?

For one thing, if we cannot manage ourselves, onward circumstances will control us. At the Olympic Games atmosphere crackles with tension and excitement, but a competing athletic dare not let himself get inside him and master him or he loses his event. Bobby Morrow won three gold medals at the 1956 Olympics. This tall sprinter with the nine foot stride outran all others in the 100 meter dash, the 200-meter race and was on the American relay team that won the 400-meter race. Morrow later said that much of his success could be credited to the fact the he never "jumped" the starting gun. Officials enforce penalties for jumping the gun, and penalties mean the loss of a contest. Bobby's athletic skills would have been useless at the Olympics without his self-control expressed in patience.

ALL IN DANGER

We are all in danger of being controlled by circumstances, letting our surroundings master us. Teen-agers fall into moral looseness by becoming the slaves of circumstance, letting the excitement of a highly erotic society regulate their behavior, inducing them to lose the gin in sex experimentation before marriage. They penalize themselves.

Adults become slaves of circumstances and the victims of time and place. They are good in church, but look out for them in a business deal. They are well behaved at noon, and they misbehave at night. They may be gentlemen and ladies in a discussion held at their club but dictatorial tyrants at the home dining table. They are all right in New Haven but all wrong in New York. They are chameleon-like and get the color of their character from their environment. Circumstances control where there is no self-control.

There is a second danger: besides being mastered by the general circumstances around us, we are too easily controlled by other people's principles rather than by our own. We become reactors, rather than actors. We must see how others will behave toward us before we decide how we will behave toward them. If people are kind we will be kind in return, and if they snub us, we will snub them. If people criticize us, we respond with criticism, and if they praise us, we answer with praise. This means we are lacking in self - control. Others control us.

INNER CONTROLS

A Quaker was asked why he treated a sullen, discourteous newsboy with such polite pleasantness. He replied, "Why should I let that fellow decide how I will act?" That Quaker's behavior is not controlled by other people's attitudes. He knows what sort of a person he will be regardless of how others and him are like. He knows, too, the abiding principles he will stand by in any crisis he should behave, no matter how unprincipled others are or how they may behave. He has inner controls.

We are meant to be above the reptiles, amphibians and fishes which are "cold-blooded" creatures, their temperatures registering the temperature of their surroundings. We are "warm blooded," with a constant temperature, no matter the outdoor air. This is because the Creator has made us with inside regulators, as far as character and behavior are concerned we are intended to be governed from within. The Paul said in writing to the Galatians, "It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me; and the life I now live in the flesh I live by the faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me." Paul was self-controlled, and, in turn, the "self" was controlled by Christ.

Principal Must Be Upheld Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — In a United Nations Day message, Prime Minister Pearson reiterated today the principle of collective financing of UN peacekeeping operations must be upheld.

Although there was a serious difference of views on these questions, the UN has shown a capacity for extracting itself from hopeless situations, he said.

"This year again the importance of maintaining the UN as an effective instrument for peace and security will be found to outweigh all other considerations."

Mr. Pearson paid tribute to Canadians serving "the cause of peace in this world" and their work for the world organization.

run-throughs on freight operations as scheduled. Acting Transport Minister George McIlraith told the Commons he had no plans to interfere with the decision.

There have been reports some rail men might stop work in protest but the company spokesman said no official word of any stoppage has been received.

The run-throughs may mean longer working hours, forces employees at terminal points to move their homes, and affect the communities economically. They mean train crews continue past the point where they previously were relieved.

BACKED BY TORIES

Mr. Fisher, backed by Conservatives and fellow NDP members, kept the debate and criticism of the publicly-owned railway running most of the day—for an hour during the question period and again throughout an interim supply debate.

He began with a motion for an emergency debate but Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled it out of order on the grounds that the interim supply debate would give opportunity for discussion.

Mr. Fisher contended the railway's action in "wiping out" a home terminal was probably illegal and that it was not entitled to counter with another possibly illegal action.

"I may be penalized and so may these men, for refusing to offer services Saturday night," he said. "It may be held that a crime is being committed under the Criminal Code.

"But this is the situation longsuffering employees are brought to in the absence of constructive approach by management to grave situations such as this."

DEFENDS DECISION

Mr. McIlraith defended the CNR's decision. He said it was for the company alone to handle and lashed out at Mr. Fisher for his threat.

"Surely this is not the kind of example that should be given to employees — or to citizens of a country generally."

The CNR had made responsible offers to the homes from workers who must move and arrangements concerning moving expenses, he said. It had invited counter - proposals about implementing the program but none had been received except the request for a delay.

Pearson Agrees China Should Be Included

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Friday described as a "very sensible suggestion United Nations Secretary-General U Thants call for inclusion of Communist China in nuclear disarmament talks.

"There can be no disarmament, nuclear or otherwise, unless the government of Peking participates in any agreement reached, Mr. Pearson told reporters during an interview.

"That is the more obvious now that the government in Peking has exploded a nuclear device.

"There can be no summit meeting on disarmament and no with any chance of success, unless the Chinese Communist government, which now controls mainland China, is included in those conferences.

One-Time Ontario Store Clerk Now Is Acting Head of Jesuits

By FRITS ROOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"A true and humble interest in people . . . an even temperament . . . an intelligent and outspoken decisiveness."

This is how his two sisters describe Rev. John L. Swain, SJ, a lean, bespectacled 56-year-old priest, a one-time department store clerk from Kemptville, Ont., who has become acting head of Roman Catholicism's largest religious order, the Society of Jesus.

The fellow cheeks under his steel-rimmed glasses and heavy eyebrows give Father Swain a stern, seemingly severe appearance, an impression quickly banished by his warm smile and easygoing willingness to talk.

The responsibility and honor of temporarily heading the world's 36,000 Jesuits didn't come as a surprise Father Swain served three years as vicar-general to the order society's Belgian general, Father Jean Baptiste Janssens, who died Oct. 5 after a long illness.

By Jesuit custom Father Janssens had designated the senior priest as his acting successor by placing his name in a closed envelope dated October, 1959, and opened after his death.

TO HOLD ELECTION

Father Swain's first responsibility is to convene the society's general chapter, expected to elect a new general for life by next spring. Few will be surprised if Father Swain, 10th general the Jesuits' 28th general, the first Canadian to reach the society top post.

Little in his background seemed to point to the clerical heights he reached 35 years after Jack — as family and friends still like to call him — was born in the small northeastern Ontario village where his parents were born.

Both from old Irish Catholic stock, his mother Ellen (Fitzsimmons) and father Edward, supervisor of the grocery department store's grocery section, reigned quietly over a close family life.

"Love was the unspoken keyword in our family life," Father Swain's younger sister Betty (now Mrs. Hubert MacGregor) recalls. "Jack, quiet and unassuming, is its perfect reflection. He never lost his true humility, despite being often held up as an example.

"Jack was an individualist who, once he was made up his mind he never became an ardent sports fan "we still live a block about the Montreal Canadiens and the Ottawa Rough Riders in the papers we send him."

And whatever is said about the Irish, friends and family can't remember, ever having seen him really angry. But he wears an even temperament without being dull and displays a willingness to communicate without being demanding.

Sister Mary Eleanor, a Grey Nun and Father Swain's older sister, remembers him as "an intelligent, normal boy, who twice jumped a class in elementary school and got his senior matriculation when he was 16."

"Jack showed a more than average interest in intelligence without really being brilliant. Signifi-

ACTING JESUIT LEADER—Rev. John L. cant for his life and work is Jack's ability to think, make a decision and then stick to it without looking back."

Too young to enter teachers' college immediately after high school graduation, Jack Swain joined his father as a clerk in the Kemptville department store. In the year he worked there he made the decision that led to the Jesuit Society.

In May, 1925, he visited Ignatius College in Guelph, Ont., on the invitation of a Jesuit friend. Returning to Kemptville a week later, he simply announced his decision to enter the Jesuit College in August.

STUDIED IN ROME

After specializing in Greek and Latin at Ignatius 1927-29, he studied philosophy in the Jesuit seminary in Toronto three years, followed by a year of teaching at Regiopolis College, Kingston, Ont.

His first time in Rome followed, as he studied theology four years at the famous Gregorian University. Father Swain was ordained there July 25, 1936.

Forced to suspend studies because of ill health, he returned to Canada in 1937 to become parish priest of St. Andrew's in Port Arthur, Ont., for two years.

He did a year's tertianship—a theological "internship" dedicated to ascetical studies—in Townsend, Wash., then joined the staff of Montreal's Loyola College as a lecturer, became dean of studies at Loyola in 1940 and three years later was appointed assistant provincial of Upper Canada.

In November, 1946, at 37, Father Swain was named provincial of the Jesuit province of Upper Canada.

After a year in retreat at Manresa Retreat House in Pickering, Ont., he returned to his old college in Guelph where he was a master of novices and rector.

Saying goodbye for the last time to his parents—they died soon after—he departed for Japan in 1950 to become Christian master of priests-to-be at the Jesuit College in Hiroshima.

Father Swain returned to Rome in 1957 when he became English assistant to the society's general, followed by appointment as vice-general in 1960 and vicar-general in 1961.

Today his office is in the Jesuit headquarters in Rome, just outside Vatican City, and a window affords him a clear view of the balcony where the Pope makes his regular appearances — the "bless Rome and the world" masses in St. Peter's square.

VISIT PARK

WINNIPEG (CP)—More than 172,000 persons visited Riding Mountain National Park during August, 1964, a decrease of some 2,000 from the same month last year. During the eight-month period ending in August more than 587,000 visited the park, approximately the same as the corresponding period in 1963.

WORK STARTED

Work has now begun in 20 departments to draw up the 1965-66 spending program, which will be tabled in the January budget and the cabinet, for presentation to the Commons next spring.

But judging from the work still to be done on the current year's estimates, spring is still a long way off.

It is customary for governments to put off work on the really controversial estimates as long as possible, hoping that the long hours and busy days of a session will put a damper on debate.

Things may be different this session. The Commons has had no recess since the session began last Feb. 18, and members entertain no hope during the summer months, now has reverted to its regular hours.

STILL TO COME

And among the ministers still to go on the mat for their departmental appropriations are Finance Minister Gordon with $1,449,653,300; Forestry Minister Sauve, asking for $19,489,-

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Canyon, Sports Editor

One of the unhappier stories of the 1964 major league baseball season has been the fadeout of one of my favorite lefthanders, Warren Spahn. The story was not helped by obviously strained relations between Spahn and Milwaukee Braves manager Bobby Bragan.

Through 1963, the incomparable Spahn laughed at the years. That 1963 campaign was another 20-victory season for him. There was no reason to believe that 1964 would be different. If a man could be a master at 42, why shouldn't he also be one at 43?

Abruptly, though, Spahn lost his touch in 1964. He was a starter through half the season but was Kayo'd frequently. His earned-run average soared. After a blasting by the Mets in July Spahn was sent to the bullpen.

The wizard did not take kindly to the demotion and made no secret of his disenchantment with Bragan. On numerous occasions, Spahn insisted he was not washed up.

With the Braves on a winning streak in September, Spahn was given another starting assignment against the Reds and was belted hard.

Bragan has had a most difficult role. He is the villain. He is also committed to a youth program. Bragan gave Spahn every chance for half the season. In the face of consistent failures by Spahn, the manager had no choice. He must be applauded for his courage which he knew would not add to his popularity.

One can only hope that Spahn will make a comeback next year and go out of the game with his head high. But Bragan cannot be faulted for his handling of a touchy problem.

MINOR HOCKEY

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association opens the 1964-65 season next week.

First away from the post will be the squirts and midgets, who swing into action Tuesday evening. There are ten squirt teams and games in this division will be played each Tuesday night from 5.15 to 7.50 and each Friday night from 6.15 to 7.45 p.m.

The midget section has four entires. Games are scheduled for each Tuesday night, from 8.00 to 10.00 p.m.

The tyke grouping, youngest of the age groups, has six teams. Games will be played, three at a time, across the ice surface, each Friday night at 5.15 p.m. The schdule opens next Friday.

Peewee teams, numbering ten in all, will play each Saturday morning, starting one week from today. Games commence at 7.00 a.m. and continue through until noon.

The bantam division, with eight teams, plays three games each Saturday, from 12.30 noon until 3.30 p.m., plus one game each Sunday, at 5.30 p.m. First scheduled games will be played next Saturday.

A shortage of registered players has prevented juvenile arrangements from being completed. An open practice has been caled for Tuesday night at ten o'clock. That is also the registration deadline for the juvenile age group.

It shapes up as another fine season for the youngsters and all parents can make it an even better one by going down to the rink to give the kids some support.

Campbell Barred Contract
Lindsay Is Paid By Game

By Ben Olan

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a good reason why Ted Lindsay, one of hockey's all - time greats, came back after a four-year retirement and rejoined Detroit Red Wings at age 39.

"I want to finish my hockey career in Detroit." he explained. "I played there for 13 years. I live there now and I'll die there. I would have played this season for nothing."

It was a black day for the colorful left winger when he was traded to Chicago Black Hawks years ago. Lindsay said that I wasn't treated well in Chicago," he emphasized, "but my heart was still with the Wings."

Lindsay, a native of Renfrew, Ont., who has scored 365 goals and accumulated 1,149 penalty minutes in the NHL, insists he's well fixed financia.ly. He has interests in four compan. ies manufacturing automotive parts.

"We tried to sign him to a dollar a year contract," said Sid Abel, the Wings' general manager-coach, "but Clarence Campbell, the league president, wouldn't give us permission. So, we're paying him by the game."

Lindsay, Abel and Gordie Howe, still a super-star at 36, formed the Wings' famed production line for many years.

"My arrangement with Sid is that I only play home games," Lindsay pointed out. "I'm playing no road games now because we've been away from home for a while and I don't want to go stale."

"He won't make all the same moves he did in the old days," Abel said. "But he's helped already and gives us one more solid player to call on when we're in trouble."

"I said all along that Ted retired too darned early," said Howe, the NHL's all-time goal scoring leader. "His legs were in good shape when he quit and they're all right now, too. It's just like old times having him back."

CAN'T INTERFERE

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington was reported Friday to have told a Milwaukee Braves stockholder it cannot interfere with the baseball team's plan to move to Atlanta. The Milwaukee Journal's Washington bureau said William Watson of Milwaukee, who bought 10 shares of Braves stock in 1963 when it was offered for public sale, complained to the SEC that the stock prospectus contained misleading statements.

No Infractions In Five Games ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Faceoff Rule Having Desired Effect

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League's new rule banning faceoff interference seems to be having the desired effect.

The rule, which prohibits faceoff participants from hindering each other unless they're attempting to play the puck, was called seven times during the first seven games this season. But in the five subsequent games to date the new law hasn't been broken.

The rule was established this season, according to NHL president Clarence Campbell, because increasing interference during faceoffs has been spoiling the game and minimizing the value of smaller players.

It reads like this: "No player facing off shall make any physical contact with his opponent's body by means of his own body or by his stick except in the course of playing the puck after the faceoff has been completed."

TORONTO IS CAUGHT

Of the seven infractions called, Toronto has been the victim three times. New York twice and Boston and Chicago once each. Coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs feels he has been a loud critic of the rule.

"Imlach says the rule is not being called correctly and is being applied improperly, but he goes no farther," Campbell explained Friday. "We are tightening up on interference after the faceoff to the extent players who were in the faceoff."

Complaints are the result of confusion over the new rule and the long-standing rule applying to general interference with a man. Even the referees may be confused.

Campbell said that referees may have called the wrong penalty in three of the seven faceoff interference calls. Penalties for the usual interference infraction should have been called.

Enforcement and interpretation of rules were discussed by league and team officials in August. Campbell says it will take at least 70 games to assess the change.

HASN'T RISEN

Although the number of penalties hasn't risen appreciably —157 penalties in 72 games compared to 156 in the first 12 games last season—there's been a sharp increase in the total interference infractions called.

Referees have called interference 27 times, 15 more calls than last year. A crackdown on hooking by players has resulted in eight misconduct penalties so far compared to only three at this stage of the schedule last season.

The rule requiring goalies to play the puck only in their area has lightened and it's been called twice. Campbell said there may be some relaxation when goaltenders drop to grab the puck and obviously can't see what is going on around them.

Fans will have further opportunity to study the situation this weekend as the NHL provides four games.

Detroit visits Montreal and New York is at Toronto Saturday night. Chicago meets the Rangers at New York Sunday while Boston plays host to Detroit.

Western League Splits

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victories Friday night by Los Angeles Blades and San Francisco Seals split the six Western Hockey League teams into first and second places.

A 4-3 win over Vancouver Canucks tied the Blades with Seattle Totems at eight points in the standings.

San Francisco's second win of the young season, a 4-3 victory over Seattle, took the Seals out of the cellar into a four-point, four-way tie for second place.

Portland and Victoria were idle.

At Vancouver, Lloyd Haddon fired two Los Angeles markers with Leo Labine and Gordie Howarth getting the other two. Bob Plager scored a first-period Vancouver goal and a second in the third period. Buddy Bones completed the scoring.

At Seattle, the Seals battled through to tie 14:28 mark of the first period before Charlie Burns opened the scoring on a penalty shot. Wayne Connelly added another four minutes later.

Bill Dineen and Gerry Brisson tied the game in the second period. Larry Zeidel completed Seattle scoring while Larry Lund and Ed Fraboto rounded out the scoring for San Francisco in the third.

Ti-Cats, Argos Clash Today
Riders Shaken Up For Lark Tilt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Everyone but Ottawa Rough Riders have written off Montreal Alouettes as seco-i choice in Sunday's Eastern Football Conference action.

But the Rough Riders, who underwent the biggest shakeup of the Canadian Football League season this week, have been working diligently and even star quarterback Russ Jackson has been putting in overtime as Ottawa got set to meet the Als.

A win for the Rough Riders could leave them in contention for the EFC championship, providing eellar-dwelling Toronto Argonauts defeat first place Hamilton Tiger-Cats today.

But a win for the Lucuettes would give them the third and final playoff berth in the conference and end Ottawa's chances of passing the Ticats.

The Argo-Ticat meeting was scheduled for 2 p.m. at Hamilton today and was to be televised on the Eastern network of the CBC.

The Rough Riders-Alouettes game at Montreal Sunday will also be televised beginning at 2 p.m. on the Eastern network of the CBC.

Coach Frank Clair of the Rough Riders didn't waste any time in getting to the seat of the problem following st: club's 34-16 defeat at the hands of the Ticats last weekend.

Halfback Ernie White got the axe. Three other unidentified players were fined.

Ottawa picked up Bo Scott of Ohio State University Friday to replace White and the rc tened other cuts if the Rough Riders didn't snap back.

But the biggest shakeup came Thursday night when Clair announced that Ted Watkins John Nemeth and Whit Tucker had been benched for Sunday's game.

Watkins is the third highest point getter in the EFC with 42 points and Tucker has 24 points.

In addition Clair has been working Jackson overtime every day this week with the stress on faster passes.

Ed Ulmer has been moved out of defensive lineup for Sunday's game and will play as an offensive halfback.

Tom Neck will take over Ulmer's old spot and Bill Quinn will replace Watkins at the left end.

Merv Collins will be back at guard after being sidelined with an injury.

Coach Jim Trimble of the Alouettes was unusually quiet this week although he said earlier that "we're due to get that Ottawa team."

The Als have been working on their passing attack during practice and concentrating on sending receivers wider to open the middle for Jack Gotta and George Dixon.

Rookie George Bork will handle the quarterbacking duties.

Commercial League Holds Trophies Smoker

The Belleville Commercial Softball League wound up its eighth season of activity — and one of its most successful — with a smoker at the Park Dale Community Hall last night.

Every club in the league had representatives at the enjoyable affair, with president Dave Feeney acting as master of ceremonies.

Official chores were kept at a minimum. Honored through trophy presentations were: most valuable player, Jack "Deacon" Whiting; most sportsmanlike player, Tim Cook; playoff champions, Lightfoot Construction; pennant winners, Barrage Landscapers; and "B" division champions, Black Diamond Cheese.

It was a "fun and games" evening, for the most part.

Regals Whip Woodstock, Oaks Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Malo scored three goals Friday night to spark Guelph Regals to a penalty - studded 5-3 victory over Woodstock Athletics and sole possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

In another penalty - ridden game at Welland, Darrell Mitchell scored the winning goal in overtime to give Oakville Oaks a 6-5 decision over the Burloaks.

Referee Terry Olinski handed out 22 penalties, 13 of them to Woodstock, as the defending champion Athletics lost their third game in four since the team drew two majors for fighting and Woodstock's Bobby Robinson got a 10-minute misconduct while Guelph's Don McGregor drew a game misconduct.

Jack McIntyre supplemented Malo's three goals with a pair as the Regals took their third straight victory. For Woodstock, Robinson scored twice and Bernie Mickie once.

At Welland, referee Hugh McLean gave Oakville's Brian Joyce 10-minute and game misconduct penalties for arguing an offside call and later handed Pryce's team-mate Doug Hillman a 10-minute misconduct for arguing.

Bob Hawkins and Bill Ford each scored twice for Oakville and Gus Mortson added a single. Mike Lapimovich got two goals and Art Graham, Bob Judge and Jim McInnis one each for Welland.

Hour-Long Ceremony Ends Olympics

Colorful Scene

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Japan bid sayonara—goodbye — and Emperor Hirohito gravely waved his grey felt hat at thousands of departing athletes at the 18th Olympic Games ended tonight in an hour-long ceremony that had its moments of hi-tans.

The first Olympics ever held in Asia lasted two weeks. It was the biggest of modern times and probably the most successful.

The climax of the 20-sport carnival that began here in solemn pomp Oct. 10 was almost slip-shod by comparison with the rigid organization of these games.

The 92,000-plus who jammed the National Stadium waved white handkerchiefs as the remnants of the 6,000 athletes that competed for 163 gold medals marched out. There were about 4,000 athletes on hand.

A spectator from Sierra Leone cavorted merrily around the track in front of the uniformed royal box where Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagata were seated. Two Zealanders bowed to the emperor long and deep.

The huge scoreboard said sayonara as the Olympic flame was slowly snuffed out atop the cauldron bowl. Then a red fire works burst over the stadium. Avery Brundage of the United States, president of the International Olympics Committee, formally proclaimed the Games closed.

Brundage said:

"I declare the Games of the 18th Olympiad closed, and in accordance with tradition, I call upon the youth of all countries to assemble four years from now at Mexico City, there to celebrate with us the Games of the 19th Olympiad.

"May they display cheerfulness, friendship and sportsmanship so that the Olympic torch will be carried on with ever greater eagerness, determination and power for the good of humanity throughout the ages."

The Olympic flag was hauled down and carried out by six Japanese sailors. At this point the translation began to fall apart. Athletes broke ranks to snap pictures with their new Japanese friends.

LIGHT TORCHES

Then the flag bearers marched on to the track as they straggled behind them, the crowd waved, the contestants waved back and the flame in the Tokyo games were over.

Only one event, the equestrian, will be held after the closing ceremony on the final program. Germany won the team title and a Frenchman took the individual crown, leaving the standing of Russia and the United States, leaders, undisturbed.

The Games were won by Russia on a basis of total medals, but the U.S. won the most golds.

The U.S. team won 36 gold medals—up two from the Rome Games in 1960—to 30 for the Russians, who were off 13 golds from their Rome showing.

In total medals the Russians had 96 to 90 for the U.S., down seven for the Russians and up 19 for the Americans.

Japan was third in gold medals with 16, but Germany had the third-best overall total, 50.

WON FOUR MEDALS

Canada won a gold medal in rowing, two silver in track and judo and a bronze in track. Its best showing since 1956. In 1960, Canada won but one silver, in the eight-oared crew event.

Russia won the unofficial team championship with a total of 605 1-3 points, far down from the 30796 points it chalked up four years ago.

The United States was second with 683 1-3 points, far better than the 56444 it won in 1960.

Germany finished third with 365, Japan fourth with 284 and Italy fifth with 2104.

Canada wound up with 40 points and placed 21st among the 94 countries that competed in the Games. In 1960, Canada was 36th among 84 countries, scoring only 16 points.

Points are based on the traditional system of scoring 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six placings in each event. But it is entirely unofficial and frowned on by Olympic officials who say athletes compete as individuals, not as teams, and therefore there is no national ranking.

TAKES GOLD MEDAL

In the jumping event, France won its only gold medal of the Games thanks to the skill of 44 year - old Jacqueline d'Oriola and a nine-year-old dark bay gelding named Latteur.

D'Orsola captured the individual honors with the lowest number of penalty points—nine.

Germany's strong team of Hermann Schridde on Dozent, Kurt Jarasinki and Hans Gunther Winkler also won the team title for the third consecutive time.

Schridde got the silver medal. He was also on the team that won bronze medal, Peter Robeson of Britain nosed out Australia's Kevin Bacon.

In the team competition, the silver medal went to France. Italy's squad took the bronze.

Germany scored 68.50 penalty points, France 77.75 and Italy 83.50. Britain was fourth with 97.25, Argentina fifth with 101.00 and the United States took sixth with 107.50.

Forty-six riders from 17 countries, including 14 national teams, battled for almost seven hours for the highest awards in international equestrian sports.

Mexican Grand Prix Has Trouble

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Angry drivers protested yesterday Friday night when organizers of Sunday's Mexican Grand Prix auto race said no official times could be determined on Friday's five trial runs.

"The electrical time recorders went wild at an unknown time and started going slow eighths of a second," said Javier Velasquez, race director. "Consequently, all times we recorded are incorrect."

This was the third development of the day that threw cold water on Sunday's race, originally billed as one which would determine the world racing championship conferred by three top drivers.

Japan's Honda dropped out because of mechanical trouble, cutting down competing cars to 19 and countries to eight.

The head of the International Automotive Federation (FIA) Friday night, Fiankter Mittelhammer, said Scotland's Jim Clark was out of the title running because of a previous mixup in standings.

Maurice Baumgartner said that Clark, even if he wins the Grand Prix here could not win the world championship conferred by Graham Hill and John Surtees, of London.

Hill has 39 points in nine world races, Surtees 34, and Clark, the defending champion in Mexico, 30. If he had won the championship under a rule Hill had not placed, he stood a good chance of winning the 1964 world championship under a complicated scoring system.

But Baumgartner said that Clark has only 30 points because he placed fifth and not fourth in the recent Monaco Grand Prix. Team manager, Colin Champman, said that if Clark wins again here this will be contested. If he doesn't the matter will be dropped.

U. S. Pro Football

Lions, Colts Top Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Every day you read about some football player as the chosen best this of the week, or best at that of the week, so why not an award for best pan of the week?

It might as something like this: When Alex Karras of the Detroit Lions, that's the way the cookie crumbles.

The cookie in this case is Cookie Gilchrist, like - busting fullback for Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, who football's only unbeaten team. Now, Cookie is in danger of losing his laurels as the AFL's top runner to Snell, the brilliant rookie find of New York Jets.

Gilchrist and Snell meet Sunday night for the first time this season when the Bills (4-0) entertain the Jets (3-1-1) in an important Eastern Division game. Snell is the AFL's leading ground - gainer with 496 yards to Gilchrist's 453.

In Sunday games, San Diego Chargers (3-2-1) visit Houston Oilers (3-4) and Denver Broncos (1-5) visit Oakland Raiders (0-5-1).

Boston Patriots assured themselves of remaining in second place behind Buffalo with a 24-7 victory over Kansas City Friday night. Flanker in a hurry Jimmy Colclough, a fill-in for injured Art Graham, caught touchdown passes from Babe Parilli and set up another score.

All 14 National Football League teams will play Sunday. Top game is the meeting in Detroit between the Lions, runners-up in the Eastern Conference with a 4-1-1 record, and front-running Baltimore Colts (5-1).

This one pits the Colts' high-powered offence, which has rolled up 200 points, against Detroit's study defence, which has been cracked for only 71 points.

In other action, Dallas Cowboys (1-4-1) visit St. Louis Cardinals (4-1), New York Giants (4-1-1) visit Cleveland Browns (4-1-1), Philadelphia Eagles (3-3) visit Pittsburgh Steelers (4-2), Minnesota Vikings (3-3) visit San Francisco 49ers (3-4), Chicago Bears (2-4) visit Washington Redskins (1-5), and Los Angeles Rams (3-2-1) visit Green Bay Packers (3-3) at Milwaukee.

Poor Showing Of Athletes, Few Tourists

Olympics Disappointment To Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese sports fans are watching the last curtain drop on the gigantic sports fiesta they took so much trouble to stage with somewhat mixed feelings.

The exhilaration that surrounded the opening of the Olympic Games Oct. 10 has virtually vanished and many even admit disliking the competition on television this week.

Though coming to a successful conclusion, the games brought two deep disappointments to the Japanese public.

The poor showing of Japanese swimmers depressed the public. Some businessmen feel they are betrayed by the relatively small influx of Olympic tourists.

It took four years of preparations and $3,000,000,000—if all construction in the name of the Olympiad is included—and an army of 15,000 sports officials, clerks, interpreters, assistants and troops to run the 20 sports of the Olympic Games.

This does not include the thousands of policemen, firemen, medical staff and boy scouts who also devoted time and energy for the event.

EXCEED ESTIMATES

And outlays are exceeding estimates. One example: The budget for bringing the Olympic flame from Greece to Tokyo had been $150,000. The actual cost was about $50,000 more.

A total of 3,711 competitors from 94 countries accompanied by 2,000 officials took part in the Games, which were reported by 1,200 foreign correspondents.

And 895,546 spectators watched the games at 20 venues during its first week. Statistics for the second week were not available.

But Japan's own harvest was a meagre bronze medal each in the chief attractions — track and swimming. Had there not been gymnastics, judo, wrestling, volleyball and weightlifting as saviors, the 18th modern Olympic Games would have turned out a very sad occasion for the Japanese.

Nor did the Olympics trigger the dreamed-of avalanche of tourist dollars.

EXPECTED MORE

The government bureau's original estimate was for an increase of 130,000 foreign arrivals caused one way or another by the Olympics during all of 1964. They admit now that figure was much too optimistic.

The actual number of tourists and other foreigners during the Olympic period itself seemed to be only 12,000 to 14,000 more than during the comparable period last year.

The number of foreigners arriving at Tokyo Airport for the first half of October, 1963 had been 11,000. It was 17,500 this year, immigration officials reported. Another 3,000 guests aboard 10 ships that are serving as floating hotels.

This includes the 8,842 athletes, officials and reporters who entered the country on Olympic identification cards.

BUSINESS HURT

Tokyo's shopkeepers and restaurateurs who went to great length to renovate their stores —and spent $30,000 to decorate 1,800 shopping areas in the city with strands of national flags—claim the games have actually hurt their business.

This is because so many Japanese kept watching television instead of going out to shop and eat. They claimed a 30 to 30 per cent drop in business during the games.

Tokyo's thousands of bars and nightclubs, whose exorbitant and unpredictable prices have gained international notoriety, also ranked among the disenchanted.

"Foreigners are so stingy—they squabble over over a 50-yen (14 cents) error in the bill," a cabaret hostess commented.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A time of 2:08 2-5 for the mile gave Bishop Song, a four-year-old gelding, top honors at the Western Fair Raceway here Friday when he captured the first division of the Western Ontario Trot for a purse of $2,350.

The second division, also for $2,350, went to Bobby Reid, another four-year-old gelding, in the slower time of 2:11.

Bishop Song, second choice in the betting, paid $7.70 for the win while Bobby Reid was the odds-on choice of the crowd of 2,667 and paid $3.20.

Clinch Second Place

BCI Seniors Nip Trenton

By DAVID TEMPLER

BCI clinched second place in the local gridiron senior race last night when they beat Trenton 7-0 at the Fairgrounds. The junior squads split a 13-13 decision.

In the second play after the opening kickoff, Doug Purcell for B.C.I. intercepted a pass thrown by Peter Wiltshire and, with a good block by Allan Mott, ran 30 yards to score the game's only major. Doug Purcell converted himself to complete the scoring.

Th remainder of the game was a defensive duel.

In the second half, the Trenton squad had their chance. Bob Morrison intercepted a BCI pass and on the next play Pete Wiltshire bombed a 45 yard pass play to Brucker, brought down on the 20. Clement and Gauthier drove for five apiece to give Trenton a first on BCI's 10 yard line. BCI's defence dug in and three downs later the Collegians took over on their own 17.

Drives by Walsh, Knott and Lightfoot for BCI and end runs by Wiltshire for Trenton worked quite well but neither could manage a major in the hard fought, defensive duel.

BCI Seniors can now force a playoff against first-place, undefeated Quinte S.S. by winning their final scheduled game against Picton here next Friday.

JUNIOR GAME

Early in the opening quarter Ray Barrick and Scott Scrimshaw led Bruce Mathes for Trenton behind his goal line for the first point of the game. With a minute in the half remaining, Ray Thibeau went from the 37 to the 15-in, a clear demonstration of the broken field running. Pete Holm went around right end for 18 and the score.

A fumble recovered by Peter Hiles in the third quarter sent Ray Thibeau around the left end for 14 yds and the TD.

At the end of the third quarter Bruce McNea recovered a fumble by BCI and went to the 17. Bob Halvarsen carried to the one. Don Creighton dove for Trenton's first major.

Then the last quarter Dan Creighton carred five of eight plays for 83 out of 90 yards, climaxing the sustained drive by getting a major and converting to tie the score at 13-13.

Too Monotonous

Brundage Wants Bands, Rituals Out

By WILL GRIMSLEY

TOKYO (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee wants to get rid of one of the Games' most solidly entrenched rituals—the victory ceremony.

He doesn't want national flags raised and anthems played after medal performances in the various sports because they only help to generate extreme nationalism, he told a press conference today.

"In the first place, the national anthems are badly played," the Chicago hotel owner said.

"They are also monotonous, and I think it would be better to play some sort of Olympic song."

Brundage, beginning another four-year term as head of the IOC, admitted that extreme nationalism was affecting spirit of the Games and should be discouraged in every way possible.

"There is one country which openly admits that its athletes are political agents," he said. "This is one thing that we cannot accept." He declined to name the country.

In a press conference shortly before closing ceremonies of the 18th Games, Brundage also said:

1. He hoped it would be possible to keep Germany as a combined team despite the action this week of the International Amateur Athletic Federation to split the country into two sports units — East Germany and Germany.

2. South Africa presents a problem which because its political leaders do not agree with the sports federation, but South Africa still is a member of the IOC and could compete at Mexico City in 1968.

3. There was no way to unite the Korean team because South Korea and North Korea are in virtual state of war.

4. The Olympics were founded as a contest of individuals and team sports, such as basketball and soccer, have no place on the program. He personally favors their elimination but is repeatedly voted down by the IOC.

5. The Games, just closing, were the largest and most successful ever staged and Japanese organizers have been honored with the highest awards for their work.

Star Hopes Wagon Train Will Keep Rolling Along

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How long can Wagon Train keep rolling along? Scout Robert Fuller hopes it will go on and on, but he admits that this may be the critical season.

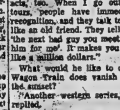
"Right years is an awfully long time for a series to be on television," he conceded. "And we're up against some powerhouse competition this season. I must say that we haven't let up at all. The scripts this year, when we're an hour in black and white, have been better than last season, when we had 90 minutes in color."

"Still, you've got to get the ratings. If we don't come up with them, ABC is liable to say 'this is it' after we do the next six shows."

Somehow television couldn't seem the same without good old Wagon Train, which has wrestled death (Ward Bond, original wagon master), defection (Robert Horton, original scout) and uncounted perils, including periodic Indian attacks.

SEE RESURGENCE

There's a feeling in TV circles that if only the train can make it over the next hill, it might go on forever. Industry observers opine that in Western is due for a rebirth following this season's inundation of situation comedies.



Unlike some television cowpokes who could hardly wait to get out of the sagebrush, Bob Fuller likes it where he is. He's not exactly a newcomer to the field, having gone from four years in Laramie into Wagon Train last season with only a 26-day breather.

"I like Westerns; I like the people I work with and I like working outdoors," says Fuller, who spends every weekend camping with his wife and six-month-old son.

"I like the way the public reacts, too. When I go out on tours, people have immediate recognition, and they talk to me like an old friend. They tell me, 'the best bad guy you meet, get him for me!' It makes you feel like a million dollars."

What would he like to do if Wagon Train does vanish into the sunset?

"Another western series," he replied.

AT THE BELLE — Elizabeth Ashley and George Peppard are first time co-stars in Edward J. Lewis's presentation of "The Carpetbaggers," the Technicolor Panavision epic. Now playing at the Belle Theatre, continuing next week, with a cast of favorites.

First Choice Would Be Keane

Ricksy Tells His Story

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Branch Rickey, blamed for much of the recent shakeup that riddled the front office of St. Louis Cardinals, gave his side of the story Friday.

In a telephone interview with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Rickey, hired during the summer as a player consultant for the Cards, replied to what he said were a number of "published inaccuracies" about his role in the series of firings and resignations in the National League club.

Referring to the surprise resignation of manager Johnny Keane the day after the Cardinals won the World Series, Rickey rhetorically asked:

"What would you have done if you had learned that you were to be replaced, learned it at a time when you had just completed the rehabilitation of a team which had been divided into feudal factions most of the season?"

Rickey would not elaborate on "feudal factions" except to say "that is a far bigger story than my own differences with the club. And perhaps I'll tell you about it . . . some day."

NO FART IN RUMORS

He said he did not have anything to do with Keane before the season ended that Leo Durocher would replace Keane.

"If I owned a ball club," said the 83-year-old Rickey, "my first choice for a manager would be Johnny Keane. I gave him his start in baseball years ago and I have been a consistent, ardent and continual supporter of him ever since.

"I at no time suggested, or even thought to myself, that he should be replaced."

The shakeup began with the August resignation of Bing Devine as general manager. Bob Howsam replaced Devine. Later Eddie Stanky, director of player development, and three top scouts resigned.

GIVEN NEW POST

OTTAWA (CP)—Wing Cmdr. Bert Allison, 45, of Prince Albert, Sask., and Vancouver has been named commanding officer of RCAF station Downsview at Toronto, defence headquarters announced Friday. He replaces Group Capt. R. A. Ellis, recently appointed commander of RCAF station Uplands at Ottawa.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

In addition to speeding up play, I think the new rule regarding faceoffs in the National Hockey League this season is going to do away with a lot of penalties, needless penalties, anyway.

The centres seem to be taking all the faceoffs these days because of the new rule that says there mustn't be any physical contact at the faceoff. There will be clear-cut decisions as to who is fastest on the draw. The new rule requires them to stand squarely facing their opponents' end of the rink, approximately one stick length apart with the full blade of their sticks on the ice.

In addition, they have to have one skate on each side and clear of the line running through the faceoff spot with both feet behind and clear of the line parallel to the goal line.

Previously, on some faceoffs in enemy territory, I'd tell a teammate I'm going to run the man. I'd tie him up and my teammate would just walk in, pick up the puck and get a shot away.

However, on occasion, a defenceman on the faceoff, would have the same idea. He'd move in and kick or get a piece of the puck anyway at all, to get it back. Then he'd throw the stick between your legs and tie you up.

It'd cause a few hard feelings because you'd be pushing and elbowing and trying to get away from the man. First thing you'd know, you're scrimmaging and fighting. Then there'd be whistles and penalties called.

I think the new rule is a good one. It's something they've been trying to clear up in recent years. Old timers used to stand sideways to take the faceoffs.

Now, if a player facing off makes physical contact with his opponent except in the course of playing the puck after the faceoff has been completed, he's liable for a minor penalty.

Medical Student Inquiry

MONTREAL (CP)—The students association at the University of Montreal called Friday for a public inquiry into the actions of the police during the Queen's visit to Quebec City. The association also said Solicitor-General Claude Wagner of Quebec made "unfounded accusations" against students from the university in his report on allegations of police brutality.

JAILED FOR RAPE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Andrew Shalagan, 52, was given a 10-year jail term Friday for raping a half-blind, 81-year-old grandmother in the bathroom of her Winnipeg home. Shalagan had pleaded guilty.

EASTERN ONTARIO CLUBS

QUESTION: We are driving to the new Toronto Airport to fly to Florida. We will be away for four weeks and would like to store the car there if possible. What are the rates? Is there any other place where the car can be stored? — A. C. L., Belleville.

ANSWER: The rates at the Toronto airport are $2.00 a day for parking your car. As they are not interested in storage it is advisable to store your car in a Toronto parking garage where the rates are much lower (approximately $20.00 per month) and take the airport bus from the Royal York Hotel or a taxi.

QUESTION: I have been moved from Alberta to Belleville. Do I have to purchase new driving plates and license to drive my car in this province. — A. P., Alberta.

ANSWER: You did not state if you are here on a permanent basis or as a visitor. The two questions give six months only for visitors from other Canadian provinces, and three months for visitors from outside Canada, provided these visitors remain tourists. If they carry on business while visiting in Ontario, they must obtain an Ontario driving licence and register their cars and obtain Ontario license plates immediately.

QUESTION: We are holidaying in Florida next month and would like a list of cottages or cabins near Fort Lauderdale. Could you tell us of them, or where I can get this literature that will tell me where to find these places? Also would you tell me the fastest route down?

ANSWER: If you write to Fort Lauderdale Tourist Association they would be happy to send you information and brochures on places to stay in the Lauderdale area. Also write the Chamber of Commerce, Tampa, Florida (the fastest way, I would suggest you take No. 81 from Watertown and continue South to No. 11 and then take No. 81, 40, 31 and then No. 301 all the way to Florida. If you wish a change of scenery on the way back, try Highway 15.

QUESTION: We are driving to New York City and would like to know more about the state itself. I wondered if you could give me a few statistics on area, population, etc.

ANSWER: New York City has a population of close to eight million people with a metropolitan population of 10,694,833. New York State has a population of 16,782,603 has an area of 49,576 sq. miles of which 1632 sq. miles are water.

Capital — Albany.
Nickname — The Empire State.
Flower — Rose.
Speed Limit — 50 miles per hour in cities.
Minimum Age for Drivers — 18 years.

Publisher Sends Reply to Letter From Mayor

TORONTO (CP)—James L. Cooper, vice-president and editor-in-chief of the Globe and Mail, said Friday that Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) must be willing to bargain in good faith and with realistic proposals before negotiations can be resumed with his newspaper.

In a letter to Mayor Philip Givens, Mr. Cooper also said the union must cease making threats of violence and damage.

Mr. Cooper's letter was in answer to a letter from the mayor in which he urged the three Toronto daily newspapers to negotiate separately with their striking printers. The mayor's letter was communicated a board of control resolution. The union has been on strike against the Globe and Mail and the papers have continued to publish.

Mr. Cooper said the suggestion to negotiate separately was "not as simple as you (the mayor) have been led to believe."

WAS REJECTED

He said the publishers negotiated a settlement with the ITU last spring and a short time it was rejected by union headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Twice since then, wrote Mr. Cooper, the publishers offered proposals which would have made Toronto printers among the highest paid in the world. He said the union has turned down an offer of a lifetime guarantee for present composing room employees against unemployment induced by new processes or equipment.

"Since the strike the printers' union has not made a single proposal for settlement," he said.

Mr. Cooper's letter also quoted two union spokesmen who spoke of future bloodshed and violence because of the strike.

BRITAIN SECOND TO U.S.

LONDON (CP) — Britain's pharmaceutical industry last year put Britain second to the United States in exports of drugs and chemical supplies. It is calculated that each Briton bought on the average one penny-worth of drugs each day, compared with fivepence a day on beer, twopence on candy and fourpence on bus travel.

Belleville 1860

The Shambles of a Royal Visit

There's nothing new under the sun—even the fleeting reception for Royal visits in Canada. Not long ago Canada was disturbed at the demonstrations against the Queen in Quebec. In 1860 the same thing happened — only this time it was Belleville which was a key centre for the embarrassment, as this story shows.)

By HARRY MULHALL

The spokesman for the 1860s group surreptitiously cleared his throat and began:

"To His Royal Highness, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales:

"If William Pope, mayor of the Hotel-sized hunting country town of Belleville sounded nervous, it was only partly due to the sugar company to which he and his councillors had been admitted.

The reason for his presence would have intimidated any man — and they were recovering from the humiliations in the document he was now reading.

"We, the inhabitants of the county of Belleville, beg to express to your Royal Highness, our loyalty and devotion to the throne of Great Britain, and our heartfelt regret, that when your Royal Highness proceeded to visit us, untoward circumstances, deeply deplored, deprived us of the long and eagerly looked-for opportunity of meeting your Royal Highness with an enthusiastic display of our devotion to our Beloved Queen and the Royal Family . . ."

Outside Government House in Toronto it was a fair Fall afternoon. But bad fog in 1860 left many an Ontario face as red as the turning leaves on its favourite trees.

Ontario, manned by stalwart yeoman stock, the staunchest of British provinces in the colonial crown, had perpetrated the unbelievable-published the unpardonable-belief to the British throne!

TRIED TO MAKE AMENDS

And to compound the disaster, His Royal Highness had been received in Quebec with unequalled demonstrations of loyalty and joyous celebration.

Now, before the Heir Apparent departed home, Ontario was trying to make amends, through its public spokesmen.

Belleville was very prominent among them for Belleville shared uncommon distinction with Kingston in the shambles of the Royal visit that had been capped in Toronto.

They were the two towns on which the Prince had turned his back within their gates.

The reason then — as in Quebec recently when the Queen's visit put the shoe on the other provincial foot—was something modern Canadians have found a label for—reaction.

Quebec was solidly Roman Catholic, Ontario was solidly British and Protestant and the Orange Order was a power in the land. Distrust was open on both sides—a growing stronger as it progressed outward to the extremes.

The Fenian threat was real in the centre of United Empire Loyalist country.

EXCITEMENT MOUNTS

The event of a Royal presence in their midst was cause for assembled people rejoicing among their citizens and at the start, surprises were good for the occasion.

The Royal tour started suspiciously as the 19-year-old Prince of Wales arrived at Halifax, aboard a 91-gun battleship of the line, Ereruptured. The Maritimes city closed all businesses for two days.

In Belleville, as elsewhere, the progress across country was eagerly telegraphed to Ontario's local press and just as eagerly read and re-read. His journey through the Maritime provinces and up the St. Lawrence was a succession of cannon and church bells.

Excitement was mounting in Belleville as citizens made ready to greet their future King. Mayor Pope basted with his speech of loyalty; his councillors voted large sums for entertainments, while private citizens, lodges and business associations lavished funds on the same purpose.

Then, on August 18th, His Royal Highness arrived in Quebec City.

His reception was no less cordial than it had been elsewhere. He began a hectic round of levees, balls and public engagements.

But, suddenly, the peoples of Ontario paused and took another look.

OPENING VICTORIA BRIDGE

Or did they?

The Price seemed to be enjoying himself and in Belle Province, was reciprocating.

The high point of the Quebec visit was his Montreal with the opening of the Victoria Bridge.

Now came more trouble. Since both the Catholics and Anglican faiths were formally recognized as "Established" communions in Canada, each they shared equal billing on all Royal occasions.

Fresh ammunition from other denominations in Montreal and readers of the Belleville papers were informed of a printed protest from the other denominations delivered to Governor General Sir Edmund Head.

Now the rumble of the drums was heard. Orange lodges moved to the defence as the "Protestant Associations in the document he was now reading."

"We, the inhabitants of the county of Belleville, beg to express to your Royal Highness, our loyalty and devotion to the throne of Great Britain, and our heartfelt regret, that when your Royal Highness proceeded to visit us, untoward circumstances, deeply deplored, deprived us of the long and eagerly looked-for opportunity of meeting your Royal Highness with an enthusiastic display of our devotion to our Beloved Queen and the Royal Family . . ."

Then, on August 18th, His Royal Highness arrived in Quebec City.

His reception was no less cordial than it had been elsewhere. He began a hectic round of levees, balls and public engagements.

And the next step on the itinerary was Belleville.

The Bay of Quinte town was a-bustle. Some 50,000 were streaming in from the townships and villages for the grand occasion. Finishing touches were being put to arches and triumphal decorations across the downtown area.

One stand was to seat 1,500 school children from the town and township, dressed alike in black and white, to sing the national anthem.

And among the processional edifices was an Orange arch. Its mottoes proclaimed "Civil and Religious Liberty", "No Surrender", and "1690" (the Battle of the Boyne).

News of the Royal snub to Kingston must have landed like a mortar bomb among the townsfolk. Suddenly, a situation which had been at the most apprehensive for decorum, was confirmed as serious.

Local Orangemen, apparently were not taken aback by a hasty summons went out for an extraordinary lodge session. Fortunately, they were not at that time favorably disposed to a repeat of the Kingston decorations.

One reporter, moving in advance of the Royal party telegraphed from Belleville:

"The difficulties with the Belleville Orangemen, it is thought, may be easily settled if the interference of outsiders and excited persons is stopped. The impression is what to do with the Orangemen who come here."

The session went on behind closed doors.

Meantime, countrylolk continued to flow into Belleville through the night, crowding its boarding and hotel rooms.

In the morning, before it was expected, the news started rippling around town. The Prince had arrived!

BONFIRES LIGHTED

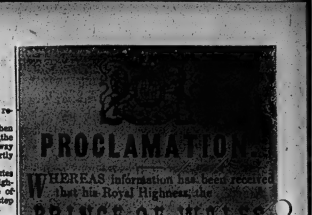
By local records the Kingston steamed up the Bay of Quinte and dropped anchor 100 yards off shore, about 9 a.m. September 8th. Bonfires were lighted, church bells rang and the citizenry prepared to welcome the Heir Apparent.

But, in the early hours a decision had finally been reached at the Orange Lodge. The meeting had gone on through past midnight. Then at 12.30 a.m. the steamer Bay of Quinte docked and Orangemen and dockmen from Kingston streamed ashore. That did it!

Up to that time, the Chronicle later reported: "the meeting was in favor of an amicable settlement of the difficulties." Then it was determined to persevere in the demonstrations".

There is a fine, revisionist area for historical personal conjecture about those events at the lodge meeting that night. One of Belleville's leading citizens at the time was Mackenzie Bowell, Tory organizer in the area, editor of The Intelligencer and later Prime Minister of Canada. He was also the man who was deputy Grand Master of the Orange District of Canada. What role he played at that assembly which was to be crucial for the Tories is accepted.

And so the lodges formed a procession and Mayor Pope in an eleventh-hour effort to avert a catastrophe, rushed and conferred with its leaders. Later he told the citizenry that they had succeeded in getting the lodges to recede but to back up their position in Kingston.



Meantime, an official from the steamer Kingston came ashore, cast a cold Foreign Office eye at the Orange arch and pronounced it "of sufficient party character to render the Royal procession impossible".

WENT TO KINGSTON

Mayor Pope had himself rowed to Kingston and the situation was explained to his worst fears. The Royal party simply repeated the Kingston man-

Britain Places Extra Duty On Many Imports

Plans Huge Withdrawal From Monetary Fund

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Britain's new socialist government, trying to head off a currency crisis, today imposed an extra 15-per-cent duty on all imports with the exception of food, raw materials and unmanufactured tobacco.

At the same time it opened negotiations to make a huge drawing of credit from the international Monetary Fund and announced plans to provide exporters with a small tax rebate —averaging about 1½ per cent of the value of exports—to stimulate more sales abroad.

Canadian officials estimated the 15-per-cent extra duty will hit about $200,000,000 worth of Canadian exports a year, but the bulk of Canadian shipments —which total about $1,000,000,000 annually—will escape the special levy.

Economics Minister George Brown and Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan, who announced the new steps at a press conference, described the measures as short - term and temporary but declined to say just how many years they would last.

They estimated that Britain's deficit in international payments — the balance between money coming into the country and the amount going outwould reach an all-time high of up to £800,000,000 this year. This deficit forecast is more than double what the previous administration had estimated.

It meant that Britain once again was in deep economic trouble, buying more than she is selling and lacking ability to pay enough cash to long-term investment to this country.

"All this calls for immediate and strictly temporary action, drastic at first but less so as both the immediate measures and the longer-term policies begin to take hold," the government said in its statement.

The arrangement allows Cuba to obtain Canadian wheat without laying any money on the line for it, thus saving valuable foreign exchange for the Caribbean country.

DIE OF ASPHYXIATION

BERSIMIS, Que. (CP) — RCMP discovered two men and a woman dead of asphyxiation Sunday in car parked on an old road about one mile from the Indian reserve here. Red Chinese Nuclear Explosion Upped Radioactivity in West

OTTAWA (CP)—The Chinese nuclear explosion Oct. 16 has resulted in a slight rise in levels of radioactivity at a number of points in Western Canada, it was announced here today.

Dr. Peter Bird, chief of the federal health department's radiation protection division, said air samples from seven stations from Fort William, Ont., west to Calgary and Edmonton show that small quantities of fresh radioactive debris have been added to the atmosphere.

However, he stressed that tests to date on the air samples have revealed no trace of danger to human beings. There was no evidence, he said, that the new radioactivity from the Chinese explosion will constitute a health hazard.

Dr. Bird said the air sample tests show only that there has been an increase in levels of radioactivity at several western points. He said it would be several days before it could be possible to determine the amount of the increase.

Russians Purchase Our Wheat

WINNIPEG (CP) — Russia has bought 10,600,000 bushels of wheat and wheat flour from Canada, the Canadian wheat board announced today.

The cash sale is worth around $21,000,000.

Shipment will be made through St. Lawrence and Atlantic ports starting next month.

The sale involves 250,000 long tons of wheat and 25,000 long tons of flour.

Under the contract, the wheat and flour can be shipped to Cuba as well as Russia.

The wheat board announcement did not specify how much of the wheat and flour would be diverted to Cuba, which has close economic ties with Russia.

Nicolai Belousov, a high-ranking officer of Exportkhleb, the Soviet grain board, negotiated the sale at the wheat board headquarters here.

Mr. Belousov was a member of the Russian team that negotiated last fall's two-stage 229,000,000-bushel wheat purchase from Canada.

The $500,000,000 1963 sale was the biggest single wheat disposal in Canadian history.

The Cuba provision in the new contract came as no surprise. Something similar was in the last agreement.

It's assumed here the Russians will trade Canadian wheat to Cuba, possibly for sugar in a straight barter deal.

This arrangement allows Cuba to obtain Canadian wheat without laying any money on the line for it, thus saving valuable foreign exchange for the Caribbean country.

Majority Agree On New Flag

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — A majority of the 15-member Commons flag committee has voted for a design of a single red maple leaf on white with red vertical borders, an informant said Sunday.

The source said the vote was taken Thursday after the committee had eliminated all but three designs in its secret sessions.

Although further committee meetings are scheduled for this week this choice may be the design recommended to the Commons as Canada's national flag.

However, the fact more meetings are planned leaves open the possibility for further negotiations to aim at unanimity.

Deadline for reporting to the Commons is Thursday, when the six-week time limit contained in the committee's terms of reference expires.

FORCES ARE OPPOSED

The source said there was unanimity earlier for the design that at the one four Conservatives voted against.

Six Liberals, one Conservative, a New Democrat, a Social Credit member and a Creditiste were understood to have backed the design. The committee chairman is Herman Batten and a chairman traditionally casts a vote only to break a tie.

Before the committee was established none of the widely-circulated designs on Parliament Hill contained red borders. Both the government designs and the single red leaf submitted by the New Democrats had vertical blue borders.

The single red leaf on white with red borders was among the more than 1,000 other designs in the Parliament Hill room where the committee has been meeting.

The source said that on Thursday there were three designs left—the single red leaf, the three maple leaf design contained in the original government resolution, and a single leaf design incorporating a small Union Jack and fleur de lys.

MEETS DAILY

The committee has been meeting behind closed doors almost daily since it was established two years ago when the following agreement among party leaders to postpone for the time being the protracted debate in the House.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker agreed that the committee could report with a majority but that near unanimity would be sought. Then the recommended design could quickly pass the House.

Before the session the committee opened its doors for a short while to reporters to see the layout of designs it had received and was considering.

There have been reports recently that a design drawn by Canadian artist A. Y. Jackson had won wide backing in the committee. It features three red maple leaves on a white background with wavy blue borders at top and bottom.

There have also been reports that many members were disparaging of reaching agreement.

Johnson started today's fivecity campaign tour in Orlando, promising "a new charter of opportunity for older Americans."

Both in Orlando and Miami, Johnson was welcomed with such fervor Sunday that small mob scenes resulted.

Secret service agents and police had to strain their backs against an enthusiastic crowd to get Johnson into his hotel for an overnight stop in Orlando. In Miami, officers became violent as they struggled to extricate the president from well wishers.

Johnson got a healthy shove from one Miami policeman who, without looking, went all-out to enforce orders against permitting people through the presidential entrance to the Dupont Plaza Hotel. Johnson was staggered but did not lose his footing.

Johnson called his Florida reception wonderful — "I haven't seen a sourpuss all day"—but he ran into vocal Goldwater supporters at every stop.

Goldwater, who does not campaign on Sunday, told reporters he will make his basic speech of his campaign in its final days. Goldwater has been allegedly under advance in the campaign policy, for curtailment of the size and power of the federal government and for a drive against what he calls a wave of lawlessness and immorality.

He told reporters "I have no surprises" to spring on the Democrats in the waning days of the presidential race.

US Experts Say K. Ousting Damaged Red Leadership

WASHINGTON (CP) —President Johnson has been advised by government experts on Russian affairs that the ouster of Premier Khrushchev has damaged the prestige of Soviet leadership at home and abroad and rendered uncertain the future course of Soviet policy toward the West.

These were among the principal conclusions reached in a new study of the sensational shakeup in the Kremlin earlier this month. Other conclusions reported to the president, according to informed officials:

1. The best guess about the future prospects for Khrushchev's successor is that a power struggle probably cannot be avoided. The experts say that Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin appear to represent at the moment the two bureaucracies of the party and the government and these together with the competitive interest of the military and industrial establishment set the stage for a power struggle.

2. Factionalism in the Soviet Union tends to hurt Soviet interests internally and externally. The destalinization program of a decade ago is cited as a case in point. It was one of the issues over which Communist China avowedly split with the Soviet Union.

3. The violent wrench which necessarily resulted from the sudden ouster of Khrushchev has displayed to the world what experts here term the uglier side of Kremlin politics and this has been a principal contribution to the loss of Soviet prestige. It renders virtually all important aspects of Soveot policy uncertain.

4. While Brezhnev and Kosygin have reaffirmed Khrushchev's policy of coexistence, the new men and their jockeying for power could move Soviet policy in the future in almost any direction subject only to the limits of Russia's power position.

5. The Communist-ruled countries of Eastern Europe have been given another push toward the West by the shakeup.

6. Khrushchev's successors face a serious problem in handling relations with the so-called nonaligned countries of Asia and Africa—such countries as India, Yugoslavia, indonesia and the United Arab Republic. Khrushchev was a personal symbol of the Soviet policy of cultivating the nonaligned countries and they are understandably agitated, their confidence shaken by his sudden departure from power.

Oratorical Cannon Boom In Last Week of Stumping

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The oratorical guns boomed again today as the U.S. election campaign continued in high gear in this final full week of stumping before the Nov. 3 presidential poll.

President Johnson, enthusiastically welcomed to Florida Sunday, continued today a tour of southern states where his Republican opponent, Senator Barry Goldwater claims considerable strength.

Goldwater, meanwhile, was to begin a tour of 16 northern states with an evening address in New York City.

Johnson started today's five-city campaign tour in Orlando, promising "a new charter of opportunity for older Americans."

Resume Spending Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—The course of the next few weeks and possibly of the next several months may be set in Parliament this week on two basic questions.

They are the question of money and the question of national identity in the flag.

The Commons is scheduled today to resume Friday's debate on granting the government interim spending authority for December and December. This, presumably, will be sufficient time for the Commons to deal finally with the 1964-65 appropriations.

But there already is speculation that the current session, which started last Feb. 18, might run through its normal Christmas recess and perhaps until next Easter. The session took no Easter recess last spring, or any summer holiday.

Granting interim spending authority was stalled Friday in a debate on the then threatened wildcat strike of CNR employees protesting the introduction of longer runs for train crews through northwestern Ontario.

PROJECTS FUSS

Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur), who tried Friday to launch a full-dress emergency debate on the subject, visited one of the sites of the runthrough plan, Nakina in his riding, and said Sunday the government will have to intervene. He described a renewed fuss in the Commons on his return.

Even if the grievance of MPs against CNR management is settled, there are reports that other opposition forces—particularly the Conservatives —are prepared to extend the debate at least until Thursday.

Thursday is the day the 13-member special committee on the flag is to report. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said when the committee was established six weeks ago that only if its report is nearly unanimous would it be acceptable without lengthy debate in the House.

Informants Sunday indicated that four Conservatives on the committee are objecting to a design submitted by the majority—a red maple leaf on a field of white with red borders. The Conservatives have insisted that the Union Jack and some symbol acceptable to French Canada be on the flag.

The children's father and mother and another brother were burned and five firemen were injured. Later a 22-year-old woman was arrested on a charge of suspicion of arson.

Passenger Trains To West Canada Are Curtailed

Many Employees Booked in 'Sick'

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP)—The CNR has agreed to a federal cabinet proposal to put off its controversial diethrough program at Nakina, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta. It was announced today.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Employee protests against revised work schedules inaudouced by Canadian National Railways brought a cut-back in passenger services during the weekend and threatened to spread today.

The CNR reduced its passenger service between Toronto and Western Canada on one train a day from three trains as firemen, locomotive engineers and some brakemen in Northern Ontario and the western prairies booked in sick.

Trans-continental passenger service originating or bound for Montreal was rerouted through Toronto as supervisory personnel took over the job of running the trains. Freight services were delayed.

The employees were protesting weekend changes in operations to bypass Nakina in Northern Ontario and Wainwright, Alta. Trains were worked from Hornepayne to Armstrong in Ontario, a distance of 264 miles, involving 6½ hours of running time. Previously one crew was used for a division of 132 miles and another for the remaining 112 miles.

In Western Canada, freight train personnel would be required to work from Edmonton to Biggar, Sask., a distance of 226 miles, instead of changing at Wainwright, 128 miles east of Edmonton.

BOOK IN SICK

The CNR said 108 men—all firemen, engineers and brakemen—had reported sick at Capreol, a CNR headquarters 15 miles north of Sudbury.

The conductors and yardmen decided at a weekend meeting of all Capreol employees Sunday night that they would also stay off work. A total of 286 employees would be involved.

Douglas Fisher, New Democratic member of Parliament for Port Arthur, went to Nakina Sunday to observe the situation and reported in a telephone interview that about 1,800 men in the running trades on the CNR had booked off sick or unfit for duty.

He said he had reached union officials representing the men involved in centres from Edmonton to Montreal and they told him that "every man in the running trades from Vancouver to Montreal would be out by noon" today. This would involve 2,500 to 3,000 men, he said.

Sick bookings were also reported by 22 crew members at Nakina and at Parry Sound, the Canadian Legion, Jewish Leader Protest Rockwell TV Interview

TORONTO (CP)—Jewish leaders and Royal Canadian Legion members filed protests and pickets paraded outside the CBC studios Sunday night when the network put on a 12-minute television interview with George Lincoln Rockwell, self - styled commander of the American Nazi party.

A CBC spokesman said there were an unstated number of telephone calls before the program show, some critical and other complimentary, in addition to calls before the program requesting that it be withdrawn

About 25 demonstrators outside the studio carried signs reading "CBC co-operates with Nazis" and "there is no place for Nazis in democracy."

Representatives of 30 Jewish organizations, representing 20,000 persons, protested the CBC's action in giving Rockwell a platform on a Canadian net work. The group said Rockwell represents only a lunatic fringe and should not be elevated to respectability.

A Toronto-area branch of the Royal Canadian Legion demanded an investigation into the standards and procedures of the CBC public-affairs department, to determine the motivation which resulted in publicity for Rockwell at public expense.

The interview was filmed in Washington by Douglas Leiterman, producer of the hour-long show This Hour Has Seven Days, and reporter Robert Hoil.

Northern Electric employees are reported to have given more than $4,000 so far and American Optical has collected $820 so far, about 50 per cent more than the firm's employees gave last year. Nothing Wrong With City Water Intake

Whatever the taste in Belleville's water, it's not due to something wrong with the intake system. Two local scuba divers working for a Toronto consulting engineering firm spent about ten hours underwater over the weekend, checking about 100 feet of exposed pipe and the intake itself, just west of Zwick's Island.

Their report — the intake is in excellent condition. The intake itself is well clear of the bay-bottom silt, there is no vegetation near the intake and the exposed pipe is in good enough condition to dispel any worries about the condition of the buried section of the pipe. The intake was installed about 1928.

Ron Chapman and Earl Dieknoether of the Quinte Aqua Divers went underwater for the inspection, about 9 a.m. Saturday morning. The stayed down, except for coffee and lunch breaks, and to change air tanks, until 4:30 in the afternoon.

Sunday they went down about 8 a.m. and finished the job about 1 p.m. Joe Cummings of the Q.A.D. club acted as divers' tender in the boat and Larry Ball, an employee of consulting engineers Gore and Storey of Toronto, supervised the inspection.

The men left their jobs Oct. 2 seeking wage increases and skill differentials. Union spokesman P. G. Sagriff said two-thirds of some 300 members who attended a meeting Sunday voted to accept the latest management offer.

Union officials said the final increases were "not quite" as high as their original demands, but they did not specify what the first demands were.

Work at the plant continued during the strike, with picketing restricted by an Ontario Supreme Court injunction.

William Wright Heads Lawn Bowling Club

Members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club were told at the annual meeting held at the clubhouse on Yeomans St. on Saturday night, that the club was in a good financial condition and prospects were high for another successful season. About 25 members of the club were on hand to hear the reports, elect officers and enjoy a social evening at which the members of the women's section of the club were invited. At the conclusion of the evening, the assembly enjoyed a delicious fried chicken dinner.

William Wright an active member of the club for some years, was honored with the presidency of the club for the coming year. Percy Graham, who took over in the middle of the season, due to the untimely death of the president, Gordon Watkis, thanked the members for their co-operation and help through the difficult time and the tragedy that befell the club. He requested that Mr. Wright be given the full co-operation of each member in making the club one of the best in the district.

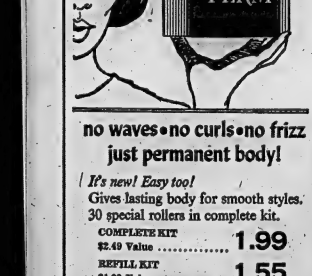
Mr. Graham pointed out the high office, thanked the members for their confidence in him and pledged his untiring work for the betterment of the club. He stated that bowling membership throughout the district was dropping at too fast a rate and suggested that the committee get the students of the high school interested in this fine summer pastime and that they be invited to get urated to get them interested, and that a certain time be set aside for their bowling. The suggestion will be given earnest consideration during the coming year.

William Fuller, president of the Trenton Bowling Club, thanked the club for their co-operation to Trenton members and the cordial relations that existed and hoped that it would be continued in the coming year.

Clayton McGuire, the new president, also expressed the same sentiments and requested the same arrangements that have existed for the past two years. Mrs. Kay Fuller is the new secretary-treasurer.

REPORTS RECEIVED

Reports were given by the greens chairman, Doug Rowe, who stated that the greens were put away in excellent condition and that little repair would be required to maintain them in A-1 condition in the coming year. Mr. Rowland Chas. Matthews, the greenskeeper, for the wonderful job during the year and hoped that he would return next year.



The meeting voted an honorarium to Mr. Matthews and all expressed their satisfaction in the wonderful condition of the greens during the past season.

Gerald Hyde reported on the Corbin trophy and William Van-Tassel on the competitions. All of these reports were adopted with little discussion. A concentrated effort will be made by the Corbin committee to raise the entry in this event. Forty rinks took part last year and it is hoped that a full entry of 64 rinks next year will be a reality.

The following officers will guide the destinies of the club for the year:

Hon. president, L. E. McLeod; president, William Wright; immediate past president, Percy Graham; vice-president, Wally Lavergne; secretary, J. W. Lawrence; treasurer, Gus Gray; directors, Jack Avery, Cantiff Ashley, Roy Hall, William Vantassel, Ralph Tuck, Claude Price and Austin Watkis; greens chairman, Gerald B. Hyde.

UAW Votes To Settle GM Strike

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP)—Despite ending of a 31-day national walkout against General Motors Corporation, the giant of the automaking industry was hobbled today by local-level strikes that threaten to snuff out new operations.

The question of when the company that normally turns out more than half the new automobiles in the U.S. might get any assembly lines going again was unanswered. But one company source guessed: "Within a couple of days, maybe."

The United Auto Workers union announced Sunday night that 95 of 97 local unions reporting had given "ovee whelming ratification" of a new three-year national contract.

The UAW announced that the national strike was "terminated," but, at the same time, said its 28 local units which had not reached at-the-plant working agreements which supplement the national contract would stay out.

At the time 102 of the UAW's 130 units in GM's empire had reached local-level settlement.

CALLS BACKCREWS

With announcement of the national strike's ending, GM called back maintenance and make-ready crews in the Fort Gratiac division at Pontiac Mich., the Buick division at Flint, Mich., and the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac plant in Kansas City, Kan.

Louis G. Seaton, GM's vice-president for personnel and its chief negotiator, said there would be other call-backs, but he was unable to pinpoint them immediately, "and I don't think anybody else can, either."

The UAW said it knew only that the 28 local units without at - the - plant agreements positively were not going back immediately.

The national strike was a selective one. The union ordered members in GM plant's selling parts for Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co. to stay on the job. But in all it left idle more than 200,000 of GM's work force of 360,000.

It started Sept. 25, when a deadline for new national agreement was passed. A new national contract was negotiated on Oct. 5, but the union authorized locals to stay out in support of at - the - plant demands.

Name Chairman 3-Man Board

KINGSTON (CP) — W. H. Dickie of Toronto has been appointed chairman of a three-man conciliation board between Canadian Industries Limited at nearby New Haven and Local 729 of the International Union of Operating Engineers (Ind.).

The board, appointed by the Ontario labor department, will examine company and union demands in negotiations for a new working contract.

Meanwhile, at Dupont of Canada Limited, here, a conciliation officer from the labor department has been requested to mediate negotiations between Dupont and District 50 United Mine Workers of America (Ind.), also bargaining for a new contract.

Both unions are concluding two-year contracts.

Trenton Sports

TRENTON — When John Lew of Kingston should have been setting an example last night he was playing the role of the villain. And like all villains he was booed up a storm. The (hockey) hoosegow where his effectiveness was lost when it was none needed.

The big defenceman's two quick trips to the cooler by the final minutes of the All-Star Midget game took the sting out of the victory bid for one point to tie the score.

When the buzzer sounded ending regular play the Kingston youngsters had served more time in the penalty box while the Trenton Lions, not angels by any sense of the word, had scored more goals. Trenton won 5-4.

Rick Munroe led the Trenton point getters getting two as No. 1 delivery boy in sustained frontal attacks. Jim Steenburg, Dan Crampton and Andy McFaul each got one accounting for the locals total. For Kingston it was Dave Farlane, Paul Gavel, Mike Flanigan and Jim Murtah.

In a secondary action centre ice at 6.30 p.m. Mayor James MacDonald dropped the puck that gave minor hockey a send off with a pleasant twin bill.

Out-of-town players might not have produced any surprises. However, the Consumers Gardens management was both surprised and pleased with the size of the turn (approximately 600) so early in the season.

Whether No. 12 is superstitious or not is a question that can be answered best by the manager of the Trenton juvenile All Stars.

Last night right winger Al Ferguson who wears that set of figures on his hockey jersey scored both Trenton goals. Still his outstanding performance was not good enough to prevent the Legion-backed group from losing. Kingston emerged with a 2-2 decision despite repeated efforts by the locals to even the count as time on the clock ran out.

With the score 3-3 in the third period Larry Spiegel from the Trenton O'Donnell, 19, of 28 E. Regina Cres. Middleton Park, and Douglas Joseph Davis, 16, of R.R. 2 Brighton, on Highway Two, east of Smithfield, resulted in damage set by provincial police at the Brighton Detachment of $1,000 but no injury to the drivers.

NO INJURY

A collision Saturday evening between cars driven by John Patrick O'Donnell, 19, of 28 E. Regina Cres. Middleton Park, and Douglas Joseph Davis, 16, of R.R. 2 Brighton, on Highway Two, east of Smithfield, resulted in damage set by provincial police at the Brighton Detachment of $1,000 but no injury to the drivers.

South Viet Nam Govt. Goes Back To Civilians

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's military regruled the government to the civilians today, marking the fifth change of government in a year.

Power was formally transferred to the nation's new chief state, ailing revolutionary Phar Khac Sau. Maj. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh resigned as premier with the rest of his caretaker government.

Sau said the high national council, which is presiding over the changeover from military to civil rule, would consult Monday on a permanent government until a new constitution is drawn up. Speculation centered around former Saigon mayor Tran Van Huong.

Khanh will continue to wield great power as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, with a big say in naming the armed forces minister. They will sit on the four-man national security council which will have wide power because of the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

MAY BE TURMOIL

Although the U.S. embassy hailed the shift as "another positive step toward the objective of establishing an effective civilian government," more was possible. Sau, one of the political leaders have demanded the complete elimination of Khanh from the government.

Sau said he would continue as chief of state for only a short time because his health isn't too good.

St. Andrew's Celebrates Anniversary

TRENTON — On Sunday, the 220 member of the congregation at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Marmora Street in Trenton celebrated the 111th anniversary of the church locally, with services being conducted by the pastor, Rev. Douglas Wilson and the special speaker being Rev. E. G. B. Foote, Chapiau General to the Armed Forces.

Rev. Foote told the congregation it was good to be able to look back on the long and noble history of the church but warned the members they must not "rest on their laurels," but must bear Christian witness for the younger people of the community and keep in mind those who will come after and maintain Christianity unity. In the evening, Rev. Foote spoke on the Parable of the Talents and urged those who possess but one talent to put it to good use within the Christian community.

St. Andrew's was founded in 1853 by the Presbyterian Presbytery of Cobourg. The Rev. Donald McLeod organized the congregation. The church at that time was located where College Street School now stands. Rev. McLeod was a Free Church of Scotland minister and the Trenton church was being built, completed on Sept. 21, 1854.

The first elders chosen were Wm. Dunn, Jeremiah Simmons, a clerk of the Village of Trenton, (Trenton itself became a village in 1850), Alexander MacNiton and Jonathan Travers.

One minister at the church, (for 30 years), was the Rev. Wm. Thomas Wilkins, the father of two present church members, Mrs. Little and Mrs. W. W. Miller and the father-in-law of a former organist of the church, Mrs. Charles Wilkins.

In 1890, the congregation moved to a new church on Marmora Street. Fire in 1951 gutted the entire middle section of the church and the reserved building was re-dedicated in 1953. Rev. Ross MacLean, (one of Elora, Ont.) was the minister. Last year, the heating system in the church was renovated and a sidewalk widened, but more extensive renovations are in the offing.

Burying Caesar

The new Soviet leadership is off to an inauspicious beginning.

There is a familiar pattern to power takeover in Russia. Usually, the first policy to be implemented by a new regime is the condemnation of its predecessor, disposing of it into a limbo to be forgotten by the history it helped shape.

Under Stalin, it was the art of the rub-out, old-fashioned gangsterism on a massive scale. With Khrushchev, the system was refined into the brush-off, the object of disaffection being socially ostracized, unfit for recognition by self-respecting communists.

Khrushchev came to bury his foes by condemning them as anathema to the communist ideal. His deposers have attempted to emulate him—with unspectacular success.

Outside Russia, a succession of communist leaders have refused to join the condemnation. Even China, with little cause to love the former Soviet dictator, has been notably passive to the downfall of an ideological foe.

The same reaction undoubtedly must apply among the Soviet peoples themselves. No matter what criticism they may hold for his policies in home economics and his international feud with China, there can be little doubt they hold him in affection.

The failure of the new hierarchy to discredit him to large measure due to Khrushchev himself. He returned a freer atmosphere to the Soviet way of life, relaxed the rigidity of the party line in international communism.

It was simple for him to disgrace Stalin—for Stalin was so obviously disgraceful.

In comparison, the Khrushchev dictatorship was one of sweetness and light.

Sound in Spirits

Boosting Toronto's United Appeal, Ryerson students late last week crowded a nearby tavern and contributed a nickel to the fund for every draft beer consumed.

As a result, said one report, they faced possible discipline and a chance that the money raised may not be accepted by the Appeal.

Such a reaction is, to say the least, decidedly stuffy. They were acting in the best of Christian intentions—and their action was not without precedent in Christendom.

There is the story of the medieval juggler turned monk who was caught by his abbot turning handsprings before a monastic shrine.

Rebuked for crude behavior, the young divine pointed out that, although he prayed very well, acrobatics were something he really put his heart into. He was merely making an offering of his talent to the saints.

This is not to say that beer drinking is the pursuit Ryersonians know best. But who should quarrel with the intentions behind the deed.

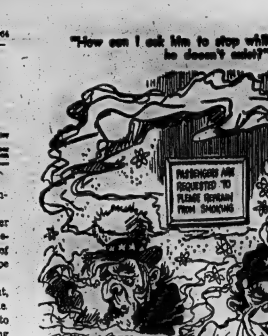
Their method may have been unorthodox, but the spirit was sound.

Humane Endeavor

The swift reaction to condemnation of Belleville's animal exterminator has brought one laudable result.

Sympathetic citizens have shown a ready response to the formation of a district humane society, expected to be formed in the near future.

It should be wished better fortune than its predecessor in Belleville.



The last humane society was disbanded here in 1897, the victim, apparently, of public apathy.

The new society is being shaped on a broader base, its origination incorporating Hastings County. This will allow it to draw on larger pool of citizens, increasing the depth of interest in their humane endeavor.

That interest can best be displayed by attending the inaugural meeting, to be held within the next month.

My advice to anyone contemplating marriage is to view the gardening propensities of the loved one, even if these turn out to be only a geranium in his "bedsitter." This is a clue to character. If he's prepared to worry about how his geranium is going to get watered while he's away, ten to one he'll do the same for you.—Martina Legge.

Do not under-estimate the strength and the force of nationalism. It is now rampant throughout the world. De Gaulle himself believes it is the only enduring political form. — Lord Boothby.

Will Let Railways Compete

Montreal Gazette

The bill to bring about changes in railway legislation, along the lines of the MacPherson Report, has been given the formal first reading in the House. It can scarcely be said to come too soon. The MacPherson Report was submitted in 1961-62. And it dealt with problems that had been gathering for many years, increasing in complexity and urgency.

The main intention of the bill, as derived from the MacPherson Report, is to modernize railway legislation. Most of the existing legislation has grown up over the years to meet conditions that have since ceased to exist. It was mostly based on the claim that the railways were in the position of monopolies; and, being monopolies, they had to be closely regulated in the public interest.

But now the railways, so far from being monopolies, find themselves under severe competition from many other means of transport: from airplanes that carry both passengers and freight; and from pipelines that carry oil over vast distances.

* * *

It is one of the fundamental principles of the MacPherson Report that it is not coming to the aid of the railways, in the sense that it has to protect them unnaturally from their new competitors. On principle, on the contrary, is that the railways should be released from outdated restrictions in order that they might face their competitors.

One of the main recommendations of the MacPherson Report that has passed into the legislation is that the railways should be free to set most freight rates on a "compensatory" or pay-as-you-go basis. Where the railways are still to a monopoly position, and have captive business, freight rates would still be regulated by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The importance of the change is that it takes the word "captive" out of the law as it were, where it has floated obscurely and generally over rail transportation. It brings it down to cases, and confines it to those cases. It would prevent such words as "captive" and "monopoly" from being improperly used, as they have been used in the past, as a correct and specious justification for lobbying the railways.

* * *

This is a big change, and a good one. Another important recommendation, taken from the MacPherson Report and embodied in the bill, is that the railways ought no longer to be expected to assume the costs and losses of policies the Government might adopt to help particular areas of the country. If the Government decides, as it did some years ago, that grain and grain products from the prairies provinces should be transported by rail to the Lakehead or the Pacific at rates frozen at the levels of the 1890's, then the Government ought to compensate the railways for the losses incurred. It is scarcely reasonable to expect the railways, by the losses suffered in such transportation, to subsidize the Government.

Similarly, the railways will be permitted to abandon money-losing branch lines over a period of 15 years, and to cancel uneconomic passenger services over five years. And they will receive subsidies for operating these lines in the meantime.

* * *

These are fundamental changes. The very fact that they have been embodied in a bill and presented to Parliament by the Government shows the degree of awakening to reality that has taken place.

Unfortunately, however, the Government has not seen fit to accept the basis on which the MacPherson Royal Commission made all its recommendations. This was the urgent plea by the Commission that its recommendations should be accepted as a whole—that there should not be a salvage approach, picking out certain recommendations and passing over others. For the report had not been drawn up in a cafeteria, made up of this and that, only loosely related. The report sought to introduce a change in which all the various recommendations were closely integrated, so that the omission of any would weaken the others that might be accepted.

The bill as presented to the House of Commons omits a number of important things that were in the MacPherson Report. But it is not only in what is being left out that the bill departs from the report. As important, perhaps, are the features the bill introduces that were not in the report, and which may go against the intentions.

The closing of branch lines, for example, will be regulated by creating a new Branch Line Rationalization Authority to examine the issues, as well as the Board of Transportation Commissioners. The formalities and complexities of this double authority could cause serious delays.

And the provision made in the bill for appeals to the Governor-General-in-Council (that is to say, in effect, to the Government of the day) means that the bill could be exposed to political pressures and manipulations — the very influences that have in the past bedevilled transportation in Canada, and from which the MacPherson Report urged deliverance.

* * *

Fortunately, the assurances must made by the Government says that further amendments to the bill, drawing more fully upon the MacPherson Report, are under consideration. But, on the other hand, the bill is applied to amendment in the House that could undermine much of those recommendations. From the report there is no embodied in it. For this reason it may be hoped that the Government, having proceeded this far, and having adopted this much of the report, will try to hold its lines as firmly as possible, in order that the bill, as finally passed, may at least substantially accomplish what the MacPherson Commission felt to be essential. And this is "that the optimum use of resources in transportation will be achieved, by and large, if each of the competing modes of transport is allowed to develop in response to the demands of the shippers for its services."

Change for The Better?

Windsor Star

There probably isn't more juvenile delinquency now than ever there was. It is just more apparent and people are giving more thought to it and its causes. There is a temptation to assess blame to this or that influence, or lack of it.

One idea is that working mothers are conducive to delinquency, and it may be. Mothers, however, always have worked. The difference is that now many of them work away from their homes, instead of on the farm-stead, in the small store or shop.

There is one factor seldom mentioned, and it could be equally important. This is, most mothers are not at home from early morning to late afternoon. They are not around, daytime, to exert influence and exercise discipline. They do not get home even for that noonday meal.

In an earlier society most men were around their homes all day. They were in proximity to the children. Even those who worked away from home usually got home at noon. Their presence was felt by their families in a much greater extent than today.

The lunch-pail and restaurant era closed the pattern of family life. So has the shift work in the large factories. A man on a four-to-midnight shift can't spend much time with his children. One who works nights must sleep daytimes.

Women who work outside the home disrupt the normal pattern of family life. But men who spend most of their waking hours away from home also have done so. Modern children do not have the same degree of parental influence that those of a few generations ago had.

Word Vaccine Comes From 'Vacca' Meaning 'Cow'

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

What is vaccine?

Readers who happen to know the answer are hereby excused from today's class, but those who don't know will be better off if they have a really clear idea of the subject.

The first vaccine was discovered by accident. Smallpox used to be (and still is, unless we maintain constant vigilance) a very contagious disease. In the past, a local epidemic could and did cause hundreds of deaths.

But in those days if a person recovered from the disease, it was found that he usually was immune to another attack. Why? Nobody knew.

Slowly doctors began to notice that milkmaids, and others who handled cattle, very often did not get smallpox. At length it was noticed that the persons who were safe had been in contact with a sick cow — one with cowpox.

In time, it became popular to have parties at which people petted cows that had cowpox. This did indeed protect many of them from smallpox. But many years passed before anyone knew why.

Here is the explanation. Our protection against certain diseases caused by viruses (or sometimes other particles) is that the blood develops antibodies when exposed to the particular disease-causing organism.

A mild case of smallpox incites the blood to create antibodies which will go to work at once if the virus enters the body.

In the case of smallpox and cowpox, these two diseases were so similar around 1796 that one virus, while not making human beings dangerously ill, would create antibodies which would protect against smallpox. (Dr. Edward Jenner, English physician, originator of inoculation with cowpox virus to immunize against smallpox, first demonstrated his method in 1796.)

The name for the virus (it wasn't then known as a virus) that caused cowpox was "vaccinia," from vacca, meaning cow.

And that is how the word vaccine was born.

Unfortunately not all disease happens to have a very similar animal disease (like cowpox). Therefore it is necessary to make artificial ones.

We call these modified or attenuated germs. By laboratory methods, they are gradually changed and weakened until they no longer cause the disease itself, yet still maintain the property of inciting the blood to create protective antibodies.

Or, in still other cases, the virus may be raised in a laboratory and then killed. This is how the Salk vaccine for polio is made. The killed or inactivated virus cannot give anyone polio but it still can make the blood build up antibodies.

And, that, in a nutshell, is how a vaccine works. It makes the body (the blood, that is) accumulate a supply of tiny protein particles which will fight their particular disease germ whenever it appears.

How long does a vaccination last? That's something to discuss tomorrow.

Too Easy to Indict the School System

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A four-year-old boy whom I take for a walk is fond of car-spotting. Not ordinary cars, you understand, but the out-of-the-way models. "There's a Porsche," he will say, "I see a black Jag. And there's a red Alfa."

I mention this ability not to brag about him, but quite the contrary. What he does is usual among young boys, and not especially bright or precocious. He is just marvelously observant and picks up fast, retains, and enjoys the process enormously.

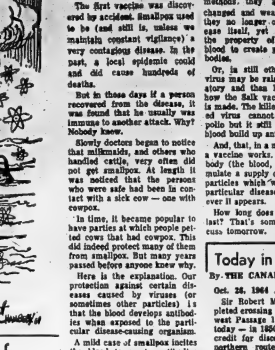
Now, this is education. Not formal education, but it is exact by what education tries to accomplish in the young: the ability to discriminate, the power to generalize, the zest for coding and correlating information.

Then what happens? The four year-old becomes an eight-year old and then a 12-year-old, in the process of aging and acquiring a formal education, he commonly loses the zest. And when the zest goes, the rest goes.

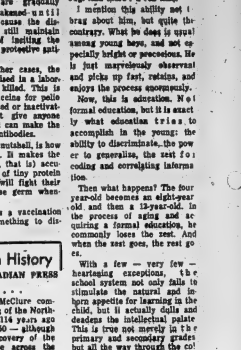
With a few — very few — heartening exceptions, the school system not only fails to stimulate the natural and innate appetite for learning in the child, but it actually dulls and deadens the intellectual palate. This is true not merely in the primary and secondary grades but all the way through the college years.

I was lecturing at an above average midwestern college last spring, and some of the sophomores came up to talk to me afterwards. What they said, in effect, was that they were a freshmen hoping to find something we had missed in high school or the first year, but the same, on a slightly high-level.

It is too easy to indict the school system, or the teacher for this gross failure to take advantage of the child's desire to learn. It is even too easy to indict the parents for a false or distorted sense of values. "Making" gets us nowhere, for those blamed can always point a finger at others equally to blame and they are right.



Instead of spending billions on new classrooms and books and gyms and audio-visual material we ought to spend a fraction of this sum on some basic research into the motivations and impediments in child growth. We need to know more about the child's emotional structure, his range of responses, the kinds that encourage or inhibit him from learning.



Most teachers know as little about this as most parents; and school administrators know even less than they. What I think is the "core" of the curriculum, and no curriculum makes much sense until we understand the dynamics of the young personality, and what happens to a child from a bundle of eager curiosity into a flaccid reflector of facts and half-comprehends nor enjoys. The pupil is the most important subject.

One Wonders

Ottawa Journal

A job advertisement in the Ontario Medical Review says a British Columbia community seeks a chief physiatrist but this sentence leaves us wondering: "Excellent chance for physician-surgeon in specialty of emotional disturbance for one who enjoys working with teachers and educators."

Stewart Malloy of Belleville, Roger Noble of County Killed In Accidents Early Sunday

PICTON (Staff) — Seven people have been fatally injured in car accidents in the county in a little over a month. The most accidents took in the town of two of those seven in the early hours of Sunday morning. Dead are 21-year-old Stewart Malloy, the son of S. B. Malloy, of 204 Station Street, Belleville, and Roger W. Noble, age 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Noble, R.R. 10, Picton. Injured and in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital are 18-year-old Raymond Cason of 277 George Street, Belleville, and 18-year-old Monie Hennessy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Hennessy, R.R. 3, Picton.

SIMILAR ACCIDENTS

There was a great deal of similarity in the two accidents in that both happened on curves and both hit trees. Both of the cars involved contained only two occupants, the driver and one passenger. Both drivers were killed.

In the first accident which happened at approximately 12:45 Daylight Saving Time on Talbot Street only a few miles from the outskirts of Picton at the intersection of County Road 5-A, the car driven by Stewart Malloy was proceeding west on Talbot St. toward Belleville, when it rounded a curve too fast. It cut off a hydro pole, a utility post, and came to rest on its roof about 100 yards north of the intersection with Talbot Street. Cason from the car and was found pinned underneath the vehicle. The other occupant, Edmund Cason, was trapped in the wreckage of the car and had to be removed by O.P.P. Cason was injured but it is not believed seriously. He was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for observation.

ONLY TWO IN CAR

The second accident occurred at 1:30 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, approximately two hours after the first. It involved two local men, 20-year-old Roger Noble, who was killed, and his passenger 18-year-old Monie Hennessy. Hennessy was also taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

He suffered a badly broken left arm, severe bruises and cuts and undetermined head injuries.

This accident occurred just east of Picton, on Highway 41 on a bad curve, near the Starlight Cafe. This car also failed to negotiate the curve, left the road, ripped a tree out by the roots and ended up on its wheels in a field some 30 to 50 feet away facing the road.

Both cars were completely wrecked and occupants of the Noble car had to be freed from the wreckage by O.P.P. and ambulance men. The Noble car was travelling in an easterly direction toward the Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company plant.

Dr. C. B. Richmond, coroner, was in attendance and the victims were removed from both scenes by Bonter Funeral Service of Picton. Postmortems were conducted at Belleville on Sunday. It is not known at this time if inquests will be held.

'Centennial Year' Subject Of Talk to Holstein Club

PICTON (Staff) — A large crowd attended the Prince Edward Holstein Club annual banquet held at Eastern Star Temple in Picton Friday night. Some 150 members, wives and guests gathered to hear guest speaker, Dr. George C. Fisher of Quaker Oats Company Veterinary Service, on the subject of the "Centennial Year" and the 1967 World's Fair and Exposition to be held in Montreal. Dr. Fisher also directed to the attention of his audience some of the high lights of a trip to Greece. Dr. Fisher was introduced by Agricultural Representative Ivan Bell.

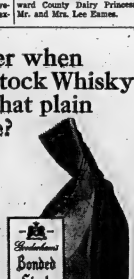
The speaker in opening his address congratulated the Prince Edward Dairy Princess, Miss Helen Whitehead, who was present for the occasion, as a head table guest. Dr. Fisher said that it speaks well for the community as a whole when they can send out such a representative from the county. He added that he had seen Miss Whitehead perform at the CNE and was extremely impressed with the way in which she handled herself amongst the other contestants for the Ontario Dairy Princess.

Two weeks ago Dr. Fisher said he was in Montreal with regard to World Fair plans and that the "Fair" was going to feature agriculture with 39½,000 square feet being allotted to Canada's agriculture particular. The general theme of the "Fair" will be "Man and His World". Dr. Fisher went on to say that the farmer should not consider the Fair as something remote and apart that does not affect him. It will mean much to all farmers he added. Some 10 million people are expected to attend the fair during the six months period that it is open. Most of these people will be there for an average of three days. This means $0,000,000 meals," he said. Feeding this many people is big business and the farmer certainly will be affected directly by the 1967 Exposition.

COMMUNITY CHAIN

As well as the Fair the Centennial year is also running along with it hand in hand. In conjunction with the Fair and contributing to the Centennial program a train will be built to consist of six cars. Each of the cars will be 13 by 40 feet and contain exhibitions of Canada's "Living History." One car will be devoted to the forest primeval with its vegetation, humidity and an exact replica of the time. Another, the ice age and so on.

He also said that the same thing was being adapted to a Trans-Canada Highway that would travel through some 1,000 Canadian communities not serviced by rail.



"The two units will travel across Canada and back again," Dr. Fisher said, and that he hoped every community would plan for this Centennial year. Clubs should form centennial committees. Rural beautification is one contribution that we can all make. We can all participate in this, have more fun and the whole country will benefit. Dr. Fisher in speaking of his visit to Greece, stated that he had seen acres of farm equipment, largely American, made idle and rusting in the fields. Agriculture in Greece is vastly different than here, he added.—"The farms are not large enough to properly handle the equipment, but primarily he said the farmers did not know how to operate the equipment. He stressed that Canadians should work together for 1967. "We can be proud of our country."

EXTENDS WELCOME

Warden Ken Hicks addressed the banquet and extended congratulations of the county. Harold McCaul of Napanee, fourth vice-president of the Canadian Holstein Association of Canada stated that not in many years has the Holstein business been so good. Export to the U.S. are up to a great degree and foreign markets are almost doubled. There is a great interest shown by foreign countries in Canadian cattle he said. Japan, S. Africa, Denmark, Italy, almost any country you can name, have a genuine interest in our cattle. This provides a challenge, and we must keep on breeding good cattle if not better cattle than we have. We have a product that the world seeks, it has been proven that we have the world's best here. Head table guests for the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Parks, Harold McCaul, Warden Ken Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Bell, (Helen Whitehead, Prince Edward County Dairy Princess), Mr. and Mrs. Lee Eames.

Graduation Exercises Well Attended

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute held it's annual graduation exercises Saturday night. A crowd of over 800 attended the ceremony to watch 46 honor graduates and 107 secondary school students receive their certificates.

Special commercial and (technical school) diplomas were also awarded. There were 14 recipients of 75% plus. This year's graduation class was one of the largest in the history of the school. More than $10,000 in scholarships and bursaries were given this year. The two main winners were Ontario Scholarship recipient, Charlotte Allen and Queen Counsels. In addition Miss Allen received the class of 1916 Scholarship from Victoria College, 34 students received school pins and letters.

These number plus are awarded each year for the student with the highest standing in his or her class. The award for the most scholarly student was won by John Ostrander. This award is given for the students approach to study and not necessarily for the highest marks. Best all round students were presented a trophy by the student council and they were Linda Mayhew and Ralph Perkin. Peter McLean won the "salt of the year" award by the students council for the third year in a row. Valedictorian for the graduating exercises was Charlotte Allen. Following the ceremonies, lunch was served in the school cafeterias.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES ALLAN McLEAN

McLean – Kerr

Pink and white gladioli formed a lovely setting in the Bancroft Kingdom Hall when Jean Francis Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dougal Kerr of Maynooth was united in marriage to James Allan McLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McLean of Bloomfield.

Mr. R. Ivey officiated at the ceremony and the wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Cecil Grieg of Marlbank.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original gown of silk organza over taffeta with traditional lily point sleeves. A high neckline accentuated the fitted bodice, and the skirt was gathered in bouffant style. The gown had a detachable train cut from venetian imported lace and edged with a band of organza. Her headdress was a tiny jewelled pillbox with a bouffant shoulder length veil, and she carried a cascade of pink roses caught up with a white bow.

Miss Sharon Wasmund of Ottawa was maid of honor, wearing a gown of lavender blue silk peau de soie cut with low scoop neckline, elbow length sleeves, fitted bodice, and pencil slim skirt with overskirt of silk organza. Her headdress was a large rose of matching fabric trimmed with a short veil.

Miss Joan Hysert of Bancroft and Miss Carol Ann Small, a cousin of the bride were bridesmaids. They were identical gowns designed in the same style, cut from Banff blue silk peau de soie. All attendants carried bouquets of white mums.

Mr. David Allon of Belleville was groomsman, and Mr. Ken Kerr, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Ernie Kerr, brother of the bride acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served to 80 guests, and in the evening 150 guests were entertained at a reception while a buffet lunch was served.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a mocha brown rayon linen suit with accessories to match, and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a brown double knit suit with matching accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Quebec the bride chose a dark brown knit suit with beige accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Toronto, Belleville, Ottawa, Picton, Bloomfield, Trenton, Pembroke, Northbrook, Peterborough, Port Hope, Orillia and South River.

Before her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower at Hermon with Mrs. Alex Kerr as hostess; at a cup and saucer shower at the home of Mrs. Ann Small at Bancroft, when Miss Carol Small and Miss Joan Hysert acted as co-hostesses. A kitchen shower was held in Belleville at the home of Mrs. Fred McCoy. A presentation was made to the bride by the staff of Garage Supply of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. McLean will reside at 322 Albert Street, Belleville.

WEDDING

TOMPKINS — REID

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white faille taffeta, with lace sleeves and applique lace on the skirt which flowed out in a slight train. She carried a Bible covered with red rosettes. Her attendants were Miss Lucia Search of Pittsburgh, Penn., as maid of honor and Misses Carolyn Sherman, Marjorie Fraser and Barbara Jane Bell as bridesmaids. They wore street-length gowns of cranberry peau de soie and carried nosegays of white carnations and pink seventeen roses.

William Whitton was best man. Ushers were James Denstedt, Dennis Tompkins and Douglas Reid.

Investment Club Women Want Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — The wheelers and dealers of investment clubs tend to be women, says investment counselor Jack Cantelon.

He says he has found there's nothing to the theory that women are practical with their spending and saving.

"Women have a natural tendency to be the other way round."

Mr. Cantelon has been counselling clubs since the first women's group was formed here in 1958. There now are 21.

"I tell them first off: 'Sour dough the great breadwinner is not going to come home You can't gamble on your capital.'"

Mr. Cantelon says enthusiasm mounts as fast as the club's $10 or $15 a month does enlarge the group's investment pot. The women start reading stock quotations and business publications.

"Then you hear some chit-chat from the back of the room. They recognize they are learning something and they want the fun of getting their fingers burned. I run up against a revolution then."

Autumn Colors Add Gaiety To Annual Bazaar and Tea

Principal's Wife Should Be Handled in Gentle Way

DEAR DORIS — My husband is moving to a new school to teach. His principal's wife has two dogs. They have no children. Where that woman goes the dogs go.

I have seen the dogs in her home. Doris, they're in and on everything. She can hardly wait till we move to the area, so she'll probably be down at my house all the time. Well, I just don't like dogs in the house. How can I tell her in a nice way that I don't want her dogs in my house?

I have poor health so won't have the energy to clean up after them all the time. My three children take all the energy I've got. I have no intention of taking my children into her house all the time. — IN A QUANDRY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR QUANDRY — Could you suggest that her dogs play with your children, in your yard, while you visit with her? This might be the positive approach.

Remember, she's childless, and has a lot of love to give. She is also a friendly neighbor, in a new-setting — and the principal's wife at that; something many women would give their eye teeth for! Handle her gently. "Love me, love my dog!"

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Every time I go out with my boy friend we have an argument; that is, he likes to pet with me. It only gets me all upset and afraid of losing him.

He tells me there is nothing wrong with it. I have been fighting him off for a long time. Doris, what can I do? Is there anything wrong with petting? — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED — Plenty. I'm afraid you won't lose him. If you did, you might find someone with more respect for girls. Write in, giving your name and address on a stamped envelope, for the names of some good books about Sex and Dating.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am 14 and my mother insists that I keep my hair short. My hair has never been long and I would like to try it. It is not even below my ears and she wants it cut. Don't you think that I am old enough to have some say in the way I wear my hair? — FOURTEEN.

DEAR FOURTEEN — Yes I do. But can you show your mother that you would take care of it properly? No bird's nests effects? No straggly ends?

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her.)

Ann Landers

Reader Claims Closet Cutie Not Tired but Plenty Stupid

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The wife who undresses in the closet to escape her husband's lecherous eye and signed herself "Just Tired", is more than "Just Tired." She is also "Plenty Stupid."

The average American housewife and mother leads a fairly busy life, depending on the size of her family, the quality of her housekeeping, and whether or not she has help. But when the end of the day finds the woman hiding in the closet for fear her husband may get ideas, it is more than a matter of "needing her rest." It means the wife has a lopsided scale of values and her husband is at the bottom of the scale.

ANN LANDERS

Cooks and housekeepers are for hire, but certain wifely activities should not be delegated. Some women learn this too late. Others, not at all. — OLD CODGER.

DEAR CODGER — Thanks for a sensible letter. Here's an assist from a female reader who wishes she had the problem:

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Certain wives are luckier than others. For example, the wife whose husband is so amorous she must undress in the closet. What I wouldn't give to see a gleam in my husband's eye, any hour of the day or night. For years, I've been trying to liven up our marriage but he is "Just Tired," or should I be realistic and say he is "Just Not Interested."

GETTING ZERO.

DEAR ZERO — Unhappily, your husband isn't the only one. Read on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please do not publish any more letters like the one which appeared in the Advertiser recently. Ever since my wife read it she has been undressing in the living room. I'm the one who is — Just Tired.

DEAR TIRED — Here's more:

DEAR ANN — If Mrs. J.T. would stay in the closet during the day as well as at bedtime, she could avoid cooking, shopping, cleaning and laundry and her husband as well. Why he only half a wife? With a little ingenuity she could get out of the whole business. — MAC.

DEAR MAC — The next letter sounds like a buddy of yours. I sense collusion.

DEAR ANN — If that dizzy dame has been undressing in the closet for 21 years it is no wonder her husband "suddenly springs like" when he sees her remove a stocking. I'll bet by this time the poor guy lights up like Chinese New Years, when she takes off her hat. — SYMPATHETIC.

And now Dear Readers: Let us close the closet door on this issue — once and for all. I am far more accustomed to finding skeletons in closets than tired wives.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Six years ago when I was in high school I worked on the refreshment stand crew at the football games. During that time we were so rushed that we just stuck the money into any handy pocket. After the game we turned the cash over to the teacher in charge.

I hit on the idea of "accidentally on purpose" forgetting to turn over the money in my back pocket. I never kept track but I guess I must have kept between $25 and $30.

This has been on my mind ever since I got out of school, and it bugs me worse as time goes by.

I'd like to go to a bank and find out what the interest rate $30 would be for six years. Also, I'd like to figure out the full sentence or fines if I had been caught. I would then like to send the money to school with a letter of apology.

Please tell me if you think this is wise. — BAD PAST.

DEAR PAST — I admire you for wanting to do the right thing — late though it is.

Send a money order for $30 along with a note of explanation. And if you sign the note you'll feel better.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wife of PC in North, Despite Six Children, Will Finish Education

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewife Helen Rheaume has seven good reasons for being too busy to complete the bachelor of arts course she started before she was married.

The reasons: Husband Gene Rheaume, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for the Northwest Territories; and her six children, Gene, 9; Ross, 8; Steven, 6; Jacelyn, 4; Mark, 3; David, 10 months.

But Mrs. Rheaume is a determined woman. Now only three courses away from her arts degree in English, she signed up for a University of Ottawa evening course this fall.

"If all goes well, I hope to graduate by the spring of 1966," she says. "Then I'll go on to take either a degree in social work or one in education."

Behind her determination is the belief that "too many mothers can get into a rut so that they don't feel like making the effort" to complete their university training.

"I'm really pleased to be able to take up my university studies again after having only short bits five years where I was unable to attend classes."

A YEAR TO GO

Mrs. Rheaume, a statuesque blonde with deep blue eyes and a healthy tan acquired this summer at her home in Uplands, was married Gene Rheaume in 1950 when she still had one year of her arts course to finish at the University of Saskatchewan.

Her husband, who now represents the largest Commons constituency in the country—one-third of the total area of Canada—was then a social welfare officer for the welfare division of the department of northern affairs.

After their marriage, the Rheaumes lived in the Labrador towns of Aklavik, Inuvik, Fort Smith and finally Yellowknife. Although Mrs. Rheaume enjoyed life in the North, she always longed to get back to her books.

"I tried to take a course by correspondence but discovered that living in the North was much busier than the outside world."

In the small, friendly northern communities there were many social activities. "I used to curl three nights a week and there were always other events to attend."

Things got even busier when, in 1962, Gene Rheaume entered federal politics.

"During the 1963 campaign, the children stayed home with Gene's mother and I went with him on the campaign trail."

Together they covered over 1,200 miles of northern territory by single - engine plane. "We went everywhere we possibly could, from Baffin Island to Aklavik."

IT'S DIFFERENT

She said she found campaigning in the North "very different" from politics in central Canada.

"For example, there are no newspapers or radio stations in most areas, so all of your contact with people is personal. Meetings are intimate affairs which everyone in a settlement attends.

"And although the women usually don't have much to say about politics, they are often the most influential people in the communities."

Eskimos, who make up a large percentage of Mr. Rheaume's constituents, took an avid interest in both the 1962 and 1963 campaigns, although they had just received the federal vote.

In 1963 when her husband was elected after the unsuccessful campaign of the previous year, the family moved to Ottawa where Mrs. Rheaume was finally able to return to college.

Savory Carrots And Artichokes

By MARY MOORE

Things are different in New York. It has four new inhabitants that I know of for I have been there to see. As many of you know, my son Pete and his wife Margy and their two little ones are in New York for one year for Pete to complete his postgraduate work in psychiatry. So I took off on Thanksgiving weekend for New York.

They took me to the New York State Theatre at Lincoln Centre to see the ballet. We went to Lachow's for dinner on Saturday night. I have wanted to go to this famous old German restaurant for thirty years and I finally made it. I will tell you more about it in a future column.

On the Sunday we had our Canadian Thanksgiving dinner, to which they had invited a colleague of Pete's, a Swedish girl, in training as an analyst at the Postgraduate Centre. She was not hard to make this meal typically Canadian for the sake of the foreign guest, for I had taken with me a Muscovy duck, and Margy made a pumpkin pie.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Baked Beans with Bacon; Whole Wheat Rolls; Waldorf Salad; Chilled Compote of Plums; Crackers and Cheese; Coffee.

But two of the extras on the menu are worth recounting. To my delight I bought two lovely fresh French artichokes for 33c. We served these cold as an appetizer (see below). Many prepared carrots as I have never done and they were colorful and delicious.

You may have noticed that some readers asked me for serving tips for French artichokes this summer because they had grown them. Since Canadian cooks are showing interest in this exotic vegetable, I shall give the method I used for our New York Thanksgiving dinner.

FRENCH ARTICHOKES

VINAIGRETTE

(first course appetizer)

To serve 4 buy 2 large fresh French artichokes. Cut off excess portion of bottom stem, flush with base. Pull off 2 or 4 bottom leaves if they are brown. With scissors snip off ¼" tips of all of the larger outside leaves. Wash in running water. Cook in boiling water to cover, adding 1 tablespoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon garlic salt (if desired). They will be tender in 25 or 30 minutes. If a bottom leaf pulls out easily the artichoke is done. Drain and chill. When cold carefully cut in half lengthwise. At the centre attached to the bottom is the "choke" — which is bristly and inedible. You should remove this. A sharp pointed spoon is a good dissection instrument. Place each prepared artichoke half on a bread and butter plate. Fill hollow with cold sour cream mayonnaise. Three tablespoons of dairy sour cream, 3 tablespoons genuine mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon green onion flakes or chopped fresh green onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon lemon juice or vinegar. Mix ingredients together and spoon into centre of each artichoke half. Serve as first course (placing artichoke on bread and butter plate on dinner plate at each place setting).

MARGY'S BAKED SAVORY CARROTS (serves 4)

This delectable dish is a blessing for it may be baked at the same time your meat is roasting.

3 cups shredded carrots (see below)
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
⅛ cup water

In baking dish which may be taken to table, melt the butter. Shred carrots on ⅛" shredder. Add them and all remaining ingredients. Mix, cover and bake ½ hour at 350 deg. Fahr. or 40 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr.

Church Groups

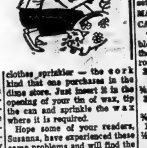
C.W. LEAGUE

STIRLING — The Catholic Women's League held their October meeting in the recreation hall with Mrs. Joseph Forestell presiding.

Following the devotional, plans were discussed for collecting good used clothing to send to the Eskimos of Great Whale River. The card parties will be resumed beginning November at the recreation hall with parties every other week.

Plans are under way to hold a dance in the Stirling Community Hall for the teen-agers.

In September the ladies catered to a barn sale with the president giving a gratifying report for their efforts.



A district regional meeting was held at Batawa on Sunday with a delegation from this C.W.L. with Mrs. Forestell, Miss Alice O'Donnell, Mrs. Randall Decroot and Mrs. Roy LaCappelle attending.

The next meeting will be in the form of a pot-luck dinner with work to be completed.

COLUMNIST VS. COLUMNIST

REGINA (CP)—Doris Clark, a former Hamilton social worker, writes an advice column syndicated in 19 Canadian newspapers, says she doesn't agree with columnists who reply to letters with "flip answers and satire." She said they seldom give help, although "they may amuse others."

Susanna's Family Fare

TIPS WORTH KNOWING

Dear Susanna: Rust marks on sink drain boards or on cupboard shelves where the scouring powder can is kept can be prevented by dipping the bottom of the tin in melted paraffin wax. One coat will usually protect the bottom from moisture until the powder is used up.

Your liquid floor wax can be spread quickly and evenly over a floor by using an ordinary clothes sprinkler — the cork kind that one purchases in the dime store. Just insert a pin in opening of your can of wax, tip the can and sprinkle the wax where it is required.

Hope some of your readers, Susanna, have experienced these same problems and will find the solutions as useful as I have. — Mrs. Stirling Macgregor.

Yourrr ideas are greeat, Mrs. Macgrrregorrr — and think of the wax we're going to save. — SUSANNA!

MAIL CALL

Question: Is a wedding guest supposed to stay at a reception until after the bride and groom leave? If one cannot stay until the party ends, is it permissible to just walk out, or must the guest seek out the bride's mother and say good-bye before doing so? — C. M. C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Guests usually remain at the reception until the bride and groom take their departure. But if one has to leave early, he should do so without attracting attention, even if it means slipping out without saying good-bye to the host and hostess. They will be busy with other guests and unavailable.

Question: My husband and I recently spent a weekend at the home of friends and, while we were there, we went to a number of parties given in their honor and hostess. I sent our hostess a bread-and-butter note as well as a small gift, but now I wonder if I should send notes to the other people who helped entertain while we were there. In my note to our hostess, I asked her to give our thanks in regard to her friends. Is this sufficient, or should I send them personal notes in addition? — Mrs. R. A., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: It's not necessary to send personal notes to those who entertained you only casually, but you should send a note to the hostess who specifically gave the luncheon in your honor.

first division point north from Toronto.

A CNR spokesman in Edmonton said train schedules in the mountain region of Alberta and Saskatchewan were being maintained by supervisory personnel where railway crews did not report for work.

He said the railway could continue its new schedules "indefinitely" despite the employees' protests.

At Winnipeg, the CNR announced it will reduce its transcontinental passenger train service effective today.

A spokesman said trans-continental passenger train service today will include two trains westbound, the Panorama and the Super Continental, and one eastbound, the Super Continental. Thereafter and until further notice there will be only one trans - continental passenger train eastbound and one westbound, operating on the regular schedule of the Super Continental.

Normally the CNR operates two eastbound and two westbound trans-continental trains daily.

A CNR spokesman at Winnipeg said train crews were booking off at Melville, Sask., and Sioux Lookout, Ont., in the railway's Prairie region.

Railway officials said freight trains were moving but they were uncertain as to how far or how fast. Perishable traffic was being given priority.

Crews involved in the protest are members of the 20,000-strong Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC), the 8,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (Ind.) and the 7,400-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC).

EARLY SALUTE

The military custom of saluting is believed to have derived from cavemen who lifted their arms to show they carried no weapons and came in friendship.

NEED CONTINUING STUDIES

OTTAWA (CP) — All high school teachers should return to university for a year's study after every few years' teaching: Dr. H. J. Nesbitt, dean of Carleton University's faculty of science, said Saturday. "Modern curricula and methods are changing so rapidly that the teacher, to remain conversant with his subject, must seek advanced instruction from time to time," he told the annual Carleton alumni reunion dinner.

More than 1,200 life insurance salesmen will attend the life insurance agency management association annual meeting in Toronto Nov. 9 to 12.

STEEL IS ERECTED at Union Carbide's new "hexa" plant, and the steel "skin" will go over the framework this week. One piece of equipment, perhaps a filter of some sort, was installed before this picture was taken. More equipment will be installed during the week.

BLOCKS ARE BEING LAID in the cast concrete frame of the new garage at the Smith Transport terminal now. The building may be blocked in before the end of the week, but there's a lot more work to be done after all the block is laid.

Mayor Ellis Marks Winter Works Start

Mayor Jack R. Ellis today emphasized the economic importance of the Winter Works Campaign.

"Perhaps more important that the development of new jobs during the winter time, is the reduction in the annual winter lay-offs, said the mayor in a speech launching the local campaign.

"A very significant factor in this has been the initiative taking by the construction and allied industries in Canada.

Mayor Ellis recalled the time when building trades closed up for three or four months. However, with technological changes and new techniques, "together with careful planning by contractors, more and more building starts, both residential and industrial, have been made during the winter."

"There is indeed an extra cost involved in winter construction, during some phases," he continued, "but this is for the most part absorbed by local contractors, and I once again encourage our citizens to support these people who are attempting to reduce winter unemployment."

"The city of Belleville this year, Mayor Ellis said, will attempt at least two major construction projects during the winter months: that of the new public works building and renovations to the old YMCA building on Campbell Street remodelling it into a suitable police headquarters. This together with our usual smaller Winter Works projects, should provide employment for many families in the city during the winter months to come.

Summing up, the mayor said that "quality of winter construction is as good as construction done in any other season if proper procedures are followed. Nor costs are not any higher for most types of construction.

RECEIVES THREAT

MUNICH (Reuters) — Franz Josef Strauss, former West German defence minister, disclosed Sunday he had been under police protection after receiving a written threat to murder him during the last few days. Strauss, now leader of the powerful and anticommunist Bavarian wing of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democratic party, told a party rally the anonymous writer said he would be killed soon in the same "brutal" manner in which he himself prosecuted other people.

Construction Roundup

BOB

ARGOSY TRANSPORT

Stewart Lessard of Tweed Construction Ltd. is starting now on a new office and terminal building for Argosy Transport, at the corner of Adam St. and University Ave. The concrete-block and brick building will be about 90 feet long, with one section 60 feet wide, the rest about 30 feet wide. Lessard plans to finish sometime during the winter. The building site is just across the intersection from the new Smith Transport terminal, built last winter.

SMITH'S TRANSPORT

On the new garage at the Smith Transport terminal, Mole Construction of Peterborough has most of the structural concrete poured now and is laying concrete blocks, (with the firm's own men), for the walls. Floor has yet to be poured and there's a lot of work to be finished after the blocks are laid. Men on the job say superintendent Donald Newton is spending some of his time on a piggyback ramp being built in Trenton.

WATER MAIN

Lightfoot Construction starts today laying about 1,800 feet of six-inch water main down Adam Street from University to the new Northern Electric plant, about half way between University and the Camilton Road. The job should take three or four weeks, according to Norm Lightfoot.

LIGHTFOOT CONSTRUCTION

Lightfoot struck oil on a new contract last week, a $400,000 water filtration plant for Cobourg. The job will keep most of the firm's men busy in Cobourg and at Lightfoot's shop in Belleville, (where some of the fittings will be made), for about a year. No superintendent has been named for the job yet.

NORTHERN ELECTRIC

Most of the shop area floor is poured now, and the remainder will be poured tomorrow, according to plans, at the new Northern Electric plant on Adam Street. Builder Wasil Sidor says the floor is about a week behind schedule, but he's not worried about it because he can still make the finish-date deadline, about three weeks away. Floor in the office section out front will be finished about the end of this week. Windows (without glass) are being installed now, roof is finished and the big loading doors are on site.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL SCHOOL

Miron Wiggers' men will be finished by the end of the week on the Sir Mackenzie Bowell School, according to superintendent Dick Wickerson. Terrazzo floor is being ground now, classrooms are already primed and lighting is being installed. Chalkboards will not be installed until after painter Walter McCormick of Belleville has finished the final painting.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER BUILDING

Forms for the east wall and part of the first floor are being finished and checked now, on the new Ontario Intelligencer building at Pinnacle and Bridge Streets. The wall and at least part of the floor will be poured together, tomorrow, according to superintendent Nathan Carr. Meanwhile, Andre Construction men are chipping away part of the west wall of the building, poured a couple of weeks ago. The forms agreed slightly during the pour, making parts of the wall thicker than planned. Normally it wouldn't matter, (the difference is less than an inch), but on this building the brickwork will overhang the concrete by about three-quarters of an inch — and it would look odd to have the wall face veering back and forth under the bricks. The top layer of concrete will be chipped off, and the wall refaced. Carr's plans are to have the building permanently closed, (except one knockout panel at the back, through which the press will be installed), about the end of November or early December.

STEVENSON FORD SALES

The new Stevenson Ford Sales building was handed over today by contractor Hugh Murray and his construction superintendent Jack Wickens to owner Roy Stevenson. Work on the building for the past few days has been confined to final painting and polishing. The fancy red stone around the front, by the way, is granite from the Madoc area.

AMODEO'S

Basement walls were poured last week on the new Amodeo store, bank and office space being built on North Front St by White Lumber and Construction. Work on the drainage system should be starting about now.

BAYSIDE SCHOOL

Hugh Murray hopes to have the new Bayside School finished about Nov. 14. Terrazzo floor areas are being completed now and millwork is being installed. Walls will be painted during the first week in November, resilient tile floor areas will be installed just before the school is handed over. Yard areas were paved last week.

UNION CARBIDE PLANT

Steelwork is up now and the first equipment has been installed at the new "hexa" plant being built at Union Carbide by White Lumber and Construction. More equipment will be installed about the beginning of next week, and plans are to start putting the steel "skin" on the building about the same time. The "skin" goes on the inside of the steel framework first, then a layer of insulation, then on the outside.

Accused Freed Of Murder in Third Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Edward Witherow, 24, was found not guilty Friday on a charge of non-capital murder in the death of Frank Welch, 63, who died in a fire in a West Lorne apartment last Nov. 2.

It was Witherow's third trial on the charge. Juries were unable to agree on a verdict in two previous trials in St. Thomas.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant told the Ontario Supreme Court jury that "no fault can be found with your verdict."

Witherow's face showed no emotion when the jury foreman announced the verdict after one hour and 40 minutes of deliberation.

"I feel wonderful now," he said after court adjournment. "I'm going to sleep for a week."

election campaign that Britain should restrict imports and gradually replace many of the imported products with domestic production.

WOULD REVIEW PRICES

In addition to direct action to stem the flow of imports and encourage more exports, the government said it must attack the problem of rising prices by establishing machinery to review prices and by urging both labor and management to impose restraints on profits and wages.

National belt-tightening also is anticipated by eliminating government expenditures on what the administration described as "low economic priority" and "prestige projects."

This appeared to refer to various controversial defence projects which may now go down the drain. The government said it already has been in touch with France to reopen negotiations on the joint development of the proposed Concorde commercial supersonic aircraft. It appeared likely this project also may be ditched.

The administration did not ignore its pledges to improve Britain's social welfare programs, such as the old-age pension. The various proposed measures in this field will be outlined in the Queen's speech at the opening of Parliament Nov. 3.

Excluded from the additional 15-per-cent import duty are a wide range of goods from dairy products to works of art. Canadian newsprint also will be excluded from the extra charge.

Here is the estimated percentage of British imports to b. hit by the 15-per-cent charge on a regional basis: Commonwealth countries 13 per cent; United States 49; European Common Market 37; European Free Trade area 36; remainder 5.

The statement was made at a press conference given by the governments two economic ministers, George Brown and James Callaghan. It came in the wake of a widening trade gap—the difference between export and import figures.

CHARGE ON IMPORTS

The party announced a temporary charge on some imports and a plan to help exporters on the basis of its policy to boost the national economy.

The charge on imports will be at the level of 15 per cent and will come into effect Tuesday. It covers all imports except foodstuffs, basic raw materials and unmanufactured tobacco.

This measure is therefore chiefly aimed at imports of manufactured goods.

Exporters will be helped by a rebate on some of the indirect taxation which comes into the cost of producing exports.

Today's government statement followed an intensive survey of the economic situation since Harold Wilson's Labor government took over from Sir

Monte Cassino Abbey Bombing 'Not Necessary'

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Gen. Mark W. Clark said Sunday he did not agree with the necessity of bombing the Benedictine Abbey at Monte Cassino, Italy, during the Second World War but it is "wonderful for mankind" that the abbey has been restored.

Clark, former U.S. 5th Army commander and now president of the Citadel, South Carolina military college, said he "was inclined to agree" with Pope Paul who is consecrating the erebuilt church of the Allied-bombed abbey Sunday called its destruction a "grave outrage" and one of the "blindest gestures" of the war.

The abbey, where St. Benedict founded Western monasticism in 529 and where he was buried in 543, is considered one of the greatest in Christendom.

Despite papal intercession, it was shattered by the Allies who contended German forces were using the hilltop fortress to block the way north to Rome. Abbots of the monastery denied that Germans used the buildings.

Alec Douglas-Home's outgoing Conservative party 10 days ago.

Britain, the statement said, will carry out necessary consultations with the International Monetary Fund on the use by the British government of its drawing rights.

The statement said the government is drawing up its program had considered the interests of Commonwealth countries, its partners in the European Free Trade Area and the wider community of other trading nations.

WOULD CREATE COUNCIL

Other main measures proposed:

1. Creation of a Commonwealth exports council.

2. Improvement of exports credits facilities where this would make an immediate increase in overseas earnings.

3. Review other means of helping exporters, particularly by organizing co-operative selling arrangements overseas to help small firms play a part in the export drive.

4. Consult both sides of industry on the outlines of a plan to increase productivity and work toward an effective incomes policy linked to productivity.

5. Create a price - review body.

6. Take steps to make it easier for workers to change their jobs in steel with the needs of technological progress.

Wilson planned to have separate meetings with management and union leaders after today and report to the nation on television tonight.

Met By Mayor, Dignitaries

John Lewis Welcomed By Large Crowd

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

John Lewis, this city's first Olympics representative, came home to an estimated 1,000-voice welcome last night.

The Canadian National Railways station was packed with citizenry as the big diesel locomotive eased to a halt at 6:30.

Applause rang out as Lewis wearing a ten-gallon "cowboy" Stetson hat, swung from the engineer's cab to be met by Mayor Jack Ellis and other dignitaries.

"Welcome home John," the mayor said. "The city is proud of you — and so are we. You did a splendid job at the Olympics finishing in 9th place and setting a new Canadian record."

Adding congratulatory remarks were Robert Temple, M.P., and Alderman Frank Murray.

PROUD WIFE, FAMILY

A minute later with tears glistening his eyes John met his wife Sylvia who had preceded him with a bouncing seven-pounds plus baby boy during his absence. With her were John's parents smiling proudly through damp eyes.

A large sign bearing the words "Welcome Home John Lewis," looked down from a place on the station ticket office.

Proudest perhaps of the large welcoming committee was Apollo Barbell Club owner-coach Ken Carr-Braint and the clubmates of Lewis.

"This is amazing. I am both proud and surprised", Carr-Braint said. "I didn't believe so many people would turn out to welcome John with no public notice of a welcome. It was decided upon at a late minute and too late to give it much publicity."

A proud and happy young wife and mother spoke briefly over a radio microphone. "I'm so happy to see John back. It's been a long while," she said through a blur of tears.

As the band played "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again," Lewis moved through the crowd with Mayor Ellis to where the motorcade was forming.

The band incidentally was gathered in a hurry, thanks to Joe Burchell and a number of ex-members of the city's Municipal Band and Pierce and Campbellford bands. It rode on a truck loaned by the Wilson Motor Company.

Lewis sat atop the back seat of a Wasker Edsel convertible which also carried the mayor and Mrs. Lewis.

The crowd spilled over into the parking area of the city and gave the twenty-one year old athlete another ovation as the motorcade moved off.

Five convertibles, one carrying John's parents and Mrs. Jack Ellis and three bearing the signs "Apollo Club" carrying the members, were loaned for the occasion by Orlitt Lloyd, Jerry Joyce, Trudeau Motors and Carl Jones Motors.

Three Canadian National Railways cars followed as did the city fire chief's car manned by Deputy Ted Foote and a fire department truck. A large number of private cars made up the long motorcade.

The band broke into its "theme" several times during the downtown ride which turned off Station Street at Front and proceeded up Pinnacle to Station to the Lewis residence at 170 Canniffon Road.

The Canadian National Railway did an excellent job in facilitating the Lewis arrival to coincide with formerly announced times.

It announced that Lewis would arrive on the "second section" of the well known "Number Six". It even pinpointed the exact place where the huge diesel engine would stop.

It was stated that the CNR people made changes in plans at other points to enable Lewis to arrive home on scheduled time.

When the big engine eased to a halt, Lewis fairly leaped from the cab almost into the arms of welcoming dignitaries.

He was not available for comment by press and radio. The homecoming was the big thing with the Lewis family last night. This newspaper plans to publish the "Lewis Story of the Olympics" later in this week.

MISSED BY INCHES

However, what few comments Lewis made en route to his home included one that stated he lost some valuable points with a mere slip of the weight on a shoulder. That might have been the point place and a point for Canada.

His coach Ken Carr-Braint told the Intelligencer that "John will win the gold medal at the 1968 Olympics. What he has learned and what he was taught and picked up from world champion weightlifters will stand him in good stead."

"After all," Carr-Braint said, "he is less than 100 pounds under the Olympics record in his division. I believe he can make that up even next year."

"Furthermore," the coach said, "John broke not one but three Canadian records in Tokyo. It has since been revealed that his snatch lift of 303 pounds, his clean and jerk lift of 396 pounds have been booked as all-Canadian records in the mid-heavy division. Add to this his total of 968 and he has three new national marks."

BROKE THREE RECORDS — Ken Carr-Braint, coach of John Lewis, Olympic representative of the city, says Lewis set three Canadian marks in Tokyo competition. John arrived home last night and was greeted by a large crowd.

Quinte Secondary School Graduation Night Success, Big Crowd in Attendance

Valedictory Address

The Valedictory Address given by Wilmer Matthews at Quinte Secondary School Graduation Exercises

"Life can be compared to a road. And as we travel along this road, we reach certain markers or milestones, and it is here that we stop for rest and reflection. We think of events that have passed, and people who have travelled with us. And so it is with us tonight as we look back and try to recall some of those events and some of our acquaintances.

"I am sure we all remember our first association with Quinte. It was a little more than five years ago, that we as a group first entered Quinte as "grade niners" (the lowliest of the lowly), and assembled together in this auditorium to hear our first address by Mr. Reid.

True to form, the first day was bewilderingly enough, but in our case, an hour had barely elapsed when all was mass chaos. Many of you will remember that to which I refer - the anonymous information received that a bomb had been placed in this auditorium.

"About three years later when Quinte was undergoing major surgery, the roof above us threatened to collapse, our hallways became obstacle courses with pans placed at strategic places for the purpose of collecting water that dripped from the ceiling.

"As you can see, we had our share of excitement. With the first days came new teachers, new friends, new interests, and new subjects. For the first week or two these surroundings overwhelmed us, but soon the novelty wore off and school work became a routine sometimes interesting, sometimes boring.

"Everybody remembers the football and basketball games, and the much thrashed out school spirit exhibited by the whole student body. Then there were our Christmas and "after exam" dances, which were enjoyed by all. But these are not the only events we remember.

"How about our two dramatic productions, "The Boy Friend" and "Annie Get Your Gun", which were both sell-outs. Of course, synonymous with school productions is Mr. Cochran and his tickets, which without doubt, plagued their way into the "hot little hands" of every student.

"We will remember our fellow students—some for their athletic ability, some for their wit, some for both, some for neither; but variety is the spice of life. We will remember the occasions which we listened to the World Series at the back of the class, all unbeknown to our teachers, and the time when our small but rather explosive teacher threw away his watch because he could not stand the idea of a set time for everything!

"We also remember some of the close friendships we experienced, something I am sure the passing of years will not dim.

"Many lessons have been learned outside of books. We have learned the relationship between one another; on the playing field we learned the lessons of sportsmanship; in our labs and shops we have come to realize the importance of cooperate effort; we have learned to respect others for their talents; we have learned to take responsibilities in our clubs, and most important of all we have developed self reliance and fortitude. Each of these lessons in its own way is more important than any theorem in Geometry or law in Physics, or any Latin declension.

"To our teachers (the number of whom seem to be changing drastically from year to year) we say 'thank you' for the help you have given us, both during school hours and after school.

"This evening will probably be the last time we graduates will all be together. We now face the responsibilities for which we have been prepared, and for which we have prepared ourselves. Some of us have chosen to continue our education whether it be at Universities, Teachers' Colleges or Schools of Nursing.

"Other have taken directly to the business world, and still others have joined the 'Home Department,' and are busy rais-

"Indeed, education is the common good," E. J. Schoneker, assistant Professor of Philosophy at Trent University told the 1964 Graduation Exercises at Quinte Secondary High School on Saturday evening.

Mr. Schoneker said, "the stage of development upon which we are now entering is that of national consciousness. More exactly, we, as a people, are collectively aware of the fact that we constitute a historical reality which is a body-politic.

"Presumably, the highest goal which Canada, like its sister nations can wish to achieve and has already willed, to bring about, is the greatest common good of all, both within and beyond its national boundaries.

The speaker stated that "If education is the highest end of man, if it is indeed the process of human self-realization, then it must become the central and absolutely primary concern of the whole of any society.

"This same point was made more forcefully, he continued, by William McLaughlin, principal of Charles Frank High School when, in reviewing the dramatic changes taking place and about to take place in education, he said: "The biggest change in education, however, will be public recognition of it as the centre of the nation's culture, economy and government."

The speaker stated in closing, "we in Canada conscious of our identity as a nation and sufficiently serious to achieve the highest common good, must recognize that the good is accessible only when it is shared, and took their places at the front, followed by the official party, who proceeded to the stage where the tables were ladened with scholarship certificates, bursaries, prizes and trophies.

Then the long awaited for moment arrived when the lights dimmed and Principal L. F. Reid walked to the podium to open the proceedings.

Among the many students being honored at the special exercises were the outstanding students, Donna Chase, Joan Kirkham and Neil Miles, who received double scholarship awards, each in the amount of $400. The awards were presented by three students by Mr. E. A. Orr, M.A. F.O.T.F., Superintendent of Secondary Education.

SCHOOL CHOIR HEARD

Following Mr. Reid's remarks the graduating class were next awarded followed by selections by the school choir after which Mr. Reid presented diplomas awarded by vice-principal John Heyman assisted by R. N. Hayman, R. A. Finch and G. Hamilton.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

During the present day and age deer hunt masters have a tendency to arrange their hunting trip to coincide with the first week of the two week open season north of No. 7 Highway in the Tweed Forest District, says R. E. Whitfield of the 'Lands' and Forest Branch Staff.

Tweed district office records show approximately 75 percent of the hunters are in the bush during the first week of the open season.

"Hunter density" is the thing that seems to be plaguing the people who hunt these days, yet hunters themselves are largely responsible for crowded conditions in the bush. Why is this? It is simply that hunters feel that opening day is the day when everyone gets an equal chance to share in the hunt, and the deer that are there to be hunted, he points out.

Some feel that hunting is better when hunters are out in full force—running their dogs—stirring up the deer—and keeping them on the move.

Last but not least is the belief that if the hunter is not out the first week to get his deer there will be none left the second week.

These are some of the things that appear to be responsible for creating a congestion in the bush during the first week of the open season.

Approximately 30,000 hunters converge on the district each year to participate in the deer hunt—three quarters of these or 15,000 hunt the first week, with approximately 8,000 left to hunt the second week.

Were hunters to distribute themselves equally over the two week period in the open season there undoubtedly would be less chance of accidents—congestion in the bush and tangles on the runways.

There is also a good chance that hunting the second week could be equally as good as the first, because weather conditions have much to do with hunter success and could well be better the second week—not to mention the number of deer that escape the first weekers.

There is little that can be done Department-wise to aid in the distribution of hunters more over the two week season unless the hunter himself takes some positive action in this direction, Mr. Whitfield declares.

Three-week deer seasons, he says, have been suggested as a means of alleviating crowding during the first week, and at the same time increase the harvest of deer.

A three week season would be of little significance unless hunters can show that they can disperse themselves more evenly over the first two weeks says in effect.

The opening dates for game and fish have somewhat the game general aspects where sportsmen congregate in large numbers on the opening day and dwindle sharply thereafter.

In summing up Mr. Whitfield suggests that hunters who do not care to hunt at a time when hunter density is at its peak, arrange to hunt during the second week of the open season.

If enough hunters shift to the second week of the open season in all probability they will find hunting equally rewarding as the first week, with less chance of conflict with fellow hunters.

Both Star Over Weekend

Crozier, Hull Kick 'Em Out, Put 'Em In

By TED BLACKMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bid Abel is beginning to look like a hockey genius.

But that was hardly the popular opinion last June when the Detroit coach unloaded veteran goalie Terry Sawchuk in the National Hockey League draft for $30,000. Toronto Maple Leafs couldn't believe it, but gladly snapped him up.

That left the Red Wings with a virtually untried 19-year-old youngster to do a man's job. The rookie, Roger Crozier, was plainly on the spot and so was Abel.

"If he doesn't do the job, I'll be sitting out there in the stands like everyone else, wondering what the devil went wrong," Abel admitted.

"But I have the utmost confidence in him—he's going to be a star in this league. He's quick and he's got fast hands."

Abel's prediction appeared weak during Detroit's first three games when Crozier allowed a total of 11 goals. But look at him now.

The freshman goalie has given up just one goal in his last three outings en route to taking the NHL shutout lead with two. The Red Wings, in the process, have climbed into a four-way tie for first place. It's not a coincidence.

Crozier blanked New York Rangers 1-0 during the week to kick off his current hot streak. During the weekend he allowed Montreal Canadiens only one goal as the Wings battled to a 1-1 draw and shut out Boston Bruins 4-0 Sunday night.

Toronto and New York fought to a 1-1 sawoff in the only other game played Saturday evening and Chicago Black Hawks, paced by Bobby Hull's three goals, whipped the Rangers 5-3 the following night.

Crozier turned back 18 of 19 shots fired at him by Montreal and lost his shutout bid at 18:11 of the third period draw is as many home games.

Alex Delvecchio had given the Wings a 1-0 lead at the 97-second mark of the final frame by beating Charlie Hodge, who faced 27 shots as the Wings outhustled Montreal by a narrow margin before 14,190 Forum customers.

Crozier then blanked the punchless Bruins on 36 shots before a disappointed Boston crowd of 12,675. The Bruins have managed just seven goals in six games.

Delvecchio again paced the Wings with two goals while Norm Ullman and Ron Murphy tallied their second goals of the season.

But the lead in the goal-scoring department belongs to Hull, whose three-goal performance in New York ran his season total to five in five games. Stan Mikita scored twice and raised two assists to open up a four-point lead in the individual scoring race.

A New York crowd of 14,122 watched Jim Mikol give them a brief 1-0 lead before Hull got to work.

Red Gilbert earned the Rangers the 1-1 tie at Toronto with his first of the season. Rookie Ron Ellis had given the Leafs a 1-0 first-period lead.

NEW DEFENCE ROLE! — Defenceman Bobby Baun looks like he's trying to protect the back of the net, but really he's all tied up in the mesh. Baun collided with Johnny Bower during a New York Rangers attack on the Toronto Maple Leafs net, breaking Bower's stick and getting himself in this knot. Bower still watches the play, ready for any shots with only half of his stick. The Saturday night National Hockey game ended in a 1-1 tie. (CP Photo)

Als Grab Third Place

Larks, Cats Defeat Riders, Argos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When coach Jim Trimble predicted before the start of the Eastern Football Conference regular season in August that his Montreal Alouettes would make the playoffs, the experts thought a brat wave had made him giddy.

Trimble, entering his second year as the Alouettes' coach, had scrapped most of the Montreal roster built up by his predecessor, Perry Moss, and was rebuilding with raw recruits.

Sunday one of those rookies, quarterback George Bork, topped a stellar performance with a touchdown pass that gave the Alouettes a 23-21 win over second - place Ottawa Rough Riders.

The victory was overshadowed, however, by Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who trounced Toronto Argonauts 27-7 Saturday to nail down first place in the conference. Montreal took third place and the final playoff berth and meets Ottawa in the sudden-death Eastern semi-final.

The win for Montreal was its sixth in 13 games and "was important because it established in Ottawa's minds the fact that we can beat them," said Trimble. The Als won one of three regular season games against the Riders.

Bork threw the winning touchdown pass to Jerry Philp with less than four minutes remaining after being trapped on a third-down quarterback attempt and was about to be smothered by Ottawa tacklers.

Mel Cradock, burly 230 pound fullback, was the key to Montreal's victory with 136 yards rushing, including a 44-yard gallop that set up Philp's touchdown and a 72-yard run that went for one of two Cradock touchdowns.

Montreal got its other points on a safety touch, John Baker's single and two converts by Willie Lambert.

Dave Thelen and Bob O'Billovich both got touchdowns for the Rough Riders and Rick Black got the other. Moe Racine converted all three.

Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson completed only three of 11 pass attempts and the Riders gained only 57 yards in the air. The Riders also rushed for 144 yards and got a meagre eight first downs.

Bork just couldn't be stopped, completing 13 of 20 pass attempts. Montreal got 16 first downs, 140 yards rushing and 150 yards in the air. Ottawa intercepted three Montreal passes and had one of its own picked off.

ARGOS MAULED

The Argonauts, who had to win their last two outings and hope that Montreal lost both, were completely mauled by the precision - perfect defending Grey Cup champion Ticats in the second half at Hamilton.

Art Baker, Johnny Counts and Hal Patterson got the Hamilton touchdowns. Placekicker Don Sutherin collected eight points with three converts, a 45-yard field goal—his 14th of the season—and two singles on attempted field goals.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney got the other Hamilton point on an 85-yard single as he averaged 50 yards in four punts.

Willie Bethea carried 17 times for 105 yards for the Ticats, Counts picked up 98 yards, including a 41-yard touchdown run, in 12 carries, and Baker collected 80 yards in 17 carries as Hamilton rolled up 306 yards along the ground.

Hockey Club Dies Stillborn

Belleville's Intermediate hockey "baby" was stillborn yesterday.

The club was entered in the OHA Lakeshore Intermediate League at a meeting in Trenton in mid-afternoon.

Two hours later club spokesman Stu Muirhead announced that the team had been forced to fold.

"It was a losing battle, despite everything Mr. Ellis (sponsor Richard Ellis) Vern (coach Goyer) and a few others tried to do", said Muirhead.

Circumstances and pressure from certain points were the causes of death.

At the same time Muirhead was entering the club in the league at Trenton, Ellis was being told in Belleville that the club could not play Sunday home games in Memorial Arena.

Earlier the club had been told that Sunday was the only time available at the arena. The team announced its plans to sell booster cards for admission to Sunday games, or to take a silver collection.

Ellis said yesterday that he was informed he could not do either and that he would be officially notified of this by a letter from the city solicitor.

The club planned to try and operate anyway by playing home games in Wellington.

But when only 13 players, including several juniors and a couple of others obviously just out for a skate, turned out to yesterday's opening practice, it was decided to call the whole thing off.

Goyer expressed disappointment at the small turnout at what was to have been a two-hour workout. He said a number of players who had said they would attend did not show up. The few that were there left the ice after an hour's skating.

Muirhead hurried back from Trenton to find a handful of players left in the dressing room.

After a brief meeting of the few, Belleville Ellis Printers were officially pronounced dead.

"I hope our efforts to provide a team here will not hamper the chances of those who league at Trenton," said a dejected Muirhead.

The other three clubs in the Lakeshore loop's eastern section are Napanee, Picton and Trenton RCAF. Speculation is that they will play interlocking games with the five-team western division now that Belleville has withdrawn.

Russ Athletes Feel Official Wrath

Coaches Blamed

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — An Olympic gold medal worth about $7 is the most precious commodity that an athlete can acquire.

Winning it can, and often does, mean glory and an easier life for many. That is the case for successful athletes who live in a system where sport is subsidized by the state and where there is virtually no room for a loser.

The pressures to win often are over-bearing in a world where nationalistic pride, and not the athlete, often has the last say.

It is not enough to finish among the six best in the world. Gold-mining in the Olympics is the big thing, even though the two-ounce medal that goes to the winner isn't really gold but only gilded with a few grams of the $35-an-ounce metal.

Track and field at the Olympic Games ended Saturday after 15 days of battling for 163 gold medals and climaxed with 100 championships at Rome four years ago, Russia had won the most golds — 30 — and barely scraped to its third straight unofficial team championship.

WON 30 MEDALS

The Russians won 30 gold medals, 13 fewer than at Rome, and that showing immediately was interpreted as the wrath of the Soviet press upon the Olympic team. The heads of some Soviet sports officials may roll.

Why hadn't the Russians won the 40 to 50 gold medals Soviet sports officials promised? asked one Soviet newspaper.

Post-mortems filled the Soviet sports pages. The main target was Gavrili Korobkov, the Soviet track and field coach. His team won five gold medals compared with 11 in Rome.

The Soviet military newspaper Red Star accused him of "whole series of mistakes" and said he and other team officials had "deceived our sports fans" with their optimistic statements even after the defeat at the hands of the Americans in Los Angeles last summer.

Korobkov said he already had started thinking about switching to a career in scientific work.

Although there were 13 more events in Tokyo than at the 1960 Games, the Russians finished seven medals shy of equalling their 103 gold, silver and bronze medals won at Rome.

The United States didn't have to face such criticism since its team had exceeded its major predictions and won the most gold medals of the Games, 36, two more than at Rome. In all, the U.S. took 90 medals, 19 more than in 1960.

Then the U.S. was under pressure, too, to make a strong showing, particularly in track and field, and it did. The Americans won 14 of the 36 track and field events and 17 of the 22 swimming and diving championships.

But in other sports, the Americans took only five more gold medals.

There was an upsurge by the other countries who form a sort of third force of nations that is gaining in combined power on the playing fields.

OTHERS WIN 97

While the Russians and Americans captured a total of 66 gold medals, the third - force of states won 97. And in this group were the five Iron Curtain countries which won almost as many gold medals as the Russians.

Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania and Bulgaria took 27 gold medals, many of them previously won by Russians.

The 97 third-force gold medals were spread among 24 countries.

In 1960, Russia and the U.S. won a total of 77 gold medals. Twenty-one other countries took a total of 75. Two of the Soviet gold were for ties with Japan in men's gymnastics events.

Host Japan did better than it had hoped, winning 16 gold medals for third place in that department, but the loss of the judo open class gold medal to Holland's giant, Anton Geesink, shocked whole sections of the Japanese public and press.

Today, many of the 5,000 athletes from 94 countries who competed in the games that started Oct. 10, were heading home, or already there, and the rest will be pulling out of the Olympic villages in the next few days.

GAMES ARE ORDERLY

The Games, first held in Asia, were orderly from start to windup. There were few of the bitter controversies that struck other Olympics. North Korea and Indonesia withdrew before the Games over a dispute with Olympic and world track official involving eligibility of athletes and East Germany got in a hassle over who should sail a yachting entry. The West Germans won the argument and the gold medal.

There were warnings from Avery Brundage, the elder statesman of amateur sport, that extreme nationalism displayed at the Games is hurting the Olympic movement.

"There is one country that openly admits that its athletes are political agents," he said in a press conference shortly before the games closed. This is one thing that is unacceptable, he said, but declined to name the country.

URGES OLYMPIC SONG

Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, urged that the victory ceremony and the playing of national anthems when the medals are presented should be abolished. They only generate excitement and tension, he said. He urged that an Olympic song be played instead.

While the subsidized - sports countries pondered over what Olympic dividends they got for their investments, other countries were looking to the 1968 Games at Mexico City, and where the money will come to send a better team if possible.

Canada sent one of its finest teams to the Olympics since the war. It won one gold medal in rowing, a silver and bronze in track and a silver in judo.

RCAF Wins Soccer Tourney

RCAF Trenton won the Trenton Challenge Cup yesterday, by goal average, in a closely contested tournament.

Belleville Parsons of Clarence and Bateawa were the other participants at the air station soccer field.

In the first game between Parsons and Bateawa, Parsons won 3-2. Bateawa went ahead on goals by Ormsby and Cassar, to lead 2-0 at half time. Parsons, who played with only ten men, fought hard to get back in the game, and Bob Rutherford at centre forward scored three goals in a row to put Parsons on the winning track.

At this time a couple of fights broke out, and afterwards Bob Rutherford was taken to Trenton to have two stitches put in a gash over his eye.

Bateawa defeated Trenton 3-1 in the second game, and their superiority was awarded with goals by Ormsby, Cassar and Zelee. Trenton's single goal was scored by Alan Brown.

Parsons played the final game against RCAF Trenton with only nine men, and were downed 3-0. With only three men in the forward line Parsons made very little headway, but did not to keep the score up to a minimum. Neil Smith scored two goals and Alan Brown the third for Trenton.

There will be another series next Sunday to decide the Belleville charity cup, this will also be at the RCAF station, kick off for the first game being one o'clock.

Rallies For 1st PGA Win

CORONA, Calif. (AP)—Jack McGregor of Largo, Fla., who squandered a huge lead in the early going, rallied for his first U.S. PGA victory with a three-over-par 283-3 Sunday in the 40,000 Mountain View Open golf tournament.

McGowan's 72-hole total was 66-68-65-74—273, 11 shots under par and four shots ahead of rookie Dick Sikes.

The victory was worth $2,000, the most won by the slim pro in his four years on the tour.

Al Balding of Toronto finished with a 285 total, good for $700 in prize money. He had rounds of 72-73-71-69.

Jerry Magee of Toronto fired a 72 Sunday, adding it to 72-73-71 for 288 and $70.

Viking Rushes 60 Yards - The Wrong Way

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bobby Smith runs more than 90 yards every time he scores a touchdown, and Bucky Pope, his Los Angeles Rams' teammate, scores a touchdown every other time he catches a pass.

But Jim Marshall of Minnesota Vikings hopes he hasn't started a personal trend on running with recovered fumbles.

Smith and Pope starred for the second straight week as the surprising Rams defeated the sagging Green Bay Packers 27-17 in the National Football League Sunday. Marshall gilt-edged his way in the fourth quarter of the Vikings' 27-22 triumph over San Francisco 49ers.

Bill Kilmer caught a pass from George Mira on the 46-yard line, dribbled the ball, Marshall, a five-year veteran, alertly snatched it and lit out for the end zone.

Sixty yards later, he arrived there safely. But unfortunately, he had failed to hear the screams of his team-mates. They had tried in warn him that he was running the wrong way.

So instead of the Vikings receiving six points for a touchdown, the 49ers earned two points for a safety, a harmless two points as things turned out.

Smith, the Rams' electrifying defensive back, scooped up Paul Hornung's partially blocked field goal attempt on Los Angeles' six-yard line in the third quarter and raced 94 yards for the touchdown that put the Rams ahead to stay.

Rookie Pope, a pass receiver from Catawba College, also was on a long play, a 58-yard scoring pass from Roman Gabriel in the second quarter. The pass, the only one he caught in the game, brought his season record to 12 passes received, six going for touchdowns.

In other NFL games Sunday, Cleveland Browns crushed New York Giants 43-20, Baltimore Colts trampled Detroit Lions 34-0, Dallas Cowboys whipped St. Louis Cardinals 31-13, Washington Redskins defeated Chicago Bears 27-20 and Philadelphia Eagles knocked out Pittsburgh Steelers 34-10.

In the American Football League Sunday, San Diego Chargers edged Houston Oilers 20-17 and Oakland Raiders ran over Denver Broncos 40-7. Buffalo Bills beat New York Jets 34-24 Saturday night and Boston Patriots trimmed Kansas City Chiefs 24-7 Friday night

Cleveland took over sole possession of first place in the NFL Eastern Conference, scoring twice in the fourth quarter on Giant fumbles.

Dallas, meanwhile, dropped the Cardinals into second place in the East and Don Meredith threw to Frankie Clarke for one touchdown and tossed to the same receiver, setting up another.

Johnny Unitas flipped touchdown passes to Ray Berry and Jimmy Orr, carrying Western Conference leader Baltimore to its sixth straight triumph. The Lions had gone into the game with the league's toughest defence.

Redmen, Mustangs Tie

Gaels Whip Blues 34-22

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It will probably be a long time before University of Toronto Blues forget Jay Heine Lilles did the running

Queen's University Golden Gaels' 34-22 victory in Saturday's Senior Intercollegiate Football action was something they had to expect from the unbeaten Gaels, but Lilles was beyond anticipation

The 185 - pound halfback pounded 207 yards for three touchdowns as the Gaels engineered their 12th successive league victory—the fourth this season—and left the Blues holding third place.

In other action, University of Western Ontario Mustangs gained their first point of the season, holding second place McGill Redmen to a 12-12 tie.

In the Ontario Intermediate Collegiate League, Loyola Warriors defeated Waterloo Universities 16-7 and Macdonald College downed University of Montreal 20-12. Carleton Ravens defeated Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks, Ottawa Univ ersity Gee Gees downed Ontario Agricultural College Redmen 27-13 and McMaster University defeated Royal Military College 25-22.

Lilles ran four, 86 and 16 yards for his touchdowns. Quarterback Cal Connor tossed touchdown passes of 19 yards to end Peter Thompson and two yards to fullback Jim Young. Eric Hafeman kicked three converts and Larry Ferguson added a single.

Gurney Wins Mexican Grand Prix

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., driving a Brabham, won the Mexican Grand Prix Sunday when Jim Clark, who led most of the way, broke an oil pipe on his Lotus.

John Surtees of England, in a Ferrari, was second, apparently clinching the world driving championship. Lorenzo Bandini of Italy was third in a Ferrari.

Clark, who had won two previous Mexican Grand Prix, led through 64 laps. But, to the amazement of the crowd of 65,000, his car slowed down on the 64th and eventually came to a stop.

Gurney, who had been a stubborn second most of the way, then swept into the lead on the 65th lap when Clark's car began spouting oil.

Officials said later that Clark's Lotus broke an oil pipe on the 62nd lap, that Clark tried to continue but burned out the motor on the 65th lap

Surtees apparently won the world driving title on points scored in recognized races, with a total of 40 points. He had by going into Sunday's race and added six more for second.

Flyers Nip Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers emerged with 13 points, three ahead of their nearest rivals, after a rough, penalty - marred weekend around the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A division.

Niagara Falls nipped St. Catharines Black Hawks 3-1 on Sunday afternoon at St. Catharines while Oshawa Generals vaulted into second place over Toronto Marlboros, defeating last year's Memorial Cup champions 9-6. Oshawa has nine points, one ahead of Toronto.

In other action, Montreal Junior Canadiens beat Peterborough Petes 5-1 at the Montreal Forum and Kitchener Rangers defeated last - place Hamilton Red Wings 8-3.

Posting their second win over St. Catharines in three nights, Niagara Falls got goals from Mickey Chervenyk, Derek Sanders and Dave Woodley, with Woodley's clincher going into an open net with Ken Laidlaw. Laidlaw got a major also.

In a crunching, 26 - penalty game, Oshawa lost their top-scoring forward Ron Buchanan for at least two weeks with a shoulder separation but managed to outlast Toronto in a free-scoring contest.

Will Run Again

Bruce Kidd Not Quitting

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Bruce Kidd, disappointed in his hopes for success at the Tokyo Olympics, took a long look down the comeback trail today and said he still hopes to live up to the promise of the last few years.

"I am not giving up running," the 21-year-old Toronto distance runner said in an interview. "I am looking forward to the British Empire Games in Jamaica in 1966 and to the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City."

In his late teens Kidd, a political science student at the University of Toronto, was considered one of the world's most promising distance runners. He started to show his form with a victory in the six-mile race and a third-place finish in the three miles in the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

At Tokyo, however, something went wrong. Kidd was only 20th in the 10,000 metres, he did not reach the final of the 5,000 metres, and he gave up his plan to tackle the marathon.

"I think the main reason for my downfall here is that I did not train properly," he said. "Relaxation has always been my strong point."

DIDN'T GET AWAY

He lamented the fact that he did not get away from the Olympic village for a while just prior to the competition.

"I could have relaxed at the Meiji shrine, just outside the village, but it was raining most of the time and I couldn't go there.

"I could never get away from anybody at any time and we charge myself. The big thing here was that I lost my nerve and just cracked up.

"The atmosphere at the village was so close. It may be belaboring, but if I had just been able to get out of Tokyo for 24 hours where I wouldn't have had to think about the races, I might have been better. I couldn't even go anywhere to read without being disturbed. Other athletes thrive on this sort of thing but being alone a lot being alone a lot in the last three years

CAMP DOESN'T HELP

"Just being in a camp like this can throw you off mentally. This is the only way I can explain why I went under."

Kidd said he may have trained too hard the first few days he was here and literally run himself into the ground.

"I should have been confident enough to let my training program read on what it was in September and just coast. I did this at Perth.

"The next time, in Jamaica or Mexico, I'll just go over take it easy, enjoy it and take a good look at everybody."

He felt that, in the last year, his interest in running had overshadowed his other interests.

"I would like to take the emphasis off running for a while. I think running has interfered too much with my studies."

After the present academic year, he said, he may apply for post-graduate study at a British or U.S. university or take a year off from his studies.

King of the Hill

Ron Saylor retained his King of the Hill crown without a challenge by turning in another high-scoring string this past weekend.

Saylor paced the qualifiers round with a five-game total of 1440. He average 288 per game with singles of 345, 352, 250, 227 and 266.

Saylor's closest competitor was Jim Begley with 1194 and Ed Nicholson with 1118.

Earlier Saylor had rolled 1142 for an average of 285 in four Quinte Classic League games.

Canada Needs For Olympics

More Money, Facilities, Public Interest

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) —If Canadians want more Olympic medals, it is going to take more money, better facilities more public interest and much more management of Canadian amateurs in international competition.

At least that's the assessment Canadian officials gave before leaving for home today with one of the finest teams Canada has sent to the Olympics since the Second World War.

"Canadians can take about physical fitness until they're blue in the face but I don't know how they are going to get it without proper facilities," said Jim Daly of Winnipeg, manager of the track and field squad that produced two of Canada's four medals and 14 of its 80 points here

Canada got a gold medal in the coxless pairs rowing event, silver medals in heavyweight judo and the 800 metres, and a bronze medal in the 100 metres at the Tokyo Games.

In the standard point standings compiled on a basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six places in each event Canada came 21st among the 94 participating countries with 60 points.

LEAPS AHEAD

In terms of both medals and points, Canada took a sizable leap ahead from Rome, where in 1960 it won only one silver medal and collected only 22 points to place 28th among 84 countries.

Daly said "we hear lots about cultural and scientific projects for our 1967 centennial celebrations but nothing about sport."

He suggested that each province undertake to build two "field houses" as a centennial sports as a centennial project.

"In four years a lot of guys would be competing for places on our international teams if these were built."

"Field houses? Most Canadians probably have never heard of them because there are none in Canada, although they are common in the United States and Europe."

ARE FOR TRAINING

"They are simply all purpose winter training grounds for outdoor sports. They usually have a 220-yard running track, a sand and clay infield for the shot put, the jumping events and the pole vault, and basketball courts.

"They're about half the size of a football field. The cost of a field house will be approximately $500,000."

Bill Gairdner of Toronto, who competed in the decathlon and the 400-metre hurdles said: "You just can't stay in Canada in winter. There's no room for pole vault, there's no place to hurdle, you can't do anything. We're a nation of bowling alleys."

Gairdner, now a student at the Uniugham Young Institute, he left McGill University because it has no winter training facilities for running events. "I wouldn't think of coming back and I wouldn't have made the team if I had."

Daly said teen-aged athletes need funded across Canada for competition, then tours to such places as the Scandinavian countries and the British Isles and the fullest possible participation in the British Empire Games and the Pan - American Games.

NKED COMPETITION

"They need more competition for mental as well as physical toughening."

Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Committee, said the Canadian public must get "wholeheartedly behind the amateur sport movement in Canada finistically and otherwise" if it wants results.

He called for support of the Olympic committees and other amateur sport bodies.

"We have heard some Canadians here remark that some of our athletes 'just made the finals and didn't win any medals.'

"It must be said that any athlete who reaches the final in any Olympic event is of outstanding world calibre A number of our athletes displayed this calibre here and Canadians should be proud of that fact Already we are looking forward to the future, confident that our country will do even better in the 1968 Olympic Games."

MUST WAKE UP

"For this to happen, however, the people of Canada and in particular the organizations governing sport, must wake up to what is being done in so many other countries.

"Financial support of amateur sports is needed from the federal government and, more important, from the people of Canada. Canadians want to be proud of their athletes. Those who have been sent to the Olympics have, in most cases, improved their standards of performance immeasurably. But we must bring more Canadians into the realm of amateur competition and this requires money and organization."

Worrall said Canadian athletes must be given opportunities to get the best coaching and best international competition available.

"I am not speaking merely of waiting for the next Olympics. We are talking about now. In practically all sports Canada can afford to send selected athletes abroad, in some cases, bring to Canada competition from other countries, even with top-flight, proven coaches.

"There is a tremendous difference between the track and field performer or team in Canada and what we have witnessed every day in Tokyo. Canadian athletes deserve an opportunity to measure themselves against the best of other countries . . ."

IS CHIEF FUNCTION

He said the chief function of the Canadian Olympic Association is to send athletes to the Olympics and the Pan-American Games but he added:

"It hopes in the near future, through increased financial support, to get itself on a more solid footing and start assisting various sports."

The Olympic association had no desire or power to take over the administration of any sport but it wanted to be consulted in the development of the various Olympic sports in Canada.

Joining in the call for more frequent international competition for Canadian athletes was swimming coach Forrest Firby of Vancouver, who said Canada's swimmers did "amazingly well here."

Although Canadian swimmers won no medals, they had finalists in three of the 13 men's races and six of the eight women's events.

Firby said future teams will show better results if they get regular competition both in Canada and abroad.

Post-Olympics Meet

Crothers Helps Win Relay

OSAKA, Japan (CP-AP). — U.S. The Toronto half - miler Canada's Bill Crothers, the silver medalist in the Olympics 800-metre run, anchored the winning British Commonwealth 3,200-metre relay team in a post-Olympic track and field meet here Sunday.

The United States men's Olympic track team, minus several of its stars, won handily over the Commonwealth and Japan in the traditional post-Olympic competition, but the Commonwealth led by a big margin in the women's events. The U.S. took first place in 18 of the 18 men's events. Under the scoring system used in the Commonwealth-U.S. meets, begun in 1920, this gave the U.S. 13½ points and the Commonwealth 4½.

In the women's meet, the Commonwealth took six firsts, including a world record-equaling performance by Australia's Pamela Kilborn in the 80-metre hurdles, to three for the U.S. Japan took its only first in the women's discus.

The meet actually was two rolled into one. In addition to the dual scoring, results were scored separately for a triangular meet among the three countries.

In this scoring the U.S. men had 46 points, the Commonwealth 39½ and Japan 27½. The Commonwealth women had 25 points, the U.S. 21 and Japan 14.

Crothers anchored the winning 3,200-metre relay team to a three-second victory over the Americans.

Oakville Oaks missed a chance to force a tie for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior division by dropping a narrow 4-3 decision to the league doormats Sunday. Wellland Buriloaks had lost all four games before the encounter, including an 8-3 decision to first-place Galt Hornets the day before in the only other league game of the weekend. Oakville got the first goal Sunday, but Wellland went ahead with two in that period and got the winner with four minutes to play in the game.

The results left Galt and Guelph tied for first with six points apiece, Oakville third with four, and Wellland fed with Woodstock on two points each. Oakville is at Woodstock and Wellland at Guelph in the next action Friday night.

Former Queen's Coach Dies

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Andrew I. Mullan, onetime professional football star in Canada, died on Saturday in hospital here after a brief illness. He was 38.

Mullan, one of the first Americans to play professional football in Canada, was quarterback for Toronto Argonauts during the 1930s. He was named league quarterback of the year in 1933 and was with Argos when they won the Grey Cup in 1935.

Later he was football coach at Upper Canada College, Toronto.

He also coached the Hamilton Tigers and in the early 1940s was a coach at Queen's University, Kingston.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems took a two-point lead in Western Hockey League standings during the weekend as the six - team loop took on a semblance of order.

Entering Saturday's play, Seattle and Los Angeles were tied for first place with eight points. The other teams shared second place with four points.

Seattle now is in first place with 10 points after defeating Los Angeles 4-2 in Seattle Saturday. The Totems were shut out 5-0 by Portland Buckaroos Sunday.

It was the second victory in two days for Portland, who defeated San Francisco Seals 5-3 Saturday.

Meanwhile, Vancouver Canucks edged Victoria Maple Leafs 3-2 in the other weekend contest.

SCORE EARLY

The Buckaroos, playing before 6,286 hometown fans Sunday scored two goals in the first period. Gerry Goyer and Art Jones shared the scoring honors.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Will I Rule, owned by R. E. Dixon Jr., of Philadelphia, turned in a strong stretch drive Saturday at Woodbine Race Track to win the $50,000 Canadian Championship.

With Ron Turcotte aboard, Will I Rule passed Canebora at mid-stretch and came home 3½ lengths ahead of the Whitfields Farm horse. Greek Form, from Willow Downs Farm, was a close third.

The victory was the third in three Canadian starts for Will I Rule and he went to the post a commanding favorite to return $2.80, $2.60 and $2.10. Sir Dixon paid $34,800 with the stretch drive win, and boosted his total earnings to $81,180.

Ambassador John A. Balton of Ireland, the representative in Canada of the country that breeds some of the world's greatest thoroughbreds, presented the trophy.

In the $13,935 Grey Stakes Handicap, the outstanding two-year-old Good Old Mort failed in his bid to win more than $100,000 in a single season. He ran fourth to Dan Brides and earned $1,000, leaving him $45 short of owner Ed Seedhouse's goal.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Horses have begun to fill the 276 stalls at the new Garden City Raceway here in preparation for the opening of a 36-night meeting that begins today.

Construction of the $3,500,000 track and grandstand is in its final stages after a delay resulting from a 13-week strike of electrical workers in the area.

The Garden City track, which lies on 65 acres of land adjacent to the Queen Elizabeth Way near the Welland Canal, is slightly larger than the Jockey Club's Mohawk Track at Campbellville, Ont., which opened in the fall of 1963.

The track, five-eighths of a mile long, is part of a former vineyard.

NAMED COACH

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Joe Schultz, manager of the Lick team in the Dominican Winter Baseball League, said Sunday he has been named a coach of the World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals. He said he had been advised of the appointment Saturday night in a cable from Red Schoendienst.

US College Football

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The top three U.S. college football teams — Ohio State, Notre Dame and Alabama — continued their unbeaten ways Saturday.

But Syracuse, Florida and Florida State — ranked eighth, ninth and 10th respectively — all went down to defeat and several other ranked teams did not have to go all out to salvage a win.

Nebraska, the No. 2 team in the Associated Press poll, also came through unscathed.

Arkansas, ranked fourth, blanked Wichita 17-0 and Texas, No. 6, beat Rice 6-2.

Ohio State crushed Wisconsin 28-8 for their fifth straight triumph.

Second - ranked Notre Dame got a record - breaking passing performance from quarterback John Huarte and three touchdowns by Bill Wolski while the stiff Irish defense smothered Stanford's Ray Handley en route to a 26-6 victory.

Nebraska turned back Colorado, 21-3.

May Set Up Olympics Sports Office

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government may grant $100,000 a year to help maintain a permanent Canadian Olympic sports office, possibly in Toronto, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Sunday.

She said the Canadian Olympic Association has sought the grant under the federal government's fitness and amateur sport program, and while the advisory council on the program has not completed its study of the proposal, she favors it.

"We think this would be a good idea," she said. "... I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the advisory council did not decide out of next year's budget to allocate sufficient funds to have this office set up."

She said sufficient funds would be "something in the neighborhood of $100,000 a year," and the grant would be made annually out of the advisory council's $5,000,000 fund.

Miss LaMarsh made the statement in a television interview recorded here.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dollay Dale B, a second-place finisher in her previous two starts at Western Fair Raceway, won the featured $1,500 Invitation Pace Saturday.

The six-year-old mare was taken to the front at the start of the mile pace and held the lead to the wire, paced by a length in a driving finish was Karen Sota, with Dusty Chief third.

Dollay Dale B turned the mile in 2:05 3-5, returning $4.90 to win. She is owned by Floyd Belore of Salford, Ont.

Fantasy Thing Is Getting A Bit Thick on Sundays

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) —During 90 consecutive minutes of CBS Sunday night television viewers saw:

A talking horse dig a tunnel so he could be in a parade.

A worried collie who knew a boy was illiterate even though the dog's master didn't.

A shipwrecked Martian who accidentally became a telephone.

Then, after Ed Sullivan's cultural hour we returned to the dream world with a nervous psychiatrist trying to keep a computer in the shape of a beautiful girl away from male online wolves.

Obviously, there must be an audience for nonsense. In previous years it has been kept in line. Now this fantasy thing is getting a bit thick.

None of early evening CBS shows is new. Mr. Ed has been cutting up for several years. Lassie was a movie star 20 years ago. My Favorite Martian is in its second season, and maybe its success spurred producers of the new fantasy shows.

AIMED AT YOUNGSTERS

Early Sunday evening is considered to be a period of hearty "family viewing," which is TV jargon for saying there are lots of children in the audience. All of these programs are aimed at youngsters.

Lassie, after having several TV families, has settled down without any trouble to her new life as a forest ranger's companion and is being heroic once a week as usual.

The sad thing in shows like these is believing in the characters. You have to believe Mr. Ed talks or there is no way to enjoy the jokes. You have to accept as fact that a Martian is a fellow who can read minds and control thoughts or all the humor is lost.

Recommended tonight: Ben Casey, ABC, 10-11—Dane Clark is guest star.

AT THE MOVIES — Martha Hyer starred her part in the role of Gunfighter's Girl, but Virginia Mayo got the part of the lovely dame and she bettered it. Either star in "The Carpetbaggers" will tell you fans who have followed her career — if over 36 inches, brother, Technicolor and Panavision the epic film is playing at Loew's Odeon as the Belle Theatre, with a notable cast of favorites.

Bulletins from Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON
WARBLERS' NESTS

Late spring is naturally the season when we are most delighted to find nests because there is sure to be something of interest. But, don't make them are so cleverly tucked away that they are never found. Even in the city, the dingles are now beginning to show because leaves have fallen and grass has been cut. At last it is possible to find some of the warbler nests for which we looked in vain four or five months ago. Several were built right on the ground.

Every year a Nashville nests near enough for us to see the pair and hear the distinctive, two-part song, but we never see their babies until they are able to fly because their home is built under a cover of bracken. Even the parents barely measure five inches, so the size of the nest may be imagined. Made of rootlets and fibres, it is lined with hair. Now that the bracken has dried up and crumbled the nest can be found if searched for carefully.

HILL-SIDE HOME

An ovenbird's "teacher, teacher, teacher" song tells us that it is May just about where to look for another warbler home, but it takes discovering. The ovenbird chooses a slight depression in the ground on the slope of a tree-covered hill 50 yards or so from the house, forms the nest of grasses, fibres, leaves, weed stems, roots and lines it with hair and fine rootlets. As it is arched over, it is thought to look like a Dutch oven — hence the name. Looking from above, it is quite well hidden, but may be found when clambering up the slope.

Yellowthroats are said to generally build on or on the ground in swamps or along the edges of streams; but ours were in a dry, open, rather rocky bushes that grow beside our fence. Once there were three in a row, overarched, bulky nest of leaves, weed stalks, and grasses is exposed.

The black-and-white warbler does not nest nearby, but in a forest road we do. It is a bulky home is placed at the foot of a tree or stump, sometimes right in the roots of an old, uprooted tree.

The home of our redstart is always hidden in the thick growth of a deciduous tree until autumn. Now it can easily be seen in a cluster of upright branches about 20 feet up in an old Manitoba maple. These nests are always made of dried weed or all sorts of handy material, including bark strips and feathers, and decorated with spider webs and lichens.

FIND ANCIENT BURIAL

Eighth Statutory Holiday Partly Engineered by Younger Liberal MPs

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — What was billed as a great victory for the opposition party in adding an eighth statutory holiday last week to the government's legislative party engineered by younger Liberal MPs, informants say.

The code as introduced in the Commons listed seven holidays — Good Friday, New Year's, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas. An Opposition amendment added Remembrance Day.

As originally presented cabinet, the legislation contained provisions for a $1.25-an-hour minimum wage for those more than 500,000 workers affected by the legislation. plus eight statutory holidays.

Despite a stiff battle in defence of these provisions by Labor Minister MacEachen a majority of the cabinet wanted the eighth holiday dropped and the minimum wage limited to $1.25 an hour in different regions of the country.

At this point, a group of younger Liberal MPs stepped in. They advised Mr. MacEachen to tell his political colleagues they wouldn't support a bill which lacked both the eight statutory days and national $1.25 an-hour minimum.

WOULD COMPROMISE

Mr. MacEachen went to caucus to win his ministerial colleagues. After considerable discussion, the majority went for a compromise.

The government won't put up a fight front on a bill providing $1.25 and seven statutory holidays.

That's the way the legislation came into the Commons where Mr. MacEachen was "required" to support the government's position, if he wasn't to merit public display of cabinet disunity on the issue.

Meanwhile, the Liberal MPs who wanted eight holidays as well as the $1.25 minimum still were dissatisfied. They were aware that Democrat Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre), long an advocate of an eight-holiday provision, probably would make a bid in the Commons to raise the number of statutory holidays.

IN DILEMMA

Privately, and Liberal sources say it is a cause celebrated, government supporters made up their minds to vote against the eighth holiday. But they couldn't easily vote against it in the government and especially against Mr. MacEachen who has strong ties with the younger Liberals.

The upshot was that enough Liberals stayed out of the Commons at the time of the amendment that Mr. Knowles' amendment inserting an eighth statutory holiday passed 114 votes to 44.

The labor code, including the eight holiday, still has one or two hurdles to get over in the Commons before it goes to the Senate. A surprise still could torpedo the eighth holiday.

Valedictory

fag and caring for a family. All of these are equally important.

"We have taken the first steps along the road of our individual careers.

"Young people like ourselves naturally look forward to the future, for in these days to what else may we look forward? It is only too apparent that ours is an age of confusion and perplexity. Ideologies are clashing head-on, moral truths previously held sacred are being scorned and trodden under foot, a future war is threatening.

Toward what end our ever increasing knowledge will lead us, depends upon many factors in political, social, economic and spiritual life. In the long run however, much will depend upon the type of individuals we are.

Above all we must not become contented in our sense of values. Let us reaffirm our faith in God, and strive to live out those things we believe to have a sincere care for all people, to be disciplined in all we do, to see the job that needs to be done, and carry it through, to be constructive in our criticisms of others, and be willing to recognize and correct our faults and most important of all, to strive in our work for sound homes, united communities and a peaceful world.

"A magazine editor once said, "If I were being graduated today I would write in large letters my mind of the false assumption that the world owes me a living." Another editor would I go forth remembering that I owe the world a No.

The supreme contribution that any individual can make is a full level, wholly devoted to God, and giving itself in relationship of love to one's fellowmen.

"If I were being graduated today, I would want to be assured that God has a special job for my life. And I would make every effort to find the job, because I would have found it, I would have discovered that which is God's highest glory, and in so doing would find myself. I feel that this editorial sums up what should be every graduate's hope as we leave here.

"We realize now how fortunate we were in having loving, understanding parents, who gave us their affection and trust, and who spared no effort, faith in us through the long uncertain 'growing up' years. We in return must endeavor in every way to be a credit to our parents.

"In closing, may I add, that the one thought that should be not only in the minds of every graduate here tonight, but of every person is an excerpt from our lovely play of last year:

"Always keep a song in your heart.
To thine own self be true;
And it shall follow as the night the day
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

"As we leave Quinte it is not in sadness, but rather with a feeling of satisfaction; for Quinte represents a milestone along our way through life. Now, this milestone having been passed, we look to the future with one question in mind—what has it in store for us?"

Your Car

Make Sure You Use Right Plugs

By EUGENE B. HELMOE

Even when brand new, sparking clean, precisely gapped, and exactly as specified in your owner's manual, spark plugs can be troublemakers. Their heat range may be very wrong for your driving needs.

Plugs specified by the factory are for average car operations. In the case of nearly 100 percent slow speed or high speed driving, however, they can run too cold or too hot for efficient combustion. Spark plug heat range depends on insulator length. The colder the plug, the shorter the insulator — thus dissipating heat more rapidly.

Compromise or medium heat range plugs can be harmful to the car regularly used for open road driving (which causes them to run hotter than normal) even during its pre-ignition. The same plugs can be too cold for the car which is primarily used at a slow speed, stop-and-go pace. In this case, rapid plug fouling, poor economy and engine performance are the penalties until you change to a hotter plug.

L. N. asks: "Why — as you say — must shock absorbers be checked a few times yearly? The driver who can't tell when his shocks are bad shouldn't have a licence."

Shock failure is usually gradual and even the sharpest driver may be unaware that his need attention, until they're in dangerous condition.

From E. L.: "My service-man just told me that I've been killing gas mileage and ruining my '62 engine by driving with a dirty air cleaner. How much is he exaggerating?"

His logic is right. A clogged air cleaner enriches the fuel mixture too much, penalizing game mileage and making your engine work harder to overcome the flooding tendency. It can also allow abrasive dust and dirt to enter the engine and threaten vital parts with abnormal wear.

R. B. writes: "Our car is a '61 Rambler 6-cyl. sedan. When it pulls away from a stop or picks up speed to pass, there's a noise from the back end. Could this be from the transmission or the rear axle?"

The symptoms point to worn or loose rear axle gears or bearings — or insufficient lubrication.

From T. W.: "For the past several months my car has been steering or leading toward one side. Everything has been checked to correct this — tires, wheel balance, and alignment, brakes, springs, shocks, steering — but it's still the same. Were the wheel bearings skipped over? If worn or loose, they can cause all sorts of steering troubles.

No Sign of Wholesale Purge Seen by World Observers

By GEORGE SYVETSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — Diplomatic observers said today the Kremlin's new leaders appear to have signalled a shake-up of Nikita Khrushchev's Soviet Communist Party apparatus but they saw no signs of a wholesale purge.

These sources forecast a period of relative calm inside the party while the new rulers seek to solve pressing domestic and foreign problems inherited from Khrushchev, ousted as Soviet leader last week.

The Communist Party central committee's journal Partiinaya Zhizn (Party Life) called Friday for a thorough review of party ranks to weed out corrupt and inefficient officials.

"It is indisputable that bad workers would be replaced," it said. "The renewal of cadres is a natural phenomenon."

Khrushchev's successors were not believed to be contemplating any radical tampering with the present composition of the party elite or with the party machinery.

Sources suggested some personnel changes were virtually certain among party hacks kept on through connections with Khrushchev.

Khrushchev men who refuse to bow to the new team's command are also certain to be eased out. But such dissenters are normally few in the party apparatus.

A factor deemed likely to inhibit any mass expulsions or reassignments is the wave of disenchantment that swept Communist parties in the West and Eastern Europe since Khrushchev's fall.

It was believed that the new leadership would attempt to maintain party unity comparatively intact in order to avoid further questions from foreign Communists.

Historically, the purge has been employed to clean out political and ideological aberrations from the Communist Party. Those even suspected of deviationist views were purged by Stalin.

Western specialists have been unable to detect any signs, however, of political or ideological differences within the party that might lead to internal warfare.

3 Former Students Take Part in Opening Ceremonies Of New Marsh Hill School

Saturday was a red letter day for township ratepayers of School Section No. 20 Sidney at Marsh Hill.

It marked the official opening of their new two-roomed public school three miles west of Frankford, and a house coming for three former students who took part in the official opening ceremonies.

Professor Campbell said that the modern new school was a vast change from the little red schoolhouse which he attended.

The old school now standing empty, on the opposite side of the schoolgrounds was built back in 1866.

RECALLED HISTORY

He recalled the history of the old school and said that its opening 98 years ago must have been an important occasion — possibly just as important as was the opening on Saturday.

They were just as proud and the building of the old school involved just as many sacrifices," he said.

But education had changed, just as life had changed.

"I would like to emphasize that while there have been many changes, there are still a few principles which do not change," Prof. Campbell said. "These are community responsibility and giving of good leadership which are just as important today as ever, maybe even more so."

But while the retention of certain principles was important, also important was the ability of people to adjust their attitude and look forward to the future.

BOARD INTRODUCED

G. Edison Sine, secretary treasurer of the school board, acted as master of ceremonies for the afternoon's program, which got underway by the ringing of the school bell, calling the children from the old school.

Mr. Sine introduced school board members, while Mrs. Basil Kuglin, whose grandfather Daniel Vandewater was board member, 96 yr sragoo, when the old school was built, introduced Professor Campbell.

Other speakers included R. A. Dunsmore, public school inspector; Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South; Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West; school architect William Watson and Frank Miron, representing general contractors Miron-Wiggers of Trenton.

School board chairman Charles Mayell welcomed ratepayers and visitors, while board member R. Longhurst expressed appreciation to the speaker.

SCHOOL COST $200

The new one - storey Marsh Hill School replaces the old red brick structure which has been in use since before Federation. The old school cost $200 and was paid for in two years. The new one opened Saturday cost approximately $41,000.

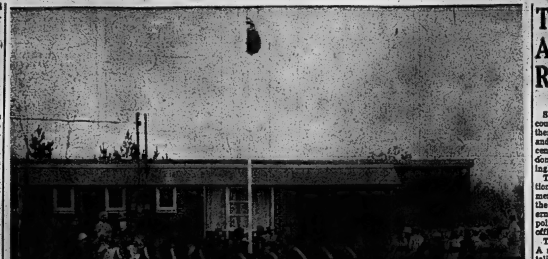
Records of the Marsh Hill school go back to 1850. The first school was constructed of logs on a hill just east of the present building and directly over the present No. 14 highway route. It got its name from its location on a hill overlooking the marshlands surrounding it.

NO FRILLS

There were no fancy desks, and pupils sat on long benches along the sidewalls. A huge box stove capable of taking four foot cordwood sticks stood in the centre of the room. There was no paint or wallpaper and no pictures or other room decorations.

The present old brick schoolthe Methodist Church, which served from 1829 until the new school was an improvement. It had two large windows, six blackboards and a desk stove.

The salary of the teacher, Lucetta Morden, in 1866 was $240.



H. Gilbert Parker (later Sir Gilbert Parker) was the teacher from 1877 to 1880 and notations in a visitors' book attended to the fitness of Mr. Parker to fill the "important and responsible" office of public school teacher."

LIST OF TEACHERS

Some of the early teachers at Marsh Hill School were Patrick Smith, 1850; Miss Lucy Phelps (later Mrs. Daniel Vandervater), 1851; Miss S. Hamilton, 1852; Mr. Blanchard, 1853; Miss Lucetta Morden, 1853-59-70; Miss Taylor, 1871-72; Miss Nancy Morden, 1873-74-75; Tom Holgate, 1876; Jessie Graham, 1877; Gilbert Parker, 1877-80; Fred Parker, 1881-82; F. Ketcheson, 1883; Mr. Callary, 1884; Mr. Ada Harold, 1885-86; L. Burks, 1886; James Frappy, 1887-88; Miss Emma Connor (later Dr. Emma Connor), 1892-96; Miss Lena Sine, 1899-1905 (later Mrs. Howard Dafoe).

School section ratepayers on May 30, 1953, voted 40 to three in favor of erecting a new two-room school and at the same time approved of acquiring say a one-acre additional property. The school site now consists of four acres.

School board members are Charles Mayell, 1962-64; Randall Longhurst, 1963-64; Mrs. Basil (Alison) Kuglin, 1961-64; and Edison Sine, secretary-treasurer, 1951-64.

Terror and Counter Terror Are Regular Features of Raging Vietnamese War

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — Terror and counter - terror, persistent themes of Vietnamese political and military history for many centuries, continue to play a dominant role in the increasingly bloody war raging now.

Terror is used for interrogation, as propaganda, as punishment and as revenge. Neither the Viet Cong nor Saigon government forces have any monopoly on its use, and both sides officially sanction it.

Terror strikes in many forms. A month ago, it came to a battalion of Vietnamese rangers caught in an ambush near the Mekong River delta town of Cau Ke.

A Viet Cong unit concealed in a Buddhist pagoda opened fire on the government unit, killing 10 Rangers, including an American sergeant advising them.

A few days ago the same ranger unit was back for an operation at the same place, spoiling for revenge. This time it took the rangers four hours to creep up on the pagoda from 1,000 yards away. They had landed by helicopter.

NAB SUSPECTS

The pagoda was deserted but three likely looking suspects, all of them Vietnamese of Cambodian extraction, happened to be in the area. The rangers picked them up.

Their arms tied behind their backs, the three men were given the "water treatment." A cloth is placed over the face of the prisoner and water is poured over the cloth, tending to suffocate the man. Just before he loses consciousness, he is normally released. This is repeated until he talks.

As an innovation on this operation, one of the prisoners was lowered head first into a waterpot with his hands bound. He did not quite drown.

In the mouth of one of the prisoners, rangers found a little bag containing several human teeth carved with buddhist symbols. Under questioning, the man said the teeth had belonged to his grandmother, and were supposed to protect him from death

Another prisoner was rounded up.

VILLAGERS WATCH

Eight old villagers sitting on a log watched quietly while the four young men were tortured. Later, the prisoners were taken to the operation command post by helicopter for further questioning. They were lucky. Chances of surviving field interrogation are often extremely poor. Death can come for prisoners under the tracks of armored vehicles, by decapitation or by bleeding to death after both hands have been chopped off, or by a bullet through the head.

It is all part of the war in South Viet Nam.

Two of those injured were admitted to hospital. Jean-Paul Jeanveaux, 45, suffered two fractured vertebrae and Harold Jones suffered rib fractures. Both are from Ottawa.

CN Delays 'Run Through' Program

Govt. To Set Up Formal Inquiry Into Issue

Running Trades Protest Work Rules

By The Canadian Press

Canadian National Railways passenger service was returning to normal today as CNR workers in Ontario and Western Canada went back to work after a weekend of protest against new work rules.

The railway delayed its "run-through" program at Nakina, Ontario, and Walkerville, Alta. Monday after the federal government agreed to set up a formal inquiry into the matter.

Firemen, locomotive engineers and brakemen stayed off their jobs and reported in sick or unfit for duty to protest the railways' plan to do away with the divisional points, where train crews were changed at about midway in runs of about 150 miles. Other employees joined the protest and about 1,600 men were reported to have been off work.

Workers in three Ontario and five western centres decided to report to work on the recommendation of Douglas Fisher, New Democratic member of Parliament for Port Arthur. Mr. Fisher, who had been acting as go-between, advised them that the federal government had guaranteed there would be no repercussions or reprisals because of the protest action.

RECEIVED WARNINGS

Many employees said they had received warning that they would be fired for refusing to return to work.

A CNR spokesman in Winnipeg said today that "to all intents and purposes transcontinental passenger service will be back to normal today."

The Panorama, which was cancelled Monday because of the protest, will operate both eastbound and westbound, he said. Passenger train service between Toronto and Western Canada had been reduced to one train a day from three. Freight services had also been delayed and supervisory personnel brought in to help operate the trains.

The run-through program will be put off up to three months while an "independent and impartial" commissioner investigates. Prime Minister

Will Close Out Prison At Montreal

By RASSELL PEDEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Within two years, the site of what now is Canada's largest maximum-security penitentiary will hold only administration buildings and a training college for prison guards, Guy Favreau announced Monday night.

The justice minister made the statement at a press conference after a three-hour tour of the institution.

"It is quite clear that St. Vincent de Paul must be demolished and disappear as quickly as possible as a maximum-security institution," he said.

Prisoners would be transferred to a medium - security prison at Cowansville, Que., due for completion next September, and a maximum - security institution to be built in Ste. Anne des Plaines, Que., by December of 1966.

Mr. Favreau said: "That will be the end of St. Vincent de Paul as a maximum - security detention institute. That will be the end of there, what I would call detestable, conditions.

TO PUSH PLANS

"We will do all possible to push the construction program and try to complete Ste. Anne des Plaines before the deadline if possible."

The justice minister also said he will ask the government to establish a parliamentary committee to "study prisons as detention units and the conditions that prevail in them."

"If such a committee is established it would have all means of information and research at its disposal."

With Mr. Favreau on the tour were Jean-Paul Deschatelets, federal works minister Allen MacLeod, commissioner of penitentiaries, and about 50 reporters.

The group toured prison work-

Asks Public Health Nurses Help In Detection of Childbeating

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Dr. Matthew Dymond urged public health nurses Monday to help in detecting cases of childbeatings.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Public Health Association nurses, who are in close contact with their communities, and in the best position to uncover instances of children being beaten by adults —and there were too many such cases.

"While this is not directly your responsibility, I think you might well be the first people to detect the possibility and move to prevent such actions," he said.

Dr. Dymond said Ontario was proud of its public health service, although infant mortality remained a serious problem. He said there had been little reduction during the last 20 years in the four major causes of infant deaths — prematurity, accidents, RH - negative blood incompatibility and injury at birth.

At another meeting, Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, warned the medical profession to clean its own house before some non medical group steps in.

He told the Ontario Hospital Association meeting at the same time as the health association, that "if we do not police ourselves more stringently than in the past, some other body will step in and take over."

Acid Epithets Hurled

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Walie waiting tensely for the flag committee's report, MPs on both sides of the Commons spent most of Monday hurling acid epithets at the CBC.

The publicly - owned broadcasting system, getting $88,000,000 from the federal treasury this year, touched off one of its worst parliamentary "pan" reviews with a Sunday interview with George Lincoln Rockwell, self - admitted American Nazi and racist.

"I can see no reason . . . why Nazism should be glorified in this way," complained Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

He and Social Credit and Creditiste spokesmen again demanded a parliamentary inquiry where MPs could grill CBC officials.

State Secretary Lamontagne again refused flatly, saying this might "completely paralyse the corporation in its work."

As the question period and the evening debate were on, the blasts broadened and covered a wide array of CBC policies.

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to frequent charges that Communists have infiltrated the CBC French network and asked for an investigation.

ACCUSATIONS VARY

Other speakers accused the CBC of being irresponsible, immoral, contemptuous of religion and Parliament, unfair to

British Foreign Minister Talks With Johnson Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson confers today with Foreign minister of Britain's new Labor government to lay a basis for future U.S.-British co-operation despite some policy differences over Red China and the handling of nuclear weapons within NATO.

Foreign Minister Patrick Gordon Walker was scheduled to meet with Johnson following a morning session with State Secretary Dean Rusk and other U.S. state department officials.

The British official, who arrived here Sunday, was scheduled to wind up his Washington visit with a mid-afternoon press conference.

He was expected at that time to outline the Labor government's view some detail on outstanding world issues, including its assessment of the government shakeup in Russia and the significance of the Chinese Communist explosion of a nuclear test bomb earlier this month.

Gordon Walker is reported to have told Rusk in the course of meetings in the state department Monday that Britain believes Peking's entry to the nuclear weapons field makes admission of Red China to the United Nations more necessary than it was before. Britain has long recognized the Chinese

Case of the Controversial Magistrate Yet Unsolved

GANANOQUE, Ont. (CP) — The case of the controversial magistrate remained unsolved today.

The magistrate says he has been asked for his resignation but hasn't decided whether to give it. The attorney - general says he's received the resignation but hasn't decided whether to accept it.

The principals in the case are Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, now on a tour of northwestern Ontario with the provincial cabinet, and 56-year-old Magistrate Gordon Jermyn of Gananoque.

Magistrate Jermyn, whose conduct in courts in Prescott, Gananoque and Brockville has been publicly criticized, said in an interview at his home Monday that Allan A. Russell, the province's inspector of legal offices, told him he would not be permitted to preside in court after Oct. 30.

"I have left it up to the Leeds County Bar Association," he said. "They are going to do something. I don't know what it is."

He said he believes he will be compelled to give up his duties regardless of what action the bar association may take.

Mr. Wishart announced earlier Monday in Port Arthur that his department has received the magistrate's resignation. But he thought Mr. Jermyn might be

Southern Rhodesian Problem

Britain Warns White Rulers of Treason

LONDON (AP) — Britain today warned Southern Rhodesia's white rulers they would be guilty of treason and rebellion if they unilaterally declared their country's independence.

Economic disaster and isolation from almost the entire world would follow if the country were to break with Britain, a government statement declared.

The statement came from 10 Downing Street, official residence of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, just a few hours after African chiefs meeting outside Salisbury gave unanimous approval to Premier Ian Smith's "independence now" plan.

"A declaration of independence," the British statement said, "would be an open act of rebellion and it would be treasonable to take steps to give effect to it."

It was the toughest language yet used in the flaming dispute between Britain and the leaders of the colony demanding independence under white rule.

Britain insists that independence must come constitutionally and be acceptable to the mass of Rhodesia's African majority population.

The statement — issued this morning — came just a few hours after Southern Rhodesian chiefs at a special gathering announced they were in favor of independence of their country under white rule.

"The British government cannot believe that once the consequences of the step are made clear the government and people of Southern Rhodesia will take the irrevocable step of this kind," the statement said.

"The decision to grant independence rests entirely with the British government and Parliament and they have a solemn duty to be satisfied that before granting independence it would be acceptable to the people of the country as a whole," the statement added.

It declared that the mere declaration of independence by the Southern Rhodesian government would have no constitutional effect.

"The only way Southern Rhodesia can become a sovereign, independent state is by an act of the British Parliament."

The statement recalled the finding of commissioner Lord Monckton, chairman of the sub - committee to investigate Rhodesian constitutional matters, that the findings are significant because "each day more than 22,000,000 citizens 12 and under look at television," spending "on the average, more time watching television than they do in either school or church."

The report noted that child psychiatrists and researchers had long recognized the connection between television violence and youth crime.

At the subcommittee's most recent hearings, the report added, network representatives "were now prepared to admit, in very general terms, that there was some kind of relationship between televised violence and the molding of children's attitudes and behavior."

The subcommittee said the networks have shown their concern with "healthy programming" by "the adoption and updating of their television code of good practice which is administered by the National Association of Broadcasters."

But it noted that association with the code is only voluntary and that the seal of good practice that never been withdrawn because of an infringement of the code with regard to program content."

The subcommittee noted that although it expects the industry to police itself, "the patience of Congress, though considerable, is not endless" and the "public's demand for concrete results grows more intense and indeed it should."

Britons Shoulder Burden

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Heavily taxed and yearning for life's luxuries, the British consumer today shouldered the burden of higher import duties with barely a whimper.

While the government was under pressure from several quarters to reduce or eliminate the extra 15-per-cent import duty on specific products, Britain generally seemed to accept the fact that curbs had to be imposed at least temporarily to reduce a widening trade gap and preserve the pound against foreign attack.

The extra duty, imposed Monday on all manufactured products, was estimated to reduce Britain's expanding imports by some $800,000,000 in 1965 and at the same time yield the government another $500,000,000 or so in extra revenue.

British manufacturers generally warmed to the idea that for an indefinite period they will have less foreign competition in the British market. But Prime Minister Harold Wilson, in a national broadcast Sunday night, warned them against cosy complacency.

RATES TEMPORARY

The higher rates are only temporary and not meant to provide a protective shelter. Britain had sacrificed much in two world wars but the world did not owe it a living, he said. British exporters had to fight

No Regionalism In Ont. Govt. Says Robarts

Students Dog Members Of Tour Most of Day

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Premier Robarts led his cabinet into Northern Ontario Monday to be greeted by 40 picketing students and at least 18 briefs, most of them dealing with northland economic problems.

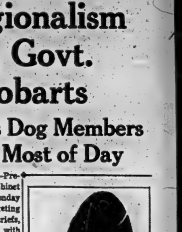
It was a busy start for the cabinet's three-day tour that will take it to Sault Ste. Marie today and on to Sudbury Wednesday for a first-hand glance at the northern regions.

In the course of a day that saw the premier and 16 of his 18 ministers holding cabinet meetings here and in Fort William and attending official dinners, Mr. Robarts received a gentle reminder that some northerners would gladly form a separate province.

The premier alluded to the remark in an address to municipal officials at night, speaking of "one government for all the people" and emphasizing there was no regionalism in his administration.

Travelling in a chartered bus, forestry students from Lakehead College dogged the cabinet most of the day, carrying signs reading "keep our brains in Ontario" and "don't send our foresters away."

WANT DEGREE COURSE



The students want a degree course in forestry at the Port Arthur college. The present two-year course awards a degree not sufficient to gain entry to the University of Toronto, and students have to go to the University of New Brunswick. Mr. Robarts told them it was not a matter for his government, but for the college's board of governors.

The reminder that some northerners favor a separate province from Ontario came in a brief from the Northwestern Ontario Development Commission which said that some people believe the problems of the north "are never to be recognized by Queen's Park.

"It has been said that the northwest is a province within a province," said association general manager Lloyd Phillips. "Certainly its physical characteristics, its problems, potentials and prospects differ greatly from those of the south and east."

The brief referred to the region as one of slow growth and semi-isolation, but said it possesses the seeds of a strong industrial development — raw

Says Television Crime, Violence One Cause Juvenile Delinquency

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Senate subcommittee contended today that televised crime and violence is a direct cause—though not the only one—of juvenile delinquency.

In an interim report, the subcommittee said:

"On the basis of expert testimony and impressive research evidence, a relationship has been conclusively established between televised crime and violence and antisocial attitudes and behavior among juvenile viewers."

But it tempered its comments by stating that it did "not believe that television is either the sole or most significant cause of juvenile delinquency."

Senator Thomas J. Dodd (Dem.-Conn.), chairman of the sub - committee to investigate juvenile delinquency, said that the findings are significant because "each day more than 22,000,000 children 12 and under look at television," spending "on the average, more time watching television than they do in either school or church."

The report noted that child psychiatrists and researchers

Thompson Family to Get $29,000 From City Council For Pinnacle St. Property

City council yesterday voted to pay the Thompson family $29,000 for its property on Pinnacle street to be used for additional off-street municipal parking.

The $29,000 figure was the amount for which the family offered to settle after plans for expropriation of the property had been voted by council. An amount of $34,000 had been asked originally.

Council was advised yesterday that two appraisals of the property had been secured, one for $27,700 by Mr. Ross McMahon of Kingston and the other for $27,500 by McCormick Realty of Belleville.

However, the city solicitor advised the finance committee that Mr. McMahon was seriously ill and would be unable to appear in court. Another appraisal of the property was impossible as the residence was already torn down.

Alderman Douglas Boyle questioned the city paying $1,500 more than the highest appraisal and suggested that someone else in Mr. McMahon's firm might be able to substantiate his (Mr. McMahon's) appraisal.

And Alderman Joss said he could see no reason at all why the city should pay $29,000.

"It sounds like blackmail to me," he said.

But Alderman Jarvis said the finance committee in recommending acceptance of the $29,000 had acted on the city solicitor's advice that there was no chance of Mr. McMahon's appraisal being used in court.

Alderman Ben Corke, finance committee chairman said costs would be over $3,000 if the city decided to go to court for expropriation.

Chief Opposes Four-Way Stop At Intersection

City council is working toward the installation of traffic lights at the corner of Coleman and West Moira Streets.

At least council was told yesterday by the Public Works and Traffic committee was acting to do something to reduce the traffic hazard at the corner.

The works committee brought in a recommendation for the Coleman and Moira street intersection to be changed into a four-way stop, but Ald. Frank Murray said the city police chief was opposed to this measure and Ald. J. Deacon said there was a feeling that this was not the answer.

The motion for the four-way stop was tabled.

Council approved of a city of Kitchener resolution asking that the provincial government instruct the Ontario Department of Transport and the Ontario Department of Education to formulate a single, unified policy on the establishment of school safety patrols.

The resolution noted that municipal police and the Ontario Department of Transport supported the idea of safety patrols but that they were sanctioned by the Department of Education because the provinces had no enabling legislation.

Kiwanians, Firemen All Set To Open Toy Repair Project

It's Christmas Toy time again and the Belleville Kiwanis Club and members of the Belleville Fire Department are all set to get their 12th annual toy repair project underway.

Since the project was started more than a decade ago, it has become bigger every year. Last year 1,500 toys were "fixed, repaired, and augmented by new toys, were distributed to needy hearts of underprivileged children.

The toy repair project is carried on in the basement at the Kiwanis Centre and each evening from now until December 15th, will find club members and other volunteers hard at work.

Shortly before Christmas the repaired toys are turned over to Belleville Fire Department members who double for Santa Claus in the distribution chore. The fire ladies see to it that no deserving child is without toys on Christmas morning.

Toys to be repaired may be left at the Kiwanis Centre, at either fire hall, or any B.P.S. Service Station. And anyone handy as a repairman will be welcomed at the Kiwanis Centre.

City to Have New Garbage Collector

The city of Belleville will have a new garbage collector next year.

Yesterday city council voted to award the garbage collection contract in C. Moore of Belleville who submitted the lowest of four tenders for the job.

Mr. Moore's tender for 17.6 cents per capita per month which with Belleville's population of approximately 21,000 will amount to about $65,472 per year.

The other three bids were for 23 cents per capita per month by Harold C. Brennan of Ottawa, 28 cents by the present garbage collector Morley Smith of Belleville and 28 cents by Miller Paving Ltd. of Toronto.

Mr. Moore as the successful bidder will be asked to provide proof of his ability to provide the necessary performance bond by November 9th of this year.

Sidney Street May Be Opened Through Fairground Property

The Belleville Board of Parks Management and Fair Board have no objection to Sidney Street being opened through the fairground property as was recommended in a traffic survey report received some years ago.

Opening of Sidney Street through the fairgrounds was the first proposed about ten years ago but city council at the time decided against it.

Since then the traffic survey report recommended the move to provide a through north-south traffic artery along Sidney Street, but the Parks Board up until now had not given its stamp of approval.

The parks management and the Fair Board asks, however, that the city assume all cost of lighting the street and also assume the cost of moving any buildings if this is found necessary.

Also asked is that Sidney Street through the fairgrounds be cleided during fair week and that council work with the Fair Board in defining the actual route and method of laying out the street allowance.

There is no provision in this year's budget for opening of the roadway through the fairgrounds but it is expected the anticipated cost might be included in the 1965 city budget.

Rosicrucians Honor Members From Toronto

The Quinte Chapter of the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, was honored last Saturday with the presence of many members and dignitaries from Toronto Lodge. Garfield Ohiman, president of the Toronto Parliamentarians' Association, brought greetings to the special convocation held in the Masonic Temple.

The officers of Quinte Chapter conducted a simple but impressive ritual. The guest speaker, Past Master Edythe Dakin, was introduced by Joe Dunnage, Master of Quinte Chapter.

In her stimulating discourse, Past Master Dakin reminded the members of some thoughts concerning reflection which were held by the older Rosicrucian Masters, Plato, Jacob Boehme, and Louis Claude de Saint-Martin.

Following the convocation lunch was served and a pleasant social hour with guests. There were members present from Kingston, Picton, Trenton and Deseronto.

Mayor Only Member to Favor Motion

A motion from the finance and executive committees to have all correspondence requiring a decision by council to first be referred to the appropriate committee, was defeated in council yesterday.

The recommendation also asked that unless the matter is considered to be of extreme urgency, any matters from committees or city manager which are printed on the agenda and mailed to council members shall be considered at the regular council meeting.

The intention of the resolution was to weed out communications, to speed up council and to prevent snap decisions being made on matters introduced at the last minute.

STRONG OPPOSITION

But the vast majority of councillors strongly objected to the move with Alderman Jack Allis declaring that all letters addressed to the mayor and council should be known to council.

Anything else would not be democratic and would be a form of dictatorship, he said.

Alderman Joss said it was absolutely ridiculous. "Who would determine what is urgent?" he asked.

Aldermen Ben Corke and Frank Murray also were opposed, the latter claiming that taxpayers expected letters to be read in council.

The motion was defeated 14-1 with only Mayor Ellis voting in favor.

IN MEMORIAM

BOWERS — In loving memory of a dear wife, Edna Julia Bowers who departed one year ago, October 27, 1963.

A dear one I loved a special day, dear,
To bring you to my mind;
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
You left a heart that's breaking,
And many tears have flown;
No thoughts are always wandering,
To the spot where you are laid.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by your husband Everett.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Georgina Johnston, who passed away October 27th, 1963.

Dear hearts you've left behind us,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
Memory is but a dear comforter,
That we do not think of you.
—Emma, Chris and Georgina.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of our wife, Mrs. Georgina Johnston, who passed away October 27th, 1963.

There's a beautiful home in heaven,
And how sweet it must be;
Still I have so many memories,
Of the one I loved so much.
Her memory is my keepsake,
With which I'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
I have her in my heart.
—Your loving husband George

PEOPLES, Stella May — God gave us a wonderful mother. Her memory will never grow old. Her fashioned smile out of sorrow. He moulded her heart of pure gold.

So out of this cold world of sorrow,
He chose that dear mother of mine.

"Y" Basketball

The "Y" Men's basketball league held "organization night" last evening to arrange teams and make plans for once-a-week play at Moira Secondary School.

Enough players for only three teams turned out but the loop hopes to secure enough players for a fourth club.

Practices and games will be held every Monday night, from 7.00 to 10.00 o'clock, Jean now until December 16, with exception of November 16.

The league is open to all young men in the Belleville area, except high school students. Students will not be permitted to play in this loop but may play in the "Y" House League, which practices at 2.00 at Moira S.S. on Saturday afternoons.

A spokesman for the men's league said that a number of last year's players did not show up last night but are expected to make an appearance within the next couple of weeks.

He 'Cussed' Himself Into 14 Days Jail

Language so colorful it had to be written out as testimony, today brought 20-year-old Leslie Marshall 14 days in jail.

It all started, Magistrate T. Y. Wills was told, when the employer of Marshall's mother, Herbert Watson, stopped off to deliver her pay cheque at their Station Street home. Marshall came out to the car and for no reason showered abuse on the astounded Mr. Watson.

Next in line for abuse was constable Sam Morgan who happened to be driving by and heard the swearing. He cautioned Marshall — then drove off.

About a block away he heard the fracas renewed and turned back. This time the accused was engaging his brother. The officer renewed his warnings to Marshall who in turn renewed his abuse of the constable. Finally, his patience exhausted, constable Morgan, clapped Marshall in the cruiser.

Magistrate Wills remanded the accused the public had the right to walk the streets without being subjected to "filthy" language.

Three Questions Will Be Up for Decision of Voters At Next Municipal Election

Belleville voters will be asked to decide three different questions when they go to the polls on December 7th.

They will be asked to say yes or no to whether they want city council reduced to ten aldermen and a mayor; whether or not they want dissolution of the city water supply, and whether they are in favor of repealing the present by-law authorizing a separate parks board and instead have administration of parks under city council.

City ratepayers have voted on the first two questions in recent years.

Less than ten years ago they voted strongly in favor of a ten man council, then with annexation coming up, reversed their vote the following year. Two years ago city residents turned down fluoridation of the city water supply.

GIVEN THREE READINGS

By - laws to provide for all three plebiscites were given the necessary three readings at yesterday's meeting of city council.

In addition to the three separate questions voters at the municipal elections this year will elect seven aldermen, a school trustees and public utilities commissioner.

But if the question of reducing council to ten members is carried, Belleville in the future may have elections only every two years instead of the annual elections as at present.

The question yesterday provoked considerable discussion with most members agreeing that a smaller council would result in great council efficiency.

But Mayor Jack Ellis said his reason for introducing the by-law was not merely to reduce council debate but rather to provide longer period for conducting city business without the interruptions of annual elections.

PRESENT SYSTEM OUTLINED

He said that under the present system there was little real city business accomplished between the time of nominations a an early January when the new council took office.

Between nominations and election day, members up for re-election were busy electioneering, while between election day and the New Year little city business involving monetary expenditures could be done.

The mayor's suggestion was that council be reduced to ten members, who would be elected for a two-year term. This, he said, would allow more time during the 24 month period for carrying out the city's business. (The mayor is already elected for a two-year term).

Mayor Ellis said both the city school boards and public utilities commission would be willing to go along with the idea of an election every other year.

He promised that if the vote was for a reduced council he would see to it that application was made for the necessary private bill to bring the smaller council into effect.

MOTION RULED OUT

Alderman Jack Aillin wanted the question of council members being elected by the ward system included in the by-law but his motion was ruled out of order.

Several councillors, including Aldermen Enos David, William Tarvah, and Douglas Boyle, expressed themselves as being in favor of the reduced council, the last named councillor saying that he had seen much delay and procrastination in council deliberations.

"In my opinion 10 councillors and a mayor would increase the efficiency of council. We would get more done with less numbers," he said.

Aldermen Ben Corke and Frank Murray said, however, that if there was to be a plebiscite on the question voters should receive some intelligent opinion from council on what should be done.

When the chips were down, Mayor Ellis and Aldermen Aldin, Boyle, Corke, David, Harrison, Jarvah, Joss, Murray Raycroft and Williams favored the question going to the ratepayers. Opposed were Aldermen Deacon, Whalen and Wishart.

MOTION DISCUSSED

The matter of whether the voters should be asked to decide whether administration of city parks should be returned to city hall, was also discussed with Alderman Murray stating he hoped council realized what it was doing.

He pointed out that under the present system of a separate parks body, the parks board was guaranteed revenue or mill annually as provided for in provincial statutes.

On the other hand, if administration of parks was returned to city hall, all parks board members could do would be to "talk."

"I hope future city councils would not see the parks as a place where they can strike budget," he said.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said, however, that a survey had shown that in many municipalities parks are being operated under council administrations, and he felt the same should apply in Belleville. If so, he expected present parks budgets would continue.

COUNCIL TAKES BLAME

Alderman Enos David said that under the present system of separate parks administration city council very often took the blame for poor park conditions when actually they had nothing to do with them.

"If council is to take the blame for poor parks it should have control as well," he said.

Alderman Don Joss, chairman of the present parks board, said the resolution was "long overdue and would lead to better parks."

He felt there was little danger of the parks board budget being reduced by council. "If council approves of parks, it will approve of the necessary parks budget," he said.

He suggested, however, that if the return of parks to administration by city hall was approved, that private citizens should be named to the parks board as well as council members.

Mayor Ellis said the request for the vote on fluoridation of the city water supply had come from the local dental association.

Tatham Company Awarded Contract for City Barn

City council yesterday voted to award Tatham Construction Company the contract for the construction of the new city barn on Coleman Flats.

The amount of the negotiated contract is $167,200, to which will be added engineering fees of $9,500 and ancillary items amounting to $3,210, for a total of $200,000.

This amount will be reduced by winter works subsidy estimated at $29,000, bringing the net estimated cost of the project to $171,000, which is within the amount authorized by the Ontario Municipal Board.

When original bids for the project were received it was found that the lowest tender was approximately $80,000 higher than had been estimated. Council directed that new tenders be called, then rescinded its motion and decided instead to "negotiate" with the lowest bidder after deleting certain items from the specifications to bring the cost within the amount authorized by the Municipal Board.

GARAGE DELETED

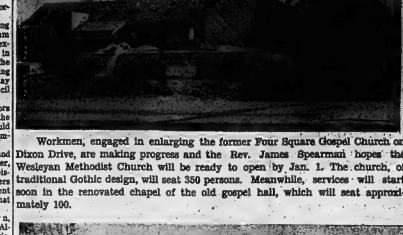
One of the main items deleted from the project was a proposed open garage for equipment storage.

In discussion of the proposed contract award Alderman Wm. Jarvah asked why engineering fees at $9,500 should be $1,000 higher than under the original specifications.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said he could not answer the question.

Mayor Ellis said engineering fees were to be four per cent of the cost, and suggested that authorization could be given to proceed.

Council voted to accept the city manager's report on the works barn contract negotiations and that the contract with Tatham be signed.



Voting for the contract to be signed were Mayor Ellis and Aldermen Boyle, Corke, Deacon, Harrison, Jarvah, Joss, Murray, Whalen, Williams and Wishart. Opposed were Aldermen Aldin, David and Raycroft.

DOCTORS EARN MORE

VICTORIA (CP) — Saskatchewan doctors are earning more money through medical care than they did under private health schemes, a former Saskatchewan welfare minister said Monday. A. M. Nicholson, CCF member of the legislature for Saskatoon, said Saskatchewan doctors now earn more than the national average of $17,000 a year. Mr. Nicholson is on a cross-Canada tour for the New Democratic Party.

Workmen, engaged in enlarging the former Four Square Gospel Church on Dixon Drive, are making progress and the Rev. James Spearman hopes the Wesleyan Methodist Church will be ready to open by Jan. 1. The church, of traditional Gothic design, will seat 350 persons. Meanwhile, services will start soon in the renovated chapel of the old gospel hall, which will seat approximately 100.

When the Trenton Parks Board was asked by town council to restore the Gilmour Hill Park, after extensive road re-construction had been carried out in the area, the board members adopted a modified version of an idea of parks' gardener, Bart Boers. Instead of the traditional cement retaining wall, a wall of cedar logs has been made at the rear of the park. The park, when completed, will be one of the prettiest parks in Trenton . . . and as visitors from the east get their first real view of the town here, the board members feel the money and effort spent on making it so are well spent.

Town workmen started at 1 p.m. yesterday to prepare for the building of a cement retaining wall along the riverbank, back of the stores on Front Street. This is Step One in an ambitious program to improve the area. Store owners will be asked to co-operate with the town and clean up the backs of their premises, where indicated, and, in the future, a shopping mall may be built along the riverbank.

Trenton Sports

TRENTON — Although the weather this week is hardly conducive to thoughts of winter sports, the news from the Trenton Curling Club is that the ice is in, and forming, and curling should start by this Saturday.

Yesterday workmen painted the ice surface, and with a bit of luck, curling should be ready for its official opening of the season, by the first of next week. Mayor James MacDonald will throw out the first stone and will repeat the performance on Nov. 6, when the Trenton Industrial Curling League swings into action.

Meanwhile, the ladies' division at the club will hold its annual meeting on Thursday, in the upstairs auditorium of the country club. Following the meeting, the teams will be drawn for the first series and if the appointed skip of the rink cannot be present, the executive has asked that a delegate be substituted. A special invitation to attend the meeting has been issued to potential new members.

Mrs. Betty Telfer, vice-president, and Mrs. Thelma Gerdingert, co-convener of entertainment, have both resigned, and the executive has appointed Mrs. Dorothy Bearne vice-president, and Mrs. Margaret Mason co-convener for entertainment. Mrs. Mary Ketcheson has also resigned as publicity chairman and this position will be filled at a later date.

The first event of the season in the ladies' division will be a "get acquainted" Jitney on Monday evening, Nov. 9, starting at 7 p.m. Mrs. Elizabeth Asis and Mrs. Madalyn Packer are co-conveners.

Suggestions For Keeping Staff Happy

TORONTO (CP) — Placing staff pictures on the bulletin board and singing a happy two methods suggested to the birthday to the janitor were typical of the suggestion Monday for keeping the hospital housekeeping staff content despite long hours and low pay.

Emily C. Deming, resident director of the Ontario Home for the Blind in Grand Rapids, Mich., told the housekeeper's section of the association's annual meeting here the staff's need to save face is much greater than that of the administration.

Miss Deming suggested that unskilled workers be greeted by name and given pamphlets about the hospital to show their friends. She also advocated teaching them big words to add to their prestige.

"If we want to keep our sanitation status," she said, "it behooves us to hear the employee so often that he doesn't feel the need of another outlet for his grievances."

She also suggested providing services for the employee so he would not be tempted to seek another job.

"We should try to see that bill collectors and credit people are told the employees' days off so they will not be embarrassed on duty," she said.

The trial was to open today under Mr. Justice D. J. F. Kelly of Ontario Supreme Court in this town, 25 miles west of Kingston.

Deadly Nest Eggs

The nuclear threat to world survival is of such awesome proportions as to beggar easy appraisal of its consequences. Somewhere in the arsenals of the major world powers, we know, lies a destructive power, the capacity of which is beyond human ken.

Professor Linus Pauling of the California Institute of Technology now has reduced it to simple terms. He links pure statistics to the memory of what happened the last time hostile nations unleashed man's capacity for self-destruction on a world scale.

Professor Pauling, speaking to the Australian Congress for International Co-operation, estimated that the world's total nuclear stockpile is the equivalent of 320 billion tons of TNT. Give or take a billion, this is the deadliest box score yet published in an age avid for statistics.

The present nuclear capability, says Professor Pauling, is sufficient to provide 12 one-ton blockbuster bombs for every acre of the earth's surface. (Blockbusters were the huge conventional bombs developed by the British in the Second World War, capable of reducing an entire city block to rubble.)

The stockpile continues to grow, the ultimate monument to human folly.

Worse, the success of the recent Chinese experiment demonstrates that use of nuclear force no longer is the prerogative of two international power blocs. Control by mutual consent has been an uneasy, but hitherto, workable guarantee of world safety.

But challenge already is on the horizon. True, the threatening cloud may be no larger than the proverbial man's hand, but it carries a warning of the dreaded mushroom clouds from which it was released.

By its very simplicity Professor Pauling's equation underscores the horror of a world in nuclear arms—a clutch of nations nervously brooding in a nest harboring the deadliest eggs.

And those who guard the eggs may not always be birds of a feather.

Dangerous Intersection

In recent months, Belleville's traffic authorities have been moving to streamline control of the city's traffic, both vehicular and pedestrian.

The object has been two-fold—to increase safety, both to driver and pedestrian, and speed the flow of motor vehicles.

The latest, and most significant, changes have been at the three main downtown junctions of Bridge Street, which carry the burden of traffic off Highway 2 and which is the major rush-hour route.

Yet, there is one more intersection to which attention should be given, and that as soon as possible. This is the intersection of West Moira and Coleman Streets.

There is no need to outline here its obvious, and dangerous, defects, the fact that due to the peculiarity of construction in the area, east-bound traffic on Moira is almost obscured until it arrives at the intersection. All city drivers are acquainted with the defect, some of them to their cost.

While it may not be a main route, it is heavily travelled by both commercial and private traffic. Too, one of the city's fire halls is situated on West Moira just a block away from the intersection.

It has been the scene of numerous accidents. Fortunately, none of them have been fatal yet.

However, its accident-rating is sufficient as to call for attention by traffic authorities. To date, such action has been slow—perhaps too slow as events could prove.

I sometimes feel that having a baby these days is like studying for a degree; ante-natal lectures, relaxation classes and expressions like "upper thoracic breathing", "dilation of the cervix." Still, the nice thing about childbirth is that practically everyone comes out with First Class Honors in the end. They have their baby whether they study for it or not. — Joan Bakewell.

We certainly may share some economic problems (with Asian and African countries) as producers of raw materials who want to project themselves into an industrial age. But Chile belongs to the Americas, where our ideas have been nourished by the Judeo-Christian ethics of the Western world. It is within this sphere that we must try to resolve our problems. — Eduardo Frei Montalva, President of Chile.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 27th, 1944

Diligent fingers of willing workers of the Belleville Women's Institute and Red Cross branch have marked another fine record in their book of achievements.

Today, 1,000 pounds of tasty peach jam, plum jam, and raspberry jam were delivered to the Red Cross branch here as a gift from the Hendersville ladies.

For the past four years, these ladies have annually made their "jam" contribution to the Red Cross for shipment overseas. They supply their own sugar, and fruit, as a contribution of themselves and neighbors.

Through their efforts tons of jam have found their way to the armed services overseas.

Press Gallery Of Legislature Asks Inquiry

QUEBEC (CP)—Members of the Press Gallery at the Quebec legislature Monday called for "a complete, impartial and public" inquiry into the events surrounding the Queen's visit to Quebec City.

They also described the report made on the incident by Solicitor - General Claude Wagner as "incomplete and tendentious."

The gallery made the statements in a resolution passed unanimously at a special meeting.

The resolution said Mr. Wagner's report contained "inaccuracies and things that could tarnish the reputation of the press in the province."

Members of Le Syndicat des Journalistes de Quebec, a union of Quebec City reporters, also urged a public inquiry in a resolution passed Sunday.

Dr. P. Jewett Stresses Need For Variety in Universities At Queen's Alumni Dinner

Yellow and red chrysanthemums made the spacious dining hall of Eastminster United Church look appropriate for autumn when Belleville and district Queen's Alumni were welcomed by their president, Mr. J. Demeza to their semi-annual dinner on Saturday evening.

Over 80 Queen's graduates and their guests were present, and at the conclusion of dinner old college songs were sung. Mr. Stu Robb, a former president, brought greetings from the Montreal branch of the Alumni. Miss Wyn Hay thanked the ladies of Eastminster Church for the delicious meal.

Miss Betty Smith of Bright, on introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Paulina Jewett, Liberal M.P. for Northumberland county, whose subject was "The University of the Future."

In her opening remarks Dr. Jewett mentioned that universities and post secondary schools must educate 60 per cent of high school graduates as they do in California, whereas in Europe only between eight and nine per cent are so absorbed. She stated that Montreal has a large variety of training schools, colleges and universities and regretted that Ontario tended to a single type of university with faculties of law educating, medicine, science and general arts.

She also regretted that the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph was changing to a general type university after being unique as an agricultural and veterinarian school. She quoted an example of specialization in Loughborough College which is outstanding school for physical education in England. A liberal arts university should be primarily an institution for the development of ideas, theoretical, not applied.

PROVINCIAL GRANTS

She went on to say that as provincial governments give large grants to universities, there is a tendency for them to get their fingers into the control of these. In England the university grants committee is not politically answerable. Universities should be fear a tight control of universities by politicians," she said. The Federal government had shown a higher understanding of cultural agencies.

There is no dominant control or political influence on them. The Canada Council has done a terrific job in helping scholars.

Australia has a national university at Canberra. A national university could foster great private studies and research. At present Canada's expenditures in pure research is small. It could specialize in languages as a bilingual society, it should be strong in mathematics. The Federal Government might give leadership to grants of money and in supporting the ideas of what a university should do. For example the speaker said "We have a chance to see in Canada who excel in applied economics but our two outstanding intellectual economists are Jacob Viner who is at Princeton and Harry Johnson at the University of Chicago."

NEED EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

Dr. Jewett mentioned that while speaking to graduating classes at Queen's and Kingston, only ten per cent of the Welland graduates were thinking of attending university while 56 per cent of the Kingston graduates were going on. "Are we giving equal opportunity to our students?", the speaker queried. The difference in cost between attending university at home and away from home is at a minimum of approximately $1300. Students should have a choice of which institution they attend and should be given equal opportunity.

Speaking finally of Queen's University, Dr. Jewett said that the provincial aid is getting perilously near 50 per cent and when that 50 per cent-plus the province dictates and the university will fall into "the Toronto pattern." In conclusion she mentioned the controversy over the idea of keeping the college open all year round. The administration felt that it would be an admirable idea to keep the "plant" in operation all the time. The professors feel that such an arrangement would make research impossible.

There was a lively discussion period at the conclusion of the speaker's remarks.

INTERESTING QUERY

One query, "How are we going to afford to educate 50-per cent of our secondary school graduates," was answered by referring the questioner to the chapter in Galbraith's "The Affluent Society" on education which said "It is not how an expenditure we can't afford not to make". Another query about the burdens proposed by the government got the reply that the request should come from the committees but at present they are occupied with the problems of acquiring buildings and teachers.

Miss Lemoine West expressed thanks to Dr. Jewett and presented her with some beautiful costume jewelry donated by Queen's man Joel Morse of the Avon Jewelry Limited.

In the absence of Herb Hamilton, Dr. Les MacDonald of Trenton presented a report on the university.

During a short business meeting after the dinner, Mrs. Henry Bateman presented kits to canvassers who will be busy during the following weeks collecting for the Queen's capital appeal. Queen's people are urged to give generously in this emergency and to welcome the canvassers at their door.

Rotary Hears Talk on High Schools

A fourth secondary school will be opened in this city in 1966 and that is probably the last that will be made either for a further extension or a fifth school.

This information was revealed by E. A. Orr, Superintendent of Secondary Education, as he addressed the meeting of the Rotary Club.

Mr. Orr said present enrolment in Belleville is 3,737 which is 267 in excess of present accommodation. The new one to be opened in 1966 will be capable of accommodating an additional 1,200 students with possibility of expansion to accommodate 1,600 students.

"In the meantime we have the problem of accommodating the 4,014 students we expect next year," he said. Mr. Orr said at the moment he could see only three possible solutions; the construction of portable classrooms to handle the overflow, which would cost from $6,000 to $10,000 each; conversion of some business or industrial property into temporary classrooms or by placing one or more of the schools on a staggered of shift system.

Mr. Orr pointed out earlier in his address that in 1906 secondary schools cost the city $9,904 and in 1964 Belleville's share of the cost including debenture payments, was $600,000.

The speaker told Rotarians that in 1926 there were 540 pupils in the old Belleville High School in 1939 and 780 when it opened to accomodate 900 pupils. From 1951 to 1958 enrolment in the high schools was above 900 and by 1954 the collegiate was replacing at the same with 1,200 pupils and Quinte Secondary School had to be opened in Trenton. The decision for the construction of Moira Secondary School in 1959 plus the construction of Nicholson Catholic College.

"Today," Mr. Orr said, "we have accommodation in the three high schools for 3,670 pupils and a staff of 165 teachers."

In closing, Mr. Orr said, "with the generous understanding and support of our citizens, and a high school board keenly aware of its responsibilities, and with the sympathetic interest of you and our fellow citizens, we shall confidently continue our efforts to serve the needs of the young people in our community. We believe we have good schools in Belleville. We are endeavoring to make them better."

Mayor Replies To Letter From Resident

Contrary to the claim of an Elgin street resident that the street had been closed and that there was never any formal action by city council to close Elgin street.

Replying in council to a letter written by Stanley G. Brown, Mayor Jack Ellis said no by-law existed regarding the closing of Elgin street.

The letter from Mr. Brown complained that Wilson Concrete Ltd. had failed to live up to promises that it would do in connection with the street closing and that the firm had continued to drive trucks over the street despite a promise not to do so.

Mr. Ellis obviously an attempt to slander myself and the company for which I work," Mayor Ellis said in reply following the reading of Mr. Brown's letter.

The mayor said that as by-law exists regarding closing of Elgin street; that property for the "cul-de-sac" was not available for purchase.

He said the street was still open and Wilson Concrete were using the street with full approval of all the residents except Mr. Brown.

Cow Runs Wild, Gores Woman, Scares Others Before Shot

An excited farmer's cow which went wild as she and her calf were being loaded into a truck Saturday afternoon attacked and gored a 53-year-old Ameliasburg township woman, bowled over a man and frightened an entire neighborhood before it was shot and killed.

Mrs. Mary Morris, R. R. 2, Ameliasburg, was gored in the thigh by the animal's sharp horns, with 15 stitches being required to close the wound.

And Michael Levine, Belleville livestock dealer who had stopped to lend a hand to load the cow when he noticed the farmer having difficulty, was attacked and knocked to the ground by the excited animal before it broke away and charged Mrs. Morris.

DRIVING COW OFF LAWN

Mrs. Morris and her 12-year-old daughter Cathy had emerged from their house to chase the cow from the lawn, but the animal turned on Mrs. Morris as it went wild as she and her calf were being loaded into the truck. Mrs. Morris was taken to Prince Edward County hospital for treatment but was later allowed to go home.

After goring Mrs. Morris the excited cow then chased another man, who was forced to leap into a truck for safety, and then ran off down the road where it frightened another woman and gained to close the scene.

Susanna's Family Fare

PEEP! PEEP!

Dear Susanna: In your column one day you said "if we don't feed the little pipers this winter, we can't expect to listen to sweet music next summer," well, I do put out food for the winter birds, but hardly a fly ever seem to come in the yard. Why? — Mrs. McKeachie

If you wish the cardinals, cedar wax wings, and all the other snow-time birds to come to your feeding stations, it is almost even more important to provide them with water.

This is almost a matter of life and death for them, as snow is a very, very poor substitute, and the one way I know to keep a glob of water from freezing colorside in very cold weather is to insert a poultry water warmer. Now these are most difficult to find if you live in the city, but I will be glad to advise anyone where they may be purchased.

In addition, after the first of the year a few old Christmas trees placed at the foot of the garden make an ideal shelter for our little friends in zero weather, — how about a warmer and a shelter — it's for the birds! — SUSANNA

NO HUM

Dear Susanna: I was so tired of sleeping on hills and valleys that I finally convinced my friends and husband we should invest in a really good firm mattress — which, by the way, is the proper term. Now I'm anxious to learn how to give it proper care. The salesman was young and didn't seem to know much. Perhaps you, Susanna, are acquainted with a mattress manufacturer who might be willing to set us straight. — E. L. H.

I am, and he is. Here is what he advises to insure you get all the deep down comfort and support that is built into a quality mattress:

"Turn the mattress end to end and upside down every two weeks for the first four months of use, so it will adjust to your body weight. Then, turn the mattress quarterly thereafter. This gives uniform wear to each side. Turn the foundation end to end occasionally for maximum service and support.

Do not fold or bend the mattress. This may damage the innerspring unit. The mattress should be carried flat or on its side through doorways. Do not use the mattress as a chair. Never stand on it. An innerspring mattress is designed and constructed to support your body weight, but not all in one spot. Use a mattress pad. The mattress and boxspring should be cleaned with a vacuum cleaner once a month."

Your new mattress also will benefit from frequent airings, and should be left uncovered for an hour or two when you change the bed linen. Proper mattress care need not take a lot of time but the few minutes you spend will pay off in longer mattress life — and better rest for you.

So it's HO HUM, good night to you all, and to all a goodnight! — SUSANNA

MR. AND MRS. BARRY LAWRENCE BROWNING

Browning — Smith

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently in Holy Rosary Catholic Church, Belleville, when Sharon Irene Smith, daughter of Mrs. Croft M. (Helen) Smith, Belleville and the late Mr. Croft M. Smith, became the bride of Barry Lawrence Browning of Sharbot Lake, son of Mrs. D. L. Guthrie of Kingston and Mr. John Browning of Belleville. Father Rufus officiated at the ceremony before a background of variegated pink gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. William (Jim) Nolan wore a street length gown of white peau de soie featuring a rounded neckline appliqued with lace and highlighted with a long sleeved lace jacket with three-tier effect of lace falling from the shoulders. Her headdress was of scalloped lace with a flowing mantilla-length veil of nylon tulle. She carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with white stephanotis.

Miss Mary Ann Bristow as maid of honor wore a pink silk crepe street-length dress with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses with white stephanotis.

Mr. Gerald Feeney of Tweed attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Douglas Smith, brother of the bride was the usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride which was elaborately decorated for the occasion with the bride's table centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked with tapering white candles. The bridal bouquets lent color to the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a navy and pink blue dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a teal blue brocade dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink baby roses.

For the wedding trip to Jacksonville, Bay and Lake Placid the bride chose a brown tweed knit suit, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Kingston, Sharbot Lake, Tweed, Toronto and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Browning will reside in Sharbot Lake, Ont.

Teacher Travelled Around World for $200 a Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — Buses, trains, boats and taxis took Valerie Hillcox around the world for little more than $200 a month.

Miss Hillcox, a former teacher in Dawson Creek, B.C., is back from a two-year holiday that covered 100,000 miles through 50 countries for a total cost of $5,000.

"Mostly I travelled by bus and train and, when I had to, by boat. Sometimes I travelled by taxi, but only in countries where taxis are cheap — and necessary."

She took a taxi from Singapore 300 miles to Kuala Lumpur for $4.50.

Miss Hillcox had money sent to her from her Dawson Creek bank. Her monthly allowance was timed to reach a city along the way just before she did. This resulted in the odd problem.

Arriving in Nairobi, Kenya, with only $15, she planned to take a bus to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, only to find there was no bus connecting the two cities. She went to French Somaliland instead and boarded a Norwegian ship after persuading its captain to carry her "collect" to Mombasa where the money was waiting.

Another time she arrived in Dar-es-Salaam, Tanganyika, three days before her money and had to rely on the Canadian high commissioner to vouch for her solvency.

Travelling from Cape Town, South Africa, to Rio de Janeiro, she was forced to live more expensively than she wanted.

"The captain just wouldn't put European anywhere but first class and so I had to travel with people with mink and dinner dresses. Spent my last $20 for a decent dress and then just lived in it."

Fashion Rules Said Made to Be Broken

MONTREAL (CP) — Fashion rules are made to be broken, says Mary Quant, a leading British designer.

"When you break a rule you automatically arrive at something different in fashion and this leads to fun."

Miss Quant, who was responsible for the Chelsea look which swept the younger crowd in Britain a few seasons ago, talked about fashions during a visit to Montreal.

She says she believes in mixing patterns and colors wildly — spots with stripes, for example. She doesn't like gloves — they're old-looking and irrelevant. The disapproves of jewelry — "it's old-making."

She is generally against hats "because young people don't wear hats and if you must cover your hair it is more fun to find a new trick with a scarf."

Miss Quant, 30, Mrs. Alexander Plunkett-Greene in private life, admits that her own outlook is geared to the young, but she thinks that fashion for the woman over 40 if she keeps a modern point of view.

"The fashion must mustn't get stuck at the date of your youth. You should go on experimenting and breaking rules."

Swim Wear For Summer Shown Press

MONTREAL (CP) — The "bikini-bathin-suit" look highlighted a showing of next summer's swim wear to the press here Tuesday.

The Beatrice Pines collection, Sea Sirens Ltd., featured low backs, low and midriff cutouts and decolletages, but this trend was balanced by modest one-piece topless bathing suit.

The suits came in a variety of styles from the simple persons' bathing group exemplified the more feminine look in beach wear, and these suits were known by dacron and lighter knits. Ruffles and lattice sides showed up in both one and two piece suits. Gleaming Antron Boucle was used for an aqua V-back suit with a high neckline front and lowered boat-neck front.

The evening suit was given a more formal interpretations. One suit featured swaying white nylon chiffon built over black knit. Another group of evening suits consisted of two pieces — semi-bikini pants and long, sweeping tunics resulting in a stretched-out look.

The casual knits, simple and smart, featured laced fronts, boy-leg pants and engineered stripes. A two piece suit was shown in turquoise and orange stripes, the stripes occurring just below the waist.

The bikini, still very much in evidence, has also undergone a change in that one look with ruffles. Most of the bikinis and many suits are discarded in favor of matching bikini with white ruffles.

BAYSIDE SCHOOL

Bayside Home and School Association met in the Bayside school on October 22nd. Mrs. James Palmer presided at the piano.

The new vice-president, Mrs. G. Benjamin, presided. She announced the new president for the club and the slate of officers for 1964-65 season as follows:

President, Mrs. H. Hennessy; vice-president, Mrs. J. Benjamin; secretary, Mrs. J. Pelletier; treasurer, Mrs. A. Michaud; social, Mrs. R. Harvel (R. 2, Trenton area); publicity, Mrs. G. Ackerman.

There was some discussion regarding programs for future meetings, but no definite conclusions reached.

Mrs. M. Campbell's class at Quinte View School, won the film strip for having the most parents in attendance.

George Miller introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Bob Murphy of the Northern Electric Co., who spoke on the subject, "What Industry Expects of Young People." Mr. Murphy said that in industry people are in part of local governments. Of necessity this is limited by the economy of each developing country. But UNICEF is world-wide. It needs the financial assistance of intelligent world citizens. Coins dropped in the UNICEF Hallowe'en boxes, collected by the youngsters on your streets will make a fairer, more equitable future for the world's children.

PRODUCTIVE CITIZENS

Zanzibar, a new African republic and Zorra, a Canadian town differ in climate, resources and job opportunities. In common both have concern for the sturdy health and basic education of growing children. Both realize that youngsters should be so trained that they can stand on their own feet and contribute to the world's quota of productive citizens.

It is in this field that UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) actively participates in 116 countries of the world. Funds donated by governments, private individuals and young people (33 million annually) go to International UNICEF. A total of 116 committees of 30 chosen from the 116 participating countries allocate funds for disease control, health units and schools.

School Children to Collect For UNICEF on Hallowe'en

On Hallowe'en Canadian youngsters enjoy the traditional fun of dressing up, visiting friends and neighbors, collecting the usual treats. But on this night they also carry with them the UNICEF Hallowe'en collection boxes for coins donated to UNICEF. This year's fund will help fight hunger, disease and ignorance among the world's less fortunate children. It is a crusade for children by children.

UNICEF is important — important to both the giver and the receiver.

TWO WAY STREET

UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) has accepted a share of this moral obligation. UNICEF is not a charity — it is a two-way street. Any local government wishing UNICEF assistance applies in writing to the International UNICEF body. Having surveyed its own needs, it requests aid in such specific areas as disease control, milk processing plants, mother and child welfare, and training. But for every dollar expended by UNICEF the local government provides $2.50 in buildings, personnel and local products.

UNICEF respects the self-help part of local governments. Of necessity this is limited by the economy of each developing country. But UNICEF is world-wide. It needs the financial assistance of intelligent world citizens. Coins dropped in the UNICEF Hallowe'en boxes, collected by the youngsters on your streets will make a fairer, more equitable future for the world's children.

MENU Magic

From the Home Economists in the KITCHEN

Oyster Specialty

Oyster Stew is always a wonderful treat on a breezy night, or for a party dish . . . easy to make too, in this oyster-month-with-an-R. Be sure you have fresh oysters (don't bother to drain them) in ¼ cup melted butter and the onion sauteed until tender but not brown. Add oysters and cook overcook them. Then add 3 cups scalded milk and ¼ cup flour blended with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce.

Sweet Treat

What to make hot waffles extra special? Add a few chopped pecans to the waffle batter before baking and serve them with hot buttered maple syrup. Warm ¾ cup butter and ¾ cup maple syrup together over low heat and stir to blend well. Then add a few to hot! Delicious served à la mode too, with vanilla ice cream for a hot and cold combination.

Holiday Sundae

Another hot and cold favorite of ours, from now until Christmas, is the hot fudge sundae. Just heat your favorite mince meat mixture, (the one you use for pies and tarts), thinning it down if necessary with a little orange juice. Add a pinch of rum flavoring and you have the easiest ice cream topper to please your guests in a long time.

Something Hot To Drink

Although we think it's hard to improve on good old-fashioned hot cocoa made with milk, here's a new variation for adults in the mood for what's like. To make Creole Coffee, blend equal parts of hot and made hot coffee and cocoa. Float a mound of whipped cream on each cup, and sprinkle with cinnamon . . . or try a cinnamon stick stirrer.

French Fare

French Onion Soup, a popular restaurant item now that winter is here, can be a family favorite too! For a quick version sauté 2 cups thinly-sliced onions gently in butter until tender but not browned. Add 2 tins undiluted consommé soup, season and simmer for a few minutes. Smells wonderful and tastes good too!

Parmesan Topper

To crown that Onion Soup, in true French style, toast thick slices of French bread. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle with plenty of grated Parmesan cheese and broil until the cheese is melted and lightly browned. Float a crust slice atop each bowl of soup just before serving.

Uniondale W.I. Talk Based On Agriculture

5TH CONCESSION SIDNEY—The October meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute, Hastings West, was held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Frost, 5th Concession, recently.

After usual opening procedure was a number of business items were discussed and included the International scholarship fund, the Canadian Mental Health Association, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. An amount of $25 was donated to Scott's United Church for services; also Uniondale W.I. will replenish the medicine cabinet of Marsh Hill School. All members were asked for magazines to help in the scrap book project.

Reports on the area convention were given by Mrs. Frank Phillips who attended on the first day and by Mrs. Maurice Dafoe who attended on the second. A thank-you note from Mrs. R. Mallory for the silver dollar received for her baby was received.

The program opened with a sing-song after which Mrs. George Burkitt read a story on Thanksgiving and Mrs. Edison Sine read a poem.

The topic for the October meeting was "Canadian Agriculture Then and Now," and was given by Mrs. George Striker who handed her talk on the changes which had taken place in agriculture in the past 30 years.

VISIT AFTER 30 YEARS

First of all we got a farm house in Southern Saskatchewan which was visited after 30 years and was found to be a derelict on a hill with the walls weathered and gray, doors flapping in the wind and pigeons resting on the kitchen counter. In the area a tree belt which had been coaxed to life in drought years was choked with weeds and the barns and windmills had vanished. The 320 acres that were farmed with horses in small subdivided fields were tilled now in mile - long sweeps by farm machinery which cultivates hundreds of acres in the district. Like so many other Canadian farms this is no longer a home but a place of business. Everywhere rural life is totally unlike the life of 30 years ago.

The real problem is the fact that only a few farmers have really faced up to the sweeping change in farming and until they do acknowledge the revolution in agriculture and cope with the situation, Canada's biggest business will be in trouble. At one time agriculture was a simple easygoing way of life, almost self sustaining, producing little capital and requiring little capital to operate but today agriculture is part of something called "agribusiness."

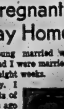
The farmer nevertheless is still the nucleus of agriculture and he is not as some still think a blithe and simple soul with strong arms and muddy boots. Unless people outside of agriculture take steps to improve the farmers' lot there may be someday a lack of farmers when the world increasingly needs food.

SQUEEZED OFF LAND

In dealing with the results the speaker explained that the small inefficient farmers are being squeezed off the land, not by any person but by circumstances. One major reason for this is the lack of money. Once a farmer could get by on work and nothing but now he can't. The capital investment required for a farm is beyond the reach of the average man.

Twenty years from now Canadian farms will probably number only about 250,000 but they will be bigger and will produce about twice as much per acre as today. Some may be run by corporations but the family farm will still be strong. The owners will have little hired labor, will work hard but will earn a good living. The farm is still a strong hold perhaps the last stronghold of the individual and free enterprise.

Mrs. Striker concluded her talk by saying that the farm still has benefits that can be measured in dollars. It is a way of life where children learn responsibilities, where the daily miracle of nature unfolds before one's eyes, where the pleasure of work is almost a religion.



Ann Landers

Husband Thinks Pregnant Women Should Stay Home

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a young married woman who has a serious problem. My husband and I were married last year. We are expecting our first child in eight weeks.

A month ago we were invited to a party. I wanted to go but my husband made all sorts of excuses, so we stayed home. Two weeks ago there was an office party that he didn't even tell me about. I felt hurt when I learned of it. He said he "forgot."

ANN LANDERS

Last night I wanted to go to a movie and he said "No." I decided then and there to have it out with him. Finally he confessed that he is ashamed to be seen with me "in my condition." He thinks pregnant women should not appear in public after they begin to show.

I'm so hurt I don't know what to do. Please point my letter and your advice. — DON'T WANT TO HIDE.

* * *

DEAR DON'T — Your husband is a plenty mixed-up kid.

What a pity that he fails to appreciate the beauty and the miracle of a new life in the making. It will take more than a word from me to straighten him out. I hope your doctor can do it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please put this letter in the paper so parents will realize that they are sometimes a problem.

I've been in 4-H Club work for five years and it's the greatest. Something happened recently to spoil it all for me.

I am showing horses this year for the first time. My Mom and Dad were both professional horse show people and they are dedicated to teach me, in one year, everything they learned in their entire lives.

They have pushed so hard that it wouldn't be me winning if I did win. It would be them winning.

I have talked this over with some of my friends in 4-H and they are having the same problem with their parents.

Please, Ann, give us a hand. We need it. OHIO TEEN.

* * *

DEAR TEEN — I spoke to several thousand 4-Hers in Indiana just last summer and I can vouch for the quality of the members of your organization. They are the greatest. Maybe I should have addressed the parents instead, if what you say is true.

I'm printing your letter and I hope all parents of 4-Hers everywhere will ask themselves, "Could this be me?"

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently our daughter married a nice young man in a quiet ceremony in our home. Something happened which bothered my husband and me. Now I'd like to know if I behaved properly.

My husband and I do not drink alcoholic beverages nor do we serve liquor in our home. We decided there would be no liquor at our daughter's wedding and settled on a fruit punch. The groom's parents were unhappy about this and they let us know it.

Immediately after the ceremony I saw the groom's father pour a bottle of Bourbon into the punch bowl. I was appalled but said nothing because I didn't want to cause unpleasantness.

After the guests left I told my husband. He was furious. He said I should have dumped the punch out then and there, and offered the guests soda pop.

So far as I know nobody could tell the difference. Did I do right or wrong? — MRS. UNCERTAIN.

DEAR MRS. — The father of the groom had no right to alter the refreshments in your home, particularly after you and your husband had made your position clear.

Dumping the punch, on the other hand, might have created a scene and ruined your daughter's wedding day. In my opinion your restraint was admirable.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: If it gets too hot in a room, is it permissible for a male guest to remove his coat? My husband does this at the office party? In my opinion, if a man gets overly warm, he should step outside to cool off for a few minutes — but put his jacket back on before he returns to the living room. — Mrs. L. F., Hartford, Conn.

ANSWER: Unless it's the middle of summer and smack in the middle of a sizzling heat wave, a man should keep his jacket on when he's a guest in another home. So, Mr. L. F., please take note and hang on to that jacket the next time you're invited out.

QUESTION: When you spot some people you know in a restaurant, are you supposed to go over and say hello, or is a wave enough of a greeting? I waved to some friends sitting at a table way across the room the other night, and next day the woman called to ask why I didn't stop by their table for a few minutes. I didn't because it would have meant traipsing across the room making her husband stand by while I said how-do-do and possibly causing a waiter to have an accident trying to step around me. In addition, I don't think it polite to table hop. What do you say? — Mrs. B. K. G., Boston, Mass.

ANSWER: Exactly the same thing. Table hopping is a nuisance to just about everyone involved. Waving is enough of a greeting in a crowded restaurant and a lot less treacherous than threading your way through tables to put in a personal appearance.

Church Groups

VICTORIA AVE. BAPTIST

A joint meeting of the Sarah Cole Memorial Circle of the Victoria Ave. Baptist Church was held in the church parlor with President Ina Campbell presiding. A hymn-sing was led by Mary Hales and Irene Woodcock introduced some new members. Irene Girling's group was in charge with Mary Hales leading the devotional period. Kay Pryor and Anna Pue sang a delightful duet. Irene Girling introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Fred Pue, from Brandon, Manitoba.

Mrs. Pue, a former resident of Belleville and a member of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church spoke on the Baptist Women's Missionary work in the west.

This is the work in which Mrs. Pue is actively engaged. She mentioned that distance is the great difficulty in the west and it is not unusual to travel 500 miles each way in order to attend group meetings with the several small Baptist churches.

Nellie Burn thanked the speaker and Irene Woodcock closed this part of the meeting with prayer.

A short business period was held with President Ruth Campbell reminding the Vota Vita members to save wrappers and box tops as the circle is a participant in the golden book for charity project.

European Stew Full of Flavor

By MARY MOORE

If you enjoy rich flavors, do you search for economical meats and if you believe in my budgeting try these two meal dishes. One calls for lean pork from shoulder the other for stewing veal from shoulder or breast. Both call for a small amount of dairy sour cream, so one 5-oz. carton will do for both recipes, served two or three days apart.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Boiled Ox Tongue with Raisin Sauce; Buttered Turnip; Fried Green Tomatoes; Tossed Fiesta Salad with Bleu Cheese Dressing; Cherry Tapioca; Top Milk; Tea.

PORK GOULASH FROM BUDAPEST (serves 4):

1½ lbs. lean shoulder pork, ½ cup finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons butter or cooking oil or shortening, 1¼ to 2 tablespoons paprika (yes — tablespoons), 2 cups (one 16-oz. can) sauerkraut, 1 teaspoon caraway seeds, ½ to 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¾ to 1-3 cup dairy sour cream.

Cut the pork into 1" cubes. Melt the butter or shortening in large heavy frying pan that you can cover and in it sauté the onion and paprika until onion is limp and paprika dark red and saturated with fat. Add the pork pieces and saute gently, stirring until meat begins to brown. Add all remaining ingredients but sour cream, reduce heat to simmer, cover and cook until meat is tender, stirring occasionally. You probably will have to add about ½ cup water during this cooking period which is about 1½ to 2 hours. When meat is tender, remove from heat, stir in sour cream and serve. Serve with crusty French bread and mop up the last luscious juices on your plate with it, as the Hungarians have taught us to do.

1¼ lbs. veal breast or shoulder, 2½ cups water, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, ½ mild Spanish onion, finely chopped, 1 small carrot, shredded, 1 small celery stalk, finely chopped, 4 (or 8) small (1") white onions, parboiled until nearly tender, 2 cups fresh mushrooms (preferably button — and could be canned), ¼ cup melted butter, ¼ cup flour, ½ to 1 teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, ½ cup dairy sour cream, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, chopped parsley.

Cut the veal into 1" cubes and put in large saucepan with the water, bouillon cubes, chopped onion, carrot and celery. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered until veal is fork tender — about 1½ hours. Mix together the melted butter, flour and salt. Stir this paste into the stew until thick. Add parboiled onions and the mushrooms and gently simmer 10 minutes. Mix together the egg yolks, sour cream and lemon juice, remove stew from heat and stir in. Have ready the tender cooked noodles on which to serve this rich but delicate French stew. Garnish with parsley and serve. It's a generous amount of steam-fried green peppers cut in long strips.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

MONDAY, Oct. 26, 1966

The Commons continued debate of the government's proposal for authority to spend $740,710,974 to meet November and December bills pending approval of all estimates.

This opened the way for a discussion of CBC programming.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) asked that the Commons committee on broadcasting be reconstituted to check into CBC operations.

State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to Parliament for the CBC, said this would "paralyse" the corporation's operations.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) criticized the CBC for a "cavalier disregard" to protests about programming.

Prime Minister Pearson agreed allegations made on a CBC program by a former prisoner at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary about punishments should be investigated.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) praised the CBC for its interview of American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell, which he said may have set back the cause of racism.

Gerald Regan (L—Halifax) said if some CBC programs were in bad taste it was the fault of directors, all but two of them appointed under the Conservatives.

Gene Rheaume (LC—Northwest Territories) asked whether the doubling of CBC President Alphonse Ouimet's salary was so the CBC would try to keep the Liberal party in power.

able to take a leave of absence or sick leave instead.

The department began an investigation after Magistrate Jermyn had allegedly used profanity in court.

The Kingston Whig - Standard reported Oct. 14 that he exclaimed during the course of a trial: "You are wasting . . . time and mine . . . This is stupid."

Magistrate Jermyn blamed the press for his troubles, saying reporters frequently quoted him as speaking from the bench when in fact he had been speaking after court ended.

Mr. Jermyn graduated from the University of Toronto in 1933 and was named magistrate for the united counties of Leeds and Grenville in 1949. He presided over juvenile and family court cases voluntarily for several years until the system was set up on a formal basis.

He was later appointed juvenile and family court judge with a salary for his duties.

However, at its last fall session the council appointed H. Bruce Hunter of Cardinal as juvenile and family court judge for 1965.

trar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, told the hospital association that chief physicians and surgeons in the province's hospitals should have the authority to intervene in the care of a patient if they consider it necessary.

He said the chiefs of staff and heads of departments in hospitals now have the responsibility for the supervision of patient care, but in fact they have no authority to intervene if they consider the care inadequate.

Draft proposals to amend the Public Hospitals Act to give the necessary authority have been submitted to a joint committee of the Ontario Medical and Hospital associations and the Ontario Hospital Services Committee by the Ontario Medical Association with the support of the college, Dr. Dawson said.

TARNISH REPUTATION

Ralph Cowan, Liberal member of Parliament for York Humber, told delegates companies that insure hospitals against malpractice suits help tarnish the reputation of hospitals by opting for out-of-court settlements.

Such settlements prevent hospitals from defending their good names or the reputation of their doctors, he said.

Mr. Cowan, a trustee of Northwestern General Hospital in Toronto, said the Ontario Hospital Association was getting nowhere in persuading the companies to modify a clause in their contracts permitting settlements without any agreement by the hospital or reference o the courts.

The hospital association passed a resolution urging that the prime responsibility for reporting an unusual hospital death to a coroner be placed with a patient's personal doctor.

It also recommended that it be informed by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons —the body that licenses doctors to practise in the province—about all licence suspensions of medical practitioners. The association said that at present it has to rely on newspaper and college reports to get this information.

opposition parties, pro - Liberal, un-Canadian, pro-separatist, pornographic and extravagant with the taxpayers' money.

The CBC found only two defenders, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) and Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe). They argued that the corporation would be useless if it studiously avoided producing controversial and challenging programs.

Today the Commons enters the third day of a wide-ranging debate on a $740,000,007 supply bill intended to cover the government's ordinary expenses in November and December.

Privy Council President Mr. Flrath pleaded for quick passage of the bill, but political informants said the Conservatives likely will keep the debate going at least until Thursday when the 15-member flag committee is due to submit its report.

If the Conservatives object to the recommended design, they undoubtedly will resume their flag blockade, which lasted several weeks last summer.

RAP GOVERNMENT

In the Commons, opposition spokesmen who had assailed the timing of the CNR run-throughs in a strongly-worded debate last Friday, criticized the government Monday for not taking action in advance of the weekend troubles.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said a "sorry spectacle" had occurred and it was "too bad this course was not followed before the matter became a crisis."

Mr. Fisher urged that the commissioner be empowered to report whether existing legislation gives railway workers sufficient protection from forced changes in working conditions detrimental to their interests.

The prime minister said he hopes to work out terms of reference for the commissioner "which will be satisfactory to all those concerned."

The changes in operation would have seen trains worked straight through from Horneyayne to Armstrong in Northern Ontario and from Edmonton to Biggar, Sask., in Western Canada. Crew changes at the midway points of Nakina and Wainwright would have been eliminated.

KNEW OF CHANGE

The railway maintained that improvements in motive power made it practical to work trains longer than formerly and that the employees had known this for several years.

The CNR said it had asked for suggestions from the employees on the program and, after receiving none, had programmed it over two years.

A spokesman said the changes meant the men would make longer runs and work fewer days for the same pay. Overtime rates are paid on a mileage basis with a limit of 4,800 miles a month.

The workers decision to return to work came at meetings in Nakina, Capreol and Horneyayne in Ontario and at Vancouver, Kamloops, B.C., Edmonton, Melville, Sask., and Winnipeg. Shortly after the CNR said crews were returning to work at Melville and Biggar and Sioux Lookout, Ont.

At Capreol, a CNR headquarters about 15 miles north of Sudbury, some of the 300 employees who attended a meeting and were booked on trains Monday night went back to work almost immediately after their decision.

REVERSE DECISION

Earlier in the day, the Capreol employees had stated they would not return to work until the whole run - through issue was settled. They reversed their decision after learning of the decisions of meetings at Nakina and Horneyayne.

Mr. Fisher, whose northwestern Ontario riding takes in Nakina, went to that community Sunday after the protest began and returned to Ottawa Monday to take part in the House debate on it. He was in contact with union leaders during the protest.

Spokesman for the employees accused the CNR of instituting the new rules without consultation. They said the men involved in the project were acting on their own and not taking illegal action.

NOT TERRORIST

MONTREAL (CP) — William Charles Colbath, 30, of suburban Pointe Claire, charged with illegal possession of a pistol and 33 sticks of dynamite, received a suspended sentence Monday and was ordered to post a $500 bond to keep the peace for two years. Crown prosecutor Louis-Philippe Landry, told the court he is satisfied Colbath was not a member of any terrorist movement.

More Powerful Nuclear Bomb For France

PARIS (AP) — The defence ministry confirmed Monday night that France is developing a more powerful nuclear bomb with a more flexible control system.

The ministry also said it will make the first tests next year on missiles capable of delivering the French A-bomb at launching satellites into orbit.

The disclosures came in the ministry's 1965 budget request to the National Assembly seeking a total defence appropriation of $4,200,000,000. The ministry said 25 per cent would be spent for the nuclear program.

France, which has exploded several atomic bombs, is reported working on a hydrogen bomb and expects to make the first tests in the South Pacific in 1965.

CRIME PAYS

if you do not carry proof of automobile liability insurance?

You do!

Evidence of insurance, or proof that the $20 uninsured motor vehicle fee has been paid must be produced when requested by the police.

Failure to do so could result in a $500 fine, and in addition your driver's licence and motor vehicle permit may be suspended until you file proof of financial responsibility (proof that you carry automobile liability insurance).

Perhaps you feel you cannot afford car insurance, or perhaps you have difficulty in obtaining insurance—remember:

It is far more economical to pay an insurance premium than to pay even a small claim for damages.

Insurance is available to every licensed driver.

If you are having difficulty securing insurance on the open market ask your agent about the Automobile Assigned Risk Plan.

The wise motorist will make sure he carries a liability insurance card in his vehicle at all times.

Old Barrel Factory Burns

PICTON (Staff) — Fire broke out about 8:30 p.m. Monday night in a barn belonging to Bart Reid Jr. The barn was one of three in a row just off Bridge Street at the bottom of the town hill. It was feared the blaze might spread to the adjoining buildings which were of frame construction and very old. The building to which the fire was confined was an old barrel factory years ago. It contained nothing except a few old barrels and some scrap lumber. Firemen report it was doubtful the blaze in spite of the high flames and intense heat. Fortunately, there was no breeze blowing at the time of the fire or serious consequences could have resulted.

Market for Jap Cars and Buses Being Explored

OTTAWA (CP) — Tea potential Canadian market for Japanese cars and buses is being explored by a Japanese economic mission now touring the country.

A mission spokesman, Tadayoshi Yamada, told a press conference Monday that the market soon will be tested by shipments of cars and buses loaned to Canada.

Mr. Yamada said that speeding up on the response of Canadian bus operators, the Japanese then would consider further shipping assembled vehicles directly to Canada or entering a "joint venture" to manufacture them here.

He said the question of combining the technical skill of Japanese money and know-how in assembling vehicles in this country has been raised recently as "only as an idea, a suggestion."

"We are hopeful that joint ventures of this type may be considered economically feasible in the future," said Mr. Yamada, a director of the huge Yawata Iron and Steel Company.

However, he added that it has been estimated that the minimum production required for such a venture would be 500 cars a month.

Mr. Yamada said a market survey now is in progress to find out the type of Japanese vehicles that might find Canadian buyers.

barder for world markets.

Britain no longer had room for restrictive monopolies and wildcat strikes, he said. The country had borrowed heavily from its friends abroad to help offset a widening payments deficit estimated to rise this year to perhaps $2,400,000,000, the highest in history.

But Britain cannot go on borrowing forever, Wilson added as he urged industry to strip itself of speculation and pursue higher production at lower cost.

The extra tariff, which virtually doubles the average duty on manufactured goods to 30 per cent, is applicable on all goods with the exception of raw materials, food and unmanufactured tobacco.

British consumers now will have to pay higher prices for such things as cotton textiles, foreign-made automobiles, perfumes, foreign wines, cigars and imported cigarettes.

PAPER INCLUDED

Much of Canada's $1,000,000,000 worth of annual exports to Britain will be excluded from the higher duty. But about $200,000,000 worth will be hit. These include newsprint, veneers and plywood, paper and paper boards, pyrus and fabrics, synthetic rubber and plastics, steel blocks and stripes, aluminum, leather, electric washing machines, stoves and copper products.

Some British newspapers questioned whether the higher duties, coupled with small tax reductions exporters, would be contrary to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and invite counter-measures from other countries.

But British opinion generally accepted the view that Britain was in trouble and therefore had to be done quickly. Along with these special measures and appeals to industry and workers to restrain from pushing prices higher, the government plans to establish a special watchdog on prices and a Commonwealth experts council to coordinate the Commonwealth partners to buy more from Britain.

GREATEST STRENGTH

In his speech to municipal officials, Mr. Roberts said Ontario's greatest overall divergence and the diversity of its people represent the province's greatest strength, but provide some of its greatest dilemmas.

It was a problem for the government to do things as quickly as all parts of the province would like, he said. It could, but "once an election is over, this is a government which looks after the interests of all the people, no matter who votes in what way."

Try to Improve Rift Between India, Pakistan

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—A number of non-official efforts are under way to improve relations between India and Pakistan.

The two Commonwealth countries have moved steadily apart in the last 17 years, mainly because of their conflicting claims to the state of Kashmir. Responsible citizens in the two countries are alarmed over the widening gulf.

A group of Gandhian pacifists in India has taken the lead in trying to end the bitterness. It is headed by Vinoba Bhave, a close co-worker of the late Mohandas Gandhi and originator of the now famous "bhoodan" or land-gift movement. Bhave has been engaged in a non-stop walking tour of India appealing to rich landlords to give surplus land to landless peasants.

At Bhave's suggestion, Jaya Prakash Narayan, a former member of the Democratic Socialist party, has just concluded a fortnight's visit to Pakistan where he conferred with President Ayub Khan and other top leaders. He says the government and people of Pakistan are in a mood for genuine and lasting reconciliation with India."

JOIN MOVE

A number of other prominent Indians have associated themselves with the Narayan mission. They include Shiva Rao, a member of the Indian Parliament, and Sardar J. J. Singh, former president of the India League in the United States.

A recent meeting between Indian Prime Minister Shastri and President Ayub Khan at Shastri was on his way back from the conference of nonaligned countries in Cairo is attributed to Narayan's efforts.

Narayan said the preliminary Shastri-Ayub meeting may pave the way for a "summit conference" between the two leaders.

A "press war" between the two countries seems to be showing signs of easing.

In India as well as in Pakistan newspaper editors are known to have privately urged their governments to end restrictions on correspondents from the other side. At present, Indian and Pakistani correspondents working in Rawalpindi and New Delhi cannot move out of the municipal limits without police permission.

ASKS POSTPONEMENT

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant has transmitted to all 113 member nations the request of 41 countries to postpone the United Nations General Assembly opening to Dec. 1 from Nov. 16, a spokesman said Monday. The delay is sought to give the United States and other countries time to convince the Soviet Union's new leaders they should pay more than $50,000,000 arrears on UN peace-keeping costs.

Deer Infested, But 'No Cruelty to Animals' For New Zealanders

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand has reacted with something like horror to a proposal by an American scientist as a remedy for the super abundance of deer. He suggested the introduction of a carnivore, our predator such as the mountain lion.

New Zealand is suffering from the way introduced animals have multiplied. Deer opossums, rabbits and other animals brought from abroad have found the mild New Zealand climate to their liking. All have increased greatly in numbers and become serious pests.

Millions of dollars are spent annually on keeping these creatures in check and the loss of grazing increases the bill. Deer destroy undergrowth in the forests, cause rapid run - off of rain, floods and serious soil erosion. Shooting, trapping and poisoning have been tried but still the herds increase.

At a conference of the Grasslands Association, Dr. R. Bray, an American scientist who has conducted research in the United States and Canada, advanced the idea of importing a carnivorous predator to keep the pests in check.

The mountain lion, he said, rarely attack farm animals such as sheep.

"Anyway, a few sheep could be sacrificed in view of the urgency of the situation."

DON'T FEAR ANIMALS

But, serious problem is, New Zealanders have held up their hands in horror at the suggested solution. The reason is that New Zealand is one of the few countries in the world without a single dangerous wild animal.

There are no carnivorous animals in the forests of New Zealand. The country has no snakes or other dangerous reptiles. The only insect that is at all dangerous is the tiny Katipo spider and even cases of poisoning from its bite are extremely rare.

Consequently, New Zealand enjoys the distinction that one can wander anywhere in the wilds without danger from living creatures. To bring in a mountain lion for release in the forests would mean a drastic break with tradition.

Zoo officials have given assurance that the mountain lion is something of a coward and would not normally attack a man, but the assurance has brought no change in public reaction.

And New Zealanders have been made wary by past experience. Animals brought in to cure a problem have often become a pest themselves, they say. Experience abroad is no guide to the behavior of a given creature in New Zealand. Species easily kept under control and not prolific in their home lands are apt to increase in vast numbers in New Zealand and rapidly get out of control.

NO SUBSTITUTE

Scientists have detected 23 distinct chemicals, among possibly hundreds, in whisky and brandy and they say they cannot attempt to imitate the complex chemical reaction

Indian Leaders Move Incognito Among People

BOMBAY (CP) — Indian leaders are circulating among the Indian people with false moustaches and other disguises these days in an effort to find out what the average Indian thinks about his government.

Rising food prices and a wave of Communist - led agitations about the country seem to have convinced the ruling Congress party that it has been drifting away from the common people, leaving the field to Red propagandists.

The technique Congress party leaders now use to find out what the average citizen is thinking is go out incognito like the princes and nobles of ancient India to listen to the public talk and watch their doings.

Gulzarilal Nanda, federal home minister, is known to put on disguise and vanish into the streets of old Delhi, where he spends hours listening to the common man's grouses talking to shopkeepers and making discreet notes for the guidance of the government.

MINISTER RECOGNIZED

Nanda is known to have been doing this for some three months. But his activities came to light only a few days ago when friends recognized him outside the capital's grain market watching Communists offering passive resistance in front of shops allegedly selling wheat at black market prices

Let's climb the fence

Give a boy a fence—
he'll climb it. Knowing what's on the other side isn't enough. He's got to be there!
So why be timid about a barrier, a fence, a boundary, a border. If he can't conquer them physically, it's no problem at all to let his imagination soar and carry him over them all.
Soon enough, he'll find out it takes more than imagination to cross some of the boundaries in the adult world.
It takes a lot of hard work. The kind of hard work now being put into making the world aware of Canadian goods.

The kind of hard work being put into making Canadian businessmen aware of the opportunities available for Canadian goods on the world market.
Canada needs an expanded export trade. But, like with our fence-climbing kids, you have to want to be on the other side before you can get there.

Expanded export trade helps industry grow... helps provide better jobs... a higher standard of living and helps make real the splendid dreams of all children living in Ontario—the "Province of Opportunity."

Three-Cornered Byelections In Ont., N. B. Confirmed After Nominations Closed

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three - cornered federal by-election campaigns were confirmed Monday both in Waterloo South, Ont., and Westmorland, N.B., as nominations closed for elections Monday, Nov. 9.

A Liberal, Progressive Conservative and New Democrat were nominated both in the western Ontario riding, which includes Galt, Hespeler and Preston, and in Westmorland, which centres on Moncton.

Waterloo South, usually Conservative in the past, and West moreland, most often Liberal, are marginal enough to be watched for indications of any national shift of popular attitudes toward the minority Liberal government and its opposition.

Four previous by-elections since the 1963 general election produced no upsets, the Liberals retaining three and a Conservative one.

Relatives of the late members for Waterloo South and Westmorland are seeking to recapture the vacant seats for their respective parties.

FATHER HELD SEAT

Galt alderman James Chaplin, 31, is the Conservative candidate in Waterloo South, held by his father, Gordon, until his death last June. Mrs. S. H. Rideout, 45, widow of the late federal member for Westmorland who died last May, is running in Westmorland.

Opposing Mr. Chaplin are New Democrat S. M. (Mac) Saltzman, 43, owner of a Galt cleaning and laundromat chain, and Liberal Frederick Stewart, 31, Galt high school teacher who defected from the NDP in September after twice running as an unsuccessful NDP candidate in federal election.

Mr. Stewart's nomination, with the support of national Liberal party leaders, created a split in riding Liberal ranks as some members charged Ottawa with interference.

Running against Mrs Rideout in Westmorland are Moncton merchant Henry Landry, 44, for the New Democrats and Moncton lawyer J. Edward Murphy, 50, for the Conservatives.

The late Gordon Chaplin won Waterloo South in 1963 with 19,-261 votes over 8,792 for the Liberal, 7,693 for the NDP and 372 for Social Credit. Mrs. Rideout, with almost 35,000 eligible voters, has voted Conservative in 11 of the last 12 general elections. The exception since 1921 was a Liberal win in 1953.

Mr. Rideout won Westmorland in 1963 with 19,989 votes against 16,356 for the Conservative, 4,416 for the NDP and 771 for Social Credit. Westmorland, with 42,000 eligible to vote, has gone Liberal in eight of the last 12 general elections, the last Conservative win being part of the Diefenbaker landslide in 1958.

The House of Commons now has 128 Liberal members, 96 Conservatives, 17 New Democrats, 15 Social Credit and nine Social Credit members.

DREDGING THE CHANNEL to Wellington Harbor, a dragline shovel shows above old pilings, foreground, which held the channel bank in 1915. The project started Monday was the first work on Wellington harbor since R.C.A.F. crash boats were based there, during the Second World War.

11,000 Cubans Hurdle Wall To Freedom

MIAMI (AP)—Death corridor, as exiles call the 90-mile "sea wall" between Cuba and the United States, is reported increasingly perilous. But 11,000 Cubans, it is estimated, have managed it to freedom since Fidel Castro's takeover nearly six years ago.

They came in rowboats, tiny rafts, leaky fishing boats, makeshift luggers. Five men paddled to Florida on inner tubes strung together with bamboo.

Some recently arrived refugees estimate that lately one of every four boats running the gauntlet of intensified Castro patrols loses the race. There is no indication of how many died trying.

"Castro combs the Cuban coast with nearly built high-speed motorboats armed with 30-calibre machine-guns" said Eduardo Fernandez, a fugitive from Havana who eluded them. Other refugees gave similar accounts.

Even Cubans slippin gthrough to international waters are reported in danger. The usually well-informed exile news service, ASP, says the radar-equipped Soviet fishing trawlers report any catch by radio—to torpedo and sink it before the Cuban keys. The boats race out and pump bullets into refugee craft.

Start Dredging 46-Foot Wide Entrance Channel To Harbor at Wellington

Dredging started yesterday on the entrance channel to Wellington harbor. A dragline shovel and bulldozer owned by Wellington contractor, Dale Cleave, are at work now on the project and Cleave expects the channel, 46 feet wide at the surface, at least four feet deep and about 1,500 feet long, will be finished in about ten days. The project is the first harbor improvement at Wellington since it was used by R.C.A.F. crash boats during the Second World War. The present project began just a week after Prince Edward-Lennox MP Douglas Alkenbrack wrote public works minister Jean-Paul Deschantelets requesting the work, and six days after Mr. Alkenbrack raised the matter in the House.

The present channel to the harbor is about ten feet wide at the narrowest, and minimum depth is about six inches. The half dozen fishermen still working out of Wellington have used nothing but outboard boats for several years now, and with this year's low water, the outboards have to be dragged through the channel. Another half-dozen fishermen have moved away from the area, although fishermen from Salmon Point and Point Traverse still bring tugs down to fish for whitefish off Wellington. The whitefish are starting to gather off the village now, according to local fishermen.

WILL HELP TOURISM

Improvement of Wellington harbor will help tourist business fits to the town too. Wellington offers the only potential harbor site between Trenton's Bay quinte, near Brighton, and the Point Traverse — Salmon Point area at the southeastern tip of Prince Edward county. Yachtsmen who know the condition of Wellington harbor absolutely useless for a yacht — have avoided the whole area in the past as yachtsmen running on some charts showing the harbor usable have found themselves in trouble.

The channel now being dredged, though, probably will not last to help yachtsmen next summer. Department of Public Works inspector J. J. Connor of Ottawa said yesterday that the dredging operation is an emergency measure, to clear a channel for fishermen using the harbor this fall, and the fishermen themselves are critical. "It's only going to be four feet deep, commented fishermen Cecil Insley of Wellington, "they might as well save their breath." The ruins of a pier west of the channel mouth create a backwater into which the lake dumps sand, and the prevailing west winds sweep sand from Wellington Beach into the channel.

ALWAYS DEEP ENOUGH

The channel would stay open, according to fisherman Pat Thomson, if it were dug along the line of the pilings which held the west bank of ac old channel. When the channel by the docks was open, according to Mr. Thompson, the channel was often narrow enough that two boats had trouble passing. "But it was always deep enough," he adds. The Department of Public Works thinks a straight channel is more likely to stay open, according to Mr. Connor. A permanent channel may be dredged next year.

But whether the channel stays open or not, Prasmen and fishermen agree that more improvement will be needed. There is talk of a new dock at the foot of Belleville St. and of a swing bridge across the channel, to provide road access to the Sand Banks area. Opening of the Sand Banks channel with proper harbor facilities is thought to offer a potential tourist bonanza to the village.

Even Countries Hardest Hit By Britain's Surcharge on Imports Welcomed Action

By REUTERS

Even countries which will be hit hardest by Britain's surcharge on manufactured imports welcomed the news of the British action Monday.

A West German spokesman said the trade - balancing measures were "severe but not prohibitive" and that Bonn understood the need for them.

In Washington a treasury spokesmen said there was no painless corrective, and that Britain had acted boldly and effectively to maintain the strength and stability of the pound.

Ottawa, too, viewed the British decision as necessary and in a brief statement a government spokesman said it had been expected.

There was evidence of relief in Ottawa at the non-discriminatory nature of the import levy, which applies equally to all countries exporting to Britain.

There had been fears before that Canadian goods would be especially restricted. The British have been making particular efforts to correct their trade imbalance with Canada.

The British currency unit increased strength in the money markets of Washington, Paris, Zurich, Switzerland and Frankfurt, West Germany.

Among the few adverse reactions was the warning by leading Swedish exporters that British's 15-per-cent import surcharge was apparently in contravention of the Stockholm convention that set up the seven-nation European Free Trade Association and of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Swedish exporters said these treaties allowed for quantitative restrictions to be imposed, but that Britain had dismantled its machinery for enforcing these.

In Geneva, the EFTA secretariat said the British statement was being studied and there would be no comment now.

In Paris, informed sources said the French government was unlikely to take any retaliatory action, because the measures were apparently a sincere bid to boost Britain's economy and France - British trade was not great enough to warrant retaliation.

In Canberra, Australian Trade Minister John McEwen pointed out that the bulk of Australian exports to Britain were food and raw materials, exempted under the surcharge law.

Toronto Council Votes 13 to 8 For Liquor

TORONTO (CP) — The thought of liquor being served in the cafeteria of Toronto's new city hall when it opens next year was too much for some aldermen Monday.

"This is the beginning of a Sodom and Gomorrah in our city hall," cried Ald. George Ben, accusing the city board of control of trying to turn the futuristic building into a midway and tavern by providing for shops, outdoor cafes, a skating rink and liquor.

"There's already a veritable moat of taverns around city hall," added Ald. Mary Temple, a long-time campaigner for temperance measures.

The furore came over a recommendation by board of control that the city apply for permissive legislation from the province for the sale or service of alcoholic beverages in the $900,000 cafeteria.

City council voted 13 to 8 to ask for the legislation.

Peace Force Guards Landing Of Turkish Force

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Canadian and Irish troops of the United Nations peace force and Australian police stood guard at the port of Famagusta Monday as 330 Turkish troops landed to relieve part of the Turkish Army contingent on the island.

In accordance with arrangements made with the Cypriot government, the Turkish troops carried no arms. They appar ently planned to pick up the arms of the departing Turkish troops.

The Turkish contingent will be stationed in barracks near the Nicosia-Kyrenia road, the key 16 - mile highway which loomed large in a month-long dispute over the rotation of Turkish troops on the island.

The road — hitherto controlled by Turkish - Cypriots — will be opened to civilian traffic as soon as the new Turkish contingent joins its national force.

Pigeons Being Used for Experiments

OTTAWA (CP) — Pigeons with small radio transmitters strapped to their backs are flying at the end of fishing lines at the National Research Council.

The birds form part of a unique research project under Dr. J. Sanford Hart of the NRC division of biosciences to learn more about the mystery of bird flight.

Birds in flight are known to generate high body tempers tures. Scientists want to know how they get rid of this energy and the amount of energy they produce.

Present theory is that energy may be dissipated through a peculiarity of the lungs on birds. Human lungs just return air to the outside but the lungs of birds first pass the air on to air sacs throughout the body of the bird.

To try to understand these questions, Dr. Hart has small radio transmitters made in NRC's medical instrument section. The transmitters, weighing less than one ounce, are strapped to the pigeon's back and the bird taken to the air attached to the line of a standard fishing rod.

As the pigeons fly the transmitters record automatically the bird's heart rate, speed of flight, beat and frequency of breathing.

Gov.-General Opens Fair

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Vanier officiated at the official opening of the annual Ottawa Winter Fair at Lansdowne Park here Monday night.

Gen. Vanier was presented with a block of Canadian chedder cheese to mark the 100th anniversary of the first cheese factory in Canada at Norwich in Oxford County.

New P. M. Does Delicate Balancing Act in Selecting Government Appointments

LONDON (CP) — Using the lingo of speed demons, political wits quip that Harold Wilson's the first British prime minister to "do the ton" in government appointments. He also did a delicate balancing act.

Most of Wilson's record 102 ministerial appointees — 100 miles - an - hour is the "ton" — were on hand as the House of Commons met to elect a speaker today. A few more appointments are expected before the state opening of Parliament next Tuesday.

Sir Alec Douglas - Home's former Conservative government had only 90 members and the size of Wilson's Labor administration caused surprise because he had indicated in advance a smaller, tight crew.

The explanations appear to be that Wilson paid political debts and took great pains to balance the various sections of the party—the radical left, centre and the right.

Wilson, an admirer of the techniques of the late president John F. Kennedy, also sought to bring into the government freewheeling experts in various fields. He revealed what one commentator called a "ministry of some talents, but all factions."

RETAINS POWER

The result of the balance among factions and personalities is that Wilson holds real power in his own hands and few likely will call all the shots as he did during the election campaign.

Wilson, 48, is second youngest in the 23-member cabinet behind Foreign Secretary George Brown, 50, and James Callaghan, 52, had their first real workout Monday as announced Britain's new economic program and seemed to go well in harness despite earlier rumors of rivalry.

As first secretary of state and economic minister, Brown fills the role of deputy premier and his new ministry entrusts some of the functions that would traditionally go to Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer.

Brown and Callaghan, along with Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, are first in the right wing of the party. They are offset on the cabinet left by such firebrands and former ban-the-bomb exponents as Tom Cousins, 60, heading the new ministry of technology, Colonial Secretary Anthony Greenwood, 53, and Mrs. Barbara Castle, 53, minister of overseas development, another new portfolio. The red - haired Mrs. Castle is one of three women of cabinet rank and three others are junior ministers.

JOB JUST STARTED

Wilson's job and only started when he appointed the cabinet. The British system provides for a whole galaxy of other ministers, law officers, ministers of state and parliamentary undersecretaries all the way down or up—to the captain of the gentlemen - at - arms who is simply the chief whip in the House of Lords.

Outside the cabinet, Wilson appointed 27 ministers of cabinet rank — department heads earning around the same $25,000 as cabinet members — and ministers of state who earn $3,750. An example of the proliferation of ministers can be found in the defence department in which Cousins presides. Denis Healey, 47, is assisted by cabinet-rank ministers and also parliamentary undersecretaries of state for each of the three services—a total of seven ministers.

Wilson, in his orgy of ministry - making, stumbled over one difficulty arising from an amended 1707 law which states that not more than 27 members of cabinet rank and not more than 70 of less than such rank may sit in the House of Commons at one time.

The premier indicated the law will be changed but in the meantime some ministers must serve without salary. Wilson picked a few of his colleagues, including Sir Charles Snow, 59, parliamentary secretary to Cousins, for life peerages and the House of Lords.

The news coverage excited particular attention because Cousins himself, until now head of Britain's biggest import union, did not run in the Oct. 15 election and has no Commons seat. A safe seat will be found for Cousins and also, apparently, for Gordon Walker, defeated in Smethwick in the election.

Canadians Speak to Vatican Council

VATICAN CITY (CP)—Three Canadian prelates—an unprecedented number for a single day —spoke in Vatican ecumenical council debate Monday to stress the importance of Christian involvement in the world's problems.

Paul Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal, Bishop Remi de Roo of Victoria, B.C., and Auxiliary Bishop Antoine Hacault of St. Boniface, Man., joined in discussion of a text on the church in the modern world.

"The main task of the Christian," said Cardinal Leger, "is not to despise earthly things and aspire only to life hereafter."

Bishop de Roo said Christ's spirit requires a positive attitude towards the world, not one of condemnation.

"The Christian," he said, "dare not consider himself as a member of a society foreign to or above the world, of a church condescendingly imparting gifts reserved by God to her alone.

Bishop Hacault said that too great a stress on the divine aspects of the church makes it appear as an external authority willing to dictate answers to all problems.

The church in this world cannot solve all the problems of all men, he said, but it must search for solutions in the spirit of Christ.

'Canada Would Do It Again' Martin Says in Interview

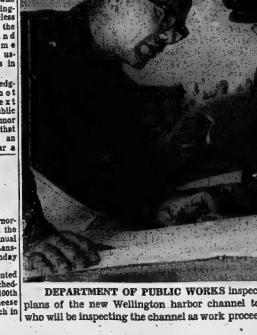
OTTAWA (CP)—"We would do it again," External Affairs Minister Martin declared Monday.

Canada, he' said, would again pay its own contingent in a United Nations peacekeeping force even if no other contributing country did.

"If we didn't, there would be a deterioration of international relations none of us would want to contemplate," he told a press conference.

Canada is paying for its 1,130-man contingent in Cyprus and the bill by Dec. 26, when the UN force's mandate is scheduled to expire, will amount to about $10,000,000.

Among the other contributing countries, only Ireland is paying its own way. The other participants are paid out of a UN voluntary fund to which the United States and Britain have contributed most of the money. Mr. Martin said voluntary contributions are the wrong way to finance a UN force. The right way was out of the UN treasury on the basis of assessments imposed by the Security Council or General Assembly.



But he didn't have "that kind of money." There would have been a "crippling effect" on over Cyprus if the UN force hadn't been established and sent there last March.

"We decided that this great concept should not flounder" because the UN itself would not finance it, Mr. Martin said.

Mr. Martin amplified at the press conference his Commons statement that 17 of 27 countries approached by Canada have agreed to attend a Nov. 2-6 meeting here to exchange technical information and experiences on UN peacekeeping operations.

"I think it should be made clear that Canada and Canadians as a whole do not relish being in the position of playing their part in peacekeeping while other nations, derelict in carrying out their responsibilities, do not assume that burden.

Mr. Martin said at the press conference that the UN is in its most critical period. Ten countries face loss of their votes in the General Assembly for failing to pay their assessed share of peacekeeping costs. By January, 19 countries, including France as well as Russia, would be in this predicament.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Cdn. H. Carter, Sports Editor

Don't laugh when you see a hockey, football, baseball or any other athletic star extol the good points of shaving cream, hair-oil, floor wax, bug killer or anything except foundation garments.

For there gold in them that commercials, something like a couple thousand for the original and a handsome fee, for reshash.

So when you see Big Joe Clutchpaw, the grid star of Slipped Disc High, praising bear grease as a detergent or deodorant, don't forget he's slipping a nice bundle of bucks into the bank account.

Of course an added attraction is that beautiful gal who gently removes your glasses, strokes your forelock, busses you on the mouth and murmurs "Have you got the nerve to try it?"

So if you want the lad to grow up to be wealthy and not work too many hours steer him—if he has the ability —to the ranks of the professional athlete.

The baseball world raised its eyes last spring when Willie Mays signed for a mere pittance of $165,000. What was not known a few days after was the fact Don Carter, well known bowling professional, inked a ten-year contract calling for a cool million iron men.

Five years ago Carter was an unknown. He capitalized on his bowling ability and for the next ten years he'll tour the country, making appearances and advertising the sponsor brand of ball. Add his tourney earnings and other assorted fees and Carter will pick up $200,000 annually. He owns a $100,000 home, and the Lincolns at 36 years of age.

Ken Venturi, U.S. Open winner, openly declared he had eaten salt tablets on the course and because of the heat, will be expected to get a commercial offer from a salt tablet company.

There's no use mentioning Arnold Palmer. His financial status is history—and likely will continue to be. Next to golf Palmer's big interest is money. He almost developed a charley-horse once while running to the bank. And someone quipped the other day that Gary Player, the great Australian golfer, got hurt in an accident. He fell off his wallet.

Here are some figures that while not as precise as those filed with the Internal Revenooers, may give you an idea of what the tops boys in sport salt away.

Willie Shoemaker, jockey, $250,000; Arnold Palmer $130,000 plus; Willie Mays, $185,000; harness driver, Bill Haughton, $90,000; auto racers, Parnelli Jones $83,000; bowlers Dick Weber, $50,000; basketball, Wilt Chamberlain, $65,000; football Jimmy Brown, $55,000 and hockey, Gordie Howe, $25-30 plus.

These are the big boys and their take from the top ranks of sport. The average per capita intake except boxing is estimated through a number of personal contacts by the experts at: bowling, $29,000; baseball, $15,000; fury, $14,000; football (NFL), $13,000; basketball, $12,000; auto racing, $9,000; thoroughbred jockeys, $7,000; golfers, $7,000 and harness driving, $6,000.

As the old village philosopher stated "them as has, gits," endorsements, speechmaking, commercials and other dollar-making gimmicks come easily to those in the seats of the sports mighty.

The Masters' golf championship has been worth up to a million to the men who have recently won, says Mark McCormack, leading business agent of golfers. The reason the Masters is played early in the spring is because it is the first event and clothing and equipment companies can sign the winner in time to endorse the new lines."

Gary Palmer, he said, actually made a million by signing among other contracts as the result of a single salutary beard adjudging "You will eat raisins whenever possible."

Another interesting note is that Johnny Unitas, the well known Baltimore quarterback has signed bowler Harry (Tiger) Brown to a five-year $100,000 contract as professional for Unitas' Colt Lanes, (18 establishments in seven states.)

It is possible that if Smith's income continues to mount, he will be considerate enough, when Unitas is washed up as a player, to purchase a football club for Johnny.

Milwaukee Braves

Request Federal Action

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves asked the federal court today to take jurisdiction in the legal fight over whether owners of the National League club should be allowed to move the franchise to Atlanta.

Counsel for the club filed petitions with the U.S. district court clerk, and with the Milwaukee circuit court, where Judge Ronold A. Dreschler already had issued a temporary injunction against the club's transfer.

The legal manoeuvre cancelled a hearing scheduled for today before Judge Dreschler on whether the injunction should be made permanent.

Ray T. McCann, counsel for the Braves, said in the petition that the club was a Delaware corporation, with principal offices in Chicago — was cause for moving the case to federal court.

Dale Hienfeldt, clerk of the federal court, said that the next step in the proceedings would be determining setting a date for a hearing, after which the federal court judge would accept the case, or return it to state courts.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY
By GORDIE HOWE

When a youngster continually falls forward while learning to skate, it is because his balance is too much on his toes. If he falls backwards, it's because his weight is too much towards his heels.

When you cut ice and are skating, you should be balanced right on the ball of the foot, right in the centre of the blade. Proper balance is a matter of individual style.

The skating position is actually a semi-sitting position with the knees slightly bent. However, some hockey players and skaters bend over a lot more than others. Those with hockey sticks have different ies, from No. 4 to No. 7 to compensate for the amount of bend and how the stick is being held.

I skate in a more upright position. However, my weight is still over the skates. I've seen some youngsters in hockey schools who were so much on their toes you could touch them on the forehead and knock them over.

As I pointed out to the youngsters, you have to be balanced on the balls of your feet. You have to have the weight equally distributed between the two feet and be well stationed.

We had a drill in which we had them skate 40 feet, then stop. We had them concentrate on stopping in centre position as though they were about to shoot, always facing the net.

If you're properly balanced, even if an opponent bells you he may go down, and you're still in position to shoot.

Another not uncommon fault among youngsters is to skate with straight strides. They get their thrust from the toe. If they had figure skating blades on, which have a serrated edge or teeth on the toes, they would have plenty of purchase.

But hockey blades don't have these teeth. So you have to toe out your blades when you take strides to get your power. One youngster who had been striding straight ahead, developed more momentum and speed when we got him striding out and pushing. His comment made me laugh.

"My gosh, this looked a lot easier when I was watching it on television."

MONTREAL (CP)—There's a pot of gold waiting at the finish line of the National Hockey League's individual point racing race, but Stan Mikita doesn't need to be reminded.

The slick Chicago Black Hawks centre earned enough bonus money last season to paper the walls of his trophy room with green bank notes. He's back looking for more this fall around and chances are excellent that he'll succeed.

Mikita picked up six points last week on two goals and four assists and opened up a four-point lead in the point parade over Toronto's Kent Douglas. Mikita has 12 points to eight for Douglas, who was shut out last week.

Third place belongs to Detroit's most consistent Red Wing, veteran Alex Delvecchio, who has seven points including four goals.

Three players, Toronto's Frank Mahovlich and Detroit's Gordie Howe and Bruce Gamby, share fourth spot with six points each and their record is of two goals and four assists. Four players are tied at the next rung with five points. Big sledding Bobby Hull of Chicago who leads in goals scored with five.

HOWE HOLDS RECORD

Hull scored three times against New York Sunday, marking the 17th occasion that he has scored three or more goals in one game. Among players still active only Howe has a better record with 12.

The early Vezina Trophy lead belongs to Montreal's Charlie Hodge, who has given up nine goals in five games for a 1.80 average.

Although Chicago's Glenn Hall has a better record—four goals against in three games—the trophy is awarded to the regular goaltender on the team that's scored the fewest. The Hawks have allowed 12 goals in five games.

Rookie Roger Crozier of Detroit leads in shutouts with two, both recorded last week. Hall and Hodge each have one shutout.

Detroit has yet to make the total of penalty minutes accumulated with 102. Montreal is the least penalized club with 68 minutes.

New York's Arnie Brown, a rookie defenceman, is challenging the established "bad guys" fo. the individual lead. Brown has 20 minutes in penalties.

SENT TO ACES

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Lemaire, an 18-year-old centre with Montreal Junior Canadiens has been sent to Quebec of the American Hockey League to bolster the Aces injury-hit attack lineup. The parent Montreal Canadiens said Lemaire will be in uniform for Quebec's league game against Baltimore tonight. But will return to the OHA Junior A Canadiens before his amateur eligibility runs out.

Two Games To Play
Lions Need Win To Finish Tops

CALGARY (CP)—British Columbia Lions can take first place in the Western Football Conference and a bye into the playoffs if they defeat Calgary Stampeders in Calgary Wednesday night.

Lions, with 21 points after their 30-3 thumping of Saskatchewan Roughriders in Vancouver Saturday night, only have to win the Stampeder game or their encounter with last-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Vancouver next Sunday.

Stampeders, with 22 points after squeezing a 17-16 win over Edmonton Eskimos in Edmonton Saturday night, would have to beat Lions and Lions would have to lose against Winnipeg to give the Stampeders a first-place finish.

But the Lions have defeated the Stampeders in their last two meetings, 21-4 and 13-7, and have won five straight from them over the last two years.

The last game cost B.C. guard Tom Hinton, who has pulled ligaments, and Neal Beaumont, out with a knee injury. Indications were that they will not play in B.C.'s last two games.

The Lions have taken 220-pound import guard Willie Taylor off their reserve list and placed him on the active roster, likely to replace Hinton.

Beaumont's loss means the Lions will be without two regulars in their defensive backfield Wednesday night. Steve Shaffer, who also is the Lions' reserve quarterback, is still recovering from a knee operation.

Stampeders, meanwhile are on the mend and there's a good chance halfback Jim Dillard will be in the line-up after breaking a bone in his ankle Aug. 17.

Coach Bobby Dobbs wants to play Dillard if possible as the versatile back can benefit from game conditions before heading into the playoffs.

If Dillard plays, import Paul Dudley would have to be removed from the active roster to make room.

All-star tackle Don Luce, who suffered a strained ankle against Montreal Alouettes, is not expected to play.

Centre Dale Parsons and end Bruce Claridge, who have seen only brief action since their respective injuries, have been pronounced ready for full - time duty by the Stamps' medical staff.

To make room for Taylor, the Lions will have to place import halfback Lou Holland on the reserve roster. Canadian Bill Leavitt will take Holland's spot at left half beside Willie Fleming.

Sawchuk Will Face Chicago

TORONTO (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, Toronto Maple Leaf general manager and coach, said Monday that Terry Sawchuk will be in the Leaf nets in their two games with Chicago Black Hawks during a rough schedule of four games in six nights this week.

The Leafs face the Black Hawks tonight at Chicago and again at home Saturday. They meet Montreal Canadiens here Wednesday and travel to Detroit for a Sunday game against the Red Wings.

Imlach made the announcement after a brief one-hour workout. Although regular goalie Johnny Bower has a slight shoulder ailment Imlach said he's confident he has nothing to do with his selection of the former Red Wing netminder for action against the Hawks.

"I planned to use Sawchuk against Chicago before I knew about Bower," he said.

"The game schedule should clarify the National Hockey League standings. since the Leafs and the three clubs they face are all tied for first place with seven points apiece. Toronto and Montreal each have three wins and three ties while Chicago and Detroit have two victories, two defeats and two ties apiece. Detroit, with only one game this week, should be well seated for the Toronto game.

Liston left a trail of seven damaged sparring partners in Plymouth before bolting out. Williams he dealt out several broken ribs to Leroy Greene at his training camp here.

Will Sign With Bruins
Bobby Orr Next NHL Super Star - Patrick

By JERRY GLADMAN

OSHAWA (CP) — March 21, 1968 is a date to be circled on calendars of National Hockey league fans who lean towards Boston Bruins, cellar - dwellers the last few years.

On that date, Bobby Orr, five-foot-10, 168-pound defenceman, is expected to sign a pro contract with Bruins it will also be his 18th birthday

Orr can be found three days tolling behind the blueline for Oshawa Generals, an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A farm club of the Bruins With still four years of junior eligibility left, Orr has been earmarked for greatness in the NHL.

"This boy will be the NHL's next super star," says Boston's general manager, Lynn Patrick.

Orr, only 16, has impressive credentials to back up Patrick's confidence. In the 1963-63 campaign, Bobby made the second all-star team with Oshawa in the Junior Metro League. The mere fact that he was playing junior hockey at 14 was a feat in itself.

The following year he scored 30 goals to break the junior record of 29 for defencemen, established two years before by Jacques Laperriere, then with Montreal Junior Canadiens and now a second-year man with the NHL Canadiens. Laperriere was 20 when he set the record, five years older than Orr.

Bobby was also the lone unanimous choice for the 'league's first all-star team.

The fact that he is Boston property doesn't bother the modest, handsome defenceman, despite the Bruins' habit in recent years of finishing last. He has always been pro-Boston.

"I want to play for the Bruins," he says. "They're building for the future and they have the making of a good club. I want to be there when they do make it."

Wren Blair, general manager of the Generals, calls Bobby "the finest 15-year-old hockey player I've ever seen." He compares Orr to Doug Harvey, great defenceman with Montreal and New York Rangers.

"He's a much better junior than Harvey was," said Blair. "I'd also say he's as good a prospect as Bobby Hull was when he left the junior ranks."

Wren first spotted Orr as a 12-year-old bantam with a team from Parry Sound, the Oshawa boss had gone to scout two other players on a Gananoque team playing against Parry Sound.

"I found myself watching Bobby," Blair says. "I was completely taken up with him."

Later that spring Blair brought Orr to Patrick's attention and, in June, arrangements were made to sponsor the Parry Sound team. Placing Bobby on a sponsor's dirt saved him from the draft.

"We convinced Bobby's father he should sign a junior card," said Blair. "He was already 14. By getting him on the sponsored list he would be eligible for the draft by the time he was 16."

The ruling is that any player on a sponsor's list prior to Feb. 10, 1963, was off the draft list.

Bobby agreed to try four games with the Generals to see if he could handle himself in junior competition. He stuck with the team and arrangements were made for him to commute from Parry Sound to Oshawa in order to complete Grade 10. Later he moved to Oshawa where Blair says he is "an excellent Grade 10 student."

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Sazio's Hamilton Tiger - Cats have clinched first place in the Eastern Football Conference with one game left to play, but without the steady toe of placekicker Don Sutherin it would have been a scramble to the wire.

Supposed To Die At 33, Now 72

Fresh Air Therapy Saved Golfing Granny

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mrs. Opal Hill was 30, ill with a kidney ailment and anemia and not expected to live more than three years when her doctor recommended she take up golf as fresh-air therapy to prolong her life.

Now she is 72, a great-grandmother with a house full of trophies. She won more than 200 tournaments in her amazing career but she doesn't live on memories.

She teaches golf to pupils aged 16 to 60, serves as a nurse in hospitals and private homes, referees in city tournaments and helps her neighbors when they are sick.

Mrs. Hill can still shoot an 80 on the golf course and complains she can't work more than a round or two a week into her schedule.

She looks 15 years younger than her age. More important to her than her trophies is the philosophy of life she developed in her fight back to good health through golf.

"I learned that courage is even more important than good health," she said. "If you lose your courage, you've lost everything."

Mrs. Hill was gracious, even-tempered and one of the most popular figures in women's golf in the 1930s and 1940s.

"I always felt if I lost a hole it wouldn't be the end of the world," she said. "I was grateful just to be healthy and playing golf."

When Mrs. Hill turned pro in 1938, she and Helen Hicks were the only two women pros in the world.

Mrs. Hill helped organize the Women's Professions' Golfers' Association. Her husband died in 1942 and she played in only a few pro tournaments.

The women pros recognized her contribution by giving her an honorary lifetime membership in 1955—the only one they have awarded.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor,

Income Tax Department

This is one of a series designed and written to assist the working taxpayers who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

Many taxpayers are at a loss to know what income is taxable if it is other than salary, wages or from investments. In most cases where they have written to me, the information could have been found on the return or the instruction sheet that came with it.

The most common query was in regard to the sale of a Dominion of Canada bond. The only amount taxable is that which is received in excess of the face value, of the bond. If a $100 bond was sold for $102.30 then it is only the $2.30 that would become income. This should be reported on the line designed as "Interest."

Many letters have also been received in regard to old age pensions. This is taxable income and should as shown on the return in the space provided for that purpose. The taxpayer only shows as income the amount he received. If his wife also gets the pension, then he uses what she received to reduce his exemption for her. This is done by deducting her total income for the year from $1,251 as outlined on all returns.

Do not report any amount received for war disability pensions, unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation or family allowances. If you are a beneficiary in a life insurance policy, the amount received should not be shown as income, this also applies to sweepstake winnings, bingo games, drawings, etc.

The amount received from a fire insurance policy need not be reported, if such an amount was spent to repair or replace the burned property within one year from the time of the damage.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five-cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I was out of work for three months and drew unemployment insurance. Do I have to show this as income?

ANSWER: No.

QUESTION: I now get a War veterans allowance commonly called the "burnt out pension." Is this taxable income?

ANSWER: No. It need not be shown on your return.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

Four-Time Winner of the Masters title

THE POWER OF POSITIVE PUTTING

Successful putting—finding up the slack, sighting and finally stroking the ball—depends primarily on your attitude. Positive thinking on the green can make a technically poor putter successful. Negative thinking—"If I miss this one, I'll never break 90 today"—will destroy good putting style because you cannot stroke a putt properly if anxiety has made you tense.

I suggest you try picturing the ball following proper line into the hole. Do this when you sight the putt (1) and then retain this image when you are over the ball, riveting your eyes to the back of the ball. Merely tell the ball along the line you have in your mind's eye.

It will take some practice to develop this power of visualization, but I guarantee that once you master the technique your putting will improve.

ALL NEW FOR '64! ARNOLD PALMER'S "HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR PUTTING"! Learn pay-off putting techniques — grip, stance, line-up, stroke! Get your copy of this brand-new booklet by sending 20c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Arnold Palmer, c/o this newspaper.

Born in Canada

He Makes Reputation As Playwright in U.K.

By JOE MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Canadian playwright George Hulme is taking another step up the British prestige ladder—and hopes that one day soon he will find recognition in his native land.

Bristol's Old Vic theatre has decided to show Hulme's first major work, Displaced Affections, in November, a tribute to the play which has already been seen in London, Hamburg and Dublin.

"I'm very proud about that," said the 35-year-old expatriate. "And my second work, In the Shape of Eve, has won a City of London prize over nearly 1,000 entries."

Hulme added, a trifle wistfully: "That is the one I would particularly like to see produced in Canada."

Born in Orillia, Ont., and educated in Hamilton and Kansas City, Hulme has known ups-and-downs in the classic tradition of the theatre—since coming here in 1952 to study at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama.

He has run a club in London's Bohemian Soho, stoked boilers in a maternity hospital, worked on a construction gang and as a night club waiter.

GIVEN FELLOWSHIP

In the theatre world he has worked as stage manager and as an actor in a host of parts, mostly classical, with three repertory companies throughout Britain.

"Oddly enough, I liked playing a roughneck more than anything else."

His big break came three years ago when he was awarded a two-year fellowship by Bristol University, the first Canadian so honored by the college whose drama department is the oldest in Britain and still holds a non-resident fellowship.

"It was once asked why I did not apply to the Canada Council," he recalled. "During the tough times I did apply—three times running, and I had the best of recommendations. But they didn't even ask to see a script."

In the shape of Eve was commissioned by the British Arts Council and Hulme now has a third play, Paul Vere.

Eve, in a Canadian setting, is the story of a top advertising executive who, betrayed by his wife, suddenly understands that he has also failed to realize his artistic promise.

Paul Vere, a study in desperation, shows how circumstances sometimes seem to conspire to drive a man to commit a crime such as murder or suicide when, in Hulme's opinion, he would be wiser "simply to walk away."

ORTHODOX SETTING

Displaced Affections, earlier known as More Like Strangers, shows in a theme of alcohol what Hulme sees as a basic breakdown of communications between parents and adolescents. The setting is an Ontario town.

The play was first produced at London's Royal Court theatre on a Sunday night after Hulme had spent six harrowing years on the fringe of British theatre.

These Sunday night presentations at the theatre that John Osborne made famous are prestige shows, produced cheaply, without decor, and with little in the first Nielsen audience ratings after the three major networks had launched their new fall schedules. It had five shows in Nielsen's top 10.

Although it is expected that post - election Nielsen reports will be more accurate yardstick when public relations broadcasts no longer interrupt regular scheduling, projections of audience samples made during two weeks ending Oct. 11 show NBC's Bonanza is the most popular program, followed by two new comedies, ABC's Bewitched and CBS' Gomer Pyle, USMC.

A save - the - Emmy awards committee of the National Academy of Arts and Sciences, stimulated by last year's withdrawal of comedy by CBS and ABC, has come up with a new awards plan. The statuettes will be given, henceforth, on the basis of excellence in broad areas, rather than in numerous rigid categories. Anyway, there will an Emmy show next spring, even though CBS' Fred Friendly is still objecting.

New Panel Show Makes Debut on NBC Network

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Another panel show designed to lighten the house-wife's burden slipped unobtrusively into NBC's morning lineup Monday. Called What's This Song? it apparently inherited its format from Password, and its gimmick from Name that Tune.

The idea is to have each two-man team, including the usual celebrity name the song the or chestra is playing and then have one of them sing correctly the first two lines of the lyrics.

First team to make 20 points then must identify several tunes in a row for a bonus.

Songs to be identified in the opening program were obviously chosen to make the home audience feel smart. They were Hello, Dolly, which is hard not to recognize, I Left My Heart in San Francisco, Sentimental Journey and Yes, Sir, That's My Baby.

As had been anticipated, the American Broadcasting Company made a dramatic showing without decor, and with little Remember Contino?

Once on the Top, Tries for Comeback

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—In 1950, Dick Contino was one of the most popular 20-year-olds in North America, entertaining with his accordion act at $4,000 a week or better. He couldn't fill all the engagements offered him.

A year later he came out of prison, his earnings zero and counting. His friends "on one hand, from the middle finger back," and was drafted by the U.S. Army.

The young Californian, who had been in national prominence on a popular radio show in 1947, was convicted of draft evasion in August of 1950 and sentenced to six months imprisonment.

Now 33, Richard Joseph Contino is married to singer Leigh Snowden, who performs with him on night club dates around the country. They have five children.

"Without my wife I would have gone to the bughouse a long time ago," he says.

WOULD START ANEW

Reflecting during an engagement here on his return to show business in 1954, he says:

"When I first went back after the army, people would come once, and on return engagements they stayed away. I guess they just wanted to see me, and once was enough, sort of like watching a car wreck or freak.

"Somebody once told me I could never make it big again in show business because people don't want to see a coward on stage. I don't know if I'm a coward, and I don't think any man really does until there's some kind of a test."

Contino is bitter about the publicity over the draft evasion charge as contrasted with what he feels was a lack of publicity for the 16 months he later served in the army in Korea.

Although he has condemned much over what made him try to escape the army, he is only little more than half answer now than he was in 1950.

"Everybody said the reason I didn't go into the army was I didn't want to give up all the money I was making for soldiers," he says. Well, one would. But that wasn't the reason.

"It was mainly the idea of being all alone I didn't like. People say everybody feels alone is or out of the army, but I don't think they're talking about how I felt.

AFRAID OF LONELINESS

"From the time I was a kid, I wouldn't even go to the store alone. I wouldn't say I was scared to go alone, but I would always manage to get a cousin or somebody to go with me wherever I went."

He says now he has overcome most of his fears about being alone, of relying too much on his music for companionship.

"Now, I've got a little better perspective on things. For safety the accordion, but it's not the only thing in my life. I've got my family and some other outside interests to keep me going."

Contino now enjoys a steadily increasing demand for his talent, although he has not regained the pay or popularity he enjoyed in his heyday.

Family Man Bobby Darrin 'Even a Little Humble'

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bobby Darrin, stripped down to his shorts, stuck out his head for an application of suntan makeup, and displayed the new Bobby Darrin.

He signs, he smiles, he can explain complicated tax situations, he works five days a week, loves being a family man and reads the New York Times on weekends.

He's even humble—well, just a little.

"Yeah, I know I said I'd be a star at 25 and an institution at 30. I don't consider myself a star yet—the stars are people like Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Elizabeth Taylor.

"But remember, I've still got two years to go before I'm 30. Bobby looked contentedly around his wood-panelled dressing room, complete with stereo, refrigerator and color set. Then he frowned.

"Hey, George," he called to his man Friday, "How's about getting someone to dust this place. It hasn't been dusted in weeks."

After successful years as the brash, somewhat angry, sometimes rude young man, Bobby is looking for a new image. Maybe it's because he is still angling to be an institution, maybe it's because he's getting older, or maybe it's because marriage to actress Sandra Dee and being the father of a newborn child who have softened his outlook.

LIFE IS UPSIDE DOWN

Bobby life is pretty upside down of what it was before.

"I'm off night club appearances except for a date decided against that even before Sandy and I separated and got back together again.

"I don't want my wife and child to have a gypsy life."

Now I work five days a week and have nights and weekends off. "On Sundays, I can read the New York Times—all the way through—and a lot of other papers."

Even there's Father Darrin.

Bobby was minus the trousers for a comedy scene in his new movie, That Funny Feeling, his third co-starring with his wife.

In between shots, he heaps labs by phone on his music publishing firm, TM Music Inc., which he started with partners ago.

"It grossed $300,000 the first year and $400,000 the second," boasts tycoon Bobby. "The possibilities are unlimited.

"And I've got a great producer, Gerry Melcher. He ought to be. Look at his background." Terry is the 27-year-old son of Doris Day and husband Marty Melcher.

Bobby's not making his own records because of tax complications, but he has Wayne Newton in his stable and cut a hit with Pat Boone recently.

Fish-Breeding Now Prevalent In Red China

By ADAM KELLETTLONG

PEKING (Reuters) — The Chinese government has introduced a draft law to protect and develop the country's already considerable fish resources.

Newspapers here have praised the law as a "great step forward" and called on local authorities to test its provisions thoroughly during a routine trial period.

The law sets out scores of types of aquatic products, from shrimps to whales and sharks, which should be protected and the minimum size and age at which they should be caught. It also empowers local authorities to ban fishing at times and places which they consider necessary.

The Chinese Communist regime has paid great attention to developing fishery production.

The Chinese coastline of more than 6,250 miles provides extensive fishing grounds and the fresh water area is also extensive. River basins cover nearly half the country's area — and there are thousands of lakes, big and small.

In the past, sea fish made up the greater proportion of aquatic products. But, since 1958, freshwater - fish breeding has been vigorously undertaken in reservoirs and lakes.

When China began to recover from a food crisis two years ago, the improvement came first in vegetables and fruit and then in fish supplies. Now fish is sold openly and off the ration in Peking and other large cities.

The most of the forbidden city, former home of the Manchu emperors, has been turned into a fish-breeding area. Every month or so, one can see youths and girls working in huge dragnets teeming with thousands of plump fish for sale in the city markets.

Many rural peoples' communes, especially in the low-lying central provinces which abound in rivers, lakes and ponds, have brigades or teams whose main income is derived from fish-breeding.

Givens, Lamport Seeking Mayor's Chair in Toronto

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Two heavyweights, both literally and in terms of political experience, are locked in electoral struggle for the punishing job of mayor of Toronto.

Philip Givens, 42, and Allen Lamport, 51, both bulky 200-pounders with experience in the mayor's chair, are campaigning in earnest for election Dec. 7 after a year of sparring in city council, where Mr. Givens is mayor and Mr. Lamport is senior controller.

Both are well aware that the job they want as chief executive of Canada's second-biggest city (after Montreal) demands the gyrations of a social butterfly combined with the energy of an overworked corporation chief.

"You need the hide of a rhino, the stomach of an ostrich and the stamina of a bull," says Mayor Givens, who took over last November when Donald Summerville died of a heart attack at 48 before completing the first year of his two-year mayoralty term.

But both Mayor Givens and Controller Lamport, who was mayor for 2½ terms in 1952-54, appear to thrive in the grinding pace of an office that oversees the annual expenditure of almost $200,000,000—more than Denmark's annual budget—and the direct employment of 6,300 persons.

STARTED ON BOARD

Mayor Givens, a product of the Spadina garment district who worked his way through university, left university and school, entered municipal politics via the board of education in 1951.

Controller Lamport, longtime resident of the high income Rosedale district, turned to insurance and real estate after attending exclusive Upper Canada College. He entered politics in 1937.

He was elected alderman 1946-48, controller in 1948-50 and then mayor, resigning in mid-term 1954 to become Toronto transport commissioner.

In the last municipal election two years ago he polled the second-highest vote total after Mr. Givens—85,291 to 87,051—among nine candidates for the four positions on board of control.

Nobody is predicting the outcome Dec. 7 with any confidence. Mayor Givens has a record as an able administrator going for him but Controller Lamport, a spectacular campaigner, has fooled the experts in past battles by turning a likely loss into a victory.

He "Stumbled" Into Craft Now Is Top Shoe Designer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A young floor sweeper, tempted by his surroundings at the shoe factory in which he worked, made himself a pair of shoes 38 years ago on his mother's sewing machine.

"Boy was she mad," recalls Frank O'Gradnick.

Mother's anger failed to nip Frank's career as a shoe designer, a profession in which he has gained fame as the man responsible for the Hush Puppie range of footwear in Canada.

Mr. O'Gradnick, now 45, has graduated from his mother's sewing machine—"I sure was proud of those shoes"—to designer for one of Canada's major shoe manufacturers Greb Shoes Limited of Winnipeg and Kitchener, Ont.

He stumbled into the business in 1926 when he quit school and journeyed from his hometown of Brandon, Man., to Winnipeg to get a job with Western Canada Shoes.

"My first job in the company was sweeping the floor, but I wanted to know about everything going on and that same year I started introduced to cutting work."

Mr O'Gradnick worked on the production line at Western Canada and Canada West Shoe Manufacturing Co. Ltd. for the next six years before fate turned him to designing. He joined the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corp and was posted to a boot-rebuilding plant in Montreal where he grasped the opportunity to take a course in shoe design and pattern making.

STARTED OWN FIRM

He put his new-found skill to work upon rejoining Canada West in 1945, designing a number of the Goodyear Welt range of footwear.

In 1948, he joined fellow Canada West employee Stan Matsukalis to form a new footwear company called the Stan-Grad Shoe Company, which specialized in baby's and children's shoes.

Stan-Grad later amalgamated with Canada West, which in turn was absorbed by Greb in 1959.

He believes the ability to "daydream a bit" is one of the ingredients of success in his profession, as a practical knowledge of the production process—the most economical way to cut a piece of leather, which pattern will fit best into factory outline—and what people want in style. He gathers information by reading scores of fashion magazines and peering in store windows.

"It's hard to say just when and how a new idea emerges. Sometimes it's from talking to people, sometimes from a picture in a magazine, sometimes the idea just seems to come out of the blue."

His most productive ideas has been the Hush Puppie. Greb figures to produce 1,500,000 pairs in this range this year.

Western Canada's only resident shoe designer, Frank O'Gradnick suggests to those who would follow in his footsteps:

"Learn as much as you can about your own plant operation and the manufacturing process used by others.

"Examine all footwear you see, critically and analytically, deciding on a manufacturing method and attempting to improve on it, if possible. When you have done this, the next step should be either a course outside Canada — this country has no formal training courses for shoe design—or an apprenticeship under an established designer."

STARTED YOUNG — Frank O'Gradnick of Winnipeg started creating shoes when he was 17 — on his mother's sewing machine. Now he designs shoes for Greb Shoes Limited of Kitchener, Ont. and Winnipeg. He gets ideas for his creations from fashion magazines, store window displays and "daydreaming a bit."

New Committee Named in Printers Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) elected a new negotiating committee Sunday in an effort to break the deadlock in a strike against the three Toronto daily newspapers now in its 15th week.

The union went on strike against the papers—the morning Globe and Mail and the afternoon Star and Telegram—July 9 with the introduction of computers to perform some composing room functions a key issue. The papers have continued to publish, using newly hired employees and supervisory personnel in composing rooms.

A membership meeting voted overwhelmingly to release its old seven-man committee and replace it with a new one of three, plus the local president.

The meeting also requested Elmer Brown, International president of the ITU at Colorado Springs, Colo., to come to Toronto if and when his presence might be helpful in settling the dispute and obtaining a new agreement.

The new committee is expected to draft proposals aimed at meeting points raised by the publishers in their terms of settlement.

Britain Needs Time To Arrange Nuclear Plans

Won't Stall on Problem Walker Tells Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States officials hope Prime Minister Harold Wilson will be ready to make concrete proposals for organizing a NATO nuclear weapons force when he comes from Britain—for talks with President Johnson in about six weeks.

The NATO nuclear problem was the major issue passed in conferences with Johnson administration leaders Monday and Tuesday by the foreign secretary of Britain's new Labor government, Patrick Gordon Walker.

Gordon Walker told a press conference Tuesday the British government needs time in which to formulate specific plans in the NATO nuclear weapons field.

He also assured U.S. officials that his government does not intend to stall on the problem for the sake of delay. Indefinitely action within NATO on a U.S. proposal for a nuclear force of surface ships (known as the MLF)—which would be jointly owned and manned by participating countries.

Johnson's deadline for getting concrete proposals on formation of such a force has been the end of this year. It now is unlikely that this deadline can be met although U.S. officials made clear it has not been formally abandoned.

The Labor party's approach seems to be that a broader concept for a NATO nuclear force is necessary—some kind of plan which would cover not only any seaborne force but also land-based nuclear weapons in the NATO area of Western Europe. GERMANY WANTS ACTION

While Britain has stressed the need for delay, the United States has been under pressure from West Germany to act on the MLF with all possible speed. West German leaders privately have stated that if other NATO allies were unwilling to participate, West Germany and the United States should act alone to conclude an MLF agreement by the end of the year.

The U.S. is reluctant to make such an agreement with West Germany alone since the U.S. aim in the MLF has been to enlist the participation of as many allied countries as possible.

Washington authorities now look to direct Anglo-German talks to produce some understanding on timing which may be satisfactory all around. Gordon Walker plans to meet with the West German Foreign Min-

25 Per Cent Affected By Surcharge

OTTAWA (CP) — It now appears that less than 25 per cent of Canadas exports to Britain will be affected by the new British import surcharge.

The previous government estimate of 33 per cent was scaled down Tuesday after comparing the detailed surcharge exemptions with Canadian exports to Britain in the January-August period.

Those exports totalled $702,-219,000. It now is estimated that a surcharge of 15 per cent would apply to approximately $182,200,000 worth of these goods or roughly 22 per cent of the total.

Thus in one sense Canada will be better off than her major competitors in the British market. The surcharge will apply to about 77 per cent of British imports from the European Common Market and some 85 per cent of her purchases from the U.S.

However, the surcharge because it applies to all manufactured goods and many semi-fabricated materials hits particularly hard at government trade promotion efforts.

HITS METALS

The other major category affected is "fabricated materials," an export classification that includes all the lumber and metals and covers about half Canada's total sales to Britain. These sales reached $398,698,000 in the January August period, up nearly 35 per cent from a year earlier.

Some of these materials will be exempt from the surcharge.

For example, metals shipped just as they emerge from the smelter or refinery will not be taxed on entering Britain. This includes aluminum ingots, copper refinery shapes, zinc and lead pigs and blocks, nickel ingots and so on.

Similarly, rough - sawn lumber will be exempt but dressed lumber will be subject to the surcharge. Wood pulp will be exempt, but newsprint will be taxed. Almost all Canadian chemicals also will be subject to the surcharge.

Completely exempt is the foodstuffs category. This year eight - tenths shipments under that heading totalled about $200,000,000, approximately the same as last year.

Farm Woes Are Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC shorbed another shellacking in the Commons Tuesday, but unlike the previous day when it was given undivided attention, the corporation was forced to share Tuesday's spotlight with eastern farm problems.

As the Commons paced itself toward another date with the flag issue Thursday, the CBC was charged with violating broadcasting regulations and ignoring the views of Parliamentand between such blasts, the Commons was told that eastern farmers are in a terrible state.

The heaviest criticism against the CBC Tuesday came from Milton Klein (L—Montreal Cartier) who charged that the corporation broke broadcasting regulations by interviewing the American Nazi party leader Sunday night, George Lincoln Rockwell was interviewed on the program This Hour Has Seven Days.

Broadcasting regulations prohibit any offensive programs likely to excite any public disturbance or disorder, said Mr. Klein. They also prohibit any abusive comments on any race, religion or creed. The Rockwell interview had violated these regulations.

"If Rockwell had applied to the immigration authorities of Canada for entry in Canada in an attempt to make a speech . . . in some beer hall . . . he would not have been permitted to enter Canada. . . .

"Here we have the CBC bringing Rockwell into every living room throughout the length and breadth of Canada completely in violation of the immigration regulations of this country."

Mr. Klein called it "yellow television."

Robert Prittie (NDP—Brusnaby-Richmond) said relatively little time is devoted by the CBC to controversial programs "and if people are shocked now and then, what of it? You cannot please all the people all the time.

"The average member of Parliament is probably not a very good art critic," he said.

Eric Winkler (PC —Grey Bruce) said, however, that he had a transcript from recent CBC shows that were "too base, too vile" to be placed on the record of the house.

Mr. Winkler was from an Eastern Canada was given an airing by the Credits leader who charged the government with ignoring the problem.

Goldwater Not Entitled To Air Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — An evenly divided federal appeals court refused Tuesday to rule that Senator Barry Goldwater is entitled to equal radio-television time to reply to President Johnson's address to the nation on world affairs.

By splitting 4 to 4 on the case, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals let stand a Federal Communications Commission ruling that Johnson's Oct. 18 report was an act of office and therefore, news event, exempt from the equal-time law.

Goldwater appealed the 6 to 0 FCC decision, requesting that it order the FCC to insist that the three broadcasting networks provide equal time to the Re-

Canada Sparks Sharp Hike In U.S. Foreign Investments

WASHINGTON (CP)—American private capital poured into Canadian manufacturing in 1964 is expected to reach $710,000,000, or a third more than last year, the United States commerce department says.

A report calls the figure a "significant upward revision" from the comparable estimate for last year of $434,000,000.

Actual 1963 capital outlays in the Canadian manufacturing fields by American private companies was $535,000,000.

Says the report: "The revision of spending plans cut across several Canadian industries and was much greater than in prior years.

"It suggests stronger expectations of continued growth in the Canadian economy and in foreign markets for some of these manufacturers.

"Recent actions of the Canadian government residing proposed increases and providing credit against certain import duties when exports of automotive components are increased may also have induced some investment."

Other major conclusions are that U.S. foreign subsidiaries in 1963 scored significant gains in sales totalling $31,300,000,000 or 13 per cent more than in 1962 with subsidiary sales by Canadian plants $1,000,000 higher at $10,400,000,000.

But the scale of such sales to the U.S. remained relatively constant at around $1,000,000,000 and Canada retained the major share as more than $20,000,000,000 worth of exports.

For 1964, U.S. companies have projected total capital outlays on foreign plants and equipment of $5,200,000,000 or 18 per cent more than last year. Canada's slice of this, including manufacturing, would be about $1,500,000,000, or roughly a quarter.

Aside from the manufacturing component of $710,000,000 this includes an estimated $300,000,000 for the Canadian petroleum industry compared with $375,000,000 last year, plus $224,000,000 in mining and smelting against $195,000,000 in 1963.

Tentatively, the commerce department estimates American investment in Canadian subsidiaries for 1964 at a total $1,400,000,000 or down from the 1964 forecast.

Manufacturing would be $53,000,000 lower at $657,000,000 and the mining investment $22,000,000 lower at $224,000,000.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS'

TUESDAY, Oct. 27, 1964

The Commons debated the government motion for authority to spend some $760,000,000 to meet November and December bills.

Milton Klein (L—Montreal Cartier) said the CBC broke broadcasting regulations by carrying an interview with American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell Sunday.

He got no reply from State Secretary Lamontagne when he asked whether Rockwell got a fee for his appearance on This Hour Has Seven Days.

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) called for the permanent Commons committee to give Parliament control over the CBC.

Mr. Lamontagne announced the government has appointed a five-member royal commission to look into control and limitation of election spending.

Augusts Choquette (L—Robinson) introduced a law that the government would have to consult bar associations and judiciary members before making high court appointments, which he said had become political.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 28

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue the interim supply debate. The Senate stand adjourned until Nov.

Highest Defence Budget

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence spending in the 1963-64 fiscal year rose to its highest point in the last seven years, officials disclosed Tuesday.

Despite slashes in some navy and RCAF equipment programs, defence expenditures in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1964 amounted to $1,633,471,003, the biggest outlay on defence since the $1,759,426,000 spent in 1956-57 when the Liberal government was last in office.

The Liberals, who again assumed power in April, 1963, have promised to reduce expenditures on defence department housekeeping — military personnel costs and operations and maintenance—and increase spending on new weapons and equipment.

But in the last fiscal year the trend was in the opposite direction. Military personnel costs rose to $650,895,011 from $631,-234,615 in 1962-63 and operations and maintenance costs soared to $716,234,836 from $605,180,074 the previous year.

In fact, these two categories of defence expenditures rose to their highest point in the peacetime history of the armed forces.

RISES SLIGHTLY

Spending on equipment rose slightly to $252,286,479 from $258,368,788 but as a percentage of the total defence budget there was practically no change.

Officials said it was not expected that the government's policy of switching some maintenance costs to new equipment would take hold in the first year.

The defence budget for the current 1964-65 fiscal year is $1,536,000,000. It calls for a cut of nearly $250,000,000 in personnel, operations and maintenance costs in favor of new gear from which many officials now say they doubt will be achieved.

The new budget for the 1963-64 increase in housekeeping expenditures was a $46,000,000 overrun by the armed forces and a $76,500,000 additional government contribution to the armed forces' pension fund.

Water Levels Will Affect Seaway Route

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The St. Lawrence Seaway route will not be completed until the water levels of the Great Lakes are controlled, the director of the Great Lakes Institute of Toronto said Tuesday.

George B. Langford made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery to a conference on latitude of Pollution Control and read by Dr. Albert E. Berry, secretary-treasurer of the pollution group.

The channels of the St. Clair and Detroit rivers have been deepened to 27 feet, he said. This had allowed a much heavier flow of water to escape from the lakes and, combined with low rainfall, had resulted in a low-water level on the lakes.

He added that if the Great Lakes are not protected, they would turn into a wasted heritage.

Wilson Summons Conference On Rhodesian Crisis

UN Committee Says Situation Is Grave

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today summoned a meeting of ministers to discuss latest developments in the Rhodesian constitutional crisis.

Those attending included Defence Minister Denis Healey, Colonial Secretary Anthony Greenwood and Admiral Earl Mountbatten, chief of the defence staff.

Tuesday night a Labor government spokesman said he could rule out the possibility of British troops being used to prevent Southern Rhodesia's government from declaring the east African territory independent.

"This is a question which does not arise," Commonwealth secretary Arthur Bottomley told reporters when asked about the possibility of British military action.

Wilson made no mention of military action when he warned Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith Tuesday of the consequences if his white-minority government declared independence without the approval of the British Parliament.

Wilson said Rhodesia would be guilty of treason and banished from the Commonwealth and face certain Bottomley economic and economic isolation. Both the Labor government and its Conservative predecessor want Rhodesia's ruling white minority to agree to a constitution promising the black majority eventual control.

UN SAYS 'GRAVE'

In New York, the United Nations special committee on colonialism called Tuesday night for talks with the British government on the "gravity of the situation" in Rhodesia. The committee also told the Security Council of the possibility of a unilateral declaration of independence by Smith.

In Lusaka, capital of neighboring Zambia, James Chikerema, ousted Rhodesian African leader, said Rhodesian black nationalists will form a government in exile if Smith declares independence.

Chikerema called on Britain to send troops to "restore law and order" in Southern Rhodesia, last remnant of the former Central African Federation.

The Guardian in an editorial says the independence issue could drive Rhodesia "into the arms of South African Prime Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd.

TO RUN FOR MAYOR

OTTAWA (CP)—Joseph Louis Paradis, a retired steamfitter who has made the unsuccessful bids for a board of control seat, announced Tuesday he will run for a civic office next year in the Dec. 7 civic elections. Controller Don Reid and Frank Ryan, executive director of the CFRA, already have announced they will seek the mayor's chair. Mayor Charlotte Whitton has not yet said definitely what she will do.

Zambia Astronauts Prefer Love to Moon

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Edward Mickelson has been designated himself Zambia's minister of space research, and says the United States and Russia may lose the race to the moon.

Mickelson's usual job is organizing the Lusaka Rent and Rate payers Association in Kitwe, Zambia's second independent Zambia, formerly known as Northern Rhodesia, in central Africa.

Zambia became independent of British Saturday and adopted its new name, derived from the Zambezi River. Approximately as large as Texas, Zambia has an estimated 3,600,000 residents.

Space is Nkoloso's real enthusiasm. He says:

"I'll have my first Zambian astronaut on the moon by 1965. My spacemen are ready but we are having a few difficulties."

Nkoloso has a rocket—a 10-foot, 6-inch paper affair. It struggled six feet off the ground recently, using the Mukwa propulsion system. This, he explains, was an African firing system derived from the catapult. He adds:

"To really get going I need about £700,000,000 ($2,100,000,000). It sounds a lot of money but imagine the prestige value this would earn for Zambia.

"Then I've had troubles with my spacemen and space woman. They won't concentrate on space flight—there's no such lovemaking when they should be studying the moon."

Matha Mwamba, 17, has been chosen to become the first black woman on Mars. Two volunteer astronauts are going through a toughening-up program.

Nkoloso explains:

"I'm getting them acclimatized to space travel by placing them in my space capsule every day. Its a 40-gallon oil drum in which they sit and I then roll them down the side of a hill. This gives them the feeling of rushing through space. I also make them study from the ground a long rope. When they reach the highest point I cut the rope—this produces the feeling of free-fall."

Nkoloso really lives the character. He has built up around himself. He wears a shock-proof helmet and lashes a rubber water bottle around his chest.

Rummaging through a battered brief case he pulled out a space comic book.

"I get a lot of ideas from this," he said. "So have many American and Russian scientists. Some people think I'm crazy — but I'll be laughing the day I plant Zambia's flag on the moon."

'Conceited Men, Masculine Girls' Made Australian Official 'Sick'

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Percy Cerutty, former Australian track and field coach, said today Australia's "conceited" men and "unfeminine" girls were athletes at the Tokyo Olympic Games made him sick.

Cerutty, 64, who was Australian coach at the Helsinki and Rome Olympics, went to Tokyo as a spectator.

He told reporters on his return that "Australian women Olympians were among the biggest bunch of flat-chested, big-shouldered females ever collected.

"Their feats do not heighten Australia in the eyes of the world. We are looked upon as a semi-masculine country."

And the "conceit" of some of the male athletes had made him "very annoyed and very sad for Australia," he added.

Cerutty, who coached many top Australian runners including miler Herb Elliott, praised Australian 400 metre gold-medalist Betty Cuthbert and other members of the women's team for upholding Australia's medal - winning reputation, but said women in Olympic athletics are "the absurdity of absurdities."

"We are not making them pretty with their strained faces and strings limbs," he said.

"This grind and sweat idiocy is something we must educate our girls to leave to the men."

Collected To Date $69,000

This Time Last Year $31,921

Belleville United Appeal topped last year's total collections yesterday, and it's still going up. Money turned in at the Appeal office in the Kinsmen Centre last night totalled $62,949.96 and about $6,900 has been collected but not yet turned in, putting total collections for up around $69,000. Grand total in last year's campaign was about $68,700. Less than $32,000 had been turned in at an equivalent stage in last year's campaign.

Two employee canvass groups turned in collections yesterday, both groups showed heavy increases over last year's gifts. Teachers at Albert College gave $425 this year, nearly twice the $218 they gave last year and employees of The Ontario Intelligencer gave $704, an increase of more than $100 over last year's total. Forty-four employees of Bell Canada and CFRA, already have announced they will seek the mayor's chair. Mayor Charlotte Whitton has not yet said definitely what she will do.

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Bertha May Harris, 17, of Kingston, was acquitted Tuesday she started keeping company July 17 with Basil Dee Lemmon, 24, of Odessa and they planned to get married after he obtained a divorce from his wife.

Lemmon has pleaded not guilty to a charge of capital murder in connection with the July 27 shooting death of his estranged wife, Judith Mae, 20, at their home near Odessa, 19 miles west of Kingston.

Miss Harris testified at the opening day of the Ont-ario Supreme Court trial that on the evening of July 27 she, Lemmon and his wife had driven to the couple's home to fix a car he had promised her.

She said that during the drive to the house, Mrs. Lemmon told them she was pregnant by a man other than her husband.

Before leaving for Kingston, Miss Harris said Lemmon asked his wife to step back into the house to talk to him. She said he had a gun in his hand.

LEFT KITCHEN

She said that moments later, Mrs. Lemmon came out of the kitchen door and half turned around. Miss Harris said she then heard a shot and saw Mrs. Lemmon fall face down on the porch.

After she ran into the house, Miss Harris said she saw Lemmon standing near the stove reloading the gun.

"I asked him to stop," she said. "I told him 'you'll do it.' She quote him as saying, 'No, I am going to kill her.' "He pushed me aside. He looked like a crazy person—weird. I got scared, started screaming and ran out of the house."

She said she ran only a short distance when she heard another shot and then saw Lemmon get into his car and drive away "like a madman."

HEARD SHOTS

Two other Crown w.tnesses, Frederick Earl Lemmon, the accused's 18-year-old brother, and George Timmerman, a brother - in - law, both testified they heard two shots while standing outside Lemmon's house July 27.

Frederick described his brother as looking as if he was "in a stupor or daze" as he ran out of the house.

Earlier, Lemmon's mother, Mrs. Norman Lemmon of Odessa, said her son was "wonderful" to his two sons.

Basil's father said that on the night Judith was shot he "heard one shot" and a few minutes later saw his son leave the house with a gun in his hand and drive away.

The parents live nearby.

BCI Football Games Switched To Thursday

The Bay of Quinte COSSA Junior and Senior "A" football doubleheader between Picton's Prince Edward Collegiate and BCI's has been changed from Friday to Thursday of this week.

A BCI spokesman made the announcement today. The switch was made because of the graduation ceremonies scheduled at the Belleville school Friday night.

Picton and BCI Juniors will meet at 6.30 Thursday, and the senior game will start at 8.15, both games under lights.

On Friday, Moira S.S. and Brighton also meet in a twinbill at the Fairgrounds. These games have been exchanged from the afternoon to 6.30 and 8.15 at night, also under the floodlights.

Walter Elliott Gives Land for Road Allowance

City council this week voted to accept from Walter T. Elliott the dedication of a widened street allowance running west from North Front Street a distance of 1,200 feet.

The roadway would open up property to the rear of Mr. Elliott's hotel on the south on North Front Street. Eventually it is expected that the roadway will be continued through to the former Mossman property and Sidney Street.

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board sees the new artery as the main travelled roadway following the full development of the Northwest Belleville area.

Civil Servants Worried About Red Spying

LONDON (AP)—The treasury said Tuesday it has warned 650,000 civil servants that the Russians are out to recruit three kinds of spies in Britain. The ideological one, the money hungry one and the one who can be blackmailed.

A 59-page booklet cautioned the civil servants against being tempted into spying for the Kremlin.

Earlier, Lemmon's mother. Mrs. Norman Lemmon of Odessa, said her son was "wonderful" to his two sons.

Basil's father said that on the night Judith was shot he "heard one shot" and a few minutes later saw his son leave the house with a gun in his hand and drive away.

Kiwanis Hears Talk on Arab Republic

Representative of the Arab Republic, Mr. Hadawi, Hadawi, M.B.E., spoke to the regular dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville on Tuesday, explaining Canadian-Arab relations.

Mr. Hadawi explained that part of his job was to try to improve relations between his country, Canada, the United States and Germany.

Canada, he stated in his country, he stated, and as we grow from seven to 13, we are becoming the envy of the world as people who were running around in the desert on horses, an Arabic Knight with a woman clung to his bosom or an Arab armed with a sword coming in goods were carried by camels.

None of this is true he told the meeting and added that the only camel he'd ever seen one boy or girl that did not speak more than one language. "They speak at least two," he said.

Mr. Hadawi said he would challenge anyone in the meeting who could speak his language as he spoke theirs.

The speaker pointed out that two-thirds of the world's oil reserve is found in Arab country.

YMCA May Outgrow Self

Opened just five months ago, Belleville YMCA's new building may soon be outgrown before it's a year old, YMCA general secretary Di Diamantides said yesterday. He told a reporter that membership in the YMCA was about 800 people, including all family memberships, just before the move from the downtown Campbell St. location to a spot near Victoria and Herchimer. Membership at the end of last month, he said, was 1,508 people and there are now 173 family memberships. The new building is adequate to serve about 1800 members.

Better facilities, a residential location and programs if both East and West Hill are the reasons for the booming membership, Mr. Diamantides thinks. Programs are conducted by YMCA's building itself, in the gymnasium at Moira Secondary and in Prince Edward and Queen Elizabeth public schools.

Opened in 1911, the old YMCA building on Campbell St. served only 350 members when Mr. Diamantides took charge in 1952, he said. Membership reached 1,100 once since then, but hovered usually between 800 and 900. Membership at the end of this month will be about 1,800, he said.

Health Plan For Province Not Yet Ready

TORONTO (CP)—Dr J. C Hagey, chairman of the committee appointed by the Ontario government to study a health insurance plan for the province, said Tuesday night the committee is still hard at being drafted and its final form has not been determined.

He added that the report should be ready by the end of the year.

The Globe and Mail says the 14-member committee will recommend a voluntary scheme with government subsidies for those who cannot meet the premiums.

The newspaper says coverage will be provided through private carriers—insurance companies and doctor - sponsored groups. It says the recommendations are within the terms of Bill 163, Ontario's proposed Medical Services Insurance Act, and follow the pattern of medical insurance legislation introduced by Alberta last year.

Dr. Hagey declined to confirm or deny The Globe and Mail report.

But Dr. Arthur Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said the report as outlined is consistent with CMA policy.

Not Trying To Slant News Says Robarts

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Premier Robarts said Tuesday that if the government's policy of producing its own taped radio television and news releases is found to not be working out, the idea may be dropped.

He held a press conference, however, that the program for providing taped releases free to radio and TV stations in the province has not been used to a large enough extent as yet to determine whether it should be discontinued.

"Everyone seems to think that we're trying to slant this thing for political purposes," Mr. Robarts said. "This is not the case."

WASN'T SURPRISED

Mr. Robarts said he was not surprised at the "unfavorable news" criticism the policy drew from the opposition parties. However, he said the criticism of the amount of newspaper editorial comment against the idea.

"If it proves not appropriate thing to do, we may drop it," he said.

Premier Robarts said 15 members of his cabinet arrived here from Port Arthur by air Tuesday on the second stop of their three - day tour of northern and northwestern Ontario.

LYNN, Mass: (AP)—A college girl was held today in the strangling of an elderly widow.

Police withheld the girl's name. No formal charge has been filed against her She is reported to be a college student in Boston and a former mental patient.

Killed was Mrs. Mabel S. St. Clair, 63. Her body was found beside the bathtub in her apartment. A nylon stocking was knotted around her neck.

The girl was found lying in a hallway outside Mrs. St Clair's first-floor apartment. Other residents in the building said she was screaming and told them she had swallowed 100 to 200 aspirin tablets.

More Attention Must Be Paid To Relatives

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Philip D. Bonnet, administrator of the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital in Boston, said Tuesday that hospitals must pay more attention to the relatives of patients.

He told the annual Ontario Hospital Association conference a hospital's public image depends on what the patient's family thinks.

"Sick people as a rule are not highly critical, but grateful for what is done for them," he said. "This is not true of the family."

Yet relatives are not looked after, Dr. Bonnett said. There is no provision for them to feed while they wait in hospitals. They are given no information about the patient's condition.

He said that the old custom of discouraging children from visiting hospitals must stop. The old idea was that they should be protected from unpleasant experiences and infection.

"But there is little danger of infection today and children are much tougher than they used to be," he said.

He added that children should be conducted on tours through hospitals and allowed to work in hospital auxiliaries.

Minister Defends Ontario Hospital Services Com,

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Services Commission has made great advances in medical care with only a slight infringement on the authority of hospital boards, Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Tuesday.

He told the annual conference of the Ontario Hospital Association that a "few persons who hanker after the "good old days" and complain of lost autonomy since the commission was instituted in 1959 are being unrealistic.

Pre-commission days might have meant more autonomy, but they were also an era of mazes of financial debt, staff shortages and inadequate facilities, Dr. Dymond said.

Dr. Dymond said that since 1959, phenomenal advances have been made in hospital bed space, staff, wages, hospital equipment and fringe benefits.

DEBT DROPS

In the first three years of the plan, the capital debt of 104 hospitals dropped to $48,000,000 from $59,000,000 and the number of debtor hospitals to 81. In the same period, a general account covering all hospitals was turned into a surplus of $11,800,000 from a debt of $2,900,000.

"When I hear trustees being exhorted to form a solid front against the government I get the feeling that we are facing a state of siege and I despair for the future," the health minister said.

Incoming President R. Alan Hay told the conference that 32 hospitals with more than 100 beds each and another 94 smaller ones still do not have official accreditation — indicating the hospital meets established standards of care.

Bomber Crashes in Flaming Bits, Killing Nine, Injuring 36 Persons

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—A jet bomber skimmed low over a crowded swirling stand, then faltered, hit a power pole, and smashed in flaming pieces across the centre of a navy base killing nine persons.

Among those who died were the three members of the crew of the A-3D-1 jet bomber.

The other six victims were men in buildings near the runway of the El Centro naval air facility,—where the plane crashed during a parachuting demonstration.

Thirty-five persons were injured, six critically.

The 70-ton jet came apart in the air after one wing snagged on a telephone pole. A shower of blazing wreckage scattered 400 yards across buildings and parking lots, setting two major fires, smashing buildings, setting autos afire.

Women and children were among the victims.

Blazing jet-fuel showered much of the quarter - mile of impact area.

Chief Given Six Months to Organize Force

BRAMPTON Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Police Commission has recommended that Chief Constable Frank Keates, 52, be given six months to reorganize the Brampton police department.

If the chief is not then able to perform his duties satisfactorily, the Brampton police commission could take the "necessary action" to correct the situation.

Included in a list of the department's short-comings compiled by Robert Kerr the Ontario commission's adviser on police services, were:

1. The chief's office was in a state of confusion; his desk was covered with letters, files and reports.

2. The chief had little knowledge of his department or of the town. He had no knowledge of his department's 1964 budget, the area of the town, number of miles of town streets, or crime or accident records.

3. Money paid for parking fines was found loose in an outer office.

WERENT INVESTIGATED

The report said Chief Keates had not investigated applicants for police work until after they had been hired. He could conceivably hire a criminal, the report added.

The report said Mr Kerr found evidence of a complete lack of supervision and inservice training. No member of the force had ever received basic training.

The chief constable joined the department in 1941, became a sergeant in 1944 and chief in 1945.

The report commended him as a "good" field policeman, but because of lack of training and education he was a "poor" administrator.

The commission was asked last August by the Brampton commission to investigate the department.

There are 24 men on the police force in this town of about 26,100 20 miles northwest of Toronto.

U. S. System Choosing Pres. Clear as Mud

By CARMAN CUMMING

NEW YORK (CP)—It may be clear to the natives, but to a stranger in the United States, the system by which Americans choose their president and vice president is as clear as Mississippi mud.

To begin with, not one of the 70,000,000 or so Americans who go to the polls next Tuesday will vote for Lyndon Johnson or Barry Goldwater.

Instead they will vote for electors of their party who in turn will —probably —vote for their party's candidate Dec. 14.

In practice, the U.S. electoral college has become almost ritualistic link between the voters and the candidates. This is so because most of the electors are pledged to vote for their party's ticket, made up of the presidential and vice - presidential candidate.

Occasionally, however, unpledged electors in close elections may kick over the traces and vote for someone other than the official party nominees. Theoretically and legally they have complete freedom of choice.

Each state is allotted as many electors as its total of senators and representatives. New York, with 41 representatives and two senators, has the highest total of 43 electoral votes. The states with the smallest population — Alaska, Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wisconsin — have only three, equivalent to their two senators and one representative.

The party with the greatest vote in each state captures all of its electoral votes, thus accounting for the emphasis on the big states in the race for American system.

The electors in each state are chosen by the various parties from among their adherents. In some states their names are listed on ballot alone. Other states, to make things simpler, list the names of the presidential and vice-presidential candidates. Still others now name only the candidates, although the voters still in fact cast ballots only for the electors.

There are 538 electors this year — equivalent to the 435 seats of House of Represent. atives and the 100 Senate seats plus three electoral votes allocated to the District of Columbia by a constitutional amendment in 1961.

A total of 270 electors' votes is needed for election. If no candidate receives a majority, the House of Representatives decides among the three top candidates, with each state casting one vote. This hasn't happened since 1824. Other more complicated procedures are prescribed by the constitution if this method also fails.

Not Too Many Think of Santa Claus Parade

TRENTON — While most Trenton citizens are shouting "hurrah" about the unexpected eye to the annual fuel cons able warm weather, with an sumption, there's one man in town who is literally gnashing his teeth over the balmy breezes. And that's Nostrand Sprague, secretary manager of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Sprague is also heading up the Santa Claus Parade committee, and says he can get no one, but no one, interested in submitting parade entries. The 14 entries received to date are far below the number usually in by this time of year. Greatest need is for floats and majorettes or other marching groups.

The parade is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 21, and Santa Claus has already been booked for the event.

Heavy Damage In Collision At Intersection

TRENTON — A Consecon youth, Wayne Larry Clark, 18, was treated in the emergency ward at Trenton hospital yesterday afternoon, following a collision between a panel truck and a car at the corner of Water and Wall Streets, in North Trenton, around 3.45 p.m. He was kept in the hospital by Rushnell Ambulance.

Clark, who was driving a Walter Thompson Wholesale truck, suffered lacerations to his forehead. The truck was damaged to the extent of $1,000 according to police.

The driver of the other vehicle, Joseph Alfred Beaugrand, 21, of James St., Trenton, was not injured. His car was damaged to the extent of $900.

The truck spun out of the collision and struck a hydro pole on the east side of Water St., shearing off the pole. Damage was set at $150.

Constables Roger Camp and Norman Mallory of the Trenton Police Department, investigated.

Orillia Lawyer Killed by Train At Crossing

ORILLIA (CP) — Wallace Card, an Orillia lawyer who represented former Orillia mayor Wilbur Cramp at a preliminary hearing on charges of municipal corruption and conspiracy last month, was killed Tuesday when his car collided with a train.

The accident occurred at a level crossing on a private road leading to Camp Sunrland, a Young Men's Christian Association camp 20 miles northeast of here.

Hit by a Canadian National Railways passenger train, the car was scattered for half a mile down the tracks. Mr. Card was thrown about 120 feet from the crossing.

He was taken to Soldiers Memorial Hospital here, but was dead on arrival. The body was taken to Oshawa for an autopsy.

No one was injured on the train—a diesel engine, one passenger car and a baggage car. The train was not damaged.

Mr. Card, 52, was a native of Orillia. He served on the Orillia town council for about eight years.

Square Dancers Entertain at County Home

TRENTON — The Hastings County Home was the scene on Monday evening of a visit and entertainment provided by the RCAF Trenton Squares Adult Square Dance Club.

Thirty members of the Airforce club, fully attired in today's modern square dance dress, provided a display of square dancing, round dancing and dancing in contra-lines. Popular dances to familiar tunes, such as "Swanee," "Indiana Home," "Tavern in the Town" and "When You Wore a" Tulip" brought back many memories to the residents, who, it was obvious, were most anxious to get up and share in the gay dances being performed.

Ernie Dempster, caller for the RCAF Fairs and Squares, introduced the dancers and emceed the program. He was assisted in calling duties by two club members, Leslie Jackson and Bruce Wright.

With a wonderful round of applause from the residents, the Airforce club was thanked by the management of the Charge Lawyer With Theft

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Cator, 33, a Toronto lawyer disbarred last month for what the Upper Canada Law Society said was misappropriation of clients' trust funds, has been charged with theft in connection with money allegedly taken from Toronto clients for investment in mortgages, police said today.

Police said Cator was charged after a couple said they had lost almost $30,600. Additional charges are pending, police said.

Township Will Elect Central School Board

TRENTON — Voters in Murray Township this year will be asked to elect a five-man central school board, in addition to a reeve, a deputy reeve and three councillors.

On Jan. 1, education in the township will come under a central authority, and, as soon as feasibly possible, smaller, isolated schools will be shut down and the children from a fairly large area taken by bus to a central school. The feeling is that the children will be given more educational opportunities this way.

Meanwhile, an experiment is being carried on in one township school. Selected children, who are "slow readers," according to the judgment of their teachers, are being taught reading during a Saturday morning class. Far from being upset about one more half day of school in the week, the children are all eager to attend and are made to feel "privileged," so great is m fact, that rumor has it the "normal" readers leave school Friday night with distinct feelings of envy.

The 1965 Trenton Court of Revision will start its deliberations tonight at the municipal office. Chairman this year is Councillor Edward Todd. More than 120 assessment appeals are before the court.

Home and amid bandshakes from the audience, promises were made for the club to return to the Home next year.

The visit to the Home was arranged by RCAF club member, Jack Millar.

Child Suffers Broken Wrist

TRENTON — A six-year-old Carrying Place area girl, Beverley Montgomery, was treated in the emergency ward at the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday morning for injuries she received when she ran into the side of a car on Highway No. 33 near the Murray Canal.

The child suffered a broken left wrist when she ran into the side of the car driven by Dennis Farnsworth, of Essex, Ont.

Council Passes Bylaws to Seek Voice of People

TRENTON — At a special meeting of town council Monday afternoon, two bylaws were passed, and those eligible to vote on money bylaws, in the Dec. 7 municipal elections will be asked if it is their wish that council should petition the Ontario government to devise some way of making larger educational grants available to municipalities and if they are in favor of town council making an annual grant to a town band.

Smarting under the whiplash of rising educational costs, Trenton council would like to see other provincial centres obtain the "voice of the people," on the issue, and copies of the Trenton resolution have been sent to all municipalities for consideration.

If the eligible voters say "yes" to a municipal band grant, the 1965 council will be free to make such a grant, as will councils of the future, and the amount would depend upon the circumstances, the request for the bands and the discretion of council. The Trenton Citizens' Band, through its secretary, D. R. Fraser, has asked for a $600 grant for next year.

Suspend Sentence On Youth

TRENTON — A 19-year-old area youth, convicted last week on a theft charge was given a two-year suspended sentence yesterday, required to post a $100 bond and to pay a $25 fine. Magistrate T. Y. Wills passed the sentence on Arthur McCauley of R.R. 2, Trenton, convicted of theft of tools, a tire and a wheel from a truck owned by the Bernard Electric Company. The articles, valued at $45, have been returned.

Three other area youths were convicted last week on the same charges, and required to pay a $25 fine. The three are Clifford McGraw, 16, of R.R. 2, Trenton; Patrick Rogerson, 16, of Murphy St., in Trenton and Maurice Waters, 18, of Victoria Ave., in Trenton. One previous conviction had been registered against McCauley, none against any of the other three youths.

Donner Und Blitzen!

Ah, well! Someone wants the CBC investigated again.

This week it is the Canadian Legion, provoked beyond measure by the network's Sunday night interview, at public expense, of George Lincoln Rockwell.

Rockwell is the self-styled leader of the American Nazi Party who has laid claim to the mantle of Hitler as the late fuehrer's apostle in North America.

While the Legion was seeking an inquiry, Jewish leaders were filing a protest and picketers were parading outside the CBC's Toronto studios.

As the indignant petitioners were rising to the occasion, viewers across the country were being treated to what will surely prove a memorable event of the CBC's year.

In rapid succession Rockwell dismissed vast populations blocs as "creeps," "queers," and "coons," all candidates for extermination.

It should have sounded grotesque, but his bland sincerity made it well-nigh hilarious. And the hilarity was only heightened by the staging, the ritual which Goebbels made such an integral part of Nazi occasion. Rockwell, mounted on a dais, resplendent in uniform—and flanked by a solemn file of storm troopers. It was beyond a scriptwriter's wildest dreams.

However, the interview served the serious purpose to which it was dedicated. It allowed society to identify a member of its lunatic fringe and put him in his proper perspective.

The occasion can now be filed away for future mental reference should the need arise.

A pity in a way Dr. Goebbels was not around to see it. Undoubtedly, the good doctor would have been stricken with apoplexy. As Hitler's chief of propaganda, Goebbels was the man responsible for putting over the big Nazi lie that brought his fuehrer to power.

But, Donner und Blitzen, Rockwell told the truth about himself.

After all you taught them, these young Nazi whipper snappers have not learned a thing.

Eh, Herr Doktor?

Needled Pay Boost

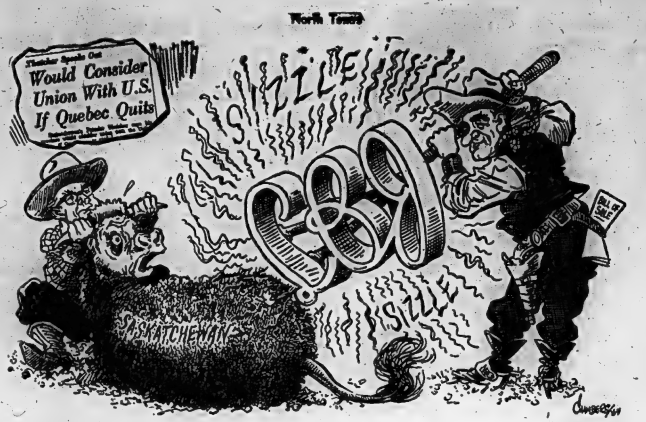
Premier Robarts intends to increase the salaries of members of the Legislature. There should be no quarrel with his proposal.

At first glance remuneration of $5,000 and $2,000 expenses may seem adequate for public representatives called on to attend sessions which rarely total three or four months of the year.

However, a legislator's lot is not to be appreciated in terms of attendance at formal sessions of government. There is committee work; there is the fact he is the local representative of government and must attend the problems of his constituents.

Undoubtedly, the increase will be most welcomed by those out-of-town MPPs who are the great majority of the Legislature's membership. The expense allowance hitherto has worked only to the advantage of those Toronto-and-district members, resident at home, and easily able to attend their business even during sessions.

There is, however, a more vital advantage to Ontario in Mr. Robarts' proposal.



The increasing complexity of modern-day provincial affairs is best illustrated in terms of public expenditures. Last year's budget was close to $1.4 billions. Government not only is big business today. It has become the biggest of businesses—even on a provincial scale.

The calibre of its administrators must be gauged according. Only by making public office sufficiently remunerative can government hope to attract representatives capable of matching the responsibilities vested in them.

School rules are necessary, but how depressing if the young either became too spineless to break them or cultivated chips on their shoulders when punished for being caught—Eric Dehn, a British teacher.

I think the present racial policies of the South African Government stink. — Sir John Maud, former British Ambassador to South Africa.

Cells Constantly Die, but Are Replaced by New Ones

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was reading, in your column about body cells constantly renewing themselves. I would like to know something about sickle - cell anemia. Two of my children have it. Why do nose bleeds cause them to need transfusions? The doctor says there is no cure. — Mrs. E. H.

Yes, cells are constantly dying and being replaced by new ones — enough new ones to balance those that die.

But when some abnormal condition occurs, and more than the usual number of cells are lost, new growth may not be sufficient to replace them.

The body cannot keep up with repeated or big continuous blood loss, although it can tolerate some loss very easily — that's why we can donate to blood banks without harm.

In the case of sickle-cell anemia however, this is more than merely a problem of blood loss. It is so named because the red blood cells, when looked at under a microscope, take on a crescent or sickle-shape instead of being round as is normal.

Sickle-cell anemia is confined almost entirely to Negroes. The disease follows an irregular course, with patients appearing normal for a time, after which the trouble flares up again. Bleeding, whether from the nose or sometimes from kidney or bowel, can occur. The patient not only is losing blood but the body is not creating normal cells which he needs. So transfusions are necessary. This, indeed, is the only means of aid. The patient is weak, may have violent abdominal pains and sore throat and sometimes jaundice (yellowness) of the eyes.

This mystifying disease is being studied extensively. I know of groups of doctors in my own locality who are doing so, and without question others are at work on it in many parts of the country. You can be sure that the scientific world will hear about it as soon as new knowledge of significance is obtained, but much effort is required to find the secrets of diseases. The sickle-cell trait is inherited.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have your booklet on how to take care of the head lice and would like to get anything about ASHD. I take peritrates, digitalis and dinril, and brought them with us when I moved to another city, but have not consulted a doctor in my new home. I'm afraid I need all these medicines? — I.C.

You will find ASHD synonymous of heart disease." Or in simpler words, hardening of the arteries is impairing the efficiency of your heart.

The medications you mention all make sense, and I would continue them until you consult a physician. He very likely will continue the medication, unless there is some change in your condition.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is in love with a fine young man but he happens to be the son of my first cousin. We are concerned about their marriage because the relationship may be too close. — Mrs. R. M.

The marriage of first cousins presents a risk because if they both carry dominant hereditary faults, these may multiply strongly in their children. But in this case, it is not a problem of first cousins — only the son of a first cousin, and the hereditary relationship is too remote to be of consequence.

West Talked Secession

By Art. Manteil

In the Winnipeg Free Press

Quebeckers aren't the first people to talk about their province seceding from Confederation.

A secession movement originated in Saskatchewan in the 1920's which, had it been successful, would have included that province with British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba and part of Ontario into the independent republic of Coalsamao.

Coalsamao was the brainchild of a Prairie radical named Edward Partridge, who was widely known as a social missionary and prophet of occupational justice for farmer and working man.

He got the name for his republic by combining the first two letters of Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba and adding O" from Ontario.

Partridge, first president of the Grain Growers Association, which he was instrumental in forming in 1908, made his case for the republic in a book called A War on Poverty.

In a boondoggled poetry-press diatribe covering some 200 pages, Edward Partridge called on the people of Western Canada to throw off the shackles imposed by eastern big business, who he claimed were turning once-independent farmers and working men into serfs through manipulation of the government and through control of the money supply.

He called for a new social order for his new country. It would be organized along military lines with self - sufficient units called camps — each containing not more than 7,000 inhabitants.

Each camp would elect one representative to serve on a high court whose duty would be ensuring law and order with a minimum amount of governing.

The Republic of Coalsamao never caught the fancy of the three million inhabitants of Western Canada. Partridge died in 1931 at the age of 69 with his dream unrealized.

What a delightful tolerance to the comment of Sir Maurice Bowra, warden of Wadham College, Oxford: "With one or two exceptions, colleges expect their players of games to be reasonably literate."

Strictly Personal

All Depends On Whose Ox Is Gored

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Of all our national mythologies, the one about the self-reliant Westerner is the most persistent — and the most patently false. Yet it is rarely challenged by anyone in possession of the facts.

Therefore, it tickled me when no less an authority than the chairman of the history department at the University of Texas delivered the coup de grace to this myth at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association earlier this year.

Joe B. Frantz, the Texas historian, asked the group: "Is the tradition of a West where men stood alone against their environment, waiting only for an response, and least of all their government — is that tradition tenable?"

He went on: "When that long-legged son-of-a-gun stands up at a Cattlemen's Convention or at a Chamber of Commerce banquet in Tucson, or at a governor's conference in Hawaii, and when he issues a blast at an all-consuming Federal encroachment . . . he is historically sound, or has he swallowed a whole hunk of hemash when chewing it first?"

After these fine rhetorical flourishes, Frantz settled down to a long and damning recital of the way in which the "rugged, by independent Westerner", despite his courage, could not have triumphed over his environment without vast and multifarious governmental help.

He talked about the early Federal land grants, the mineral rights, the granting rights, the granting of railroads, the subsidy-built bridges, roads and telegraph lines, the Federal irrigation loans and such current aids as oil depletion allowance, defense installations, Federal drought relief and hydro-electric power programs.

"The truth is," Frantz said, "that the Federal government is the major stockholder and underwriter of the American West, and that most of those portions of the West which hum with economic excitement are constantly being replenished with Federal funds. . . the truth is that from start to finish (the Westerner) was subsidized from his brogans to his sombrero. . . and that the research may well prove that of the three or four historic regions in this sectionalized land of ours, his was the one which received — and still receives — the most assistance from a Federal government. . .which always, like a watching parent, was there."

Ironically, the only legislative creation of Senator Goldwater during his 12 years in Congress is his sponsorship of the $1.5 billion Central Arizona project to provide Federally-financed dams and reservoirs — while at the same time, he opposes TVA as "socialism." Apparently, what is socialism in the East is "human necessity" in the West. It all depends, as Luther said a long time ago, whose ox is gored.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 28th, 1944

On Thursday of last week a large timber wolf was shot in Madoc township about a half-mile south of No. 7 Highway, and a few miles east of Madoc village.

Some time ago, due to heavy losses among sheep owners and residents in the township council, a bounty of $25 was placed on wolves. This was in addition to the existing bounty paid by the government. One wolf was shot in the northeast quarter of the township, but the one shot recently was the first in the south quarter.

At the present time they are full-furred and the specimen displayed was one of the best. This means keeping a strong control over costs.

Mr. Sharp leaves himself open to such charges as the one launched by London's MP, Jack Pickersgill in the effect that, by the minister's own account, the economy had started moving in reverse before the last election. This is undoubtedly true. So is the possibility that some of the moves were not costless. Our economy has a history of ups and downs usually reflected by conditions outside our country and presumably outside the control of whichever government is in power. But the government which, rightly or wrongly, is tagged with responsibility when things turn sour, and blameless in the days when they go well.

According to the Financial Post current expansion should last for at least another five months, and could be a long period without a major break. And that seems to be the same view as that held in the U.S.

But, we can hardly expect a continuation of such windfall booms as the Russian wheat purchases — at least not on the present scale. And there is no reason why the Finance Minister may not to meet its growing balance of payments problem by raising our barriers to imports from Canada. European Common Market countries have been going through a period of adjustment, though there are signs that some of them, like Italy, are beginning to emerge.

Mr. Sharp does well to warn his countrymen that continuance of prosperity is not automatic, but depends to a considerable extent at least, on what we do about it.

Prosperity Not Certain

London Free Press

In Canada it has been traditional for trade ministers to be optimists, at least in recent years. Hon. C. D. Howe did not have to work hard extracting sunbeams from cucumbers, because for the greater part of the time he was minister of trade and commerce our economy really was booming. Hon. George Hees was a natural optimist, and the fact that he held office during a time the economy tended to contract was merely an added challenge.

Hon. Mitchell Sharp is a realist. While he admits that Canada is enjoying good times both in home and abroad, he finds it necessary to warn his countrymen of possible breakers ahead. Keener competition is to be expected on the world market and Canadians must be prepared to meet it. This means keeping a strong control over costs.

Mr. Sharp leaves himself open to such charges as the one launched by London's MP, Jack Pickersgill in the effect that, by the minister's own account, the economy had started moving in reverse before the last election. Letters to the Editor

Wants Grade 13 Arts, Music Class

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I hope you will be kind enough to print my letter as I would like to bring to the attention of the public the matter of Art and Music being an accredited subject for Grade 13 and there is no Grade 13 Music or Art being taught in any of the secondary schools in Belleville.

It seems there isn't enough call for it to merit a class, and it means that a pupil who has taken Art for four years cannot finish the secondary Art course in Belleville. This to me seems a crying shame. It means that a student must pick up a foreign subject at Grade 13 level and drop one taken all through secondary school.

I would therefore appeal to all those who have a child in Grade 13 Art (or Music, which is also in the same predicament) and who wish them to continue to take the necessary steps to assure a class for 45-46.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market lost ground for the third time in as many days during moderately heavy morning trading today.

Industrial losses were only fractional. Abitibi and Aluminium each clipped ¼ to 14¾ and 23¼ respectively, while Bell Telephone and CPR dropped ⅛ each to 59¾ and 53¾.

Rothmans, Montex Holdings and BA Oil each added ⅛ to 23⅛, 13 and 34⅜.

In speculative activity, Canadian Keeley tacked on 11 cents to 39 cents and traded more than 111,000 shares. Key Anacon was ahead four cents to $2.34.

Gold trade was light with Giant Yellowknife off ¼ to 14¾.

Hudson's Bay rose ¼ to 15⅜ in poor western oils trade. Oil index, industrials fell .25 to 165.12, the TSE index .23 to 151.16, golds by 140.43 and base metals .18 to 71.61. Western oils rose .10 to 92.41 and volume at 11 a.m. was 1,439,000 shares compared with 947,000 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

Some industrial issues appeared to be reacting to the imposition of import taxes by the British government. Most stocks in this category were paper companies.

Great Lakes dropped a point to 30, while favorite MacMillan Bloedel dipped ⅛ to 35¼ after trading as low as 34⅝.

Brunswick Mining and Smelting — on the heels of an announcement that it will build a steel mill in New Brunswick — acted like a penny mine. The stock sold as high as 16⅝, as low as 14¼ and traded 79,065 shares. It closed at 15⅜, off ⅛. Falconbridge attained a high for the second time in as many days by adding ⅛ to 81, while Inco and Craigmont each gained ⅛ to 92 and 16⅞ in other senior base metals activity.

Move to Take Religious Teaching Out of Schools Has Many People Worried

LONDON (AP)—A move to take religious teaching out of Britain's schools has some Church of England people worried. They feel many parents just can't be trusted to see that their children are taught religion at all.

The teaching of scripture and a daily act of worship is compulsory in both state and private schools under the Education Act of 1944. Each child must have a minimum of one period of religious instruction each week. And, because the Church of England is the state-established church, the teaching usually conforms with Anglican theology except in cases such as Roman Catholic schools.

While Britain's expensive and exclusive private schools long have had staff clergy to act as chaplains and teach religion, most state schools keep the scripture period to the strict minimum; others just ignore it.

TAKE STRONG STAND

North London parents, answering a recent quiz from the Social Advancement of State Education Association, came out strongly against religious instruction in schools.

"The majority thought religious instruction should be taken out of the school curriculum and left to the churches," said a report compiled from their replies. "Some did not wish their children to be taught views they do not hold themselves. Others feel that, in its present form, religious instruction is so inadequate that it would be better if it were not there."

Among the alternatives they suggested: Instruction in comparative religion, civics and ethical teaching of a non-theological kind.

The British Humanist Association, which claims about 10,000 members, has entered the campaign against what it calls "religious indoctrination."

The inquiry was based on replies from the parents of children in 100 state-aided grammar schools. Of the 2,300 queried, more than half replied. Just over 90 per cent favored their children being taught some religion in school; while only five per cent were definitely opposed.

Ratepayers' Association Sends Report to Toronto

DESERONTO — Concern was expressed at the Monday night meeting of the Ratepayers' Association over the financial condition of the town. The discussion came when the report of D.E. Neal was again introduced. This report had been submitted at the September meeting and stated that the finances of the town were in poor shape.

Mr. Neal pointed out that the council had violated Section 329 subsection 2 of the Municipal Act in that the balance of borrowings approved by council had exceeded 70 per cent of the uncollected revenue.

The meeting was informed that under the Municipal Act any action in regard to the violation would have to be taken by a ratepayer. The meeting felt that it should be the responsibility of the Municipal Affairs Branch to see that their statutes were adhered to and not the responsibility of taxpayers.

A motion was passed that a copy of the report of Mr. Neal with a covering letter be sent to the Department of Municipal Affairs, the Attorney General and the local members of parliament.

The meeting also decided to attempt to secure some information of the present financial condition of the town. The fear was expressed that the shortfall for 1964 would not be paid until 1965 as was done last year. This would leave the council with a deficit and the Ratepayers felt that a balanced budget would be to the advantage of the town, so that a few years a reduction in taxes could be enjoyed. The present mill rate for residential property is 106 mills.

During the discussing vote was cast on the question of submitting the report of Mr. Neal to the Municipal Affairs. Mr. William Higgins thought that a meeting with town council would help as answer to the problem but it was pointed out to him that the council had refused to cooperate with the Ratepayers' Association in the past.

Go to Jail To Learn Trade

TORONTO (CP) — Indian youths commit crimes deliberately so they can get food, clothing, shelter and learn a trade in jail the Ontario legislature's select committee on youth was told Tuesday.

E. R. McEwen, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, said Ontario's 100,000 Indians are a quarter of Canada's Indian population but this province lags behind the others in meeting Indian welfare needs.

Mr. McEwen criticized the constitutional system which makes Indians the responsibility of the federal government. Reserve Indians are "citizens of Ontario first of all" and the federal reserves are "far below standard," he said.

foter Gerhard Schroeder in mid-November.

Gordon Walker conferred here with President Johnson, State Secretary Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and other officials. Rusk said Gordon Walker's visit to Washington, two weeks after the new Labor government took over in London, had been "extremely valuable."

"We've off to a very fine start," Rusk said. Gordon Walker agreed.

TALKS WERE GENERAL

In his press conference at the British Embassy, Gordon Walker repeatedly emphasized that the discussions here had been general and did not involve specific proposals which his government has not yet had time to formulate.

Under questioning he made these points on other issues of U.S.-British concern:

1. He does not think the division of power between Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin in Moscow is an arrangement that is likely to last. He said he expects further changes in top Soviet personnel, concentrating authority in the hands of one man.

2. The Labor government like the Conservative government before it, supports the idea of admitting mainland China to the United Nations.

3. The Labor government intends to go on trading with Cuba in non-military goods.

Gordon Walker told Johnson administration leaders the Labor government agrees with the U.S. stand that Russia must either meet its financial obligations to the United Nations or lose its vote in the UN General Assembly.

with their children, Debbie, 7; Gary, 6; Curtis Jr., 4, and Shelley, 3, in an Oakland motel until furniture arrives and utilities are turned on.

Flood, 26, obtained a court temporary restraining order Monday to be able to occupy the three-bedroom ranch-style house at Alamo, a quiet suburb of 1,791 persons.

The Floods' lawyer said in a suit that George Finn and an unnamed man brandished shotguns at the home Saturday night and told Mrs. Phyllis Schofield, a real estate agent, that they would shoot any Negroes who tried to move into the neighborhood.

MADE HEADLINES

Finn and his twin brother Charles, made national headlines 12 years ago when they got into a tug-of-war with the U.S. government over a surplus airplane they bought to start an airline.

Amid charges and counter-charges, flat fights, name-calling and court battles, the Finns persisted in their claim that the government had no right to the plane. The affair ended when the Finns went to prison for 114 days for attempting to make a citizens' arrest of a U.S. attorney.

On Saturday, Flood deposited $655—two months rent and a $75 cleaning fee deposit—and signed a lease with Mrs. Schofield.

Mrs. Schofield took the lease to Finn, who signed as lawyer for the owner, Mrs. Constance Oliver of Zephyr Cove, Nev. Finn took back the key when he discovered the Floods were Negroes.

Both Finn and Mrs. Oliver have been unavailable for comment since Flood filed the court suit.

Woman the Only Negro In Maryland Senate Was Assassin's Target

BALTIMORE (AP)—Slender and soft-spoken, Verda Welcome does not appear a likely candidate for the central role in a political assassination plot.

But Mrs. Welcome, the only Negro in the Maryland Senate, was an assassin's target last spring.

She was returning from a late meeting April 10 and had stopped her car in front of her home. Just as she bent over the back seat to retrieve some posters, shots rang out.

Two bullets grazed her head and back. The gunfire stopped.

At first she didn't realize what had happened. Then it began to dawn on me slowly . . . Someone had tried to murder me."

Most persons at first thought some kind of racial issue was involved because Senator Welcome had led a successful drive to pass a state-wide public accommodations bill.

Then arrests were made.

Five Negroes were charged with conspiracy to murder the senator.

One of the accused was Ernest Young, a member of the House of Delegates who belongs to a rival politicas camp in Mrs. Welcome's 4th Legislative District.

Three of the men have been convicted. Young and the fifth man have yet to be tried.

Now a detective accompanies Mrs. Welcome wherever she goes out in the city and a patrolman guards her house 24 hours a day.

What of the future? Says the 48 - year - old former school teacher:

"Politics is my life. Regardless of what has happened, I would never discontinue my work."

Her work in the political arena began in 1958 when the 4th District, 58 per cent Negro, elected her to the House of Delegates.

"It never dawned on me I would run for political office," she said in an interview, until a friend suggested she file for the House.

The political novice confounded the experts and won the Democratic primary, which in the 4th District is tantamount to winning the election.

She was elected to the state Senate in 1962 despite opposition from the party organization.

Her greatest accomplishment during her years in the general assembly, she feels, is the passage of a state public accommodations law in 1963. Although the measure finally was an administration measure, Mrs. Welcome was the leader in the four-year campaign for its passage.

Mrs. Welcome says she has no plans to seek a higher office, such as Congress.

"I run, I run to win," and in her congressional district, "the whites have never voted for a Negro and never will. There is no possible way under the sun for me to be elected unless there is a great change on the part of the whites."

However, she is known in national political circles. Mrs. Welcome was honored this year as one of the 12 outstanding women in politics at the New York World's Fair. President Johnson named her to the national committee for communications.

Senator Welcome's family gives her wholehearted support in her political adventures and misadventures.

Her surgeon husband, Dr. Henry O. Welcome, is "very interested in politics and is one of my most respected advisers, although I don't let him know it all the time. If I didn't have his support, I wouldn't be in it."

HOLY ROSARY CWL

Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League held their regular meeting in Holy Rosary School on Monday evening. It was noted that there were 119 members with all streets in the parish canvassed.

Mrs. J. Darlington, Civic Action representative, urged the Holy Rosary canvassers for the United Appeal to get their returns in as this is a worthwhile project.

The league will once again give the catechetical awards to the students of Holy Rosary School who excel in the individual class rooms.

Mrs. A. Waller, who convened a most successful bazaar thanked her co-convener, Mr. A. Fobert and all the individual convenors of the different booths for their whole-hearted support.

The Christmas party will be convened by Mrs. M. Waller and will be held in the form of a pot-luck supper with a social evening to follow.

A discussion on the league magazine followed with all subscribing league members highly recommending the members of the League to subscribe.

GIVES REPORT

President Mrs. E. Reed gave her report on the regional meeting held in Batawa. It was suggested at this meeting that a historian should be appointed to record the individual parish history. A scrapbook has been kept up to date by the CWL of the parish from the beginning which would be a great benefit to the individual who would undertake this project.

Mrs. D. McEvoy, spiritual convenor asked for members to pray for vocations and she has enrolled Father Buckley, Father O'Neil and Sister Mary James for prayers with the Franciscans.

Father Rufus then instructed on the approved English text for the ordinary of the Mass.

CHRIST CHURCH CONTACT CLUB

The past several meetings of Contact Club of Christ Church have been work sessions when the club has been putting on the finishing touches to many doll items for the end of the month doll bazaar which is being convened by June Fisher. Each group was busily adding the last piece of lace,rick-rack, buttons etc. to make their contribution just perfect for some little boy or girl this Christmas. Many of the items are to include doll clothes, stuffed animals, children's books, doll furniture and dressed dolls.

In addition to gift ideas the last minute preparations were being made for the white elephant table, which includes many handy articles.

The J.A. will have a table of books and home made candy. It was announced that a window display of the bazaar items could be seen at the Crosby Real Estate on Bridge St. throughout this week.

Boxes of Christmas cards were handed out to the club members by June Fisher. Lunch was served by the hostesses for the evening who were Jean Weaver, Iris Foster and Pat Spencer.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES ANDREW GIGGEY

Giggey – Burgess

A pretty Choral Communion wedding was solemnized at high noon at St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, when Carole Mae, daughter of Mrs. R. T. Burgess, Stirling, and the late Mr. Burgess, became the bride of Mr. Charles Andrew Giggey, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. V. Giggey, Peterborough. The bridegroom's father officiated and Rev. F. F. Downing assisted at the double ring ceremony.

Bouquets of flowers graced the altar and the church. Miss Helen Morrow, organist, played the wedding music.

Entering on the arm of her brother, Neil, the bride was radiant in a floor length sheath gown of white silk brocade, fashioned with an empire waistline. A detachable overskirt fell into a graceful chapel train. The dress had a softly rounded neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her shoulder length veil was held by a dainty pearl tiara and she carried a cascade of pale yellow roses and white stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Lyna Johnston, Kingston, and bridesmaid, Mrs. Robert Green, Stirling, were gowned alike in autumn green peau-de-soie, floor length, A-line style dresses with waist length jackets. Wedding ring head pieces with matching pearl-tipped mitts completed their outfits. They carried nosegays of bronze and yellow mums.

Miss Sheryl Bird, Alliston, and Miss Christine Rickley, of Markham, sisters of the bride, as flower girls, wore autumn rust peau-de-soie, floor length dresses trimmed with white lace and velvet with matching head bands and mitts. Their tiny white baskets held bronze and yellow mums.

Mr. Grant Brooks, Haliburton, was groomsman. Brothers of the groom, Mr. Georgs Giggey, Sarnia, and Mr. Vernon Giggey, Toronto, and nephew of the Groom, Mr. Cecil Giggey, Toronto, were ushers. All the men were attired in Directors' suits.

At the reception in the Sun Valley Motor Inn's Madrid Room, Belleville, Mrs. Burgess received the guests in a deep turquoise brocade sheath dress with bolero jacket and matching accessories. Her corsage of pink roses was carried on her purse. She was assisted by Mrs. Giggey in a mink brown silk knit two-piece dress, with mink stole and white accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

During the reception, Miss Helen Morrow, Stirling, entertained with several renditions. For her wedding trip to Montreal and the U.S. the bride donned a forest green double breasted wool suit with white and black accessories. Her corsage was tangerine carnations.

Guests were present from: Sarnia, Toronto, Markham, Alliston, Oshawa, Sutton, Rosemont, Haliburton, Belleville and Stirling.

Mr., Mrs. John Hogan Mark 60 Years of Wedded Life

Residents of the Dorland district for the past ten years, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hogan celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, October 25.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hogan were born on Wolfe Island, where they resided for fifty years. They were married by Rev. Fr. Spratt in Sacred Heart Church on the island. Mr. Hogan is 86 years of age, while Mrs. Hogan (nee Helen Ryan) is 81.

The fine couple were blessed with seven daughters and four sons, including (Sadie) Mrs. A. Pregent of Trenton, (Anna) Mrs. L. Way, Carrying Place; (Jasie) Mrs. J. Bell, Ottawa; (Mary) Mrs. A. Forest of Napanee; (Loretta) Mrs. Charles Rees, Kingston; (Bea) Mrs. R. Larmond, Ottawa, and Gordon and Edward, two sons who reside with them on a 200-acre farm. Two children, Oral Michael and Carmel passed away some years ago. There are 11 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The family sat down to a tasty turkey dinner with the table appropriately decorated for the occasion and highlighted with an elaborate anniversary cake made in the form of a clock with each minute of the hour representing a year of wedded bliss. The cake was made and decorated through the courtesy of Mr. Derry, of Bronson's Bakery in Ottawa.

Many congratulatory messages were received, including one from Queen Elizabeth, one from Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, also one from Governor General Vanier. They also received a lovely plaque from Premier Robarts through the local M.P.P., Mr. Norris Whitney.

The honored couple have spent all their lives farming and Mr. Hogan reminisced of the good old days even though at times there were many hardships. Mr. Hogan still takes a hand in the work on the farm, but Mrs. Hogan has been in failing health since she fell and fractured her hip some time ago. She thoroughly enjoyed the family gathering on this occasion.

Friends present for the dinner were Pietro Costa of Ottawa and Mrs. Florence Pine of Carrying Place.

Mother's Helper

CHILDREN often enjoy interviewing and setting up a game of their own even more than playing a "spectacularized" game. With a number of empty, smooth-edged tin cans and a rubber ball, they can put together a workable bowling "alley." This can be done on a driveway, in a garage or in a basement. The combination of skill and noise is most satisfying!

Susanna's Family Fare

GREENERY SCENERY

Dear Susanna: I would like to arrange a green centre piece for the holidays but my experience has always been that it turns out to be too heavy. How do I make it solid so that there won't be any danger of the whole thing toppling over? — A Reader.

First of all, you will need a block of "oasis" — this can be purchased at a flower store and shouldn't cost any more than about $1.25. It will be very light and must be soaked in a pail of water for at least four hours (or overnight). It will absorb about a hundred times its weight in water. Rinse off any foamy substance, and then shape the heavy block with a knife into the base mold you wish for your arrangement, then secure down well into your container. For example, a cone-shaped for a Christmas tree, or low in front and high at the back to place on an entrance hall table. Finally, insert pieces of boxwood or other greenery and decorate.

For anyone interested in the elementary basics of flower arranging (nothing complicated, mind you, like creating a Chinese temple at midnight out of flowers) I will be glad to send instructions with a list of some materials and props which you will find helpful. — SUSANNA

SUDSY SHAMPOO

Dear Susanna: If ever you hear one of your readers crying "I've just washed my hair and can't do a thing with it," you might pass along this suggestion.

For more manageable freshly washed tresses, try adding your favorite shampoo to the wash water instead of applying it directly to your hair. Make a nice soda, the same as for diluting out lingerie, or nylons; then carry on as you ordinarily would and rinse as usual. — "Mary Martin"

Do you also have a new method, Mary, for "washing that man right out of your hair?" — SUSANNA

CAN CAN

Dear Susanna: I learned today that little girls love to play at keeping house. I had a particularly busy morning ahead of me, but took the time to get my 4 and 5 year old started at straightening up and yelling my large tin goods cupboard.

They spent nearly 2 hours folding and piecing fresh shelf paper and arranging the cans in order. The next inclement morning, they are looking forward to tackling the linen closet. — Mrs.

Just be careful at lunch time, you may reach in for tomato materials and grope with your stuffed anchovies or Meow-it's-a-Wow cat food! — SUSANNA

Historical Display Shown at Quinte W. I. Tea

The district curators of the various branches of the East Hastings District Women's Institutes and members held a Tweedsmuir history book display and tea at the Quinte W.I. Hall on Saturday afternoon with the Quinte W.I. as hostesses.

The branch curator, Mrs. J. Parrott called the gathering to order and after extending a welcome to all, called on the district curator, Mrs. Ralph Sills who told of the work and explained the importance of the Tweedsmuir history book as a historic information of the schools, farms brought from the towns, many historic buildings, houses, wardens, district presidents and the important happenings in each community.

Mr. Gerald Boyce, president of the Hastings County Historical Society told of gathering the history of the county for the centennial project and gave many interesting and helpful native remarks in regards to the project.

The various branches provided the lunch with the board directors, Mrs. Grant McClaren, Mrs. Don Chisholm, district president; Mrs. S. R. Beatty, area chairman and Mrs. Percy Ray, area secretary-treasurer pouring tea. District directors of each branches served the lunch with several Quinte ladies in charge of the kitchen duties.

Gaily Printed Flight Pants Being Shown

By JORIE LUELOFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Gaily printed flight pants worn under a navy blue suit are just the thing for guiding short town according to Vera Maxwell. Her collection of spring and cruise wear was shown here Monday.

Otherwise serenity and simplicity were the keynotes. Ruffles were out.

But there was nothing simple about the skeins and prints.

The textured look of wild silk —a natural silk weave imported from India — was predominant in both vivid color and a neutral shade called Indian kasha (grain). Some of the two were combined to become a tricolor costume.

SHOCKING PINK

From a retrospective showing at the Chaillot Palace in Paris came a bright pink and green and white silk print that was swirled into a shimmering wrap-around blouse over a pink suit. Take off the blouse and you have a sleeveless, shocking pink dress.

Also from France came the inspiration for the French apron, a pale gray print worn at affair with the look of a skirt. Worn over black leotards, it ties in front.

Mrs. Maxwell feels that after so many bulky wools and mohairs, women may be longing for the slim, graceful look again.

WORLD TEACHER

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Moore's next stop on a trip in which she is teaching her way around the world is at an Eskimo school in the Northwest Territories. The 22-year-old teacher from the Isle of Man has already worked in England and Montreal and she hopes to teach in the Orient and Australia after spending "at least a year" in Canada's northland.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

TO SEW A FINE SEAM

When I read that the Red Cross sewing group was getting into action after their summer recess with Mrs. George K. Graham in charge again, I was reminded of my own efforts with that group during World War II.

While I didn't expect a grateful government to pin a medal on me or honor me with the Order of the British Empire for my war effort, it was in there pitching needle and thread around, and I did get a reward, although it was an incidental one.

Let me be honest. I was one of those sewers (perhaps I had better say seamstresses) who made boys' pyjamas with jackets buttoned from right to left instead of from left to right . . . in fact if my sons learned to distinguish right from left it was in spite of my efforts . . . and girls' blouses that buttoned from left to right. If I finished a seam and had a half inch of material left over, I just cut it off or shirred it in. So I presented myself at the Red Cross sewing room, a willing patriot, but an inept one.

The day I offered my services (?) they were making men's white shirts! We will skip over the next few painful occasions which I spent ripping out seams. But I was learning, and the next lot we did was sheets for the Russians.

The Red Cross did not accept any sloppy work. Those sheets had to be hemmed with the precision of a carpenter's rule. I was curious about the way we had to finish the hems. Each corner had to have an X seamed into it, so I asked about it and was told it was to keep the bedbugs out of the seams. I hope the Russians had sweet dreams on those sheets, a lot of patriotic fervor went into them. And I hope the bedbugs were properly frustrated.

We turned out an amazing amount of work. After sheets we made children's warm coats, and pyjamas, and by the time the war ended I had acquired quite a skill, which I have enjoyed using since, and this was my reward.

Ever while I wouldn't wish Mrs. Graham any bad luck like having someone as inexperienced as I was join her group, you do learn a lot.

TRICK OR TREAT

This year as in other years Hallowe'en "trick or treat" for the school children of Belleville will mean a sharing as they prank around with a shopping bag in one hand and a UNICEF collection box in the other.

This program was started in a small way seven years ago and has grown a little each year until now it takes in all the schools in Belleville with the school principals and teachers supporting the students in the campaign.

In 1957 the youngsters collected $61.00 and last year the amount was $2,800.00.

In Canada the UNICEF committee operates under the auspices of the United Nations to stimulate interest in the work abroad and to provide a channel for citizen participation in the United Nations' Children's Fund. They have two main projects, Hallowe'en and UNICEF greeting cards which are available in five officials languages of the U.N.

There are more than a billion children in the world today, and three out of four of these children live in economically under-developed countries. Most of them lack adequate food, shelter, protection from disease, and many never learn to read or write. They face a short life and one burdened by privation and disease.

The purpose of UNICEF is to stop this suffering and waste of human resources.

Club Activities

MOONLIGHT MUNCHERS MELROSE — The fourth meeting of the Moonlight Munchers was held in the basement of the United Church. Each girl gave a dessert suitable for supper. The members were asked to use the scouts thought for a design for the club book cover.

Notes were on "meat" and "meat alternatives."

The girls were divided into three groups. The first group with Mrs. Lester made baked rice with cheese; the second group with Mrs. McFarlane made a salmon pie; and the older girls made a cheese fondu.

The girls were given their home assignments and the meeting was closed.

ABALONE LEAVES CANADA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first commercial crop of the new abalone industry is en-route to Japan as sea markets from here. The small, edible molluscs whose ear - shaped shells are used for mother of pearl were harvested in the Bella Coola area north of here.

Each guest table was centred with a rose bowl. The tea room and kitchen convenors were Mrs. B. Fisher and Mrs. H. Stenton, and they were assisted by willing workers who served the guests and replenished.

The apron table was convened by Mrs. P. Kerr and her assistants. The novelty table was convened by Mrs. L. Guest and Mrs. M. Wade.

The bake table was laden with delicious confections and home cooking which was convened by Mrs. A. Avery and her assistants. Mrs. D. Vanstone looked after the draw tickets, which was won by Mrs. Ruth Jones. The door prize was won by Mrs. G. Grey.

The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. R. Morgan and Mrs. J. Moorhead.

Appreciation was expressed to the convenors for their part in making this affair so successful.

Ask any good cook who still prides herself on baking her own apple pies. Crispy Flake pastry is everything its name implies! "Crispy" is the word for every light "Flake" of its golden brown tenderness. And thanks to a special Schneiders process, Crispy Flake Shortening creams like a dream. When you try the recipe given here . . . to be sure they're extra crispy, extra flakey . . . bake 'em with Schneiders Crispy Flake Shortening.

Big Surprise in Apple Pies
The Secret's in the Bag!

6 or 7 medium-size tart, juicy apples ¾ cup white sugar ½ teaspoon cinnamon (if desired). Unbaked 9-inch Pie Shell (see recipe for Crispy Flake Pastry on the Crispy Flake Shortening Package). Peel apples, quarter and remove cores. Arrange apple quarters compactly in the pastry-lined pan; they should be slightly heaped toward the centre. Sprinkle cinnamon and sugar mixture over apples. Then cover with Streusel Topping:

Streusel Topping

¼ cup flour ½ cup light brown sugar ½ cup Schneiders Butter. Stir ½ cup light brown sugar into ½ cup flour. Cream ½ cup butter until smooth and soft; then work in the flour and sugar mixture until well blended. Sprinkle this crumbly mixture over the top of the pie. NOW . . . put your pie into a heavy brown paper bag and fold the end of the bag several times to seal. Place in a 450 F. oven, for about 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 F. for another 45 minutes of baking. Don't peek! At the end of the hour's baking time, your Crispy Flake Pie will come out of the bag golden brown and delicious. Set it to cool for at least another hour before serving.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

SUPERVISE YOUR TRICK-OR-TREATERS

When the Hallowe'en goblins, junior division, go on their annual prowl for sweets, parents should see that they're polite about it.

Instead of barreling from house to house, children should be taught the ground rules of Trick or Treat. In recent years, many householders have become annoyed at the sweets of youngsters, most of whom they don't know, storming the doors after dark. If a treat is not available (some families run out of goodies early, due to the huge demand), garbage cans sometimes are tipped over or the tykes play some other "mischievous" prank, like sticking a pin in the bell or scribbling all over the car. You have to admit that this sort of thing is a dirty trick.

If children are to be permitted to make the rounds Trick-or-Treating, it's up to parents to supervise the activity so it does not get out of hand.

In many communities, mothers call up friends and neighbors in advance to make sure a visit for apples after the children had made their haul.

from the little goblins will be acceptable. A light on the porch usually signifies a family is prepared for nocturnal visitors. If there is no welcoming light, the children should be instructed to cross the house off their itinerary.

POLITENESS RULE

The same rule of politeness should apply in apartment houses, with mother making the necessary phone calls in preparation. When we lived in the city, the doorman engineered the Trick or Treat sortie, lined up the doorman engineered the escorted the moppets through the building in an orderly fashion. Each year, one family took over as hosts and provided doughnuts, cider and ducking

Children look forward to this annual game with great glee, and there is much competition in creating unique costumes to disguise themselves. Of course it's great fun, and it is enjoyable for those who have treats ready, providing the children are courteous and not about to play reckless pranks.

Supervision is necessary if the Trick or Treat game is to continue as the lark it is supposed to be for all. If children are reminded to respect other's privacy and property and to remember their manners, despite the playfulness of the occasion, lights will continue to glow on porches to eleome the ghosts and goblins on their annual visit.

Ann Landers

Second Wife Must Not Show Jealousy of First

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I married Curt two years ago. He had a difficult time getting a divorce because his wife isn't the type who gives up easily. She got custody of their two teen-age children.

Three weeks ago Curt's son was injured in an automobile accident. At 2:00 a.m. Curt got a call from his ex-wife to come to the hospital. I went with him of course.

When we arrived his ex was standing in the hall outside the operating room. She fell into my husband's arms as if they were still married. He made no attempt to unload her.

Curt has been going to the hospital every evening. I want to go with him but he won't take me. He says I'd better stay away because his son doesn't care for me, which is true.

I know Curt is seeing his ex at the hospital and it is driving me crazy. What can I do? — COFFEE NERVES.

DEAR COFFEE — Nothing. When you married a divorced man with children you should have expected problems. Your husband's ex has a legitimate call on the father of her children when trouble hits, and there is nothing you can or SHOULD do.

I can suggest what NOT to do, however.

Don't ask him any questions. Don't make any accusations. Don't insist on any loyalty oaths, and don't act shook.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 50-year-old grandmother who has never seen her grandson although he lives within two miles of my home.

When my daughter Greta was a teenager she started to go with a lad I disliked intensely. I tried to discourage her from seeing him but she managed to meet him outside our home and I could do nothing about it. When it appeared they were getting serious I told Greta if she married the young man I didn't want to see either one of them again.

On her 21st birthday they eloped and I was heartbroken. Greta told me her husband is very bitter about the way I treated him and that he will allow her to come here to see me if she wishes but that I am not welcome to their home.

My grandson is two months old. I've been praying that one day soon Greta will bring the child and let me hold him in my arms. This morning she told me her husband gave her orders that I am not to see his son.

Please tell me what to do. — SAD M.

DEAR SAD M. — There is nothing you can do, but I hope your daughter will ask her clergyman to talk to her husband.

If he sticks to the eye for an eye philosophy he will regret it. He may hate the sight of you but he has no right to deprive his child of the love of his grandmother, nor is he justified in denying you one of the greatest joys of the last of life — her which the first was made.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I had a light case of flu yesterday and stayed home from work. My wife went next door for a few minutes and the telephone rang. I answered it. Some fellow named Steve been trying to call the Coast Guard and got our number by mistake because he wanted to know if the coast was clear.

Now that I think about it I'm beginning to wonder. What do you think about this, Ann Landers? — CHARLIE

DEAR CHARLIE — I think that gag is older than I am — and I'm no kid. I see by the envelope your letter is from New Haven. Maybe Yale ought to work you harder. You guys seem to have more spare time on your hands than you need.

NOW! "SILVERPLATE THAT HAS THE LOOK AND FEEL OF STERLING."

Many young cooks learned to make Bavarian Cream in Domestic Science classes. Mary Moore gives the recipe for this old favorite today and suggests fruit accompaniment for garnish.

Sacred Heart Parish Holds Fine Bazaar

MARMORA — Over 650 turkey dinners were served each night in Sacred Heart Parish Hall, Marmora, for the 44th annual bazaar held October 21st and 22nd. Rev. W. F. Healey, pastor of Sacred Heart Parish, greeted Marmora and out of town visitors.

Mrs. Charles Crawford convened the bountiful turkey dinner and was assisted by 75 to 100 women of the parish.

Dining area was separated from the bazaar booths by a fence decorated with autumn leaves, pumpkins, berries and cornucopias. Miss Grace Sherdan decorated the hall most effectively using colored chains and oak-leaf lanterns made of art paper.

Sewing booth, convened by the Catholic Women's League, in charge of Mrs. John Clairmont, disposed of hundreds of hand-made articles. There were over 75 pairs of knitted mitts, socks, slippers, as many aprons, dolls' clothes, handmade toys, Christmas decorations and a crib outfit. A beautiful hand-made quilt was on display on which tickets were sold.

The baking table also tastefully decorated, was convened by Mrs. Eugene Brady, who with her assistants, sold homemade buns, pies, cakes, cookies, preserves. A three-tier fruit cake made by Mrs. Brady was shown at this booth for raffling.

There was fun for the children at the fish pond supervised by Miss Anne Collins and Mrs. Jim Cosgrove. Homemade candy in colorful baskets and taffy apples were sold while the children fished for surprises.

Bingo and all kinds of games were played and on the second night after dinner, 12 tables of euchre players excelled in their favorite card game. Mrs. E. D. O'Connor won the ladies' high prize and the men's high was taken by Billy Phillips.

At the close of the event, tickets were drawn for the various draws and winners were as follows: $50, Miss Vera Mahoney, R.R. 3, Havelock; $25., Miss Caroline Feeney, Madoc; $15., Mr. Joe Warren, Marmora; lucky ticket seller, Miss Gertrude Maloney, Marmora; hand-made quilt, Miss Denise Genereaux, Belleville; basket of groceries, Mrs. Ron Cassibo, Marmora; fruit cake, Mr. Keith Lynch, Marmora; rocking horse, Mr. Francis Rodrigue, Marmora; panda bear, Diana Macdonald, Marmora; toy rabbit, Mary Kennedy, Waterford; doll, Ron Langois, Marmora; fancy pillow cases, Mrs. G. Villisoff, Marmora.

Rev. Healey expressed his appreciation to all friends and neighbors from Marmora and surrounding areas who patronized the bazaar and made it such a success.

The Power Women Have Over Men.

Is it simply the power to say "NO!"—as one man claims? Is giving pause the secret of women's power?...Or is it solely a matter of sex? Here's a symposium of letters from Digest readers, provoked by a previous article which considered "The Power MEN Have Over Women". Don't miss the November issue of Reader's Digest.

Two Desserts Are Repeats

By MARY MOORE

Yesterday I gave you two rich but economical stews. Today I am giving you two desserts to serve with them that are notable for their fine flavor.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Loaf, Tomato Sauce; Hashed-in-Cream Potatoes; Margy's Baked Savory Carrots (see Monday); Tomato and Endive Salad; Celery Seed Dressing; Apple Pudding with Spicy Hard Sauce; Coffee.

BAVARIAN CREAM with cocoanut and Fresh Frozen Fruit:

1½ tablespoons plain gelatine, 1¾ cups cold homogenized milk, ½ cup granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon almond extract, 1¼ cups desiccated cocoanut, 1 cup 32% (whipping) cream, whipped fresh frozen raspberries or strawberries or peaches (see below).

In a medium saucepan sprinkle the gelatine over the milk and let soak 5 minutes. Add sugar and salt and stir over low heat until gelatine and sugar are dissolved, but do not boil. Remove from heat and add 1 cup of the cocoanut and the almond extract. Cool until it begins to set around edges. Whip the cream and fold in smoothly. Pour into 4- cup mould and chill at least 4 hours or overnight. Unmould by loosening sides with sharp-pointed knife and dipping mould in hot water for 10 seconds. Turn out on glass pedestal plate or cut glass bowl. Garnish border liberally with row of alternating fresh frozen strawberries and peach slices or double row of fresh frozen raspberries. Sprinkle top with remaining ¼ cup cocoanut. Old-fashioned, delicious and popular.

I am self-conscious about giving you another pumpkin pie so soon after Thanksgiving but this one is so creamy, and pumpkin makes one of the cheapest of all pie fillings, I am stifling my conscience and giving you

MARGE'S CREAMY PUMPKIN PIE:

Line a deep 9" pie plate with your best plain pastry, making high fluted edge.

Filling: 1¼ cups canned (or home cooked) pumpkin, 1½ cups evaporated milk, 6 tablespoons brown sugar, ¼ cup white sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, ½ cup corn syrup, 3 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla (or 3 tablespoons rum!)

Mix these filling ingredients smoothly together in order given and pour most of it into the lined pie plate. These amounts make a bit too much filling for most standard pie plates so hold out a little to add later. Carefully put into centre of oven at 450 deg. Fahr. In 15 minutes reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake for another 40 or 45 minutes but as filling sets around edge carefully add remaining filling, pouring it into pie at centre and being careful not to burn your knuckles. When pie is set at centre and golden it is done. Serve warm if possible with generous serving of unsweetened whipped cream You will love it.

NOTE:

If you have canned pumpkin leftover you can make cream of pumpkin soup with it, following a daily menu "must" for potato soup from mashed potatoes. It's good.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Sometimes we tend to forget the benefits derived from the simplest baby care routines. Take baby's strollering sessions. Wheeling about in the fresh air reaps wonderful rewards. It invites an appetite and sets a cheek to blooming. It pollies dispositions and makes the sandman welcome. Fresh-airing does all these things for you, too, so try not to skip these jaunts unless the weather is mean.

Fresh-air appetites appreciate the "stick-to-the-ribs" satisfaction of Gerber Strained Oatmeal and Junior Meats. Made from government inspected cuts, they're low in fat; easy to digest. Most important, they're cooked by a special method that helps preserve true-meat flavors and assures an unusually smooth, moist texture. Altogether, they're the most succulent foods you can give your baby to aid his growth. Has baby tried the new Strained Chicken & Veal? M-mmm.

Important. Now Gerber blends, like the other foods, come in convenient jars with "Twist-Pop" caps for safe refrigeration of unused portions.

In the crib. A gaily striped or coloured beach towel makes a pretty and practical coverlet for baby's crib. Cheers up a room . . . is easy to wash . . . eliminates fancy ironing.

Baby hectic. Baby cereals are pretty much a daily menu "must" from the infant age right through the toddler stage for the important nutrients they supply. Gerber Cereals have added iron, calcium and thiamine, riboflavin and niacin . . . important B-vitamins. As for your baby's eating pleasure, flavors are insanely mild, the texture ever so nice to the tongue. For you, they stir to smooth perfection in seconds!...why that way throughout the serving. Five varieties. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Captive Bear Now on Loose Shot, Killed

DUTTON, Ont. (CP)—A black bear, sought throughout the southwestern part of Middlesex and Elgin counties in recent months by farmers concerned that it might attack people and livestock, was shot to death Tuesday on farmland here, about 22 miles southwest of London.

The bear is believed to be one which broke out of captivity on the farm of John Robinson at Mt. Brydges, about 20 miles north of here, a year ago.

Mr. Robinson's bear was only four months old when it escaped but area game warden D. C. Martin said he believes the one shot Tuesday by farmers J. C. Miller and Donald B. Lilley, both of Dutton, is the same beast; it weighed about 175 pounds, Mr. Martin estimated.

"The bear had a leather collar around its neck. The animal had certainly been in captivity," Mr. Martin said. He added that the collar was very tight and would probably have killed the bear within about a month. The collar was so tight the beast was probably in pai nand might have attacked someone, he said.

Mr. Miller saw the bear running across a field on his farm and called Mr Lilley to bring his hound pack. They shot the bear after the hounds drove it from a wooded area.

BOMBAY (AP) — The Maharashtra state government plans to go ahead with its support for holding the international eucharistic congress and the visit of Pope Paul here despite threats of demonstrations, a spokesman emphasized Tuesday. Paper Contends Appeals Should Be Granted Whether Penalty Imposed or Not TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail contended in an editorial that there should be right to appeal from all summary proceedings for contempt of court "or Canadians cannot be certain that there will be justice." At present there can be no appeal only if a penalty is imposed.

The editorial recalls that last March 16 the newspaper was edited for contempt by Mr. Justice N. C. Fraser of the Ontario Supreme Court for publishing in one edition only a Canadian Press news item about the capital murder trial of Charles Melvyn Layton in Napanee. The judge imposed no penalty.

The item referred to the "rifle slaying" of McMahon and said McMahon "died from bullet wounds from a .303 rifle." The judge held the two phrases quoted were "matters of inference and matters prejudicial to the decision of the jury." In its defence, The Globe and Mail said that references to a .303-calibre weapon and to a rifle-slaying had appeared repeatedly in daily newspapers published in the Napanee area. Similar references had appeared in other matters.

BANNED DETAIL

The judge instructed that collation of The Globe and Mail's report could be reported but not the detail of the proceedings.

In its editorial on the newspaper says Loyst was subsequently convicted of non-capital murder and sentenced to life imprisonment; that one appeal was dismissed; and since the time for further appeals now has lapsed, "the prohibition of Mr. Justice Fraser against discussion of the proceedings may right therefore be judged to have lapsed."

Senatorial Campaign Between Bob Kennedy and Ken Keating Degenerates From Politeness

NEW YORK (CP)—"Meet the United States senator who looks like a United States senator," booms an aide, whipping up enthusiasm for white-haired and distinguished Kenneth B. Keating.

"Please treat him like a human being — don't rush and maul him," says an aide of the rival camp at a screaming crowd given Bobby Kennedy the movie star treatment.

This has been part of one of the most colorful contests for seat Tuesday's U.S. elections: the New York state senatorial race between the polished veteran Keating and the slender and young-looking brother of the late president.

It has been a contest marked by large outlays of cash—more than $1,500,000 from each camp by an almost unheard of estimate—and by energetic appeals to the state's many ethnic groups.

It has also been a campaign in which two clearly liberal candidates have tried to outdo each other in proving their liberalism.

And it has been a campaign that started politely but degenerated into bitter charges of distortion and deception.

CALLED AMBITIOUS

Keating's Republican camp has scalded Kennedy, the Democratic-liberal candidate, as an overly ambitious, under-experienced captive of local "boss" cratic "bosses."

It has called him an "outsider," a "carpetbagger," a "instant New Yorker," and a "Bobby-come-lately," which moved to the state only last month and can't even vote for himself.

Kennedy, who resigned as U.S. attorney-general to run in New York, retorts that although he was born in Massachusetts he has lived in New York for 20 of his 38 years—from the age of one until he went to Harvard. He says the real issue is which candidate can do the better job in Washington, and that Keating is not as liberal as he claims to be.

Bobby, a trim and tailored father of eight who looks a little older than his pictures, is no stranger to party politics although this is his first bid for elective office.

He managed his brother's presidential campaign and learned the techniques well.

On a typical day last week he started out at a ice-and-bagel breakfast with a Jewish labor group in New York and later donned a skull cap to speak to another group of Jewish students.

In the afternoon, he attended an Irish football game at Gaelic Park in the Bronx and was introduced as "one whose ancestors came from County Wexford."

In Harlem, Kennedy has charged that Keating is voting against housing and education bills designed to help Negroes and Puerto Rican "victims of the circle of despair."

In Buffalo he was praised by Polish-American Stanley John Grabowski, of Polish descent, at a Pulaski day appearance At a Republican Italian rally in Brooklyn, there were good words from Anthony Calebrese, the only Italian elected secretary of health, education and welfare.

For Keating, the problem has been to show that his strength he has built up in 18 years-of representing the state in the senate.

Now 64, Keating has blue eyes, a ready smile and a gentle smile to go with his white hair. Possibly to minimize the impression he is the establishment Kennedy, he walks like a man catching a train.

One of the most potent factors of his campaign has been his refusal to endorse Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, because of what he called "fundamental differences of viewpoint."

Associates Honor Meat Salesman After 33 Years With Company

It was a memorable occasion when friends and associates of Mr. Robert Kitchen gathered at the Columbus Hall for a surprise dinner presentation and dance to honor him after 33 years as a top meat salesman for J. M. Schneider Meats Limited of Kitchener.

Eddie Kirk, assistant sales manager for Schneider's from Kitchener was master of ceremonies for the occasion. He brought greetings from the Kitchener head office and one could only help but realize as he spoke what a valuable salesman Bob had been through the years. Many were the prizes and awards he received, having thrice made the "millionaires' club," a goal which few salesmen reach. He also was loud in his praise to Mr. Kitchen for her capable assistance to her husband and his chosen career over the years.

Other guests included Jack Cation, district supervisor, Lloyd Briscoe, meat salesman of Kingston, Gerry Cochrane, supervisor for Canada Packers, Eddie James, salesman for Canada Packers, Keith Baker, salesman for Swift Canadian meats and Doug Rutherford of Christie Biscuits who all spoke briefly but unanimously in their praise of Bob as a great friend and salesman.

An address was read on behalf of all their customers and associates through the years.

Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen were presented with a handsome recliner chair for which Mr. Kitchen thanked all present and spoke briefly about much praise for his wife's assistance over the years. A son Robert lives in the city also, there are grandchildren.

Dancing followed and at the conclusion of a most enjoyable evening all wished Bob and Kathleen many, many more happy years of retirement.

Moment of Truth Finally Comes to Rhodesia's Whites

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The moment of truth has finally come for Rhodesia's belligerent "go it alone" white citizens if they allow the present wing government to declare independence in defiance of Britain and the Commonwealth, they now know they will be outside the pale of world opinion.

Prime Minister Wilson's visit talk on treason seems likely to be backed to the hilt by the Conservatives, at least on the as diplomatic isolation goes. The Wilson statement came after consultations with Commonwealth governments.

External Affairs Minister Martin dispelled any doubts about Canada's position when he stated a rebellious Rhodesia would get no diplomatic recognition from the senior Dominion.

Rhodesian leaders had been sounding out the Canadian government at intervals since the July meeting of Commonwealth premiers, despite the fact Commonwealth opinion on the subject of unilateral independence was clearly spelled out then.

The question of economic and trade pressure, as foreshadowed by Wilson's statement, it was understood Canada's position would be one of "wait and see." It was felt in some London circles that Canada's volume of trade with Rhodesia was perhaps not large enough to offer a base for tough measures.

There seems no reason to suppose that Wilson will hesitate to back up his warning with action if the time comes.

The word used to be in Rhodesia that successive Conservative governments had changed their ground so often over constitutional requirements it would be almost a relief to Labor in power—"at least we would know where we stand with the socialists," one white settler has said.

It is possible Rhodesia will take more notice of Wilson's talk of sanctions if they might have done with a Tory administration. At one stage white Rhodesia had a significant lobby in the Tory party, although both the Macmillan and Douglas-Home administrations officially took a similar line to the then opposition Labor party.

Wilson and his ministers appear to have felt the true consequences of a unilateral declaration of independence, as in Rhodesian jargon—had not filtered down to the grass roots of white Rhodesia. They are obviously of first importance to get the message across before the Nov. 5 referendum in which Premier Smith expects resounding support for his policy.

Smith and his cabinet have constantly played down the consequences of their threats when addressing Rhodesian voters. Land Minister John Gaunt, an arch - segregationist who calls the [illegible] nationalists "black mambas" — poisonous snakes—has boasted on British television that "we can live on mealie meal and kerque spirit" among Rhodesians.

Many of the Rhodesian voters—who represent about a 10th of the country's population and include only four per cent of the 3,000,000 Negroes—must weigh this dubious dream of lonely glory against the bitter prospect of a disrupted trade, deprivation of their status as British subjects, an embargo on dealings with the London money market and possible non-recognition of a nationalist government-in-exile.

The backbone of Smith's support in the right-wing Rhodesian Front party has always been a section of post-war immigrants whose politics were dictated by economic fear of African competition.

Says de Gaulle Plans Made Long Time Ago

BONN (AP) — West German's opposition Socialists nearly claimed today that President de Gaulle has long been planning to get France out of the Common Market.

The party press service said de Gaulle had been working out an alternative to the six-nation Common Market. It did not say what this was.

The statement said de Gaulle is using the grain price issue as a pretext. Last week the French president threatened his country would "cease to participate" in the Common Market unless agreement is reached on a common grain price which would cut the gap paid German farmers and raise the price paid French producers.

Forced to Search Brother's Body Says Witness

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP)—Ronald Buddy, 22, testified Tuesday he was forced to search the body of his brother for cigarettes and car keys moments after he had been shot and killed by James F. Simpson.

He was testifying in the non-capital murder trial of Simpson, 25, of Dunville in the shooting death Aug. 31 of Robert Buddy.

Dunville is about 25 miles southeast of Hamilton.

Ronald Buddy, a main witness, testified that he, his brother and Simpson were in a flat in Sharon Buddy, 9, called to Robert.

Simpson forced Ronald to hide behind a tree while Robert went to his sister, Ronald said. When Robert returned he said the two brothers had to go home for supper.

Simpson argued and said, "I'll kill you", Ronald testified. Simpson then fired a .22-calibre rifle at Robert, Ronald said, and he fell to the ground. Simpson forced Ronald to search the body for keys and cigarettes, the witness said.

Cradling the rifle in his lap beneath Robert's jacket, Ronald said, Simpson forced him to drive to Hagersville and suggested holding up a gas station. Ronald refused, and they returned to Dunville where, he said, Simpson told him to go and not tell what he had seen.

The trial in Ontario Supreme Court continues today.

Hold Man for Gun Hearing, Another Freed

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A suburban Pittsburgh man, arrested Tuesday night in the motorcade route of President John son's motorcade, was held for a hearing Wednesday on charges violating the Uniform Firearms Act.

State police said they found two rifles and a pistol in the car.

The man was identified as William E. Fisher Jr., 34, of Bellevue.

He was stopped on a parkway between Greater Pittsburgh airport and downtown minutes before President Johnson's motorcade was to pass the area during a brief visit to the city

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A young steelworker who was carrying two rifles and a pistol was arrested a few blocks from where President Johnson is speaking Monday, has been freed.

Police Tuesday dropped a weapons charge against Robert Lee Cornell, 23, of Wyandotte, Mich. They said it was determined he was innocently passing through Jacksonville when he decided against it.

Police arrested Cornell, a former navy enlisted man who was carrying a loaded burp gun in a down town bank. They found an unloaded carbine in his carrying case and a loaded luger pistol in a zipper bag. He had an account in the bank.

He told officers he was returning to Michigan after visiting friends and hunting in St. Augustine.

Johnson - 'Lust for Power', Goldwater - 'Bluff, Bluster'

By STANLEY MEISLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

President Johnson and Barry Goldwater worked today at premium pace in their campaign for the presidency. Johnson pictured an opponent playing war games. Goldwater pictured an opponent lusting for power.

Goldwater, the Republican candidate for president said, "I charge that the Johnson machine is driven by lust for power, by fear of the exposure of wrongdoing in high places, by fear of punishment and by hope of special privilege."

And Goldwater, in a speech prepared for a rally at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, also attacked the candidacy of the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, Hubert H. Humphrey.

"The Johnson" has the support of many traditional Democrats," Goldwater said. "who like Humphrey about as much as looking beyond it to see that in handpicking Hubert Humphrey as his successor he has decapped the Democratic party—tied it up in a neat bundle for eventual delivery to the Democrats for Democratic Action, the most effective radical socialist organization in the land."

Johnson, in a speech prepared for an outdoor rally in Albuquerque, N.M., said that what he called the differences between the Democrats and Goldwater.

"The stakes in the election are a lot more than survival," Johnson said. "The issues are recklessness or responsibility."

"We cannot," he continued, "and we will not play the war game of bluff and bluster. That risk is too great."

In another speech, this one prepared for delivery from the steps of Los Angeles city hall, Johnson said: "We are going full speed ahead. We are not going back to a past of muddling and make-believe, mud slinging politics and mildewed policy."

Humphrey, arriving in Kentucky early today, in prepared remarks said "there is abroad in the land some of the same recklessness, heedless temper which dragged Kentucky and the nation into conflict" 100 years ago

Some people, Humphrey said, "would set brother against brother, class against class and race against race, state against state, region against region."

RAPS METHODS

The Republicans vice presidential candidate, William E. Miller, said President Johnson was using "arm-twisting, political patronizing techniques" in handling defense contracts to lure the support of businessmen.

In a speech in La Crosse, Wis., Tuesday night, Miller said Johnson was arranging "the political wedding of big business, big labor, and big government." He said this was the most concentrated power that destroyed freedom in Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

In New York, Republican Senator Kenneth Keating and the Democratic candidate for his seat, Robert F Kennedy, went on television in consecutive half-hour periods Tuesday night. Each accused the other of ducking a face-to-face television debate.

Water Committee Asked To Take Firm Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — Resources Minister Laing Tuesday called on a Commons committee studying Great Lakes water levels to take a firm stand in favor of treating Canadian waters as a Canadian, rather than continental, resource.

He warned the Commons mines, forests and waters committee that "we have vital interests—at the moment non-governmental — are rotting away at Canada's water resources.

The object appeared to be to use Canada's water as a huge storage area for continental water resources. Although such a program would benefit billions of dollars in storage costs, the crisis in water resources was approaching so rapidly that such sums soon would become economic.

Mr. Laing said water is Canada's most important resource. Its management would determine the economic future of this country and the prosperity of Canadians for all time to come.

So, in the face of foreign interest in our water resources, hoped the Commons committee would approach the question from a standpoint rather than a continental standpoint.

HAVE RIGHTS

In reply to questions from Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Laing said the provinces have primary rights over water resources except where they cross into national boundaries or where navigation is involved.

However, the federal government had taken the view that the federal Crown has under ship in water use and was prepared to use national funds to meet the responsibility on the benefit of all Canadians.

Such questions as the diversion of north - flowing rivers into the Great Lakes basin would require extensive federal - provincial study, Mr. Laing said.

Ontario and Quebec had been asked their views and had submitted tentative replies.

Jack Scherbert (L—Norfolk) asked whether any efforts are being made to get agreement between the provinces on cooperative use of water resources.

Mr. Laing mentioned a committee of the provinces studying the Saskatchewan River basin. He also said the committee's study will make it obvious that "while the provinces have the control of their resources, if jealousy is carried too far, everyone will suffer."

Heber Smith (PC — Simcoe North) suggested that steps should be taken to consolidate the large number of federal departments and agencies concerned in water resources.

LBJ One of Most Complex And Ambitious Leaders The States Has Ever Had

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Every thing about Lyndon Baines Johnson is big including his hopes for a smashing U.S presidential election victory Nov. 3 over Senator Barry Goldwater.

He is big physically in person, wealth, ego and capacity to work 18 hours daily or more; he is big in political savvy; campaign style and his grip on the Democratic party.

The Republican attack on the morals of his administration has not been exceeded in tempo or language this century.

There were king - sized obstacles in the path of the poor Texas farm youth who finally reached the White House with the final thrust from an assassin's bullet.

Americans, staggered by the Dallas murder of President Kennedy, have become aware that the interim president in his own right is one of the most complex and ambitious leaders the United States has ever had. The Johnson character in its complexity ranges from private language that would shake a lumberjack to a public self-control of iron strength and dedication to persuasion and political compromise.

"He doesn't have the best mind in the Democratic side of the Senate," a colleague once summed up. "He isn't the best orator. He isn't the best parliamentarian. But he's the best combination of all these qualities."

SEEKS CONVERTS

One observer suggested after watching Johnson throw himself into a heaving mass of politics campaign humanity that "out there somewhere he wants to find a political sinner and reason him out of it."

Few, including the president himself, would have gambled a cent at one time that he ever would have the chance to practise his remarkable talents at the top.

Deftly, the Kennedy era has been blended into the Johnson reign and the party probably has been strengthened in the process, even without the unification processes attributed by many to the campaign waged by Goldwater.

Johnson, the man, today is 56 years old, six feet, three inches tall and heavier looking than either his officially-listed weight of 200 pounds or his nimbleness indicate.

His head is heavy—from the grey-tinged hair combed back from the broad creased forehead, to the long nose, the heavy-lidded brown eyes and the prominent jaw.

He can slouch at his White House desk as nonchalantly as any television sheriff or catch a quick nap easily. But he prides at a three-ringed circus begun perhaps as early as 6 a.m. with an armload of papers and a pot of tea. He reads incredibly quickly.

The day may end 20 hours later, perhaps earlier.

Johnson is a dramatic example of heart-attack recovery. In 1955 he suffered a massive one, as bad, he has said, "as a man can have and still live." His doctors today say he seems as good as new.

He quit smoking then and now drinks more orange juice or other non - alcoholic beverage, although he may nurse a scotch and soda.

He swims when he can, dances, rides, likes western-style togs at his Texas ranch where he raises purebred Herefords. He drives fast, as was reported last spring by news reporters who caught him clocking about 90 in his car with a beer in one hand.

No U.S. president has ever run up a larger telephone bill, to persuade, sniff opinion or just chat.

Philosophically, Johnson blankets the middle of the road completely—pinned on one side by the vast influence of big idol, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and his New Deal, and on the other by a Texas conservatism.

He was the oldest of five children born to a farmer - state legislator. The descent on both sides of the family was British.

Johnson as a youth hiked off to California by himself after achieving a school record as a good, if reluctant, student. He came back, worked his way through college, graduated in 1930 and taught school briefly.

WAS SECRETARY

He went to Washington as a senator's secretary in 1931, was married to Lady Bird in 1934 and eventually was elected as a congressman. He lost one bid for the Senate but succeeded the next time.
